Professors Open Against Parris Island

The opening game of the 1950-51 basketball season will get underway tonight at 8:15 when the Georgia Teachers College Professors meet the Marines from Parris Island.

The Professors have only Scotty Perkins, Williamsburg, Kr.; Ralph Parsons, Harlan, Ky.; Jim Duncan, Warley, Ky.; Sonny Clements, Rhine, Ga., returning from last year's team which had a record of 26-2 for the year and lost to Tampa University in the finals of the sectional N.A.I.E. tournament held in Tampa.

There are several new faces on the varsity this year. Included in these are Johnny Renfro, transfer from Cumberland Junior College, and Buster Cortee, transfer from Morehead College. Billy Oswald, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Horace Belflower, Cochran, Ga., and William "Duck" Page, of Bowling Green, Ky., are three freshmen who are playing on the varsity and lack only in experience.

The Marines from Parris Island have already played two games and won both of them with points to spare. The Marines are led by player-coach Jack Robbins, who has played four years for the Naval Academy at Annapolis. The Marines have plenty of new material and four of the new players have taken over starting positions from last year's team which lost only one starter. The new players are led by 6-foot 5-inch center

Dick Adair. Adair has played four years of college ball and has had one year of professional experience.

From reports received here, Francis McMemamin will be one of the best ball handlers to hit the T. C. court in a long time. Returning players, besides Robbins, are Peters, Benner, Elliot, and Myer-san, the only starter from last year's team to keep his position. There are several more players returning, but due to lack of information their names are not known.

The Georgia Teachers College freshman team will play South Georgia College in a preliminary game. Starting at 7 o'clock, this is the first year that T. C. has tried to form a freshman team and they have come up with a pretty good one. So, let's all try to get down to the gym by 7 o'clock and see a good ball game.

The probable starting lineup for the freshmen will be Bob Belton of Eustis, Fla., and Billy Cross of Milan, Ga., as forwards; Bobby Phillips of Albany, Ga., at center; Hal Griner of Savannah, Ga., and Billy Garret of Deland, Fla., or Jesse Finch of Glennville, Ga., at guard positions.

Don't Go Away

"Don't Go Away Mad," the Masquers' production originally scheduled for December 6, has been postponed until the winter quarter on the tentative date of January 15, due to the illness of one of the members of the cast.

The play is a tragic story of incurables and their ways of accepting the fact that days and hours of their lives are numbered. Especially tragic is one man's attempt to better himself in the last few days of life through reading the dictionary. The deaths of friends every day keep them soberly facing the fact that the next hour it may be they who will be missing from their bed or the lounge. It is an unusual play that one will find hard to forget.

Rehearsals for the play have been underway for some time in the attempt to make it one of the best productions ever seen on the campus.

Teachers College Library Now Offers Students Use of Film-Strip Service

Those people who find it difficult to concentrate on weighty volumes of Shakespeare, Ovid, or Virgil are the type person the library had in mind when it made the film-strip service available to students. Now they can sit back in a comfortable chair and learn about everything from "Black Bear Twins" to "International Cooperation at Work" simply by flipping a small knob on the little black machine to the left of the circulation desk in the library.

The strips are catalogued according to the Dewey Decimal System. At present the library has about 110 film-strips and plans to keep adding to its collection. Some of the strips have manual guides so that they may be used more effectively.

The library has had the film-strip service for some time, but it has not been so easily available to students before. Now all a student need do in order to use the projector is tell the person at the circulation desk, and a library assistant will show him how to operate it. Of course, the library cannot offer the hand-holding services that come with some type of films. Arrangements of this sort are left up to the ingenuity of the student. Incidentally, the library boasts some good-looking student-assistants.

Seriously, though, the film-strip service was started for the benefit of all seekers-after-knowledge here at Teachers College. It will pay to take advantage of it. Students will find it not only educational but also very interesting.

Band Clinic at TC December 8 and 9

Georgia Teachers College and Statesboro will be host to about 50 bandmasters and 300 students of instrumental music on Friday and Saturday, December 8 and 9, when the annual State Band Clinic will be held.

The visitors will begin arriving Thursday night and will be housed in dormitories, homes, motels and hotels. Registration will take place a 9 a. m. Friday, with sectional instruction periods for each type of instrument following and lasting until noon. Experts have been secured to work with the various groups.

After lunch, a select group of advanced musicians will perform the five required Class "A" numbers, and after supper and again on Saturday morning another band will perform the "B" and "C" numbers. A number of students from the Statesboro High School Band will perform with this group.

Besides the benefits derived by the students themselves, the bandmasters will have the opportunity to hear festival numbers performed by a competent band, directed by an outstanding school music teacher. Mr. Clarence Gates, music supervisor of the Tulsa, Okla., schools, will direct the bands.

John Lee, of Columbus High School, is president of the State Bandmasters Association. Glenn Beckley, of Dawson, is executive secretary, and Guyton McLendon, local high school bandmaster, is chairman for the First District.

Hooray For Us!

Students of Georgia Teachers College should be glad to be served by a paper such as The George-Anne, although many of them do not agree with articles and views aired therein. However, they must realize that a school paper is essential to a school's public relations. This paper is made possible by the advertisers. How about you students showing your appreciation by patronizing these advertisers? Show them that you can be as appreciative of their help as they seem to be of this school and its paper.

ATTENTION, SENIORS

Please be reminded of the college regulations outlined below. If you do not have a "C" average, it will be necessary for you to repeat some of your "D" courses and thus raise your general average before you may enroll for student teaching.

If you have questions regarding your status, see Miss Perry or Mr. Carroll.

For admission to student teaching, an average of "C" is required. A "C" average means a quality point ratio of 2.0 or more (two times as many quality points as courses or quarter hours earned.) An Average of "C" is required over work done at Teachers College, and, for transfers, over the entire college record.

While engaged in student teaching, a student may not enroll in additional courses for credit.

GEORGIA (Tues., Wed.)
"THREE CAME HOME."

Straight from life, as it happened comes the poignant story of American authoress Agnes Newton Keith's imprisonment in a Japanese concentration camp and her separation from her husband for many months. Claudette Colbert stars as Mrs. Keith, and Patric Knowles is her husband. Sessue Hayakawa, Japanese actor, is the Jap prison camp commandant who shows a streak of humanity. "Three Came Home" is a touching movie you shouldn't miss.

STATE (Mon., Tues.) "WAGONMASTER"

John Ford, Hollywood's best director of outdoor action films, and three-time Academy Award winner, brings to the screen a simple story of two young horse traders who guide a Mormon wagon train across the Utah desert. This one is spiced up by background music by the Sons of the Pioneers, realistic acting, dialogue, and good humor. Ben Johnson and Harry Carey Jr. are the wagonmasters; Ward Bond is the Mormon elder given to forgetting himself and "cussing"; and Joanne Dru is the girl. Drama comes in when a moronic, but vicious, outlaw gang, led by jolly, snake-in-the-grass, "Uncle Shiloh," takes over the caravan.

A Letter From Bud

Fellow Students:

Since I haven't received a letter to the editor all year, I would like to write one.

I'd like to explain some of the goings-on of your newspaper.

I've heard it rumored around that we advertise too much and write too little. I can't help but agree with you. I talked with the business manager about the situation and found out that we could only print 15 issues this year if we didn't have those ads every week. Now 15 is exactly half of our proposed number for the year. Guess we'll just have to keep the ads. We are dilly-dallying with the idea of a 6-page edition if and when we can pay for it. Try to bear with us and we will do our best.

You know it is a funny thing

Barber shave
Man sneeze
Man dead
"Next, please."

Ruth rode on my motorbike
Directly behind me;
I hit a bump at sixty-five,
And rode on Ruth less-ly.

"Is this the Salvation Army?"
"Yes."
"Do you save bad women?"
"Yes."
"Well, save me one for Saturday night."

Did you hear about the little moron who went to the lumberyard looking for his draft board?

about gripes. Only one member of the faculty (other than our advisor) has said anything about our stand on various subjects not being the same as theirs. Yet, every week I hear Mr. and Mrs. So-and-So didn't like what The George-Anne said about this and that. I am proud of the students, though. The student body will walk right up to me and tell me off. I appreciate the fact that the students at Teachers College don't mind expressing their views about The George-Anne to me, the editor, and not everyone but me.

I would like to say again that The George-Anne is your paper and as long as I remain your editor it will continue to be yours!

Sincerely,
BUD STONE.

Mystery Detectives Quiz Classes

From the Detroit Collegian, via the Georgia Tech Technique, via the Emory Wheel, comes this story to prove what a college student will do to keep from taking an exam.

Time: July, 1950.

Place: Advanced English class.

Circumstances: Mid-quarter examination day.

Prof. H. comes into class as usual. Two policemen then entered and took H. away. Class rather surprised: usual thoughts raced through their heads. Outside of classroom, policemen told H. that someone had phoned the police to send squad car to tell H. that his wife was seriously injured and in hospital.

At the same time, some individual phoned Mrs. H. and told her that her husband was seriously injured and in the hospital. Mrs. H. took off for hospital.

Mrs. H. arrived some five minutes later at the hospital, frantic, and in a state of collapse. Prof. H. also arrived in similar state. Prof. and Mrs. H. meet. Prof. and Mrs. H. relieved.

In the meantime, some individual phoned the university and revealed he was Dr. D. of the hospital. He tells them to dismiss H.'s class. Majority of class leaves. Mid-semester exam not taken.

At next class meeting, a note on classroom door: class is postponed. Professor H. arrived too late. Mid-semester exam not taken.

Male students questioned by two detectives. Nothing definite learned.

At next class meeting, Prof. H. prepared for any eventuality. Mid-semester exam finally taken.

Net closes in on culprit, obviously a student well-acquainted with the university. Prof. H. suspects a student not in class for last two meetings. University authorities close in. Student breaks down and confesses: "I wasn't ready for the exam."

Final grade for course: "F."

Final disposition of case: No longer with us.

Remarks: Student apologized.

The Little Fawn

By EDITH CARPENTER

Once upon a time there was a little fawn who lived in the forest with his mother, the doe, an his father, the stag. His mother and his father were very beautiful to look upon. His father had wide, spreading antlers and they both had beautiful, smooth brown coats of fur. The little fawn never tired of looking at the beautiful doe and the noble stag. "They are beautiful," he said, "and since I am their little son, I must look like them, so I must be beautiful, too." But, one day, he looked into a pool of water and to his horror he saw that all over his back were white spots. "Oh, oh, oh!" he cried, "I am not beautiful! I don't look like my beautiful mother or my noble father at all." He wept. "Instead, I have these ugly white spots all over my back! Oh, what shall I do?"

Now, a beautiful white crane heard the little fawn crying, so he flapped his way over to him and asked, "What's wrong, little fawn? Shame on a big deer like you! What's wrong?"

The little fawn told the crane all about his troubles. "I have ugly, white spots all over my back. What shall I do?"

Sanford Sidelines

By MAYO HARTLEY

Arriving home for the Thanksgiving holidays, I immediately began unpacking my suitcase. Pulling out a pair of old dirty socks, what should I find? You guessed it! Roy Rodent was right there, sticking his coal black nose and beadlike eyes out of a hole in the toe of one sock. Oh, well, I guess it would be rather lonesome in Sanford over the holidays. To Roy, it seemed a shame to miss a big Thanksgiving dinner.

I was faced with a rather grave situation, knowing that rats don't fare very well at my home. I would have hated for Roy to face the fate of several other rats who, AT ONE TIME, lived there.

Finally, Roy and I decided that he should occupy a place in the pocket of my coat. There he was safe from cats, traps, etc. All went well until Roy, who is rather restless, got out of my pocket and climbed onto the dining table at mealtime. Needless to say, he caused quite a disturbance. What in the world will he do next?

I didn't have long to wait for the answer to the previous question. Bewildered by the sleet, snow, and cold weather, Roy ventured outdoors to see what it was all about. Smart little rat, that Roy—he just had to build a miniature snow man.

Returning to T. C., I found that Roy had gained all of one ounce. He was much alarmed over the situation and immediately began an effort to reduce.

I was awakened about 1 a. m. Wednesday by a scratching noise at my door. Hm-m-m! Roy, in his effort to reduce, had run over to West Hall and back and was locked out. I guess I should have let him sleep in the hall; however, I couldn't sleep with that confounded scratching.

Later in the night, I felt something cold moving around in my bed. Oh, no! Not again! Yes, cold-natured Roy was hunting a warm place to sleep. What would you do with a rat like Sanford's ROY RODENT?

Maru Mutterings

By MAXINE CORBITT

We got "caught with our pipes down" during the blizzard, too. If you doubt the validity of this statement, ask Laquita and Maxine, whose clothes closet was the recipient of the contents of a burst water pipe in the attic.

There's nothing like variety in a girl's wardrobe, especially when it comes as complete transformation, with solid color clothes taking on multi-colors, and the multi-colors running together into varying shades of dirty dishwater color. And you know what happens to a crepe dress when it gets caught in the rain... well, no new trend in hemlines can remedy that situation (at any rate, no decent trend). We bathe, cook, wash, and clean from a can of water nowadays, until all the pipes can be mended—actually, we don't mind it so much, for it makes us feel like better home managers to have some real, honest-to-goodness problems. And, better still, to be able to meet them.

Our letter to Santa Claus this year included one little ole station wagon, but if any of you see Santa tell him to scratch that off his list for the time being because Mary Jane and Anita brought back a new Ford last week end. It's terribly hard to make it up to the P. O. now on just Mike and Jerry.

Well, the wise old crane opened his beak and croaked, "You are a foolish little deer! Haven't you heard the story of the ugly duckling who turned into a beautiful swan? But if you must be beautiful, go to the Wishing Well, look in and make a wish, turn around three times and—presto!—your wish will come true!"

The little fawn was very happy. He ran to the Wishing Well, looked in and said, "I wish—I wish—" and turned around three times. Then he flapped his wings and flew away. He had become a beautiful swan. MORAL: We can't all be swans, but ducklings aren't such bad eggs, after all.

Basketball Starts Saturday.

THE BASKETBALL SEASON starts Saturday night. The team has been working hard to prepare for the start of the season, and, if past records mean anything, the little man with the big voice is going to have a team he can be proud of.

School spirit has always run high at T. C., and some members of the team have actually credited the howling stands with some of their victories. There may be a square dance at Gum Branch, or a Legion supper somewhere else, but, whatever is going on Saturday night, our place is here. The boys on the team have sacrificed a large part of their spare time to get in shape for this opener and it is our job to be on hand to give them the support they need.

There is something about the atmosphere of a ball game; the hot dogs, the cheerleaders, the moments of tension, that all add up to a worthwhile experience. It is a part of the life we call college, and it is too good to pass up.

There is a good time waiting for you in the gym on Saturday, so take your girl, or somebody else's girl, and BE THERE

Your Editor Speaks

TONIGHT is the night that we have all been looking forward to. The basketball team starts the 1950-51 season with the strong Parris Island cagers. The game will probably be close from start to finish, but the cheers from the student body will be loud and long, no matter what the score is.

Teachers College has a reputation for being behind their team one hundred percent, and it is up to you, the students, to keep up this reputation. Sometimes we plan to go off on a week end and then find that there is a game scheduled for that same week end. Here at Teachers College the team comes first and other activities second. Don't think for a minute that you won't be needed at the games this year.

Go on down Saturday night and enjoy the game, but remember that the players are not the only ones that should be good sports. Yell to your heart's content, but let's keep it clean again this year. One person can ruin the reputation of the entire student body. DON'T LET THAT PERSON BE YOU.

We are a basketball school and everybody knows it. The faculty has been known to put off a test until another day, so as not to conflict with a game. I have no doubt in my mind that the same thing will happen again this year. We should not let them down by not going to the games.

George Roebuck once told me that we have won games for the team by giving them such good support. George should know, for he has been the man who shot the winning points more than once. He will probably be down at the gym Saturday night lending moral support to the team. But, you watch, he has never said or done anything that was out of the way in the least at a game. Follow the example set by one of the most popular men to ever wear the blue and white at Teachers College.

CORRECTION, PLEASE!

In our last issue's "Likes and Dislikes," a mistake was made in the statement that Stacy Sheley made for the press. He really said "I DO like my instructors this quarter."

WHAT? WHEN? WHERE?

A basketball game between the Professors and Parris Island Marines—tonight! Go out and root for the Tide. They need and will appreciate your support.

The Line Breaker

By EDITH CARPENTER

I am a lowly line-breaker

I have no sense of honor;

And when it comes to courtesy,

I guess I'm not a donor.

Oh, when I see a friend ahead

To him I have to speak

And then I bring him up-to-date

On happenings of the week;

But if some day he's last in line

I say, Why, he's no friend of mine!

I am a lowly linebreaker.

The meals here are so good

I cannot stand and wait my turn

To get to that fine food.

I'll have to tell you this—one day

There were no friends in line—

And, oh, the hours that I stood

Before I finally dined.

I'm rude, discourteous, and unkind.

I am a breaker of the line.

Before I finally dined!

Bennet's Blabs

By JOAN BENNETT

The tennis tournament has been held up because of the weather, but will get underway as soon as it warms up. Keep an eye on the bulletin board to see when it will start. The tournament will be single elimination and will start within color groups. Four games must be won out of five. Scores should be posted on the tournament schedule as soon as the games are played off. In case the tournament doesn't begin before Christmas holidays, it will be postponed until spring.

Just a few words about the pep club:

With the cooperation of the student body, it should be a grand addition to the basketball games. The idea of it is that instead of having a few people scattered all over the gym yelling, why not put them all together in one section and get more volume? We might even work up some flash card routines. Everyone concerned with the club is enthusiastic about it and we hope that everyone will respond with as much enthusiasm.

The cheerleaders for the basketball season of 1950-1951 were chosen last Tuesday. The judges included the varsity, "B" team, and the freshman team, the student council and some members of the faculty. All the girls were asked to divide into groups of three and do two yells. The whole group did fifteen yells together. All the girls were good and it was mighty hard for the judges to decide. May I present the cheerleaders: Betty Hendrix, Betty Ann Bedingfield, Ann Nevil, Mynette May, Sara Ann Denham, Joan Bennett. The alternates are Patsy Madray and Sue Simmons.

The George-Anne Salutes Roebuck For Sportsmanship

Well, the basketball season starts tonight for the new year, but let's look back at this same game a year ago. We had Scotty and Sonny as forwards, Helton at center, Rog Parsons and Jim Moore at guard. The game was close and the Teachers were behind with a minute to play—George Roebuck came in and pulled it out of the fire and we won, 63 to 60.

George is back here on the campus again this year, but he has hung up his shoes and quit the hardwood for good. When he quit, it wasn't because he didn't like the game anymore. It was because of his age, which had finally gotten to be a little high for a college ball player.

Students, when you go down to the gym Saturday night, stop a minute and think of George, up there in the stands—a man who put the school and the team ahead of himself. Be proud that we still have people like him here at Georgia Teachers College. If we had more students like George we would have better clubs on our campus.

The George-Anne is proud to salute you, George Roebuck, as the student of the week. We hope that your remaining time here at Teachers College will be a time you can look back on with pleasant memories. May you always stay as good a sport as you have been here at school—and may we all profit from the goal that you have set up for us, and be as unselfish as you have been.

Pep Club Formed For T. C. Cagers

By JOAN BENNETT

For a long time T. C. has needed an organized cheering section to pep up the basketball games and help the cheerleaders. This wish is rapidly becoming a reality. Plans are being made to have a rip-roaring cheering section. Dr. Georgia Watson is sponsoring the club, and a better leader just couldn't be found.

All students who are interested in being a member will have reserved seats, probably situated in the center section of the student side. A club button, costing ten cents, will be used to designate the members. Some of the requirements will be that members must attend pep rallies before each game, attend games, know the yells and, by all means, use a little lung power.

A name for the club hasn't been decided upon, and any suggestions will be appreciated.

Let's make this a big success and have the best cheering section in the state. It's up to you, and you, and you.

Campus Hi-Lights

By GENIE OWEN

The T. C. band gave concerts Tuesday and Wednesday in Portal, Nevils, and Brooklet. These programs were presented to grammar school children and were such that the young people would enjoy.

The Philharmonic Choir concert was presented Thursday night. Some of the selections were "Tribute to Romberg," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Curtains of Night." The choir certainly did a grand job. Congratulations!

Journalism class had its first "stagger" last Tuesday night. Oddly enough, no one seemed to mind having a vacation.

Hurrah! for the student council for having recreation in the gym from 6:15 until 6:45. That should really be fun after everyone starts attending.

T. C. is playing the Parris Island Marines in basketball here Saturday night. See you at the game.

Art Club to Air Gift Suggestions

By KATHERINE FLOYD

All right there! Get out your grimy little papers and your stubby little pencils with your grubby little paws and settle down. Quiet! QUIEEET! There! That's better! Oh, yes! And, you, over there with the hair. Turn on that radio.

You're going to solve your Christmas gift list right now. The Art Club is going to have a radio program Wednesday night at the usual T. C. hour and, seeing as how Christmas is coming, we've decided to do something useful for a change. So! We're going to give gift suggestions, so listen, for once. You probably won't be able to understand us, for we're a mumbling crew, at best, and you probably won't be able to afford the gifts, as some of them cost over a quarter, but listen anyhow. It'll be quite an experience, I'll clue you. Boy! Will Orson hide his little Mars-like face after these few moments on the air.

So look under than junk pile that you call a bed, and dig out that one-tube voice box, because the Art Club is taking to the air (literally, as well as vocally, if we don't get to work on the script.)

Whispers From West

By MARTHA WOOD

After the holidays it seems that most West Hallians have something in common with the Thanksgiving bird. They are well-stuffed with Thanksgiving delicacies. Now their main worry is to "stuff" their heads with "larning" for those finals that will be rolling around all too soon.

Now that Thanksgiving is over, our thoughts naturally turn to Christmas and what Santa Claus—our best boy friend—will give us. West Hall has already started making plans for its Christmas party, and from what I can understand it is to be a regular hum-dinger of an affair. We have several candidates for the role of Santa Claus, but it is difficult to select a jolly old Saint Nick. We want someone who will fit the part and the Santa suit we are borrowing from Minkovitz.

As our thoughts turn toward Christmas and the holiday festivities, the faculty dance moves up to a place of importance in our minds. I have noticed more than one formal being aired recently, and many anxious expressions on the faces of those West Hallians whose male friends have not yet gotten around to mentioning the dance. The faculty always goes all-out to give us a good party; so, boys and gals, let's not wait too late to get our date and make our plans to go. With memories of last year's dance flitting through my minds, I have noticed more than have a gay old time.

I, for one, am filled with the Christmas spirit. I brought oodles of Christmas light bulbs from home back with me this week end. However, they are not giving off much light. Maybe it is because I forgot to bring the light cord that goes with them. Oh, well, anything is pardonable with these finals hanging over my head. Speaking of studying reminds me that I have to get Dante out the Inferno before tomorrow's Humanities class; so I suppose I had better get busy. From all I can understand, some people have been trying to get out for years with no success.

Eastern Slants

By BETTY A. WITHROW

"Girl, you'd better go back upstairs and make yourself presentable if you want to talk to me." That's what we heard a nice young gentleman tell one of the members of the fairer sex (better known as a female) as she stood there in her housecoat. Being much surprised at encountering the gentleman, she desired very much to please. She (Bobbie Holley) scurried off while he patiently waited in the lobby. Then—guess what? The young lady tipped most gracefully down the stairs in a flowing evening gown. You should have seen the look on his face!

It doesn't seem possible, but it happened. It happened like this: As you all know, there's a rule of some sort around here implying that girls will be in the dormitory by 10:30 at the very latest. If you aren't—well, it's not so real good. To continue—Beth and Louie had a date one night and among the four of them (double date, you know), there was only one time-piece. They went to the show and somehow time seemed to slip up on them and it was 10:20 before

There is a girl named Bunny; Her expressions are often funny. Although some do stink, We'll always think, "Better than sittin' in the middle," is a honey!

Our Mary, no matter what, Laughs at jokes a lot. Though she laughs and cries She isn't so wise, For the true meaning she hasn't got!

There is a girl named Dot, Much sense she hasn't got. Though she's getting Horacey, In addition to being voicey, We like her an awful lot!

they knew it. She made it right at what she thought was 10:30. As she signed in, she exclaimed, "Is that clock right?" It was only 9:30—can you feature?

Seems there's been some short-sheeting going on around, too. Even Mrs. Johnson got short-sheeted one night. Understand, we don't believe people are guilty unless proven so—but—Trudie and Faye looked mighty guilty.
