Statesmen Quartet Will Appear Nov. 3

Hovie Lister's Statesmen Quartet will appear at Georgia Teachers College on November 3. The quartet has the distinction of being selected to record the title songs from two stories of faith which have been filmed by 20th Century Fox studios. Through their associations with the top people in the world of gospel music and entertainment, the Statesmen have attained a place of distinction among many Americans.

The distinctions achieved include a radio show which is heard in every state in the United States, winners of the Arthur Godfrey Talent Scouts show, associations with Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, Billy Graham Team and Stuart Hamblen, writer of some of the greatest gospel songs of the day.

Statesmen Make Recordings
Fame has come to the Statesmen in many ways. Their RCA Victor recordings are among the best sellers in the record field. They have also been the only quartet ever to have a television show sponsored by a national firm.

The Statesmen travel more than 1,500 miles a week in their especially equipped Greyhound bus. The bus is equipped with modern sleeping quarters, dressing rooms, a large wardrobe and other modern conveniences.

The Statesmen, in addition to being a fine quartet, are all top notch soloists in their own right. They are featured in many of the quartet's solo parts. Day Ott, who, like Lister, is an accomplished pianist, comes from McAllister, Oklahoma. His baritone voice is one of the most distinctive in gospel music.

Wettersington is A Favorite
Big Chief Wetherington, the deep-throated bass, is one of the most popular of all the Statesmen. He comes from Ty Ty, Georgia.

R. D. "Rosie" Rozell possesses from Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Lister, leader and master of ceremonies at the group's personal appearances, is an ordained Baptist minister and he fills his own pulpit almost every Sunday at the picturesque Mount Zion Baptist Church, near Marietta, Georgia.

The Statesmen have also recorded the title music from "A Man Called Peter" and "God is My Partner."

Choir Officers To Serve As A Planning Board

The fifty-voice Philharmonic Choir has elected officers for the coming year. These officers are to act as a planning board to plan tours, concerts, and enforce regulations for the college choir.

Those elected are: president, Mary Ann Harrell, Macon; senior representative, David Powers, Tifton; junior representative, Beth Rigdon, Douglas; sophomore representative, Tommy Bowen, Baxley. Dr. Ronald J. Neil, chairman of the division of music, is sponsor of this organization.

GTC Alumna Is Author Of New "Pitter, Patter, Roundabout"

Mary Akins Williams, an alumna of Georgia Teachers College, has written a children's book, "Pitter, Patter, Roundabout," published in June, 1959 by the Vantage Press, Inc.

Mrs. Williams was born in Register, Bulloch County, Georgia, and received her B. S. degree from GTC. For twenty years she was a classroom teacher and also taught public school music and directed rhythm and harmony bands.

Now retired from teaching, the author is active in church work—She is superintendent of the Beginners' Sunday School Department of the Clarksville (Georgia) Baptist Church. Her husband is Chester W. Williams, principal of the North Habersham High School in Clarksville. Their five-year-old adopted son, Roger Bron Williams, is the wide awake source of inspiration for much of her writing.

At first, writing was a hobby for Mrs. Williams, who used her talents for school programs, assemblies, P. T. A., gatherings, and festivals.

"Pitter, Patter, Roundabout,"

a collection of poem and stories, is her first published book. Mrs. Williams also finds great pleasure in simple drawing and sketching, and in culinary arts. Mrs. Williams has attended

The many RCA-Victor recordings which feature the Statesmen and Hovie Lister reflect the deep faith and devotion to the spiritual life which has characterized the careers of these men. The Statesmen visit is under the sponsorship of the Georgia Teachers College Athletic Association.

40 Students Attend Modern Dance Club Meeting; Plans Formulated

Forty students attended the Modern Dance Club at its first meeting on Friday, October 23, to organize and discuss plans for the year.

This organization was formed for the first time last year on the GTC campus. On May 28 of last year, the Modern Dance Club presented their first dance concert for the student body. Some of the acts were: the Saber Dance, The Three Cornered Triangle danced to the music of A Streetcar Named Desire, Tuxedo Junction, a Waltz, Calypso, and a Voodoo Suite.

Any student is eligible to join as long as he or she has an interest in dancing. Boys are especially urged to join because their strength will be useful in vastly enlarging the various types of dances which the club performs. No dancing experience is necessary and all dance movements and the dance vocabulary will be taught. The meeting will be held once a week on Thursday nights at 7 p.m. in the old Gym. However, only on Thursday, October 29, the club will meet from 6:15 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. in the new gym.

Tentative plans for this year include two concerts. One concert will be presented at Easter and will be "The Last Days of Christ." A second concert will be given during Spring Quarter which will consist of varied types of dances.

Everyone is invited to join this club and attend its meetings.

Miss Pat Shely, assistant professor of physical education, is the advisor and director for the group.

Four Represent GTC At GEA In Waycross

Dr. Ralph K. Tyson, dean of students at GTC, Dean Paul F. Carroll, dean of the college, Dr. Lloyd F. Toumey, chairman of the business education division, and Mr. J. A. Pafford, principal of Marvin Pittman School, attended the Department of Higher Education of the Georgia Education Association at the Eighth District GEA Meeting in Waycross, Tuesday, October 27, to discuss the new divisional set-up in the state of Georgia.

Dean Tyson, second vice president of the GEA Department of Higher Education, presided at this divisional meeting.

Dr. Gerald B. Robins, state president of the GEA Department of Higher Education and president of Augusta College, outlined an action program for schools in the region and talked about the newly adopted constitution. He also explained that the new divisional set-up divides the state into five areas. Our Southeastern division includes eight colleges.

The purpose of this action program is to interest all institutions of higher learning in the state of Georgia which previously have not been members of the GEA.

Of the eight colleges which compose the SE Division of Higher Education, these four have local GEA units: Augusta Junior College, South Georgia College, Valdosta State College, and Georgia Teachers College. The other four colleges included in this Southeastern Division are: Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College, Armstrong Junior College, and Brewton-Parker Junior College.

Mr. Douglas B. Robinson, associate professor of business administration and economics at Valdosta State College, was elected divisional chairman at this meeting.

Editorials

Success Depends Upon You!

Do you, the average GTC student, ever stop to think that the success of your Student Council depends upon you? The sole purpose of the Student Council is to make recommendations. These must be passed through the Dean of Students' office and the President's office. If you ever have a complaint or a compliment it's your duty to let your Council know. After all, they do represent you, and were elected to serve you. They serve as the "middle men."

Among the many recommendations that the Student Council has made this year are the following: that the Student Center stay open later to accommodate people who study until the library closes, that we acquire a new Georgia flag, and that the juke box selections be reduced to 5c.

Presently the Council is engaged in planning Homecoming. The theme will be announced next week so that clubs can begin working on floats early. Another activity on the agenda is the Blood-mobile.

The new blue lights that you enjoy during Mat Dances and Saturday night dances were gotten by the Council. At present they are working on other and better lights.

The Student Council has been in charge of all the elections this year. Turnouts for elections this year have been larger than ever before. This shows that students are increasingly interested in their student government. Let's hope that this interest continues.

Now that you do see the things your Student Council has accomplished and is attempting to do let us back them to the hilt. Their primary purpose is to serve you. Let's exercise our freedom of speech. Let yourself be heard.

College Benefits Aren't Realized

How many college students actually realize how many benefits they receive by attending college? Students should grow physically, mentally, socially, emotionally, and culturally during their four year stay in such an institution.

Here at Georgia Teachers College we are given many opportunities to grow in each of these mediums. Physical, mental, emotional, and social growth is rather natural since many college courses are devoted to these areas, but to grow culturally a person has to develop his own method of growth.

At Georgia Teachers College, every student has the opportunity to enrich his life. There is an excellent library, there are many collections of famous paintings and there are often opportunities to hear good music performed.

Members of the Statesboro Community Concert Series Association spend many hours in scheduling and securing excellent performers for the people of Statesboro and the students of Georgia Teachers College.

At the beginning of every quarter students pay an activity fee which includes tickets to all college functions, basketball games, and Community Concert Series.

These programs are planned so that everyone can understand and appreciate every concert. The association presents symphony orchestras, folk singers, choral ensembles, and soloists. In each of these concerts the performing group or soloist usually has selected a program that will be enjoyable to the average person.

While you are still a student and have a chance to enrich your life in all areas, it would behoove you to stop and ask yourself if you have taken advantage of the many opportunities placed before you.

The average concert-goer probably does not enjoy every minute he spends in a concert hall, but during each performance he hears and sees something that makes his life a little more meaningful.

Help support your college and your community - away - from - home, support the Statesboro Concert Series.

Can You Accept Responsibility?

Are you accepting responsibilities and doing them right? "Eat, drink, and be merry" is the philosophy of many college students. These students don't know how to accept responsibility, much less do one right. All they can think about is having a good time with not a care in the world. Only when one learns to accept responsibility and does his job well will he become a mature adult.

Many students have always had someone else to accept their responsibilities for them and by the time they get to college they don't know how. One who has never had to accept and carry a responsibility before he came to college has lost something in the process of becoming a young adult.

There are those students who accept too many responsibilities. They take on more than they can possibly do. As a result they only do one job half as well. If anything is worth doing, it is worth doing right.

Each person has different responsibilities and the way a person accepts them and carries them out determines to a large extent his success or failure in his life's work. So learn to accept your responsibilities and do the best job possible.

This Is Your Publication

Each and every week the George-Anne, the Georgia Teachers College student publication, is published for the enjoyment of the student body and faculty members.

The events happening on campus are covered by the reporters through news stories or by our feature writers in special features.

However, the activities occurring on campus are numerous as you can well imagine. Since we have approximately 48 clubs and organizations associated with the GTC campus we cannot possibly discover every activity of every club with our limited staff.

We ask your cooperation. If any club is planning special programs, such as a distinguished guest speaker, or is having a dance or will attend some national or state convention, and feel it is newsworthy and should be announced in the George-Anne, then some member of the organization should stop by the George-Anne office, Room 108 in the Williams Center, on Tuesday nights between 6:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. Report the event and as many facts as possible to one of the staff members. In this way, the organizations on campus can be assured of publicity and recognition of their work.

The George-Anne is self-supporting through their advertising division. The only way that we can be assured of the Statesboro businesses continuing their advertisement with us is that the students patronize our advertisers. When you buy from these people, tell them that you saw their ad in the George-Anne.

All students are invited to submit feature stories and creative writings for publication in the newspaper. Final decisions are left to the editor and her staff. Submit any contributions typewritten or printed with large margins and print your name in the upper left hand corner of the first page. Letters to the editor are also invited.

The George-Anne is larger in size and better than ever before. Do your share in maintaining this status!

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

-- Moore Or Less --

By WILLIS MOORE

"One result of super-highways is wider traffic jams."—A radio newsmen in Alaska reports that Alaskans are now calling us the South forty-eight."

"Among the many things teen-agers never learn to hang up is the telephone."

Someone has said that variety is the spice of life. If this be true, we certainly have the spice of life in our assembly programs. Music, drama, humor, almost anything. If we recount the "different" programs we have had they would be numerous. Naturally we have one or two each quarter that is an annual or quarterly event, but basically we have a wide variety of programs.

A great deal of time and consideration is spent in setting up our assembly programs. It would be foolish to have several hundred students report to a seat in the auditorium just for the sake of a required assembly. It would be a waste of students and administrative time. However, I am not certain that students do not feel that it is a complete waste of energy.

Many students feel that assembly is "A necessary evil" so therefore they will set out to combat it—at any cost. There are some students that, no matter what is on the program insist upon studying, reading, or just creating a general disturbance.

These students have no consideration for fellow students. They turn pages, write, shuffle notes, and disturb everyone near them. Some insist upon talking, laughing, and adding to the din of noise.

Recently we had a seventy-nine year old minister speak in assembly. He had completely memorized "The Sermon on the Mount." That within itself is fantastic. But also he preached it for us. As is the usual procedure, a number of students brought out books and proceeded to study during the entire program.

If you are one of those students that MUST study in assembly, please go to Dean Carroll and see if he can arrange for you to be excused. If he can't, and you must study, then cut assembly—you can afford to lose the quality point if studies mean that much to you.

Some people enjoy the assembly programs. They want to take them in undisturbed. If you create a disturbance, not only are you bothering other people, but also, you are showing your own rudeness. Be considerate, it is relatively simple.

Coeds From GTC To UCLA Stay In Style

By PATSY GINN and ADA LEE FULFORD
Lights! Action! Camera!

You're on!

Coeds on the Stage of Fashion this winter will be modeling the very latest in winter finery! Cross-country from GTC to UCLA coeds will look sleek and swift in multicolored boots. They will dash about in suede, leather, and corduroy. The most flashing heroes of all college campuses will possess a pair of the ever-popular desert boots.

Returning to the "Stage of the Roaring Twenties," are the knee-length skirts and racoon collars. Be in fashion in your plaid skirt and trench coat!

Especially high-lighted for the men are the "Continental" style trousers. Tight-fitting and slim-looking, these slacks have sold a million on the hit-parade of fashion. This collegiate style features pegged-legs with no cuffs and no belt loops.

Dance on Could Nine is the most fashionable belle at the the "Starlight Ball" in your cocktail dress of white chiffon trimmed in mink fur. Your escort will be attired in the traditional dinner jacket, and he will be sporting a matching set of plaid tie, cummerbund, and handkerchief.

Yes, clothes do much to make the man in these modern times, but remember—clothes are not all-important! It is the person inside that counts the most on life's Stage—the sparkling smile, the bubbling personality, and quiet consideration combine to make the most fashionable style ever created!

A Planned Day Helps Efficiency

By Irma Roach

It all begins every morning when one of my roommates gently removes my blanket, softly calls me a couple of times and then throws the alarm clock in my face.

From then on, until I flake out again sometime in the wee hours, I go through my calm, uneventful, and well-planned daily routine.

First I get ready for breakfast, then wake up as I go out the front door to face the big, wide, beautiful world through big, wide, bloodshot eyes.

Breakfast over, I go back to my spacious room and tidy it up. This consists of shifting the teddy bear from the foot of the bed to the head.

Off I go to class—down the stairs, pick up Sammi, charge out the door, across the street, back across the street, in the door, up the stairs, into the room, pick up my book, back down the stairs, out the door, across the street, into the Ad Building, down the aisle, across the stage into the speech room. Late again, class comes to order, all is quiet. For fifty minutes, a small group of people sit there and gasp at each other in phonetic sounds.

At 10 a.m. I spend thirty well-planned minutes, time which many students waste, busily buzzing around in the Student Center guzzling coffee and getting the latest tidbits of gossip.

In German class, we have hysterics sessions until the professor comes in, and again I translate my German sentences. The only complication of this is that I've done them in French, which I then have to translate into English, and transcribe that into phonetics so that I can really understand what I'm saying.

And what kind of a day was it? A day like all days, filled with those events that alter and frustrate our times. And I was there.

Thoughts

by Wayne Bland

I saw a sunset this evening, Beautiful, golden, red, purple hue.

I saw a cloud go passing by, Pluffy, white, billowing toward the blue.

I saw a tree bring forth its first bud, Unfolding, white then pink, then grown. A bird lit on the ground, Whistling, searching, feathers blown.

O for the joy of being a connoisseur Of nature—God's world. To love the wild. The deer, the bird, the rabbit, the squirrel.

To watch the grass grow, To see an animal born, To find God in these things, Makes one love, not scorn.

Can I be a man To look upon these things And love them with my heart And feel the joy they bring?

Will I see the glories of the world— The rivers, mountains, oceans, plains, and streams, So shallow? Will I look upon the people's faces— The red, the black, the white, the yellow?

What am I to do In this wanton place? Am I to be as reckless as they Who exist only on the surface?

Will I die before I awake, Or will I live awhile? I wonder what God planned for me— Is it wonderful, peaceful, or vile?

Am I the one chosen For some lonely path? Am I to serve God In the fields of war's aftermath?

I love beauty And must find the way To the appreciation of sunsets, People, flowers, animals, new mown hay.

Only in my heart May Beauty be found, To present a glowing light, To the world around.

When death has found its victory, And into the grave I go— I shall carry with me, Beauty, love, truth, honor, To hide with me below.

Then, I shall rise And soar to the skies To find me God, Peace, happiness, joyfulness— Breaking all Ties . . . With The Mortal.

Justice

Bromfield sat in the jury box observing the defendant, Michael Rooney, charged with grand larceny in the first degree.

The defendant was indicted jointly with one Willie Fallon, who recently pleaded guilty to the charge. Rooney was accused of serving as a lookout during the robbery of one Patrick Love on the night of June 24.

Bromfield felt undecided. He could hear a little voice within him saying, "There must be something in it. The jury believed enough of the story to bring a charge. It can't be false altogether." And yet as he sat there regarding the young dark-haired man, arrayed in a shabby blue suit, Bromfield could see that he was not like a million others; to him he seemed like a man born to freedom.

It seems that on the night in question, a policeman noticed Michael Rooney and the defendant, Willie Fallon, step into a doorway with Patrick Love, who at the time was heavily intoxicated. The police officer testified that Rooney stood watch while Fallon attempted to rob the complainant.

Love claimed that he had been robbed of at least seventeen dollars. He stated that he had never known Rooney and could not remember anything else relating to the case.

The defendant took the stand and denied ever having participated in the crime or even knowing the codefendant. He claimed that he was on his way home from a dance and passing the corner when the policeman arrested him.

The jurors left the courtroom to deliberate the case. When the count was taken it was divided, six for conviction six for acquittal. Bromfield favored acquittal. Before the final decision was reached, the count was ten for conviction and two for acquittal. Then Bromfield and one other juror changed their vote for conviction due to the pressure of the other jurors who had other commitments which they felt were more important than a few years of a man's life. With the hurried decision, they filed back into the courtroom feeling that they had done their duty.

The verdict of guilty had crushed the twenty-five year old defendant. That special spark of freedom Bromfield had seen in him was dead. In one hour and ten minutes they had figuratively killed Michael Rooney for stealing, if he really did steal, one dollar and sixty-five cents.

Which Witch Went Where On Halloween

By MIDGE LASKY

Can you remember the Halloween nights of just a few years ago? For days before Halloween costumes were being shown in the five and ten's and finally after years of persuading and begging, or at least it seemed like years, Mom finally gave in and—said she'd make you a costume!

The great night finally arrives! Mom, having worked very hard and many hours on your costume, throws a sheet over your head—holes are already cut out for the eyes, nose, and mouth—voila you're a ghost! She hands you a jack o' lantern, a sack, and says, "Be careful and be back here in an hour." She's so excited that she forgets you don't have a watch and even if you did it wouldn't help. You can't tell time!

So off you go to play "trick or treat." You meet a goblin here, a witch there, and the three of you join forces. Only you warn that witch that she'd better get rid of that black cat cause it'll get awfully heavy after carrying it for a couple hours.

You knock on a few hundred doors, get gum, cookies, candy, pennies and some of these spots you even hit more than once. After you hear those words, "Haven't we seen you before?" you decide that six times at one place is enough! You may soap a few screens or windows, throw sandbags on porches, nothing more than that!

The first Halloween that you're allowed to take the car is a memorable evening. You boys get together and since you're too old to play "trick," then you can only play "trick." Some people, especially some of your teachers, find that the air has been allowed to escape from their car tires as they prepare to leave for school the next morning. "Why are they late to class?" you wonder.

But now we're college students and the majority of us must be content with going to parties or carnivals.

How many of you really know why we make such a big fuss over Halloween?

This holiday is actually All Hallows Eve, the vigil of Hallows or All Saints' Day. This Christian designation obscures an ancient pagan festival characterized by the lighting of bonfires and the belief that this night marked the principal yearly outing for ghosts and witches.

In Scotland and Wales, these characteristics still enjoy a limited vogue. In the United States, this night is put aside for childish pranks; ringing doorbells, stealing gates, and special costumes and threaten mischief if the people don't pay.

This Week's Bookniks

By MISS LUCILLE HOWARD

PAUL GALICCO - "Mrs. Arris Goes to Paris."

This is a Cinderella story of a London charlady who dreamed of owning a Dior gown. Her days excursion to Paris for the dress stretched into a week, with all kinds of wonderful changes in the people she met. A brief, delightful, magical novel for all women and girls who ever wished for something special.

AGEE, JAMES - "A Death in the Family"

This extremely moving novel was published after the death of the author and was a Pulitzer Prize winner. The setting of the book is Knoxville, Tennessee forty years ago, and the story is of a loving and closely knit family and of the loss and heartbreak in this family when a beloved member suddenly dies. This is not a sad book, but is essentially the story of love, which glows with affection, tenderness, and great courage when tragedy changes the lives of those left behind.

LILLIAN ROTH - "Beyond My Worth"

With the same frankness and honesty that made her autobiography, "I'll Cry Tomorrow," a deeply moving experience, Lillian Roth now describes her struggle for a professional come-back and her search for religious understanding. This is the story of her life from publication of "I'll Cry Tomorrow" until present and has religious, social and theatrical interest.

Intramural Roundup

By JOYCE RAHN

Tennis doubles are underway. The first round must be completed by November 5, allowing a week to play. Each match will consist of the best of three sets.

As I have mentioned earlier in this column there will be team golf. It is just around the corner so bring your golf clubs back and get them shined up for the golf tournament.

Girl's Intramural

The girl's volleyball program have had it rough these past weeks because almost every game has been rained out.

On Monday all but one team forfeited. The Bluebirds and Eagles had a double forfeit, but the Cardinals won because the Falcons forfeited to them.

Next week the girls will play make-up games and then following will be a series of soccer, speedball, and hockey for the team sports.

Boy's Intramural

On Monday the Bobcats won by forfeit over the Leopards. The Bears defeated the Cougars by 29-18 and 36-7.

Next week the boys start touch football. So practice your passes and kicking, boys.

Averitt Is Guest Speaker Of KPK Meeting Recently

Dr. Jack N. Averitt, chairman of social science division at GTC, was the guest speaker at the Kappa Phi Kappa fraternity meeting October 21, and presented a program consisting of slides of his recent trip to Europe.

The fraternity asked Dr. Averitt to present this program in order to enable them to see and better understand European customs, traditions, and learning processes. Dr. Averitt showed and explained slides of the ruins of Rome and some of his experiences as a student in Europe.

For future programs Kappa Phi Kappa is planning to present more faculty members and panel discussions.

Plans for fall quarter activities also include induction of pledges and initiation. The fraternity is also planning to visit area high schools for college day programs informing students about GTC.

Kappa Phi Kappa, a national educational honor society, on the GTC campus, is a fraternity composed of men who are maintaining a B average in college.

MISS ELAINE JARDINE

MPS Teacher Finds GTC A Friendly School

By MARY CHARLIE EWING

"Georgia Teachers College is a warm, friendly place. The people are very helpful to the newcomers on campus." These are the words of Miss Elaine Jardine, home economics instructor at Marvin Pittman School.

A graduate of Douglas High School, Miss Jardine comes to GTC from Pennsylvania State University where she worked for one and one-half years on a masters degree. Prior to attending Penn State she graduated from GSCW and taught home economics for two years at Putnam County High School in Eatonton.

Miss Jardine spends most of her leisure time sewing. She says that she also enjoys music. "I play the piano a little but strictly for my own pleasure and enjoyment," she stated. When asked how GTC had impressed her, Miss Jardine stated, "I am very happy here at Georgia Teachers College and Marvin Pittman School. I am certainly enjoying my work."

French Club Has Welcoming Party

The French Club sponsored a wiener roast in the Alumni Building (Old Gym) last Wednesday, October 21, to welcome new members to their organization. The German Club was also invited.

The party had a Halloween theme. Because of rainy weather the party was forced to be held indoors.

Chairmen of the party was Midge Lasky, Savannah. The committee chairmen were: Susan Brandon, Decatur, refreshments; Jean Dickerson, Savannah, decorations committee; David King, Rebecca, tickets; and Jerry Bennett, Alpharetta, clean-up committee.

Cheerleaders Are Selected For 1959-60 Basketball Season Here

The Cheerleaders for the 1959-60 basketball season were selected Wednesday evening, October 28 in the new gym.

The five judges based their decisions on voice, an individual yell, technique, coordination, timing, pep, appearance, posture, personality, and a group yell which enabled the judges to see how the contestant works with teammates.

The five judges were: Miss Roxie Remley, assistant professor of fine arts; Mr. Jess White, assistant professor of physical education; Mr. Dexter Hughes, last year's captain of the GTC cheerleaders and presently a teacher at the Eli Whitney Elementary School in Savannah; Eddie Owens, senior, New Albany, Indiana; and Carlton Gill, a sophomore from Richmond Hill.

Miss Pat Shely, assistant director of health and physical education at GTC is the advisors to the cheerleaders.

Many campus students attended the tryouts. Two weeks ago approximately 40 students turned out for the first evening of practice in the Alumni Building. At the tryouts Wednesday evening a total of 18 students participated in the eliminations, 16 girls and two boys.

The Cheerleaders is an official organization on campus and officers will be elected in the near future.

GEA Meeting ...

comb, president of the Student GEA-FTA, Miss Carole Jean Collins, a GTC freshman from Statesboro, greeted the GEA general assembly. Representing approximately 6,000 Georgia future teachers, Miss Collins stated, "As I bring greetings from the Student GEA-FTA, I also bring a big thank you to each of you contributors to the great cause of education. The great thing in the world is not so much where we stand, as in what direction we are moving. I consider it a great pleasure to speak to you, the GEA, because you are moving toward a better world."

Miss Collins was recently elected first vice-president of the state FTA.

Mr. Frank M. Hughes, the executive secretary of GEA, followed Miss Collins' address with his report.

Mrs. Gladys Darling of Waycross, president of the GEA, then delivered the President's Address. "To have a good profession you must have a strong professional organization," Mrs. Darling stated.

In the afternoon 22 GEA affiliate meetings were held in various college buildings on the campus.

A total of 24 companies sponsored exhibits of educational teaching aids and books in the Marvin Pittman School. The GTC Student GEA and the FTA of the Marvin Pittman School served as hosts, ushers, guides, and parking lot attendants. They also served refreshments to members of the GEA Convention.

Music Go'round

By THELMA MALLARD

Dr. Dan Hooley and Mr. Jack Broucek, professors of music at GTC have been quite busy practicing for their annual duo-piano recital.

Three programs have been planned, the first of which will be Wednesday, November 18, in McCroan Auditorium. Their second concert will be in Washington, Georgia on Thursday, November 19, for the Washington Concert Association. Their third concert will be a Benefit Concert in the Savannah High Auditorium for the Savannah Piano Teachers Club.

You better go early if you want a seat because there is usually a full auditorium and I am sure this year there will be some standing in the back.

Phi Mu Alpha, Music Fraternity for men, have the following pledges for this quarter; Frank Singleton of Fort Valley, Vernon Hearn of Augusta, Bucky Carlton of Moultrie, Tom Rogers of Buena Vista, Charlie Harris of Buena Vista, Malcolm Gilbert of Tifton, Herschel Carswell of Tifton, Joe Reeves of Dearing, and Charlton Bennett of Jesup. The Community Concert Series opens with a bang this season. The first concert will be November 30, Monday, Coleman Blumfield, a remarkably gifted pianist, will be the first artist.

This will be an opportunity for everyone to attend. There will be no admission charge at the door.

The Atlanta Symphony Orchestra will present a Concert here in McCroan Auditorium January 24 under the direction of Henry Sopkin. The last Concert of the Season will be February 17. Walter Broucek, baritone, is a leading member of the Metropolitan Opera and he will present a vocal concert.

All GTC Students are invited to attend these Concerts. No admission will be charged at the door.
