Eight Floats Compete 'T' Club Float Voted As Winning Parade Entry This Year

by Midge Lasky

Although the Homecoming Parade of January 30, 1960 was cancelled because of bad weather conditions, eight floats were in competition for the first, second and third place prizes. The five winning floats are as follows: "T" Club, first place; Science, second place; Future Business Leaders of America, third place; Eta Rho Epsilon, fourth place; and Baptist student Union, fifth place.

The "T" club, composed of boys who have received a letter "T" for outstanding athletic ability at Georgia Southern College, featured Miss Betty Biggers, Keysville, sitting on a throne with a gigantic "T" as her backrest. The float depicted the five names that Georgia Southern College has had in its history. The entire float was decorated in white with blue trim and blue lettering. On the front were listed Ga. A & M, Georgia Normal, South Georgia Teachers College, and Georgia Teachers College. Along the sides was written Georgia Southern College.

"A TRIP TO MARS"

"A Trip To Mars" was the theme of the Science Club float and the club depicted a look to the future from Georgia Southern.

The float colors were a basic white with a red trim and a space missile was very outstanding in silver. The three "out of this world" young ladies who posed on the floats were, Joy Buie White Oak; Tessie Jones, Savannah; and Betty Jane Bryant Woodbine.

The good ship "Eagle" launched by the Future Business Leaders of America seemed to be skimming over water and depicted their theme, "Smooth Sailing for the Eagles." The Future Business Leaders of America used metaphors in their theme with the sea representing progress and the speed boat as Georgia Southern college advancing rapidly. Featured on the float were Miss Dee Dixon, Dublin; and Sandra Britt, Darien.

Eta Rho Epsilon, the health and physical education organization on campus displayed an Eagle in two parts. Sitting between the wings of the eagle was Ellen Durham, Bainbridge, supposedly guiding the eagle with reins running to its head. This tremendous float was decorated in white and the Eagle was gold.

Religious Theme Depicted

The Baptist Student Union featured Twilight Time at Georgia Southern College with the theme "Take Time for God." The pages in gold of the Bible served as the background with a book of red. A large gold cross was in front of the book and kneeling before the Bible and cross were two students, Jeanette Hatcher, Arlington, and Geraldine Shelley, Donaldsonville. Featured in large gold letters were "Time for God."

Two trumpeters with Gold trumpets heralded the Home Economics float which welcomed all the alumni and visitors to Georgia Southern with a "We Roll out the Red Carpet" theme. Gayle Vel Dink, Gainesville, Florida, was featured on the golden throne as a queen over the festival proceedings.

Tale told on Tampa

The Association for Childhood Education, a club for all elementary education majors, used as their theme "The Tale is Told on Tampa."

From the pages of the very large book on the float stepped fictional characters familiar to all, young and old alike. Janet Jones, Milan, was featured on the float as a fairy godmother from most of the fairy tales.

Little Miss Muffet, Patsy Denton, Andersonville, was shown as she sat on a tuft. Martha Jane Barton, Savannah, took the part of Little Bo-Peep and Little Boy Blue, Peggy Abbot, Mauk, was sleeping in a haystack.

The Junior Class depicted the time for the parade by showing 3 o'clock on a tremendous clock at the head of the float. Windy Reagan, Hazlehurst and Pat McLendon, Donaldsonville, were the two students featured on the float.

The Statesboro Junior Chamber of Commerce, Mr. E. W. Barnes, president, donated the cash awards of $20 for the first prize, 10 for the second prize.

Parade Marshall was Dr. Burton J. Bogtish associate professor of biology and assistant parade marshal was Albert Burke, a junior pre-law major from Wadley.

Fines Issued By Traffic Control Committee Here

The Traffic Control Committee has issued 946 parking decals up to date. Seven hundred seventy-four have been issued to the students and 172 to the faculty and staff, according to Mr. Terry Trippe, student chairman of the Traffic Control Committee.

There have been 103 fines issued and the most frequent violations are parking over the white line, parking in front of the Administration Building and not displaying a decal. Mr. Trippe stated that if the student is using other cars than his own, if he will leave a note on the shield then a ticket will not be given for not having a decal.

Traffic control regulations have been developed at the direction of the President of the College. They will be modified, interpreted, and administered through the Traffic Control Office, which is located in the office of the Dean of Students.

WAC Officer To Visit GSC March 1 For Career Guidance

The Women's Army Corps Career Guidance officer, Captain Lydia M. Bray, will be at Georgia Southern College on Tuesday, March 1, for the purpose of telling about the Women's Army Corps College Junior Summer Training Program for college juniors and the District Commission Program for college graduates.

Bray

The College Junior Program gives young women a one month trial employment in the summer in order to give the participant a chance to decide whether she would like a career as a commissioned officer in the Women's Army Corps.

Any woman between the ages of 18 and 29 years and who have completed their junior academic year at an accredited college or university may be qualified to apply. Any applicant under 21 must obtain the written permission of their parents or legal guardian.

Upon selection, the woman accepted will be sworn into Women's Army Corps Enlisted Reserve and called to active duty for four weeks at the WAC Center, Fort McClellan, Alabama.

Senior Year Completed

After the summer is over, even though in the Reserve, the person will be allowed to go back and finish her senior year at college. If the course is not completed, or, during the senior year the young lady decides not to apply for a commission as a Second Lieutenant in the Women's Army Corps, she will be discharged from the U.S. Army Reserve. If she decides to become a WAC officer, she must submit an application any time during her senior year or after graduation.

This trial period should give a clearer idea of the many careers rolled into one which makes the life story of a WAC officer. Most of the assignments as a WAC officers will be in related fields; none will be a blueprint of another.

Tests Given

The WAC is beginning the processing of juniors interested in the program. A series of mental tests and other processing will be given prior to the close of the school year in order that the students may be advised as to their eligibility for acceptance before summer vacation.

While on campus, Captain Bray will be prepared to administer the Armed Forces Women's Qualification Test (90 minutes required) to juniors interested in this program. She will also assist seniors desiring to make application for a commission in the WAC. Captain Lydia Bray is a WAC

Army Procurement Officer and is located with the Military Personnel Procurement Division, Headquarters Third U.S. Army, Fort McPherson, Georgia. Her home town is Augusta, Georgia, and she entered the service during 1948. She received her commission in 1949.

She graduated from Tubman High School, Augusta, and received her BA degree from Carson-Newman College, Jefferson City, Tennessee and attended Wesleyan Conservatory, Macon.

Her schooling in the service has been basic training, Leadership School, and Officer Candidate School. She has also attended Recruiting School and Public Information School.

Pennington Surveys Students For Research Study Toward Doctorate

Sons and daughters of the butcher, baker, and candlestick maker are as likely to be interested in science as those of professional people, according to a Florida State University study.

Tully S. Pennington, who teaches biology at Georgia Southern College, Statesboro, received his doctorate at FSU January 30 and for his doctorate research he surveyed 505 high school seniors in 10 Georgia schools to identify factors influencing an interest in science.

He found that 300, or 60 percent, of the group surveyed in the Southeast Georgia high schools were interested in science. "The occupation of parents had little effect on the students' interest," he concluded. Children of professional people, skilled laborers, unskilled laborers, service occupations and farmers all fell into the general proportion of 60 percent interested and 40 not.

Pennington received his Ed.D. degree from FSU President Robert M. Strozier, who taught him French in Georgia State College for Men at Tifton in 1932.

Dr. Malvina Trussell, FSU professor of education who directed his doctoral study, was his major professor in general science at Georgia Teachers College in 1935-36. He's served in Georgia on the important science curriculum committee of the state since this committee was formed.

The students he surveyed were in high schools in Georgia's First Congressional District. The schools ranged from Savannah High School, representative of a city system, to Candler County High School, representative of a rural consolidated high school.

About other factors influencing an interest in science Pennington said:

"Interest in science was greater if students had been members of science-related organizations, spent time weekly on science-related hobbies, and frequently enjoyed science-related radio and television programs. Students who were interested in science had read much more from a greater variety of sources than students not interested in science."

A Job Well Done For Homecoming Weekend

If it hadn't rained, this year's Homecoming would have been the best Georgia Southern College has ever had. However, even the rain only deterred a few of the plans and kept away some of the alumni.

Miss GSC of 1960 and her court were chosen Friday evening in the Beauty Revue sponsored by Alpha Rho Tau, the art club on campus. The affair went off without a hitch. The decorations were beautiful, the programs were excellent.

Miss Pat Shely, associate professor of health and physical education, who directed the Revue, and the 18 contestants deserve bouquets for the wonderful job they did in giving a finished performance. Mr. Jack Broucek at the piano was accompanist for the evening and the music he chose fitted the occasion to a "T" and as usual his playing was wonderful.

The Eta Rho Epsilon, the health spots' Saturday morning at 10 and physical education club on campus, were "Johnny on the a.m. when alumni registration began in the Williams Center.

The homecoming parade, scheduled for Saturday afternoon, was cancelled because of the weather. However, many people turned out at the various warehouses in town to view the completed floats and were surprised at the professional way in which the floats were decorated. Every organization which decorated a float deserves praise on the job they did. The floats were judged and the decision was most difficult for the judges, we're sure. There is no doubt that this year's parade would have really been the pinnacle of the entire weekend if it had not rained.

The climax of the two days was the ballgame Saturday night between the GSC Eagles and the Tampa Spartans.

In a special pre-game ceremony, Dr. Zach Henderson honored the late W. S. Hanner, chairman of the science department and chairman of the faculty athletic committee since 1935, by officially naming the health and physical education building the W. S. Hanner Building. The speech Dr. Henderson gave was most touching and brought tears to the eyes of many in the audience.

Although not as exciting as last year's game with four overtimes, the GSC Eagles were at their best and showed the spectators a fine display of ball-handling while beating the Tampa Spartans 102-76.

Once again we must mention the name of Mr. Jack Broucek and his fine performance on the new Hammond organ which Franklin Chevrolet Co. of Statesboro has donated to the college. The music was played beautifully and enjoyed by all.

After the ball game the Student Council and social committee sponsored a Homecoming Dance in the alumni building.

All in all, this Homecoming will be one which many of us will not forget for a long time.

You Hold The Key—Cooperation

There seems to be a lack of consideration among the students toward doing their share in helping to keep the Frank I. Williams Center clean. Each student, as a part of Georgia Southern, should take pride in this building and help keep the inside as well as the grounds clean.

The lobbies are still being left in a messy condition by the students. The lobbies are for the comfort and use by the students, but they should be used with the same respect as one would display in the living room of his home. How many students stamp out cigarette butts on a freshly waxed floor at home or leave scraps of paper lying round? Not many student would give a positive answer to this question. Most of your parents have tried to teach you to be considerate of the property of others and to always treat it with utmost care. The inconsideration of some students reflect on their personality as well as their upbringing.

Assemblies Are Planned For Your Enjoyment

Assembly attendance is required of all freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, it's true. But this year many of the students have found that it's not such a chore to get over to the Administration Building for the assembly time. Why? Because they know that the programs are entertaining and interesting as they have been so far this year.

Just recently for assembly programs we've had a forty voice choir from Atlantic Christian College, North Carolina, a dramatic presentation by the students of Statesboro High School, and a play by our own dramatic group on campus.

During last quarter we had the pleasure of listening to the Honorable Prince H. Preston, a member of Congress from the first congressional district of Georgia, as he entertainingly described his visit to Russia while the U.S. exhibition was in Moscow last summer. A member of our own faculty, Dr. Jack N. Averitt, chairman of the social science division, interested the audience with a speech entitled "Contemporary England as Viewed Through a Traditional London Fog." Mr. Charles R. Crakes of the Educational Service Department of the DeVry Technical Institute in Chicago spoke about industry and its role in America today. And at another assembly, the audience was introduced to the members of the Georgia Southern Eagle Basketball team.

One job which isn't easy is to plan a program that will appeal to so many different types of people which compose the audience. We wish to commend Dean Paul F. Carroll, dean of the college, for the fine job he is doing in planning and presenting these varied programs.

Special programs for the future include Mr. Theodore Hinkle, a member of the Savannah Symphony; two special speakers for Religious Emphasis Week; the Bennington Dancers, a modern dance group from Bennington College in Vermont; and the president of Georgia Southern College, Dr. Zach S. Henderson.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"OH, OH, I'M AFRAID MY NEW STUDENT TEACHER JUST ISN'T QUITE READY TO HANDLE THAT 8th GRADE CLASS BY HIMSELF."

-- Moore Or Less --

By WILLIS MOORE

Homecoming is over and everybody is happy. Some were happy during Homecoming, but for a different reason. Even though it rained and everybody floated around in water, alcohol and English Club punch, it was a joyous occasion. The best part was the Beauty Revue, — you know, when all the girls come out looking for places to stand, and grin at the judges.

We had some interesting judges. One, who sat in front of me, had on a hat so big that only on occasion did I catch a glimpse of the stage. I could only see two of the judges—the third retreated into a corner and wrote on such pieces of paper as she could find. The most interesting incident was a little side show by the only male judge. The girls had passed before the judges once, and were making the second appearance. This little man was gawking at the array of Georgia Southern beauties as the last girl made her appearance. One might say "this was the straw that broke the camel's back;" he didn't look much like a camel, but he did break up to the extent that he dropped his ballpoint pen. Immediately he began crawling around on the floor in search of the sneaky little imp. All the while his student assistant was whispering to him, "it's on the floor."

The basketball game proved to be a howling success... at least that's what the guy behind me did — at the referees. The Spartans were great on that floor — so, that's where they stayed most of the time. There are few games where spectators are the only ones who know where the ball is. One Spectator remarked, as he left the gym, "You know, this is the first time I ever knew they didn't use three basketballs in a game." This was probably the first time he had been sober.

Many of the dormitories had displays — and they were very ingenious. Then as the winds came and the rain descended they fell, and messy was the fall of them. Different letters of "Welcome" and "Alumni" were to be found floating in puddles, trash cans and caught in oak tree limbs. The water played havoc with the little poster-board clocks and Spartans—and those poor Eagles; the feathers drooped, colors, all over the place and in general they looked like these dyed Easter animals after three weeks of growth.

You've heard of "blue Monday"—we had "black Monday" after Homecoming. Students dragged and were being dragged (by roommates and friends) across campus to classes. Professors mumbled through the class rolls and students grunted mechanically as their respective names were called. Fifty minutes later, when classes were awakened by the bell for changing of classes, they valiantly headed for the next class, or the Student Center—which ever had the strongest appeal.

The students didn't realize how many had cut class until Dr. Russell appeared in the Center with the lecture under one arm and the lecture notes under the other. He had the highest percentage of attendance that day since registration day.

It's all over now for another year—and rain is inevitable—or is it reign—the reign of Miss Georgia Southern College; Congratulations Glenda!

Our Word For the Weak: "You need not worry about an inferiority complex; you are inferior!"

What Am I?

What am I? A magician, you may say, for when my voice rings out over a crowd, each one of them has a vision of something wonderful, unexplainable, and sweet. A boon to mankind, for a mother may borrow my thought to lull a child to sleep. The soft whispers of my voice sing down through the ages to calm the excited.

You might think of me as a great soldier, for I can make feet fall in step or make hearts ring with patriotism.

Perhaps you think of me as a hypnotist. People seem to be in a trance when I perform, and they sit contented, listening, enjoying the sounds which fall upon their ears.

I am all these things—and yet I am nothing more than a disturbance in the air, a vibration. I will be known as long as man exists; because I am all these things and more—because I am music.

—Helen Noweck.

Design Class On Campus Displays Work In Center

The new art display in the showcase of the Frank I. Williams Center is exhibiting the work of the Art 205 Class, Design II.

The first few weeks in Miss

Remley's Design class students were exploiting changing aspects of the same art form. They were taking liberties in designing and causing variations in the art form. They also were engaged in the central idea of learning about art in terms of its own visual language. Some of these designs are on display in the Student Center.

From man-made materials such as soda straws, pipe cleaners and gem clips the students have constructed organized designs. These designs suggest ideas for further designing in architecture, industrial design, interior redesigning, commercial art and sculpture.

Colleges have emphasized color study and perspective, with its variations, from a classroom scene. Wire sculpture suggests further development of the fine art of sculptural solids, voids and space movement.

Clay, wood, metal, stone and paper forms are beginning to emerge in class. Some will be symbolic in design, others monumental, naturalistic or abstract. Some will develop from memory, a mood, patterns, humor, or a character type. Come by the art department to see for yourself.

The platitude "Rome wasn't built in a day" may also be applied when speaking in terms of building up a fine educational institution, as Georgia Southern College. However, time is only one of the important elements to be considered in such an undertaking. Aside from the financial aspect of its growth, the people who have helped make Georgia Southern College what it is today are a vivid part of its past.

Three colorful personalities that are outstanding in the hearts and minds of the faculty, alumni and friends of Georgia Southern College are Miss Mae Michael, Miss Sophie Johnson, and Miss Hester Newton.

Miss Mae Michael, coming here in 1929, had the honor of being the secretary to six Georgia Southern College presidents including: Dr. Ernest V. Hollis, Dr. Guy H. Wells, Dr. Albert M. Gates, Dr. Marvin S. Pittman, Dr. Judson C. Ward, and Dr. Zach S. Henderson.

Extremely interested in the professional growth of the College, Miss Michael always helped students who were deficient in their academic work so that their cultural background might be broadened. Meticulous in everything that she attempted, Miss Michael was a continual crusader for keeping the campus continually clean. Too Modest to accept credit for the fine things she did, Miss Michael never missed an opportunity to compliment others on their achievements. She challenged everyone to accept only the very best and to know the reason why they did so.

The large mirror which now hangs in Kirbylene Stephens' office was put up by Miss Michael so that the boys on the campus might always wear straightened ties. At the Saturday night dances on campus she would make sure that every boy and girl had an opportunity to dance during the evening.

Retiring in June of 1953, she always had the admiration and respect of everyone at Georgia Southern College. Miss Michael is the sister of Miss Moira Michael, the originator of the "poppy", nationally made and sold by veterans.

Georgia Southern College has had only one lady to become dean of men in its history, Miss Sophie Johnson, known to everyone as "Aunt Sophie". Devoted to the boys at Ga. Southern for 23 years, "Aunt Sophie" is known to have counseled more men on campus during that time than anyone else in the history of the college.

She came to Georgia Southern College in 1933 as an assistant to Dr. Fielding D. Russell who was then dean of men and served under him for two years. When Dr. Russell gave up the position of dean, "Aunt Sophie" became the only woman to serve in this capacity.

Her genuine love for the boys at Ga. Southern is summed up well in the following poem she quoted to Britt Fayssoux, news editor of the George-Anne in 1955.

"I love them good and bad,
I love'em happy and
love'em sad.
I love'em here and love'em
there,
I just love'em everywhere!"

"Aunt Sophie" retired in 1956, but for many years she will hold a special place in the hearts of all the boys she guided and influenced at this institution. The name of Miss Hester Newton is also a familiar one to many alumni of Georgia Southern College. Coming here in 1928, Miss Newton taught Georgia History for 25 years. She firmly believed that for a person to be well informed, he should know a bit of his own state. Her classes were known to be most challenging and she commanded the very best work that her students were capable of.

During the last World War period, Miss Newton was the only social science professor at Georgia Southern College. She trained classroom teachers so that they could offer Georgia History to their students. Retiring in 1953, a portion of her syllabus is still being used today in the social science division.

On Monday night, February 1, the Hawks won over the Toppers 35 to 34. Helen Crump who is a regular guard switched to forward and dropped in 25 points for the Hawks. Norma Rushing had 18 points for the Toppers.

The Rebels lost to the Bluebirds 39 to 27. Genevieve Strickland played a very good game, with 26 points for the Bluebirds. Deloris Moore had 14 points for the Rebels. Eloise "Effie" Minton who is the manager of the Bluebirds played a fine defensive game to help hold down the Rebels.

The Yellow Jackets beat the Falcons 44 to 18. Pat Hart was high scorer for the Yellow Jackets with 16 points, and Lane Hartley and Barbara Barton of the Yellow Jackets had 15 and 13 points respectively. Betty Hardage was high for the Falcons with 10 points.

BOYS' INTRAMURAL

During last week's play there were some interesting games. There was much excitement and some hard playing on the boys' part.

The Leopards A team defeated the Cougars by a 59-40 score. Smith was high for the winners with 23 and Moody led the losers with 12.

The Bears A team was over the Panthers 57-50. Ships with 19 and Ragsdale with 16 were high for the winners. Hutcheson and Hogan led the losers with 14 each. The Bears B team defeated the Panthers 68-50. Highsmith and Griffen were high for the Bears with 16 and 14. Vickers led the losers with 30 for the night.

The Tigers A team defeated the Lions 55-49. Clyde Miller had 24 to lead his teammates and "Shaky" Chivers had 17 for the defeated team.

The Tigers B team won 44-34 over the Lions. Fordham had 23 in a winning effort and Stacy had 18 for the losers.

The Wildcats B team beat the Leopards 47-43. Higgenbotham had 14 and Mims had 15 for their respective teams. The Cougars A team won 57-41 over the Bobcats. Moody and Russell were high for the winners with 16 and 15 while Mathison had 16 for the losers. The Bobcats B team won over the Cougars 43-30. The Cats were led by Jack Pye with 16 and Crump had 12 for his team.

The Bobcats A team defeated the Lions 68-47. Criscillis had 20 and Clark 19 for the winners. Bishop and Oats had 14 each for the losers. The Bobcats B team won by a forfeit over the Lions.

The Leopards A team ran through the Wildcats 74-43. William had 15 and Wilkes had 14 for the winners. Ben Benton had 21 and Pick Whaley had 42. I don't have any figures but I am inclined to believe this is an all-time intramural high at Georgia Southern.

Music Go'round

By THELMA MALLARD

Arrangements have been made with the famous musical comedy team Rodgers and Hammerstein to allow Georgia Southern's Music Department to present "Oklahoma" in McCroan Auditorium February 10 and 11 at 8:15 p.m. This musical ran on Broadway for over five years and has been made into a movie. It contains some of the best of Richard Rodgers' hit music including "People Will Say We're in Love," "I'm Just a Girl Who Can't Say No," "Oh What a Beautiful Morning" and the familiar title song, "Oklahoma."

The production will be directed by Dr. Dan Hooley. Dr. Ronald Neil will be in charge of the choral music and Mr. Jack Broucek will be the accompanist. Featured roles will be performed by Bucky Carlton, Scarlett Smith, Johnny Hathcock, Jayne Bragan and Mary Elizabeth Parrish. A complete list of characters will be given in another issue.

Plan now to attend "Oklahoma" February 10 and 11!

Alpha Phi Omega Is Sponsoring Four Projects

Alpha Phi Omega, a national service fraternity for men on the Georgia Southern College campus, is sponsoring four projects this year: a Student Directory, a Lost and Found Department, a Campus Cleanup Campaign, and recognition to a Citizen of the Month.

The Student Directory, with Jimmy Harrell, Warner Robins, as committee chairman, will have the names, addresses, classifications, and phone numbers of students, administrative and faculty members. The Directory will also include the phone numbers of the dormitories, business and departmental offices. There will be a limited supply of and a slight cost for these directories.

The Lost and Found Department will be headed by Jim Kenny, Montezuma, and Jim Conway, Marlow. The "base of operations," where students can deposit found or pick up lost items, will be in Dean Tyson's office.

The Campus Cleanup Campaign, led by Lee Perkins, Newington, and Jack Smoot, Fort Stewart, will be in operation all year.

The Citizen of the Month committee is headed by Stanley Jones, Gray. An outstanding student on campus is to be chosen each month by a committee of fraternity members. Standards for this honor have not yet been set.

Alpha Phi Omega was newly formed last year by Charles McLendon, Cairo, and Jim Conway, Marlow. This year it was reorganized and is now petitioning for a charter from the National fraternity.

Contest Winners

Three Georgia Southern College students had a tied 12-3 correct prediction in the January 15, GSC Basketball Contest. They were: Betty Baab, Augusta; Robert Manley, Waynesboro; and Janet Price, Brunswick.

Six people also tied with a 12-2 prediction to win in the January 22 GSC Basketball Contest. They include: Billie Blee of Statesboro; Denny Bureau, Moline, Illinois; Norman Broadwell, Roswell; Wylene Fendley, Bluffton; Jimmy Oates, Cairo; and Janet Price, Brunswick.

The students that usually get the greatest benefit out of these "friendly people" are those who have stood patiently in line only to find half the college population in front of them instead of behind where they belong.

When regarding the idea of getting ahead of people in line, the line-breaker has the most shocked "Who me?" attitude about the whole situation.

One effect line-breaking has on others is the desire-to-get-in-front-of-the-line hog. This has only resulted in a very crowded hall and lounge at the Williams' Center. The whole mob action looks silly to the occasion visitor, when he sees it and it affects his attitude toward Georgia Southern College.

Here is hoping the individual student will help the student body to curb this display of childish emotions, before chow line restrictions are put into effect.

Strange Team Devote A Total Of 42 Years To The U.S. Postal Service

By SANDRA COX

Almost every student in almost all universities and colleges makes numerous trips to the campus post office. The same story comes to light here at Georgia Southern.

Mr. Z. L. Strange Sr. has seen a lot of mail come and go in his nearly 24 years of service to the U.S. Postal Service. Working with Mr. Strange are his son, Mr. Z. L. Strange Jr., and a few student workers. Mr. Strange Jr. has also devoted 18 years of life to the postal service, 14 of which have been here at GSC. The other four years were during World War II when he worked for the British Postal Service overseas.

With the increasing number of students, the mail also increases. Imagine arriving every morning to face a stack of Station G, Brooklyn 22, N. Y. 2,500 letters to be sorted, three stacks of parcel post and ten bags of films that arrive here daily. Our GSC postmasters have the responsibilities listed above plus selling stamps, answering questions, and weighing packages.

Most of us can remember the old "Blue Tide," just torn down this year, and the post office when it was over there. What a comparison to our new post office located in the Williams Center. The old "Blue Tide" has evolved into a more modern post office with a new sorting cabinet, scales, canceling machines, and at least 600 new boxes.

To add to the distress and distraction of this department there are certain habits and abuse which the users of the post office persist in doing. There is the absent-minded student, who, despite the frequent notices written in plain English that are placed in his box, fails to tell his friends that his address is Georgia Southern College, Collegeboro, Georgia, not Statesboro and that he also has a box number all his own. None the less distressing is the poor speller and writer who forces the postal employee to decipher a jumbled word that is supposed to represent a street number or city. Perhaps the worst plague of all is the "Wise Guy" who insists on addressing a letter to "Mamma" or George Washington, or adds a "De liver De Letter, De sooner, De Better," "SWAK", or pulling some other nonsensical trick.

GSC wouldn't be the same without mail boxes to check so let's try to take better care of our new conveniences. Franksters who "borrow" pens or draw on the posters have no place in college.

Job Placement Directory Is Available Now

The new enlarged 1960 annual "Summer Placement Directory," the largest and most comprehensive listings of actual summer jobs, projects, and awards is not available. Copies can be examined at most University Placement or Dean's offices, colleges and public libraries, and school superintendents' offices.

This unique directory completely revised each year, is particularly prepared for teachers, professors, librarians, and college students. Jobs for which high school seniors may also apply are clearly indicated.

Some of the over 12,000 summer earning opportunities listed through out the United States and many foreign countries include an opportunity to be a recreation director at Washington's Olympic National Park; joining a group of young people from many nations on an archeological excavation to expose an ancient temple in France; and acting with a Bardstown, Kentucky summer dramatic group in "The Stephen Foster Story."

All openings have been submitted directly to the Institute and include job descriptions, dates of employment, necessary qualifications, number of openings, salaries, and the names and the addresses of the employers. Helpful information is given on how to apply for positions and each directory contains a sample resume to assist applicants applying for their first job.

The regular price is $3.00. However, students and teachers writing on their school stationery can obtain this year's employment guide for only $2.00 from The Advancement and Placement Institute, Box 99N,
