Seven Freshmen Named To New Honor Society

Seven Georgia Southern College freshmen have been named to Alpha Gamma Omicron, an honor society for freshmen women, at its first organizational meeting on Wednesday, April 13.

The newly named members include: Judy Ann Aldridge, Blackshear; Fannie Sue Ellis, Statesboro; Barbara Rose Fletcher, Sumner; Joyce Harper, Cordele; Jolane Rawl, Kingsland; Betty Scruggs, Bartow; and Janice Williamson, Acworth.

The purpose of this organization is to encourage superior scholarship and to honor those students who have attained this high standard of scholarship.

The new organization is in the process of developing a constitution and by-laws.

Miss Ela Johnson, associate professor of English, is the faculty advisor of the organization and Miss Irma Morgan, dean of women, also participated in the formation of this new freshmen honor society for women, at GSC.

Miss Johnson explained that the letters of the Greek alphabet used for the name of this new organization, Alpha Gamma Omicron, could be interpreted in the following way: Alpha being the first letter of the Greek alphabet could be correlated with the idea that freshmen are in their first year of their college career; Gamma is Greek for women; and Omicron is Greek for the term outstanding.

Local Rotarians Match $140 In Loan Program

The Rotary Club of Statesboro has recently donated $140.56 to Georgia Southern College, matching Federal funds as a part of the National Defense Student Loan Program, according to Mr. William Dewberry, comptroller of GSC.

Since the loan program came into being at GSC, 265 loans have been made to students ranging from $50 to $200.

Georgia Southern College is one of many institutions of higher learning participating in the National Defense Student Loan Program, one of the provisions of the National Defense Education Act enacted into law in 1958 by the 85th Congress of the United States.

The intent of the Student Loan Program is to enable worthy students in need of financial aid to go to college. Follows a summary of the major provisions of the act administered at Georgia Southern College.

Dr. Ralph K. Tyson, dean of students at GSC, is chairman of the President's Committee National Defense Student Loan Program. Also on the committee are Dr. John Boole, professor of Biology and Mr. John Lindsey, instructor in education at the Marvin Pittman School.

Spring Quarter Calendar Of Weekly Events Released

The calendar of events for spring quarter, which has been in the making since last summer has been released this week according to Irma C. Morgan, dean of women.

"There is no telling how many hours have gone into the making of this calendar. Every club president, club sponsor, department head, and administrative staff member was contacted and information from these sources was compiled to make the calendar. Its primary purpose is to help the student," stated Dean Morgan.

The social committee of the Student Council worked with Dean Morgan on the formation of this calendar. Social functions, club meetings and activities, and other events are included in the calendar. The staff in the Dean of Students

Housing Application Deadline Set As May 15 For Coming Quarters

Notices have been sent to all residence hall students reminding them that the deadline for turning in housing applications for either summer or fall quarters is May 15, 1960 according to Irma C. Morgan, dean of women at Georgia Southern College.

A room will not be reserved for any one in the residence halls for summer quarter or for fall quarter until a formal application is made, the fee $25 is paid, and the application is on file in the office of the Dean of Students.

The applications may be obtained from the Dean of Students office or the President's office and the fee and application are returned to the President's office.

For students who plan to attend both summer and fall quarters, two applications must be filled out and returned with the fee of $25 attached to each.

Dean Morgan stated that after May 15 accommodations will be made on the first come first served basis. That is, room assignments will be made on the date the application and room reservation fee is received. Room assignments will not be made to those students who do not turn in applications.

The purpose in filling out applications now is to give the present students at GSC an opportunity to reserve rooms before accepting room reservations from students who wish to come to Georgia Southern.

New Mail Schedule Is Put Into Effect

A new mail schedule was put into effect at Georgia Southern College on Monday, April 11, 1960, to insure faster delivery for later deposited mail according to Z. L. Strange, Sr. and Z. L. Strange, Jr., postmasters at Collegeboro.

According to the new schedule mail will be dispatched from Collegeboro at 4:30 p.m. to local addresses and to north, south, eastern, and western directions; at 5 p.m. to Macon and Atlanta; and at 6:40 p.m.

Post Office Hours

The post office windows are open from 8 a.m. until 12 noon and from 1 p.m. until 5:30 p.m. every day Monday through Friday. On Saturdays the window is open only from 8 a.m. until 12 noon. There is no scheduled window service on Sundays and holidays. Special provisions have been made for the students to pick up parcels on Sundays at approximately 8 a.m. and on holidays at approximately 3:45 p.m.

Collegeboro is included in the Atlanta Metropolitan Area Plan, which means that every piece of preferential mail (First Class, Air Mail, and Special Delivery) deposited in a postal installation anywhere in the Metropolitan Area by 5 p.m. will be at the delivering office ready for delivery to the addressee on the first carrier trip the following day, if destined for delivery in the same Metropolitan Area.

Speedy Delivery

Mail deposited in the Post Office by 5:30 p.m. and in collection boxes by 4:30 p.m. will arrive in Atlanta by 11:30 p.m. same day and at any other point in the Metropolitan Area in time for next day delivery.

This same schedule is also most advantageous to Air Mail and for regular mail out of state which will make night or early morning connections out of Atlanta for distant points. This will mean a speed up of 24 hours to many points. This new schedule is in addition to their service which is already in effect.

Mr. Strange, Jr. stated that any mail deposited after 6:30 p.m. will be dispatched the following day and that if the letters and bulk mailing is brought down far in advance of the last mailing time then the sender can be assured of his mail going out.

Music Specialist Will Lecture At GSC April 21-22

James E. Green, teaching specialist in elementary music for the Silver Burdett Company of Dallas, will lecture at Georgia Southern College on April 21-22.

Green will lecture to Bulloch County elementary school teachers on Thursday, April 21 from 3:30-4:30 p.m. at the Marvin Pittman School cafeteria.

On Friday, April 22, from 10-12, he will conduct a workshop for college students in Room 8 at Marvin Pittman.

Green taught music education for five years at Columbia U. and was supervisor of music at the Austin, Texas schools while teaching methods at the University of Texas. Each summer he teaches two weeks at a time at various college and universities.

"Music should not be an isolated subject but should be all the way through singing and rhythmic activities, listening and learning skills all taught in context. Music is part of the living experience of the child. It helps him overcome shyness and also with his reading but you must have a definite plan for teaching music, Green says in his latest book "Music for Living."

Poetry Contest Is Open To Students

Ten students from Georgia Southern College have the opportunity to enter a national poetry writing contest sponsored by the Riverside Church, an inter-denominational Protestant church, in New York according to Roy F. Powell, assistant professor of English and faculty campus representative for this contest.

The contest is open to students currently enrolled for the 1959-60 school year and who will not be older than 26 years of age by December 31, 1960. The deadline for submitting entries is May 15, 1960.

Entries must be original, unpublished works except in school publications. They must be in English, less than 100 lines in length, and the sender must submit two typewritten copies.

The winning entries will be published in the Riverside Poetry 4, a special anthology previously published in 1954, 1956, and 1958. The Riverside Poetry Committee will announce the winners by September 1, 1960.

"The poetry does not have to be religious as such," stated John M. Pratt, Riverside's acting director of student work. He also reported that this venture is based on the conviction that a conversation should exist between the Christian faith and the intellectual currents of our time. The purpose of this contest is to encourage the writing of poetry, to hear what the more sensitive and able of the student generation are saying, to explore the concerns which they express, and to provide an opportunity for their work to be published.

The judges for the contest are Horace Gregory of Sara Lawrence College; Josephine Miles of the University of California; and Howard Nemerov of Bennington College. Cleath Brooks of Yale will write the introductory essay to the Riverside Poetry 4.

Garden Should Allow Open View Of Back Campus

The site of old Anderson Hall will soon be beautified by what is to become the "garden spot of the campus," according to Dr. Zack S. Henderson, president of the college.

The garden is now in the initial planning stages and ideas now under consideration call for relocation of walks, new shrubbery, seasonal flowers, elimination of some parking, and the removal of some existing trees and bushes.

The present area will be graded and laid out with walks to connect with those which now lead away from the Frank I. Williams Student Center. Shrubs and seasonal flowers will be laid out between the walks with the possibility of a fountain. The banks at the side of the area will be lined with greenery. Azaleas and camellias will also be included in the area.

Parking will be allowed only between the student center and the new Herty Building. The parking area will be lowered into the ground about four feet with shrubbery placed along the banks to hide the cars.

Plans also include a new walk through the garden area from the basement door of the Administration Building and the removal of the road which is now in front of the center.

Dr. Henderson stated that he felt that when the garden is completed a beautiful, uninterrupted view will be seen between the Arts and Industry and the Herty Building.

Two additional washing machines have been installed recently in the Econ-O-Wash, formerly the College Laundry, to better serve the students of Georgia Southern College and citizens of Statesboro.

Robert Gore, a student from Darien, has donated to the Periodical Department of the Library all issues of High Fidelity Magazine from 1953 through 1957.

An extremely hand, easy-to-use source of quick information, which is invaluable for many reference sources is the new Facts on File which has been added recently to the holdings in the Periodical Department. Facts on File is a weekly synopsis of world events digested from leading newspapers, magazines, foreign and U. S. government announcements and communiques. The events of the week are described under such headings as National Affairs, Arts and Sciences, and Sports. The alphabetical indexes are cumulated bi-weekly, monthly, quarterly and annually.

Dr. Fielding D. Russell, chairman of the division of languages, announced that he will attend the Teacher Education Council at Rock Eagle on April 25-26. The council is comprised of members of the various education departments of the different colleges and universities of the state.

Marvin Pittman School juniors and seniors participated in the "Career Day" program which was held at Statesboro High School on Thursday, April 14.

This day is designed to give each junior and senior student in the Bulloch County Schools an opportunity to hear a successful person in the career field in which he is interested explain the problems and pleasures that are a part of his chosen profession.

Charles Coleman, one of the four traveling science teachers hired by the State Department will be at Marvin Pittman school on Georgia Southern College Campus on April 13, 14, and 15.

"If The Shoe Fits, Wear It!"

A bargain is a bargain! Aubert Brannen was kind enough to loan Georgia College students the use of his warehouse for float building in preparation for the Homecoming Parade on January 30.

Five organizations took advantage of this opportunity and used the warehouse as base for "Operation - Float Building." Only one of these organizations was thoughtful enough and followed through with their part of the bargain by just cleaning up the trash they left in the warehouse after completing their floats.

We hope that in years to come Mr. Brannen will allow us to use his warehouse again for college activities. But, we couldn't blame him one bit if he doesn't.

If you ride by the warehouse today, it is possible to see crepe paper, kleenex, and other materials used in building the floats lying on the floor.

The following organizations on campus used Brannen's warehouse in which to build their floats: the Junior Class, the "T" Club, composed of men who have received a letter for varsity sports participation; the Future Business Leaders of America, the Association for Childhood Education, and Eta Rho Epsilon, a club for men and women majoring in health, physical education, and recreation.

These organizations should be proud of themselves for their floats looked truly professional. They must have felt great joy to have completed them in time for the float competition. Most of them had fulfilled all that was their responsibility. They were very wrong! While the warehouse still remains a "mess," these clubs seemed to feel that clubs have not to this day completed their Homecoming commitments.

The old saying, "if the shoe fits, wear it," can be applied to this situation. All the clubs except Eta Rho Epsilon should try to amend the wrong done and clean out the warehouse as soon as possible.

Eta Rho Epsilon, under the supervision of Sally Jane Coleman, Summertown, left the part of the building which they used in the condition in which they found it.

If Georgia Southern students get the reputation of not caring for borrowed property, then future requests made by the student body might be denied by Statesboro citizens.

How about it, people?

We Feel It's Cultural Impact

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following editorial is reprinted from the April 7, 1960 edition of the Bulloch Herald, the Bulloch County weekly edited by Leodel Coleman. This editorial is a sequel to the one which appeared in the April 1 edition of the Georgia Southern Means To US."

When you are away from home and are asked "Where do you live," your answer may go something like this: "We live at Statesboro, in Southeast Georgia, not far from Savannah." That sort of pin points the geographical location.

But you hasten to add that it is situated in one of the finest sections in the nation, and in the next moment or two you manage to work into your conversation the statement, "We have a fine college there, Georgia Southern College, with an enrollment of more than a thousand students."

Now you make that statement not because of the economic impact it has on our community, but because the presence of a college here adds prestige, status to us and Statesboro and Bulloch County.

And that prestige and status is based upon the solid foundation built by careful selection of faculty members, careful studies of the academic program, careful placing of administrative personnel and wise use of funds providing for the building program.

All these add up to give our community one of the greatest cultural assets a community can possess.

Because the college is here we are immediately recognized as a fine community.

Because the college is here we are given opportunities nearly every week to attend events designed to satisfy the cultural desires of every person who feels that need.

Because the members of the college teaching staff and administrative staff come here and make Statesboro home and become a part of our community we come under its influence.

Because our children attend Georgia Southern College we feel its influence.

Because the college is here we are a better community.

Let's not forget it.

Anyway You Say It, We're Proud Of You!

Felicitations! Gluckwunsch! Mazel Tov! Congratulacion! Any way it is said these words mean the same. In good old American English - Congratulations - to the six freshmen men who have been named as the charter members of the two newly formed freshmen honor societies at Georgia Southern College.

The six young men who were named to the Freshmen Honorary Fraternity for Men are as follows: Early Wayne Bland, Reidsville; Robert McLellan Cochran, Jr., Metter; William Craig Griffin, Augusta; James Eli Hodges, Statesboro; Richard Brevard Russell, Statesboro and William Gardner Wood, Sycamore.

Seven freshmen women were named to Alpha Gamma Omicron. These young ladies are: Judy Ann Aldridge, Blackshear; Fannie Sue Ellis, Statesboro; Barbara Rose Fletcher, Sumner; Joyce Harper, Cordele; Solane Rawl, Kingsland; Betty Scruges, Bartow; and Janice Williamson, Acworth.

A good academic record is hard to acquire for the first two quarters of college when you are a freshmen. So many occasions arise to keep a student from studying.

Adjusting to college life is difficult. It's the first time away from home for any length of time for many of the students. The dormitories are usually in a turmoil and no matter how quiet it is, it just doesn't seem like home.

Clubs send invitations to the freshmen and tell what fun they'll have if they will join this club or that organization.

So many dances and other extra curricula activities are offered that the thought of sitting down with a book and studying seems dull.

We salute you thirteen students who have received this honor. You will have the responsibility of encouraging superior scholarship in future freshmen of Georgia Southern College.

Various Easter Bonnets To Be Worn On Sunday

By BUFORD BRANNEN

They will come in assorted sizes, colors, and shapes. Some will be lavishly trimmed and others will be smartly tailored. What? The array of Easter bonnets which will be worn by Georgia Southern coeds.

A survey of 55 girls revealed that white is the choice color but greens, beiges, and pinks are also favorites. Large picture hats and saucy derbies are the two most popular shapes. Ribbons, veils, feathers and flowers are used for trimmings.

Of the coeds interviewed, Wendy Reagan, Hazlehurst, can boast of having the largest hat, a black straw which measures 50 inches in circumference. Sandra Cox, Lenox, and Patricia Vickers, Ambrose, also chose big hats for Easter. Sandra's hat is of beige lace and is 46 inches around the irregular-shaped brim while Patricia's tangerine bonnet of Milan straw is only 42 inches.

Lynda Lee Alberson, Columbus; Patricia Chambers, Macon; and Peggy McLendon, Donaldsonville, are among those who selected derbies.

The survey revealed that Carol Kinard, Dublin, will wear one of the smallest. Her green taffeta clip-type hat is only one inch wide but is ornamented with flowers and pearls.

Among the most colorful hats will be a red Juliet cap worn by Gertrude, Sumner, Dublin, and a silk pillbox of varied blue shades worn by Catherine Dixon, McCrae.

Jazz Ensemble Gives Program

The newly formed Symphonic Jazz Ensemble at Georgia Southern College presented the assembly program on Monday, April 11, 1960, under the direction of Fred K. Grumley, assistant professor of music.

The music for this group was especially arranged and some of it originated at the Newport Jazz Festival in Newport, Rhode Island.

The purpose of this Jazz Ensemble is to acquaint the students on the Georgia Southern College campus with a medium of musical expression (Symphonic Jazz) that has not heretofore been heard on this campus.

Arlen Hester, Sycamore, and Mary Carol Jones, Macon, have selected hats literally covered with flowers. Arlen's is a lavender straw trimmed with velvet violets; Carol's is a cloche of white daisies.

A most unusual hat will be worn by Sandra Taylor, Arlington. It is a coarse straw of French blue with five full blown roses across the brim. The stems of the roses are crossed and tied, forming a bow of stems in the back.

Applications For Summer Job Are Now Available

The Blue Bird Body Company of Fort Valley has a program of summer employment for college students.

The busiest season is June through September, which coincides perfectly with college vacation. Shorter terms of employment are not possible.

The work is an industrial nature, working at high speed machines and power presses for metal fabrication or working in one of the several assembly departments. Most of the work is of a strenuous nature. Some of the jobs are rather dirty. The summers are usually hot; however, numbers of college students have found the work satisfying and rewarding. Over 60 per cent of the students return each year for another summer at Blue Bird.

The minimum work week is five days at eight hours per day Monday through Friday. In past years it has been necessary to work a part of the summer at nine hours per day and occasionally half day on Saturday. The beginning rate is $1.26 per hour, and the time and half rate is paid for all hours over 40 hours per week.

Comfortable private rooms can be had for $6 to $10 a week and food will run an additional $14.00 to $16.00 per week. One boarding house offers room and board (including three meals a day, but without Saturday night or any Sunday meals) for $15.45 per week.

inherent in group living on campus.

Dean Tyson stated that there are different types of problems and his office helps solve them according to the needs of each situation. He emphasized that the counselor does not give an answer to the student but gives information to help the student decide for himself what an answer should be.

The personal problems include those resulting from adjusting to college life. Some students don't know how to use their time to their best advantage, nor how to read correctly, and cannot face certain academic tasks required of them with the proper attitude. In this case emphasis to correct is placed upon sound study habits, vocational, and educational planning.

Behavior Is Problem

In every college there are those students who just don't know how to behave and cannot conform to the regulations set by the college. The behavior problem constitutes 5 per cent to 10 per cent of the problems which must be settled by the Dean of Students Office here.

Then there are the students faced with personal social problems. This is a maturation problem and is obvious in persons who actually don't know how to behave in accepted ways and feel insecure.

Major Problems Listed

The major problems faced by students in frequency of their occurrence are (1) in the social realm; a person is inwardly disturbed because he doesn't know if he will be accepted by other persons; (2) in the academic realm; the person has not set a standard for himself and has nothing to work towards; (3) in the vocational realm; not being able to decide what career to follow after completing school and exactly what they are trying to accomplish.

The day students pose a problem in that activities must be devised to keep them on campus and make them feel apart of college life.

The testing program at Georgia Southern College is very large and covers everything from personality tests to music ability tests.

Basic Testing Program Given

A basic program includes tests to determine scholastic aptitude, scholastic achievement, and vocational interests. Some of the tests to find how much a student is capable of learning are the College Entrance Examination-Scholastic Aptitude Test, the A. C. E. Psychological, and the Miller Analogies Test and the Graduate Record Examination which are given to applicants for graduate work.

Special tests are given to discover how much a student has learned or achievement tests such as the Sequential Tests of Education Progress in reading, science, mathematics, and social studies. The Kuder Preference Record is used to determine vocational interest and aptitude.

Other Program Used

A supplementary program is used for experimentation and individual counseling purposes. Additional tests for studying scholastic aptitude are the California Mental Maturity, the American Council of Education Psychological Examination, and the Wechsler-Bellevue Intelligence tests.

Our Dean of Students Office may order extra tests in music, art, listening, and cooperative English in the scholastic achievement series. To further help decide vocational aptitude the Differential Aptitudes may be used.

Have you already decided to become a teacher? The Minnesota Teacher Attitude Inventory can help you check yourself and determine if you've made the right choice. Also available here is the National Teacher Examination to certify teachers in certain areas and to decide merit raises.

In the area of music there are two types of tests: the Farnam Music Notation and Gaston Test of Musicality.

Personality Tests Used

Five tests are prepared to help in the field of personality study. These are the Minnesota Multiphasic Inventory, the Bell Adjustment Inventory, the Bernreuter test, the In-take Questionnaire (prepared locally) and the Mooney Problem Check - List.

Any student can ask what tests he's taken and receive an interpretation of his tests simply by dropping by the Dean's office and making an appointment to see either one of the deans. If there is no record of any tests being taken by a student, then that student must take the required tests.

The use of the testing program is to provide the proper persons initially with some general measure of a student's capacity to do college work and how well he has used his ability and what he has achieved. A surprising fact is that few students on the GSC campus know of the avail-

At The

Editor's Desk

This week the Atlanta Journal published the sixth edition of "The Atlanta Century". The page, which was dated April 8, 1860, gives a non-partisan account of the events that happened one hundred years ago each week.

A news story that appeared in the Sunday, March 25, 1860, edition of "The Atlanta Century," datelined St. Joseph, Missouri, stated: "The 'pony express' mail service aiming to cut letter delivery from New York to San Francisco to 13 days, leaves her in about 10 days.

Russell Majors and Waddell Co., Western freight carriers since 1855, propose to begin their service April 3. Relays of riders—expected to total 80—will race the mail from here to Sacramento, California, in 10 days, it is hoped. It will be forwarded to San Francisco by boat.

Current coast-to-coast mail-by boat from New York to Panama overland across the Isthmus and again by boat to San Francisco—now takes about 25 days."

The 'pony express' charge will be $5 per half-ounce for letters of telegraphic dispatches from here to San Francisco. Many months are expected to elapse before the coast-to-coast telegraphic service is established.

Later in the story the desired requirements for the pony express riders are told: each rider (their pay, $25 a week) must weigh no more than 125 pounds and be not over 18. Each is required to make about 75 miles a day, which means seven changes of mounts daily. The change of horses must require no more than two minutes. At the end of the day's run, the rider will rest up before starting with mail from the opposite direction."

Although the pony express service and the company that backed it were put out of business by the completion of a telegraphic line to the Pacific coast in 1861, stage-coach connections and later-railroad and airplane facilities continued to improve the efficiency of mail delivery. In some cities door-to-door mail delivery was begun as early as 1871.

And today huge figures released for 1959 show that there were 249,558 miles of domestic air mail routes in the United States as of June 30 of that year. Mails were flown 114,336,482 ton-miles over these routes during the fiscal year.

Also during the 1959 fiscal year there were 31,377 rural free delivery routes serving 9,189,211 families and a grand total of 61,247,220,000 pieces of mail were received and delivered for domestic and foreign destinations during the year.

Above all else, the many changes seen in mail delivery from the time of the pony express to the present, have served to bring the American people and those abroad closer together than was ever before possible.

Read What The Educators Say

Is Cheating Increasing In Colleges?

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is a reprint from the Sunday, March 27 edition of The Atlanta Journal-Constitution.

By DR. BENJAMIN FINE
North American Newspaper Alliance

Has cheating increased among our college youth?

Student leaders and educators generally are divided on this important question. Yes, it has increased substantially, says the dean of men at Purdue University. No, it has not increased at all, says the Boston University dean of men.

The recent expose of the use of "ghost writers" by students to get their college degrees brought into the open a situation that had existed undercover for some time. Many school and college officials have been aware that there has been a growing laxity in the moral tone of their students.

IN NEW YORK CITY, District Attorney Frank S. Hogan found, a number of ghost writing agencies are ready to write your term paper, do your research and prepare your thesis for your doctor of philosophy degree—and even sit in class for you and take your examination. To find answers to the question: "Does cheating take place on the college campus?" The North American Newspaper Alliance made a survey of 20 well-known colleges and universities. Half were Ivy League institutions, the others were well-known private or state universities.

Few college officials said that cheating had increased in the last year or two, but nearly all said that some measure of cheating did occur. "Cheating is a problem and

PURDUE STUDENTS RATE CHEATING

What form does cheating take? Students were asked how frequently they thought the following practices occurred at Purdue. This is what they said (figures are percentages):

	Very Frequent	Moderate Frequency	Occasionally
A.—Copying from books or crib notes during exams	13.5	38.0	37.1
B.—Copying from other students' papers during exams.....	18.0	39.8	32.1
C.—Copying other students' lab or workbook assignments, themes, reports, term papers..	55.6	26.6	13.6
D.—Getting access to an exam before it is given—from students or college employees.....	14.6	21.0	37.7
E.—Getting another student to take an exam in place of the enrolled students.....	18.2	7.1	40.4

has been a problem in all areas of education for years," said Dr. Theodore A. Distler, executive director of the Assn. of American Colleges. "It is a crying shame that there should be any cheating in intellectual endeavor."

THE BEST ANALYSIS of the problem of cheating comes from Purdue University. For more than a year the Purdue Student Government has conducted a study of academic dishonesty on its campus. A ransom sampling of 569 Purdue students provides a clue as to what is happening there and elsewhere.

Ninety-three per cent of the Purdue students said that cheating was a problem; more than a third of them called it a serious problem. And significantly, 95.4 per cent said they had seen at least one incident of cheating. Thirty-seven per cent of the students admitted they had cheated in the classroom at least once.

"We feel that cheating has tended to increase over the last several years," said Dr. Daniel J. Grier, assistant dean of men at Purdue.

In the Purdue poll, more than 50 per cent of the students reported very frequent cheating in the form of copying other students' work. Twenty-three per cent of the students did not regard this as dishonest! Another 20 per cent said it was not dishonest to get access to an examination before it is given.

WHY DOES so much cheating take place? Dean Grier believes it is a reflection of cultural trends today. He says the students ob-
