Crouch Display Of Hand-Painted China Is Unique

By DELLE BOYKIN

"Every person should have a hobby and creative china painting is the most soul satisfying," stated Miss Marjorie Crouch, associate professor and supervising teacher of social studies.

Miss Crouch's china painting is on exhibit in the Frank I. Williams Center. It is one of a series of hobby shows sponsored by the American Association of University Women.

After admiring old-fashioned, hand-painted china for many years, Miss Crouch decided she had been missing something, so while teaching at Mercer University in the summer of 1953, she decided to try to learn the art.

Methods Are Important

Much to be said about equipment, brush strokes, and other techniques by which an artist achieves the desired effect. There is no special formula by which one may accomplish this. Treatment of subjects with free rein to the imagination is necessary in order not to reproduce nature, but rather use it as a source of pleasing effect.

If you are serious about this fine art, you will spend much time in the beginner's seat. You must be prepared to study and practice the basic fundamentals of design, for they are very important and should be studied and practiced faithfully at first. They are basic and must become a part of your technique if you are to gain the results you want.

Features Told

One of the many appealing features of china painting is the limited amount of equipment and space it requires.

A good composition is the result of the putting together elements of form, value of the relationship of color, texture, and perspective in a manner which complements the total design.

Miss Crouch commented that it is very gratifying to see the revival of old-fashioned china painting. The art at one time was about to die out. In this vicinity there have been interested persons studying under Mrs. Lula Parrish.

Featured on the program will be the Trumpet Trio playing "Bugler's Holiday" by Leroy Anderson. Members of the trio are: Tommy Rogers, first trumpet; Buena Vista, second trumpet; Tommy Fouché, second trumpet; St. Simons; and Billy Martin, third trumpet, Valdosta.

"March of the Steel Men" by Belsterling, a piece which uses downstage trumpets and trombones, will be played by the Trumpet Trio and Earl Collins, Lyons, on the trumpet, Milton Strickland, Adel; Tommy Blackburn, Sylvania; Sammy Prince, Cairo; and John Bergeron, Princeton, will play the trombone for the selection.

Five entirely new modern pieces for bands will be included on the program. These five plus several others will be taped by the music division in the future.

Several popular college marches will be inserted between the regular program numbers during the concert.

Trina Davis Is Crowned "Miss Statesboro" Here

Two GSC freshmen and a staff member received top three places in the "Miss Statesboro Pageant" at the W. S. Hanner Building Saturday night.

Trina Davis, "Miss Statesboro 1961," a GSC freshman from Albany was also showered with the "Miss Swim Suit" and "Miss Evening Gown" titles. A modern jazz dance cha cha to "Ain't She Sweet" was the talent performance by Miss Davis in the pageant.

Talent Listed

Another freshman, Sara Adams of Statesboro, was first runner-up among the 15 girls participating. Miss Adams, who did a dramatic reading from "My Fair Lady," also shared the "Miss Talent" title with Jackie Comer, a third quarter freshman and finalist, who twirled the fire baton to the music of "Quiet Village."

Anne Fulmer of Statesboro, secretary to the GSC director of public relations, was second runner-up. For her talent Miss Fulmer did a modern jazz dance to "Spook," a recording from the album "More Music from Peter Gunn."

Mary Alice Chaney of Statesboro, was selected "Miss Congeniality" by the contestants themselves for her pleasing and agreeable personality.

The pageant, sponsored by the Statesboro Junior Chamber of Commerce, featured Mike McDougald, manager of WGSA Radio of Columbus, as master of ceremonies.

Finalists Named

The five finalists were Trina Davis, Albany; Sara Adams, Statesboro; Anne Fulmer, Statesboro; Jackie Comer, Cordele; and Jayne Bragan of Brooklet.

Miss Davis, as "Miss Statesboro," will compete in the Miss Georgia pageant next spring.

1500 Expected

Congressman Prince H. Preston, from Georgia's first congressional district, and Mr. Jack Nix, state director of vocational education, will be speakers at the meeting, which will have as its theme "Our American Heritage." The theme will be used to show the role of young women in strengthening family life in America today and the effect

Run-off Election Slated For Secretary-Treasurer

By PATTY RAY

Newly elected freshman class officers now give the freshmen an official voice in student affairs at GSC. The election, sponsored by the student council, was held Wednesday in front of the Frank I. Williams Center.

Four Additions Are Named To MPS Faculty

Four new members have been added to the Marvin Pittman School Faculty for the 1960-61 term.

Mrs. Catherine Crawford teaches business subjects. She received her degree from GSCW in Milledgeville. Before coming to MPS, Mrs. Crawford taught at Jenkins County High School in Millen.

Mrs. Sandra T. Franklin, also a graduate of GSCW, teaches high school English. She taught at Madison County High School previous to coming here.

Miss Frances Rackley received her masters degree from GSC this summer. She formerly taught in Metter and teaches the fourth grade at MPS.

Mr. William R. Wilson, a graduate of Georgia Southern, teaches high school mathematics. He taught in Salt Lake City, Utah high school before coming back to the GSC campus.

Marcus Thompson, Evans, defeated Jim Brock, Statesboro, with 145 to 127 votes respectively for the office of president of the 1960-61 freshman class.

In the race for vice-president Warren Dawson, Milledgeville received 141 votes over 122 votes of Dent Purcell, Glennville; and the 7 votes of Robert Schofield, Rock Hill, South Carolina.

A run-off election is necessary between Trina Davis, Albany, and Joyce Redding, Griffin, for the office of secretary-treasurer. It will be held on Monday, November 7, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. in front of the Frank I. Williams Center. The run-off is needed because neither of the candidates received a simple majority.

Sara Adams, Statesboro, and Steve Schowatsky, Watervliet, New York, were chosen as student council representatives with 144 and 166 votes respectively. They were victorious over Peggy Alexander, Nashville, and Larry Phillips, Griffin, with 125 and 104 votes respectively.

A total of 370 votes were cast by a class of 411 persons in this election. Last year 205 voters turned out from a class of 305.

The election of class officers brings to a close seven weeks of work and fun for the freshmen.

Congratulations Are In Order

With the election of their class officers the freshmen class, we believe, can really consider itself a true part of life of GSC. Now the members of the class are represented in the student governing body of GSC and also the class members have chosen persons they can look up to as their leaders.

The turnout of the freshmen at the polls Wednesday shows true class spirit and enthusiasm.

Congratulations to the freshmen class and to the newly elected officers. Those elected were: Marcus Thompson, Evans, president; Warren Dawson, Milledgeville, vice president; Steve Schowatsky, Watervliet, New York, boy's student council representative; and Sara Adams, Statesboro, girl's student council representative.

Last Saturday night Trina Davis, a freshman from Albany was crowned "Miss Statesboro, 1960-61." To her we offer our best wishes for a successful reign as Statesboro's princess. One of her official duties will be in the spring of this year when she will travel to Columbus to represent Statesboro in the "Miss Georgia" competition.

Another pretty GSC freshman, Sara Adams of Statesboro, won the first runner-up honor in this competition. Anne Fulmer, secretary to public relations directors here on campus, was second runner-up in this contest.

These three girls competed with 12 other girls in this contest and the judges based their decisions on such qualities as beauty, poise, intelligence, personality, and appearance.

'Mr. Clean' Wants Your Help!

How many times, as you guided a visitor into the student center, have you remarked, "And this is OUR new student center?" How many times have you regretted having included yourself because of the unsightly condition in which you walked?

From the bits of paper and other trash scattered about, the half filled cups left in conference rooms or overturned on the tables there, we may conclude that the campus "litterbugs" inhabit the student center.

If we consider the student center part ours, why don't we do our part in its upkeep. It would take so little effort.

It is a fact that the Frank I. Williams Center was constructed for the purpose of serving the students on the GSC campus. It was well planned—each section having its own specific purpose.

The conference rooms, as inferred, were built to be used by groups, committees, councils, or clubs for meetings and conferences. They were opened to individual students for study purposes only when conferences or meetings were not planned. Why, then, should the students complain when their use of these rooms is limited or when they are reprimanded for leaving them in a cluttered condition? Misuse is not very characteristic of ownership. Individual use of the comfortable conference rooms is a privilege which should be acclaimed, not complained about.

The reading room was built to be used as a place for quiet study and relaxation, but not for afternoon naps. The tables and chairs were carefully selected to furnish the center, not to be left on the porch overnight in the rain.

Several places were designed for the purpose of satisfying hunger pangs—namely the student and private dining halls and the snack bar. Why, then, should we insist on taking our eats throughout the parts of the student center and leaving the wrappers and cups behind? Let's stay in the snack bar to finish eating.

For fun and relaxation the recreation room was planned. That is where we should move our card games, but not our snacks from the snack bar.

You will agree with me, I'm sure, that OUR student center is an inviting place for all types of students. It would be so easy for us to keep it in top condition. Why don't we try it?

New Distribution Planned For Proofs

Your 1961 Reflector proofs will be in the Williams Center on Monday and Tuesday, November 14 and 15 between the hours of 2 to 6 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

A new method will be employed this year for distributing the proofs and having you choose the one that will appear in the Reflector.

All the proofs will be divided by classes and distributed in different rooms in the Center during the afternoon and evening of these two days.

Students will not be permitted to take their proofs from the room where they receive them. In past years, taking proofs away has only resulted in the loss of proofs by the students, and failure to return them to the Reflector.

Freshmen and sophomores can see their proofs in Room 104 while Juniors' and Seniors' proofs will be available in Room 108.

Remember, you can't take your proofs from these two rooms, so bring your roommate, your best friend, or your enemies.

Stay as long as you like. Bring a bedroll if you want, but don't leave the rooms with proofs in hand.

If the Reflector staff is not able to find your proofs at the end of the two-day period, your picture will not appear in this year's annual.

The manner in which you receive your proofs will be simple.

AN INTERVIEW WITH "MISS STATESBORO"

The trophy is proudly displayed in Anderson Hall lobby. The sign bearing her name and the sponsor's name occupies a prominent spot on the wall of her room. Draped across the front of the sign is a ribbon embroidered with "Miss Statesboro, 1960-61" written in gold. The beautiful crown she keeps tucked away in a safe place.

These remembrances will help Trina Davis, a freshman from Albany, to recall the night she became "Miss Statesboro." Trina was also the winner of the "Miss Evening Gown" titles.

"I couldn't believe I'd won at first, and the entire experience was and is still overwhelming. It's the first time I'd ever won a contest although I'd been in a few," stated Trina, commenting on her feelings about winning the title.

Family Shared Happiness

Her mother, aunt and 14 year old sister were here to share the joy with Trina on Saturday night and "were as excited as I was," states Trina.

This attractive business major loves GSC. After graduation from college she hopes to become a model. Her hobbies include horseback riding, water-skiing, dancing, music and swimming. She says she enjoys going to the beach especially.

Trina doesn't go steady, yet, because she doesn't want to tie herself down to one person unless it's the "right" person. Thus far she just hasn't found that person!

Has Favorites

Like most persons she has picked out her favorite movie stars and also her favorite foods. Kim Novak and Rock Hudson rate number one in her book and so do pizza pie, french fries and a thick, juicy steak.

Her favorite date would consist of a football game and then attending a dance. The colors she likes the most are white, green and black.

Saturday was a very busy day in the life of our "Miss Statesboro," as it was for all the 15 contestants. At a 12 noon luncheon the girls met the judges informally. Then, beginning at 2 p.m., each girl was scheduled for five minute interviews with the judges.

Judges Interview

Trina described her interview with the judges. The judges were seated in a semicircle formation and the contestant was placed in the center of the formation. Each judge asked a question.

The questions asked of Trina and her answers included:

Ques. - With the present political situation, should American women take part in politics and also have the right to vote?

Ans. - Yes, American women can be just as intelligent and well-read as men and should use their right to vote.

Ques. - Why did you choose to enter the contest?

Ans. - I believe it is good experience because some day I hope to be a model.

Ques. - Why did you choose modern dancing for your talent performance and is that the only type of dancing you do?

Ans. - No, I like and have studied ballet, but I am out of practice at the present time.

Ques. - What is your major and can it and modeling be tied together in some way?

Ans. - I am a business major and I don't know if it and modeling can be tied together. I feel that this knowledge of business will be useful to me while I try to become a model. Also it's always good to have an occupation I can fall back on.

Ques. - Why did you choose Kim Novak as your favorite star?

Ans. - All I can reply is I like her hair!

Ques. - How tall are you and do you have a complex about dating shorter boys?

Ans. - I'm 5 feet 9 1/2 inches tall and I think I'm over that complex by now!

Exciting Feature

Trina feels that the most exciting feature about the event was all the waiting backstage and also being in the parade that afternoon and riding in new convertibles. She admitted that she was very nervous at the beginning of the evening but with each new event she grew calmer.

The first competition was the bathing suit presentation of the contestants. Trina wore a beautiful white bathing suit and whether it was the bathing suit or the way she looked in it, she captivated the audience completely.

A very interesting story was related to me about this white bathing suit. It seems as though Trina had originally planned to wear a yellow suit and shoes. However, a bathing suit salesman for Rose Marie Reid stopped by the store where Trina had worked and found out she was to be a contestant in the "Miss Statesboro" Pageant.

With the compliments of Rose Marie Reid, Trina received the bathing suit she wore Saturday night. It has a skirt which matches and transforms it into a cocktail or semiformal dress. "Ain't She Sweet Cha Cha"

For her talent performance Trina did the "Ain't She Sweet Cha Cha." A modern dance routine. Upon winning the "Miss Evening Gown" title she proudly announced to the audience that her aunt had made the white evening gown for her.

Along with the other five finalists Trina was asked two questions which were: If there was a formal dance which you had to attend and your date arrived to pick you up in a tuxedo and tennis shoes, what would you do? If you had been in President Eisenhower's shoes at the Geneva Conference recently, would you have apologized for the U-2 plane incident? If so, why?

Answers Questions

Trina answered the first question by saying that if her date and she had to go to this formal dance, she'd probably know the boy very well. In that case, she would ask him to change shoes. In answer to the second question Trina replied that she wouldn't have apologized because Russia is guilty of doing the same act to us and we were just unlucky enough to be caught.

As part of her official duties, Trina will represent Statesboro in the "Miss Georgia" competition to be held in the spring in Columbus. In Statesboro she will fulfill the official duties required of the "Princess" of any city. In fact, this interview ended because she had to meet with one of the members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, who sponsored this pageant.

The Changing GSC Scene; Building Progress Pictured

By ROBERTA HALPERN
Managing Editor

Mostly everywhere on campus the sound of drills, saws, and hammers can be heard as each day brings the completion of the three new campus buildings closer and closer.

Barring complications, the Arts and Industry Building and the Home Management House should be finished by January 1 and the women's dormitory is expected to be completed by April 24.

Arts And Industry Building

The new Arts and Industry Building, located between the Frank I. Williams Center and the Warehouse, will provide facilities for industrial arts and art education majors.

"This new building addition to the campus is an exceptional facility for the South and is as fine as any in the nation," stated Dr. Donald F. Hackett, chairman of the division of arts at GSC. "We are living in an industrial society today and industrial arts now more than ever before is a prime necessity for daily living," he added.

The new structure will consist of a graphic arts lab, a drafting room, a power mechanics lab, a metal lab, a combination electricity and electronics lab, a finishing room, and a room for wood technology. A general shop will be designed as a sample model of a high school shop.

Five Classrooms Included

The building will contain five classrooms with one that could be converted into a gallery when needed. Provisions for future air-conditioning in the classrooms are being made. A library and conference room are also included in the building.

Facilities for the art department include a design studio, a drawing and painting studio, an art education studio, an outdoor drawing patio, and a ceramics lab.

Mr. Tommy Singletary, a new addition to the industrial arts division faculty, will design a public address system for the building.

Home Management House

Along side the health cottage a new "one and a half story" Home Management House, as Mr. Edwin Eckles, architect, calls it, is well under construction.

Looking over the blueprints of the building with Miss Betty Lane, chairman of the home economics division at GSC, she explained that the living room, dining room, kitchen and general purpose room are located on the first floor. A laundry room, maintenance room, powder room, house office, conference room, and quarters for the house director are also planned for the main floor. Four bedrooms with two adjacent baths make up the second story, above the living wing.

Most dead space areas in regular homes, will be utilized for storage in this new facility.

"Upon completion of the Home Management House, the home economics division will be the best equipped for a college of this size in the state," Miss Lane stated. "The new house will give six to eight senior home economics majors an opportunity to apply all that they have learned during the three previous years and should encourage their ability to plan, organize, and evaluate their experiences in daily life, she added.

Students living in the Home Management House must take a five hour course in addition to the 10 quarter hours they receive for meeting the responsibilities as house residents.

New Women's Dorm

The new three story 160-capacity women's dormitory will have 80 bedrooms in its interior. Many new modern facilities have been included in its construction.

"I believe that the students who will live in this new dormitory won't ever want to leave the college," stated Mr. H. F. Nobles, superintendent for Frank M. Flanders and Company, general contractors for the building construction.

Each floor in the dormitory will include a combination laundry and ironing room, equipped with a washer and dryer. The second and third floors will each have one centrally located bath consisting of six lavatories, six showers and a tub. Each shower stall will have an adjoining drying stall. The first floor will have two baths, each containing two showers. A trash shoot extending from the third floor to the first will empty into a trash room.

Rooms Described

Each room will be equipped with a public address system speaker that will be connected to the lobby office. Each room will also have individually controlled heat. A desk will separate two built-in wardrobes. Single stationary beds will be placed side by side. Each desk will have an indirect fluorescent light. The beds will have a receptacle for lighting in addition to the overhead ceiling light.

Quarters for the house director, a snack bar and activity room, maid's facilities and an enclosed fire escape stairway are other building features.

Upon the completion of these three constructions, there will be a total of 22 buildings on the GSC campus. Yes, progress is evident everywhere, and you are an eye witness to history.

AS WE SEE IT

By ROBERT SCHOFIELD and ROBBIE POWELL

It seems that baseball is dominating the sports world even though the season is over. The Commissioner of Baseball, Ford Frick, slapped a fine of one thousand dollars on Hank Aaron for breaking a barnstorming contract. Charley Neal and Maury Wills of Los Angeles were also fined five hundred apiece. There were several other 'name' players who broke a contract to make a tour of the South. Most of the others were cleared by Frick because of injuries.

We would like to congratulate the person or persons responsible for the decoration of the intramural window. There have been numerous complimentary remarks made about it.

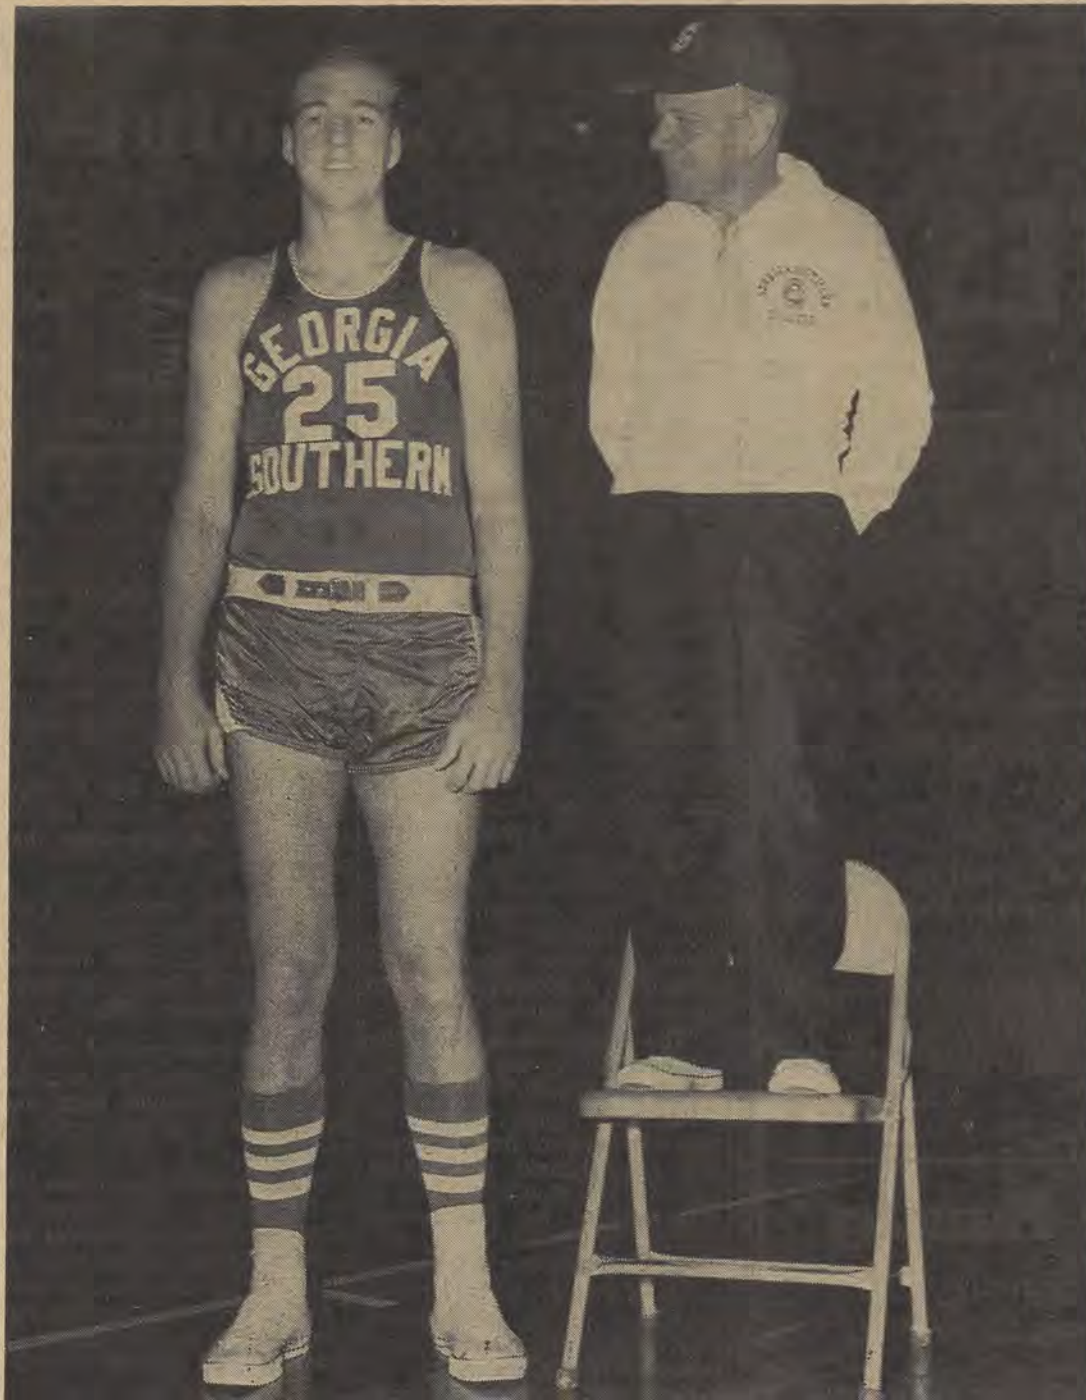

Talk about the bowling league is still flowing freely around the campus. Any one interested may contact us. We have talked to the management at the Skate-R-Bowl and they seemed very enthusiastic about a college league.

Anybody ever wonder what happened to the top ten football teams that were listed at the first of the football season. We do! Syracuse, the number one team, and Mississippi, the number two team, have dropped into the lower ranks of the top team. The biggest disappointment to your columnist was the Clemson Tigers. Ranked eighth nationally at the first of the year, they have dropped their last three games and have fallen almost completely out of the ratings.

The Tigers have lost their last three games; this is the first team they have lost three games in a row in the last several years.

We feel that we must say a word about the Duke Blue Devils. They have surprised all the experts by taking a firm hold on the ACC lead. The Duke coach commented that they were still ashamed of their 50 to 0 loss to North Carolina last Thanksgiving, and that they were trying to prevent anything of that nature from happening again. The Devils will face a strong Navy team this Saturday after whipping Georgia Tech 6-0 in last week's fray.

We can't say Georgia would play a 'breather,' but last week's win in their homecoming game was far from an even match. The Bulldogs overran Tulsa University by a 47 to 6 score.

Aw Coach, I'm Not That Long!

Four Returning Lettermen Give Team Stability

By ROBERT SCHOFIELD

Georgia Southern's basketball team will be anchored by their four returning lettermen this year. They are J. E. Rowe, Jacksonville, Fla.; David Patton, Ashland, Ky.; Connie Lewis, Millen, and Jim Long, Richmond, Va.

This year, as in previous years, the team will be running the fast break. The fast break is dependent upon the forwards and the center grabbing rebounds and passing downcourt to the guards. With these four lettermen on the court, we can be assured of a working fast break.

Leading the fast break this year will be J. E. Rowe, 6'2", as one of the guards. Rowe averaged 10 points per game last year including a 19 point effort in 25 minutes against the Georgia Bulldogs at Athens last year.

At the other guard will be David Patton, 6'. Patton is considered to be an exceptional defensive player, as is shown by his average of six steals per game. He also does well on the offensive. He averaged 12 points and 14 assists per game last year.

Connie Lewis will be playing forward again this year, and we can expect to see some fine rebounding and shooting by Lewis. Lewis, a 6'6" junior, was the third high scorer for the team last year with his fourteen point average. Lewis can be counted on as a leader as well as a great player.

Jim Long, the tallest man on the team, stands 6'8". Long is a junior center. Although he saw limited action last year, he lettered his freshman year.

The four returning lettermen give the team a balance of speed, height, defensive ability, as well as an abundance of fine shooters. With the help of the boys who are either freshmen, transfers, or did not letter last year, the team will be first rate.

The first game of the season will be against Newberry from South Carolina on Thursday, December 1. The games will be played in the Hanner Building.

Welcome, Miss Fuchs

STATESBORO — One of the world's most famous and talented female athletes—Olympian Doris Fuchs—is now a Georgian.

The pretty little blonde gymnast, who has wowed audiences from Melbourne to Rome, is working out daily at Georgia Southern College and will enroll there when the new quarter begins in January.

A native of Rochester, N. Y., Miss Fuchs chose Georgia Southern in order to work under the direction of Pat Yeager.

"Mr. Yeager is one of the outstanding instructors in the nation," Doris explained yesterday. "He helped me a lot in Rome and when the Olympics were over, I decided I'd like to continue my training here."

"The equipment is good, the instruction is good, and I like it here very much."

Her only regret, Doris said, was arriving here from Olympic and post-Olympic competition only two weeks ago—too late to enter classes for the current quarter.

Big Honors, Big Dreams
The muscular cutie now is preparing for an international meet with Russia in the near future at West Chester, Pa.

Next will come the National AAU meet next April. After that, the American gymnastic team will meet the Japanese Olympians in May. Then in 1961, the Americans hope to repay the visit to Russia.

Later, for Doris, there'll be the World Championships in Czechoslovakia in '61, the Pan-American Games in Brazil in '63, then—she hopes—the Olympics again at Tokyo in '64.

"I'm also competing for Georgia Southern now . . . or soon will be," Doris said. "Mr. Yeager is lining up a team schedule now. The first two meets will take place at the Florida Clinic at Sarasota."

The high flying lass is eager for new honors, but she already owns more championships than she can list.

She started working at gymnastics only five years ago and that same year, 1955, won the National AAU flying ring crown for the Rochester CYO.

In her second year of competition, she earned a berth on the U. S. Olympics team and finished 48th in the world at Melbourne.

Others honors have come fast—the Midwest championship in 1957, the Canadian National Exhibition title in '58, the National AAU in '58, the Pan-American Trials in '59, the Canadian National in '60, and the All-American in '58, '59 and '60.

A Thrill To Remember

Her biggest honor and top-most thrill came in the recent Olympics at Rome. She scored eighth in the world on the uneven bars, the only American ever to place that high.

"It was the best competition in my life," Doris exclaimed. "I didn't let the U. S. down, and I'm thankful for that. When I came off those bars, the applause was tremendous. I'll never forget it."

There's another chapter to Doris' Roman holiday. The European—and American—press made much of her "friendship" with a handsome Russian Olympian named Boris Nikonov.

They were photographed together repeatedly. One of the pictures of Doris and Boris jitters bugging made the pages of the Morning News.

Did anything serious develop? "Let's don't talk about that," Doris twinkled. "Let's just say that Boris is a nice guy and we became good friends."

The German-born miss—she spent some childhood years in a concentration camp in Czechoslovakia—is quite a gal. She packs a 38½-24-36½ figure into a 116-pound, five-foot frame.

She was Life Magazine's cover girl for the Sept. 12 issue. Besides beauty and talent, Doris speaks four languages. She handles English, German and Spanish without trouble and is studying Russian now.

But her most striking asset in her burning desire is to improve, to reach her third Olympic in 1964, and to win.

As she puts it, "It's Tokyo or bust."
