Regents Approve Addition Of B.S. Degree In Industrial Technology

MIXED EXPRESSIONS—some are happy, but most are indifferent — are seen on the faces of these GSC students as they stand in line to pay tuition on New Year's Day. Unofficial figures show this quarter's enrollment of 1548, slightly lower than the number registering for classes last quarter.

Dean Announces Unofficial Total; 1548 Enrolled

Unofficial enrollment figures show that 1548 students are attending Georgia Southern College for the winter quarter, according to Dean Paul F. Carroll.

Of the total figure, there are 332 Seniors, 374 Juniors, 374 Sophomores, 452 Freshmen, eight graduate students, and eight specials.

Registration for graduate students was held on Tuesday evening, January 2, and will be held Saturday morning, January 6, on the Georgia Southern campus. The last day for registration is January 9.

Classes for winter quarter began January 2 and will end March 9 at 2:30 p.m. Winter quarter examinations begin at 2:30 p.m., March 9, with the term ending March 13.

Final enrollment figures will be released next week.

MEAL LINES

The student body is asked to comply with the following requests:

Join the meal line in the rear.

When the sign is hanging on the door it will be locked; please walk around.

Your cooperation will be appreciated.

The B. S. degree with a program in Industrial Technology was allocated to the Industrial Education Department of Georgia Southern College by the Board of Regents on December 13, according to President Zach S. Henderson.

The purpose of this program, according to Dr. Donald F. Hackett, chairman of the Industrial education division, is the preparation of men and women for positions in manufacturing industries. It will develop persons of considerable flexibility and understanding for entrance into American industry.

The curriculum of this program will offer experiences leading to technical, human relations and leadership competence. As with other Georgia Southern College undergraduate programs, it will provide for communications, social and civic competence.

The technical aspect of the program involves course work in drafting, a variety of industrial processes, chemistry, physics, botany and mathematics. Courses in psychology, economics and business administration pertain to human relations and leadership competence. English, speech, history, and economics relate to social and civic competence.

Statistics show that for every one engineer at least five technicians and 50 skilled craftsmen are needed in industry today. This industrial technology degree program should be an important step toward meeting the needs for the liberally prepared technician who will assume a leadership role in the production phases of industry, according to Dr. Hackett.

This new degree is the latest addition to the Georgia Southern College curriculum.

During this school year the Board of Regents also granted permission to this college to offer a Master of Arts degree with a major in history and a Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in French. The Regents also recently authorized GSC to develop programs for teachers, in cooperation with the state department of education, for the training of high school principals, the education of high school teachers of mathematics at the fifth year level and the education of English, science and social studies for high school teachers at the sixth grade level.

LEWIS HALL BIDS

Bids for the construction of an annex to Lewis Hall will be held on January 11, according to Dr. Zach S. Henderson, president.

This annex will provide 26 additional rooms in Lewis Hall.

Death Ends Brilliant Career Of Prominent GSC Music Professor

A prominent scholar and a professor of music at Georgia Southern College, Dr. Daniel S. Hooley, died at 6 p.m., Wednesday, December 13, at Emory University Hospital while recovering from surgery.

Dr. Hooley, a native of Renovo, Pennsylvania, came to Georgia Southern College in September of 1953. He held the B. S. degree from Penn State Teachers College, and received his M. A. and E. D. degree from Columbia University.

From 1947-1952, Dr. Hooley was the music supervisor at Mercerburg, Pa., and during 1952-53 he was demonstration teacher at Columbia University. He was a regular member of the Columbia University summer session staff from 1954 through 1958, during which time he taught the first course offered in Jazz Improvisation at the piano at the university.

He spent time in New York as a professional accompanist playing in Carnegie Hall and Town Hall for such opera stars as Maria Callas. He was also employed by the American Theatre Wing and the National Concert Artists Corporation.

Since 1958, Dr. Hooley had been musical director for 19 long-playing recordings for RCA studios and pianist for twelve long-playing records for the same studio. He co-authored nine books during 1959-61 in an elementary music series, Music for Young Americans, published by the America Book Co.

While at Georgia Southern, he played duo-piano recitals with Mr. Jack Broucek of the music division, and was soloist for the Savannah Symphony Orchestra.

All his life, Dr. Hooley gave of himself to organizations including Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, Delta Rho Delta, Kappa Delta Pi Music Educators National Conference, Local 802, American Federation of Musicians, Georgia Music Educators Association, Georgia Education Association, and Georgia Composers Association.

In many of these organizations he functioned as piano chairman, piano clinician, editor, composer, and faculty sponsor.

A Tribute To Dr. Hooley

According to school catalogs, music books, record albums, course titles, and concert programs, he was known as Dr. Daniel S. Hooley, professor of music, Georgia Southern College. But to those who knew him personally: faculty, staff, parents, students and children, he meant much more than this title could ever portray.

"Dan" Hooley lived for every day, giving of himself each minute, each hour, always for the service of others. He was an oasis of freshness for first and second graders as he took them through music to visit other countries, to meet strange people, and to hear the animals roar; this he did with his possession of musical talent and his dedication to see children smile.

From the seven-year old's smile, he would, during his day, walk to the opportunity of explaining the intricacies of developing adequate music programs to future music teachers. And he would speak to them with keen, clear intelligence about the world of music, of its art, of its beauty, and of what it had to offer life.

This was a successful man, not only in the classroom, but also in the conference room, in the coffee lounge, in the recording studio, and in the concert hall.

The history of the accolades laid upon this aggressive 38-year-old man's shoulders is indeed impressive, but more impressive is the manner by which he attained these heights. And it is a simple one. Dan Hooley did not let an ounce of his talent lie dormant for one moment of his life. He moved quickly and effectively to duties, demands and responsibilities which were expected of him by his most severe master, himself.

He was at Georgia Southern for eight and one-half years. And in those years, he gained for himself, as he did in Carnegie Hall, and in the RCA recording studios, respect. This too was an easy gain for "Dan" in that he remained always himself, an easy, quick man, offering to all the hand of service.

Only those who knew him realize how great is the loss: the audio man in the recording studio, the student who felt his experienced hand, the laughing children learning funny new songs, his many colleagues, and his family.

But as the songbooks he authored are opened and music teachers throughout the nation say "Children, let us sing!"; as his record albums are played and studied in music studios; and as the students, who were taught by him, go out and teach others who will in turn teach others; we realize that "what Dr. Hooley had to offer" is still here and will live always in the todays and the tomorrows of the world of music.

Resolutions For 1962

With the coming of 1962, millions of Americans across the country have made New Year's resolutions which they hope will prevent them from repeating mistakes they have made in the past.

At this time, the GEORGE-ANNE would like to join these millions and present a slate of resolutions that we hope the entire collegiate body will follow.

If GSC were a person, wouldn't it be encouraging if he were to take an oath something like this?: "I, Georgia Southern College, in the year 1962, resolve:

1. To never again hold winter quarter registration on New Year's Day.
2. To support social, cultural, and other activities held on campus for the benefit of the students.
3. To voice any feelings of dissatisfaction before constructive and authoritative listeners and not just behind closed dormitory doors.
4. To provide adequate housing for the rapidly expanding student body; in other words: to hasten construction in all phases.
5. To place more telephones throughout the campus, especially in the dormitories.
6. To continue the rapid academic expansion taking place here.
7. To pave still more roads and parking lots, etc.
8. To lengthen student banking hours and make them more convenient.
9. To improve the organization of election campaigns. To have candidates address the voters and present their views and plans.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"OH, HE'S NOT SO BAD A TEACHER, BUT YOU'LL FIND HE HAS HIS 'PETS'."

REGIONAL CAMPUS...

By WINFRED L. GODWIN
Director Southern Regional Education Board

EDITOR'S NOTE: First of two articles by Dr. Godwin explaining current methods for and against a new calendar.

Today the South faces a shortage of one of its most valuable human resources — trained professional personnel in fields vital to the region's welfare.

Among the people most concerned about this shortage are the professional people themselves, and they have turned to education for guidance in relieving the shortage.

At a recent meeting of officers of the medical society in one of our larger metropolitan areas, the assembled physicians showed great interest in one method for stepping up production of doctors and other professional men and women in the South. That method was year-round operation of colleges and universities in the region.

What Is It?

Few parents of students and few of those who support and direct Southern institutions know exactly what it means to talk about year-round school for the region. It isn't just an expanded summer school that we consider, but the addition of a full fourth quarter or third semester to the school year.

A big argument in favor of year-round operation is the length of time it takes Southern young people to complete their formal academic training. Today 35 per cent of the nation's college graduates are working for advanced degrees. It takes a college teacher from three to ten years to earn a Ph.D. It takes about 10 years to earn an M.D. and to develop a specialty, which means that both college professors and doctors are close to 30 years old before they have completed their formal schooling.

Year-round operation of the region's schools would mean that undergraduate training could be finished in three years and that professional training could be stepped up accordingly.

Accommodate More

Another often heard argument favoring a new school calendar is that with year-round operation of the schools we could educate the equivalent of another full class of students each year without increasing residential or classroom facilities. This argument carries weight in a region which must prepare for an enrollment of 1,700,000 students by 1970.

There are two systems of year-round operation now being practiced by universities and colleges of the nation—the four quarter system and the trimester system.

At its last session, the legislature of Florida took action to put all schools of the state university system on a year-round calendar. Before deciding its method of operation, the Florida Board of Control set up a criteria by which any system would be judged. Among those it considered most important, the system must allow maximum time for instruction with minimum time for academic housekeeping, and must permit

Communism And YOU

Prepared by the United States Air Force Chaplain Board at the Air University, Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama. All articles have been read and approved by Chaplain, Major General, Terrence P. Finnegan, Chief of Chaplains, USAF.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles to appear weekly in the GEORGE-ANNE. We would like to thank Lt. Dwane D. Twichell of Detachment 3, 12th Radar Bomb Scoring Squadron, located here in Statesboro for making these articles available to us.

It is odd to hear an American citizen introduce the phrase "If we ever go to war with the Communists" into his conversation. America and the entire "free world" are in a war of the Communist's making.

True, we are involved in a "cold" war right now, a battle for the minds of men; but "hot," "lukewarm" or "cold," it is still war.

America heads a group of nations with the "freedom idea." We, and they, believe in the existence of God, a moral law, the worth of the individual, the rights and freedoms of all men, in all nations, in all periods of history.

Communism is a system that we view as intrinsically wrong. God is denied. Man exists for the state and has no individual worth. An action is deemed "right" if it aids the cause of Communism; it is "wrong" if it opposes it. All rights and freedoms come from the state and may be withheld or withdrawn at any time.

The world is watching two major ways of life in grim competition — the way of freedom and the way of dictatorship. Each side is competing for the minds of all men on earth. The weapons are newspapers, books, magazines, pamphlets, radio, TV, motion pictures, advertising, education and all other means of communication. The battle rages twenty-four hours a day. There will be one final victor.

"The freedom idea will triumph," we tell the world. "We will bury you!" shouts back the leader of the Communist bloc.

No American — no man on earth, for that matter — can say, "This is not my battle." All mankind is involved.

NEXT WEEK: What is Communism?

GOES

behind the headlines big and small

SOMETIMES NOT AT ALL

Everything seems to be back to normal after the holiday and with this paper out it seems like the regular routine was hardly even interrupted for members of the GEORGE-ANNE staff.

Speaking for the staff—Happy New Year. This year it is hoped that the GEORGE-ANNE will grow and prosper more than ever before.

To change the subject for a while, let's switch to Georgia Southern College and its growth. Time and again the tremendous progress of this school has been talked about. This time, however, a look at a somewhat different aspect of growth and progress seems relevant.

As the new year opened so did Georgia Southern and as has been the case recently the college continues to grow. Reported on page one of this paper is yet another new degree and program now offered here.

With all this continued growth expansion, development or whatever one wishes to call it also comes a more widespread reputation for the college. Today it is possible to find many people even in Georgia who know little or nothing about Georgia Southern. More people, however, have heard about the college today than in years past.

Becomes Better Known

Each year the name of the school will become more widely known. Someday in the not too distant future it will be possible to mention Georgia Southern's name anywhere in Georgia without attracting blank stares or puzzled expressions.

Throughout the south and in many other parts of the nation more and more people will begin to hear about Georgia Southern if the current trend here continues.

A school's reputation means a great deal, but it can also be overemphasized. During the recent holiday period I had a chance to talk with friends who were home from school for the Christmas vacation. One person in particular is a student at an Eastern School which has a good name and a BIG reputation.

Quality Slips

This person complained about the quality of education to be found at this school which we could say is built on its reputation. He cited one example of a calculus class which has over 300 people in it. The class is taught in the auditorium and is strictly a lecture class. No questions are permitted.

In a history class there are more than 250 students. The astonishing part of this whole thing is that there is just under 3,000 students at this school. The cost of an education at this institution is approximately three and one-half times what it costs here at Georgia Southern.

Yet students who are enrolled at the institution mentioned above and others like it constantly brag about the reputation of the school they attend. What about the kind of education they receive? With conditions such as those mentioned existing it seems as though the quality of education would slip.

Must Be Divided

These are the things that must be avoided as a school grows and develops. The chance for Georgia Southern to avoid them remains. So far conditions like that have been avoided and the future looks good.

As the reputation spreads and becomes more respected it would still be a good idea to refrain from such conditions.

The Communists have done it again. More propaganda posters have arrived from Prague. The first batch which arrived here a few weeks ago spurred a series of articles called "Communism and You" which begins this week in the GEORGE-ANNE. The series will run for thirteen weeks.

A Square Deal

By BILLY DEAL

The refrains of Auld Lang Syne are dying out, but we are still close enough to "last year" to make resolutions and predictions and savor our nostalgic memories.

But before we get off on the usual wild track, there are a few little things that I think deserve a mention.

I don't like to keep bringing up a sour subject, but did everybody have a happy New Year?

Oh, you had to come back to school to register? Well, did you know that you are a member of the only school this side of Slobovia University that held registration on New Year's Day.

What's that? You also have classes for the next two Saturdays? How about that! Well, that's one way to keep the students on campus. I believe those classes are being held so that we can keep our accreditation, but New Year's Day registration and two Saturday classes take so much of the fun out of being a college student.

Isn't there some other way? Like losing our accreditation, maybe? Anyway, registration was easier — except for a few. One senior, who, through a front office error, is still classified as a junior, couldn't find his precious blue card, and when he asked about it, no one seemed to know where it was.

And, of course, no one ever thought of looking. He finally decided that all the cards were in a safe, and the safe couldn't be opened because it was sealed with a time lock.

Fortunately, the senior received a helping hand from Dean Paul F. Carroll, or he might still be in line somewhere.

Oh, well, it's a new year, so we won't start off in a critical mood. Let's be happy. And to do this, suppose we take a look at some of the quotes of 1961 and see how they shape up now. We'll take a good look at the sporting talk...

Georgia Tech Football Coach Bobby Dodd—"I'm not worried about this Gator Bowl game. Penn State has a good team, but I'm sure our boys will win. I'm thinking of starting our team there."

New York Giant Coach Allie Sherman—"Sure, Green Bay has a good team, but we're better. We'll make 'em look sick. We'll probably shut 'em out."

Giant Player Sam Huff—"Paul Hornung is overrated. I'll make him eat the ball."

Packer Player Paul Hornung—"I'm overrated. Sam Huff will make me eat the ball."

Baseball experts, before the season — "I see it like this. Mantle will win the crown with 45; Maris will be lucky if he hits 30. And it'll be Detroit and Milwaukee in the World Series."

Georgia Southern Student — "I graduate this quarter if I don't get a D in this history course."

Same student, early 1962 — "I'll probably graduate in August. You see, I changed my major to industrial arts."

Another GSC student — "I heard we're going to have better food this quarter."

Same students, early 1962 — "I heard we're going to have better food next year."

And that's the way it went. Just in case Bobby Dodd sees this paper, I was only joking.

And here's a thought for the week. We go to so much trouble to get our dining cards and then to get them checked every time we eat. Has it ever occurred to any of the powers that be that no one is going to eat in our dining hall if he doesn't positively have to?

By JOHNIE KICKLIGHTER JR.

Wednesday the Student Council met and discussed such things as the Homecoming, dance, displays for Homecoming, Pre-registration, and a few other items of interest to the student body.

Of these items, we of the GEORGE-ANNE, as most of you probably are, are most interested in Pre-registration. In order to have pre-registration, the Student Council would have to present a request to the Student Personnel Advisory Committee of which Dean Tyson is chairman. Before presenting this request, the Student Council would like to have some opinions from the student body. Therefore, we asked some of the students these two questions:

(1) Would you like to have pre-registration?

(2) What is your reason or reasons for wanting pre-registration?

Their answers to these questions are listed as follows:

Linda Cain, Sylva — "Yes! You wouldn't have to worry about registering and you could begin classes the first day."

John Griffin, Americus — "Yes! This would prevent coming back to college on a holiday."

Wanda Conner, Statesboro — "Yes! I could prepare for my future courses ahead of time."

Charles Harper, Cordele — "Yes! You could stay home another day."

Adrienne Saunders, Eau Gallie, Florida — "Yes! Maybe it would cut down some of the confusion."

Norman Dolgoff, Savannah — "Yes! It would give the students and the staff a chance to better prepare for the oncoming quarter so as to off-set the confusion at the beginning of each quarter."

Martha Barnes, Augusta — "Yes! I think it would be simpler than the present method."

Wayne Studdard, Homerville — "Yes! Although it will be too late for me since I will be student-teaching next quarter, I think it would benefit other students. Also, it would save time."

Cindy Johnston, Statesboro — "Yes! It would prevent the usual confusion of registering."

Allyn Prichard, Canton —

"Yes! I would like to have it if it would work so as to benefit everybody."

Joy Hilliard, Glennville — "Yes! Because it is tiresome the way it is now."

Rand Bowden, Jesup — "Yes! Definitely! You could have another day off."

Beth Deen, Pearson — "Yes! If held at a time that wouldn't conflict with finals. The hardest part of next quarter would be over with."

Andy Pittman, Blackshear — "Yes! We had it when I went to Middle Georgia, and it worked fine. It eliminated the rush and the confusion."

Jo Ann Bennett, Blackshear — "Yes! It would probably be better organized and save more time."

Margaret Akridge, Sale City — "Yes! It would eliminate one of the Saturday classes."

Denny Rushing, Statesboro — "Yes! Mainly to get it over with."

Marion Jordan, Reidsville — "Yes! Maybe it would eliminate being closed out of a class."

Judy Chandler, Atlanta — "Yes! I hate to come back on holidays."

Scoring WITH Scott

Perhaps the most pitiful sight in the world is that of a bird whose wings have been clipped trying to fly. Yet once the bird regains his fine feathers, nothing can equal his grace and beauty in flight. The Eagle is one of the most graceful of birds, but surely he would lose much of his grace when flapping his wings to no avail.

The Georgia Southern variety of Eagles seem to have met such a fate over the holiday as one foe after another bowled them over. A victory over Central Connecticut State College finally halted a losing skein of six consecutive games last Friday night.

Rumors have been circulating that Eagle Coach J. B. Searce still maintains some degree of confidence in his ill Eagles (sick birds?). He still, the rumor maintains, is entertaining thought of a winning campaign. In any case, the Eagles have this work cut out for them if they intend to sooth ruffled feathers suffered in the early part of the season.

Of course, the loss of two starters and one top substitute through academic failure was a damaging blow to the squad. Although the boys were able replaced, this resulted in the loss of part of the once excellent dept of the squad. Also, the loss of the two departed first-stringers, both seniors, cuts deep into the height and experience of the squad.

So far the brightest spot in the Eagle attack seems to be burly Francis Florian (6-2, 220 lbs) who is hitting the nets at a rate of over 24 points per game. The big guard, converted to forward by the loss of the two starting forwards, already has broken one of Chester Webb's long-time records by netting 19 field goals in one game.

There is still plenty of time left for the Eagles, whose seasonal record now stands at 2-4. Although they lost two out of three games in the Camp Lejeune Tournament, those games will not count on the season record.

Gymnasts Capture Trophy In Florida

The Georgia Southern College Gymnastic team returned from the Central Florida Invitational Gymnastic Championships with a first place trophy as they scored 183½ points to the second place team, The St. Petersburg PAL, by more than 60 points.

The meet, which was the first for the GSC team, was held on December 9 in Leesburg, Florida with approximately 300 athletes representing different teams from the Southeast.

Individual honors went to Peder Lunde, who is the 1961 long horse champion, and Raymond Majors, the tumbling champion. Majors and Lunde also finished third and sixth respectively in the free calisthenics.

Following Lunde in the long horse vault with second, third, and fourth places respectively were Bobby Tapley, Ashley Boyd, and Stanley McCallar. McCallar also took third place in the side horse event.

D. C. Tunison captured second place in the rope climb and also second place in the side horse vault. Robert Smith placed seventh in the parallel bars and seventh in the side horse vault.

The GSC Women's Gymnastic team competed against Florida State, West Palm Beach, and the St. Petersburg PAL. They also competed against Gail Songerath, a United States Olympic Team member.

Carol Mobley took fifth place on the uneven bars and fourth place on the balance beam. Grace McClelland finished sixth on the balance beam, and Beth Vanlandingham finished fourth on the side horse vault.

On January 12, the David Lipscomb College Gym team from Nashville, Tennessee will visit the Georgia Southern campus for the first home meet of the 1962 season. David Lipscomb hasn't competed this year, but they have been pointing to this meet with GSC and are believed to have a fairly strong team.

The Georgia Southern team is back into shape after the holidays and should be strong in several events. Other home meets this month include one with the University of Georgia on January 19 and a meet with The Citadel on January 27.

Eagles Lose In Double Overtime To Oglethorpe

ATLANTA — Oglethorpe University took advantage of charity tosses here Wednesday night to defeat Georgia Southern, 77-67, in a double overtime contest.

Tied 63-63 at the end of the contest, both teams tallied two points in the first extra period to set the stage for Oglethorpe's free throw exhibition.

The Atlantans bagged eight free throws and a bucket in the second extra period while holding Georgia Southern to two points.

Bobby Sexton led the Oglethorpe surge in overtime with six points while Tommy Norwood sparked the Atlantans brilliant last half attack — collecting 19 of his 20 points.

Georgia Southern lost its rebounding star, Bill Pickens, after the first five minutes of play. Pickens had three fouls and had to sit out most of the contest.

Fran Florian led Georgia Southern with 19 points and David Patton followed with 17. Pickens tallied 11.

Georgia Southern's next game will be Saturday night in Statesboro when the powerful Stetson to Hatters journey to Georgia.

It seems that everyone had a Merry Christmas except Coach J. B. Searce and his Eagles last month. The Georgia Southern team lost four games while only winning one.

In their first game, the Eagles were edged by Mississippi Southern, 85-78, December 16. Bill Pickens gave a stellar performance for the Eagles, scoring 41 points. Francis Florian contributed 11 to the GSC cause.

Friday night, the Eagles journeyed to East Tennessee State College where the Eagles moved to a 45-38 halftime lead, only to be turned back in the second half and lose, 82-75. Fran Florian lead the Eagles with 34 points and was followed by Pickens with 19.

Afterwards, the Eagles went home for a brief rest and Christmas with the family. Then on December 27 they played Elon College in the opening round of the Camp Lejeune Tournament.

In that game, the hot-shooting Elon team outdistanced the Eagles in the second half, 74-32, at the end of the first half. Once again, Pickens was big man for the Eagles with 15 points. Florian has 13 markers for GSC.

In the second round of the tourney, the Eagles met host team Camp Lejeune and once again were defeated, 85-72. Francis Florian was the thorn in the Marines' side, scoring 25 points. He was followed closely by Pickens with 21.

Finally, the Eagles met Central Connecticut State in a play-off for the 7th place in the tourney. In this game, the Eagles eked out an 82-81 win, behind the hot shooting of Florian who bucketed 35 points. Bill Pickens and Harry Werner had 16 and 13 points respectively for GSC.

The next home game for the Eagles will be January 6, against the Stetson Hatters. Game time will be 8 p.m.

Future Student Teachers Are Asked To Meet

A meeting of Georgia Southern students interested in student teaching during the 1962-63 school year will be held in the Marvin Pittman Auditorium on Tuesday, January 9, 1962, at 4 p.m.

The purposes of the meeting are to acquaint the students with the student teaching program, to answer questions which the students have, and to pass out application forms.

Dr. Starr Miller, chairman of the education division, will greet the prospective student teachers. Other staff members participating in the meeting will be Dr. Harold Johnson, Director of Student Teaching Development, Dr. Walter B. Mathews, Coordinator of Elementary Student Teaching, and Mr. John Lindsey, Coordinator of Secondary Student Teaching.

After securing the application forms, students may consult with their major adviser in determining whether student teaching should be scheduled in the fall, winter, or spring quarter. The applications are to be returned to Dr. Johnson not later than January 31, 1962. Students are then responsible for notifying Dr. Johnson when their plans for student teaching are altered for any reason.

Florida Adopts Trimester

The Florida Board of Control decided that a trimester system could best meet its criteria in that estate. Beginning in 1962, the universities will operate three trimesters of 15 to 16 weeks in length. The first trimester will begin with registration September 5-8. Classes will begin on September 10. A four day Thanksgiving holiday will begin November 22 and the trimester will end with a Christmas vacation from December 22 - January 2.

Second trimester of the calendar will begin January 3-5 and will end with spring vacation April 19-24. The third period will begin April 25-27 and will end with final exams August 5-9. During the third period there will be seven or eight weeks timed to fit the schedules of teachers in the public schools and other students who could study only during that time.

Florida is still working out details of faculty employment during the new calendar year. In other institutions where the trimester system is in effect, faculty members are required to teach four terms every two years, but they can put two vacations back-to-back and get the equivalent of a sabbatical with pay about every other year.

The three year college operated in trimesters is not a new proposal. It was successful half a century ago at Harvard, Yale's Sheffield Scientific School, Johns Hopkins and Clark. Today the reasons for such a system in the South are far more pressing than they were then.

Used Book Store Buys And Sells

Two GSC students have recently opened a bookstore in downtown Statesboro which buys and sells used college textbooks, outside readers, etc.

The Statesboro College Bookstore, located at 41 East Main St., opened up for business at the beginning of this quarter.

The store is operated by Carl Brinson and Thurman Williams. They stated that they will have used books in every course offered at Georgia Southern, next quarter.

Besides the required college textbooks, the store carries a complete line of paperbacks, magazines, and required English readers.

Science Speaker Gives Two Talks At GSC Today

Dr. Robert W. Krauss, professor of plant physiology at the University of Maryland will speak at GSC today on "Space Exploration" and "Training for a Scientific Career," according to Dr. John A. Boole Jr., head of the science and mathematics division.

Dr. Krauss will speak on "The Biologists Role in Space Exploration" at 7 p.m. in McCroan Auditorium. At 4 p.m., he will speak on "Plans and Training for a Scientific Career" in Room 111 of the Frank I. Williams Center.

The lectures are sponsored by the division of science and mathematics.

According to Coach J. I. Clements, baseball practice will begin at 4 p.m. January 15. Coach Clements encourages all persons interested in playing baseball to report to the baseball field at this time.
