Jo Jo Deal, president of a group of men students going under the name of the Delta Sigma Fraternity appeared at the last meeting of the student council to present a case for the sanction of social fraternities and sororities at Georgia Southern.

The student council had asked Deal to come before them after a letter had been written to the council requesting that a policy change concerning such organizations be considered.

Social Fraternities And Sororities -Where The Issue Stands Now

The social fraternity and sorority question has broken out into the open here at Georgia Southern. There is a movement by a group of students to seek the sanction of such organization.

The official college policy is stated in the catalog. It reads like this, "There are no social fraternities or sororities at Georgia Southern College. It is felt that the college can best serve its purpose without these organizations. The college does not therefore sanction the establishment or social fraternities, either local or national."

It should be understood by all that as long as this remains the policy of the school, it should be followed. That brings up the question, "Why can't the policy be changed?" Here is where the problem rests now.

First it must be determined exactly who wants the policy to be changed. Secondly, the most important, will a change in policy lead toward the betterment of the school?

As the news story on page one points out, the persons who are members of the "outlawed" fraternity are now trying to have the student council pass a recommendation to be submitted to the Student Personnel Advisory Council asking that a policy change be considered.

The GEORGE-ANNE feels that such a policy change should be studied extensively. Regardless of whether there is or is not a change, the outcome will affect the school.

Before such a change is made, it would be advisable to hear from all sides. The students should be given a chance to express themselves. Likewise, the members of the faculty and administration should be able to present their views to the students at an open meeting.

Next Wednesday's meeting of the student council will be a good opportunity for the views and opinions of EVERYONE to be heard.

What Has Led To This Issue

The movement to establsh a fraternity began here during the fall quarter. At that time some of the alumni members of this fraternity, which at one time in the past existed here, held an organizational banquet at the Statesboro Elks Club.

Officers were elected and what is now just a "social club" not affiliated with the college, was established. Since that time they have undertaken activities to introduce others to the group and to build up opinion in the favor of fraternities and sororities.

There have been meetings between representatives of the alumni of this group and the administration going on trying to make headway. So far not too much has been accomplished.

Last week Gordon "Jo Jo" Deal,

a recommendation that the policy be changed.

Up until this time many false impressions have arisen. Because some individual faculty members expressed their approval a distorted picture of it being official was given.

Many people feel the whole affair has been handled in the wrong way. The "T" Book lists three steps to be followed in establishing a new campus club or organization. None of these steps were followed.

We have tried to present a brief outline of what has happened so far.

As a newspaper which tries to present and cling to the feelings of the majority of the students on campus, the GEORGE - ANNE staff feels that a definite stand

THERE IS ONLY ONE WAY WE CAN RAISE TH' HOLISE GRADE AVERAGE - CHEAT."

Television, teaching machines, and other mechanical aids may be commonplace in tomorrow's classroom, but the region's great need will continue to be capable, well-trained teachers to inspire the search for knowledge.

Within the next 10 years, the South will need some 50,000 additional college teachers. At least a third of these should have the Ph.D., judging by present standards. At the present time, annual recruitments to Southern faculties are estimated at about 3,000.

In the South and in the rest of the nation, the proportion of Ph.D.'s in college teaching has fallen during the past decade. Ten years ago about 38 per cent of the new faculty members employed by the nation's colleges were Ph.D.'s. In the South, only 32 per cent of these new college teachers held the doctor's degree. Since then the national average has fallen in all fields and the South still trails the nation by six per cent the South's new teachers. If colleges and universities act now to develop strong, accelerated master's degree programs, they can do much to insure quality teachers for the classes of 1970.

New Program Adopted

The University of North Carolina, Duke University, the University of Florida, Stetson University, the University of Louis-ville, Rice University, Vanderbilt and Emory have moved in this direction by adopting a three-year master's degree program for students planning to enter college teaching.

Outstanding undergraduates about to enter their junior year are selected for advanced work and given special preparation for college teaching in their last two years of undergraduate work and first year of graduate work. Each of the programs emphasizes independent research and writing and completion of language requirements of the

One event took place over the weekend which is heralded by this columnist, another highly publicized event failed to occur and it does not really make too much difference.

For the first event the headline from Sunday's Savannah Morning News can be quoted. It read like this: "President Orders Ban On Imports From Cuba." This is a move which many Americans have been waiting for during the past several months. The action will cost Cuba $35 million a year. Administration officials claim that this embargo on trade will hurt Castro and his fellow revolutionaires. That's good. That's ust what we want to see. Since he (Castro) has been denouncing the United States there is no sense to our country giving him a dime.

Reduced One-Third According to an Associated Press release, officials of the U. S. said that Castro's dollar income last year was under $100 superstitious Hindus waited for million. So it will be reduced by one-third this year.

Countries which continue to take aid and money from the United States and at the same time continue to plot against the United States should all get the same axe applied to them. If they plan to take up on the side of the Communists, then it seems logical that the Communists should be their backbone. The Russians and Chinese have enough problems trying to takke care of their own people, let alone somebody else.

If Castro is determined to be a Communist "Howdy Doody" (puppet), then it is right that the Communist masters should hold all the strings. Soon the strings will stop functioning and the puppets will begin to strangle. Then our goals will have been accomplished.

Doomsday Passes

Fortunately not too many Americans took the warnings of doom this past weekend too seriously. For here it is Friday already and the world hasn't ended yet. But over the weekend many were seen as an omen of evil." It seems like we've all still got some time left. That may be good for some, bad for others, but the end still does not seem to be in sight.

Keep It Honest

Many cases of stealing and cheating have been reported around the campus lately. It's hard to believe some of the things which have actually happened.

Many books have been disappearing. What is even worse is that tests, teachers manuals and teachers aids have also been taken. What makes some people stoop so low is sometimes hard to figure out.

With a mixture of different types of people, all with varied a backgrounds, etc. a little bit of everything can be expected. But why go to so much trouble to pass a course or make a buck. The honest ways are a great deal more rewarding even though they sometimes seem harder.

'March On Southern' To Be Underway Soon

The "March on Georgia Southern" will get underway approximately 100 years after another famous "March" was made. The purpose of this march will be not to destroy, but to "clean-up."

Phi Beta Lambda, business fraternity on campus, is planning to sponsor a "Clean-up campaign" here sometimes this quarter.

A unique idea will kick of this project. A parade of students will start at the front gate of the school and move around the campus including in and out of buildings and pick up all litter in their path.

In the near future all clubs on campus will receive letters asking all club officers and members to join in the march. The hopes of Phi Beta Lambda is that all the clubs and organizations on campus will respond to the letters in a grand fashion.

With the approval of this project by the Student Council it would seem to us that all officers of organizations will do their best to see that their group is represented in the parade.

As soon as the date has been set, posters will be made announcing and promoting this year's annual project of Phi Beta Lambda. Sonny Reeves has been announced as chairman of this project and committees are being appointed.

VI: Marx and "Class Struggles"

Karl Marx, the "father" of Communism, wrote in his book, 'The Communist Manifesto.' "The history of all human society, that is, all written history, past and present, has been the history of class struggles."

The earliest struggle took place in "Primitive Society" when there was contention over private ownership of rudimentary tools. Primitive society gave way to a "Slave Society" wherein the struggle involved slaves vs. masters.

From slave society emerged "Feudal Society" with its conflict involving the serfs vs. the landlords. As the landlords triumphed, "Capitalistic Society' surged forward with the inevitable struggle between the workers and the capitalists.

Marx foresaw a "Socialistic Society" emerging from this conflict, a society based upon his communistic theories concerning the common ownership of goods and of the means of production and of distribution. Under the "Dictatorship of the Proletariat (the Workers)," class struggle would end and peace and prosperity would follow. The final stage was to be in a period of perfect harmony when even the "state" would world-wide society (The In-

Betty Yeomans, Swainsboro "No. One reason I came to GSC was because there were no sororities. People tend to let them guide everything they do." Mary Wood, Macon - "No. It would draw the student body apart and there would be more competition between the organizations instead of more unity among the student body.

Jeanne Brown, Garfield - "I would be in favor of them. It gives students more opportunity to be closer to friends who would be more your type. There would be more campus spirit and more people would want to stav here.

"Red" Robinson, Savannah --Yes. Social fraternities will be a great improvement for this college. It would help the housing problem. It will help increase school spirit."

The Georgia Southern Masquers added another hit to their developing long string of successful productions with the presentation of James Thurber's The Male Animal last evening in McCroan Auditorium. The rather large opening night crowd expressed their approval of the artful production with laughter and applause. The Male Animal, though comedy, is not Thurberish. Those who admire Thurber for his narrations of the Wonderful O, Walter Mitty, and University Days type will, perhaps, be disappointed to see these qualities somewhat lacking in this play. It may be refreshing, however, for admirers of Thurber's narrations to see Thurber speak a serious theme powerfully. The climax to this play was so realistically and carefully developed that when Professor Tommy Turner (Frank Chew) spoke the lines "If we surrender to prejudices and ignorance now, we lose our freedom," inspiring absolute silence revealed the empathy of the audience.

Outstanding roles were played by Frank Chew, McAfee, Pauline Hagler, and Dr. Fielding Russell and the supporting work of the whole cast was quite creditable.

Play goers are perhaps happy to see Frank Chew playing the part of a nice fellow for once. He gives his usual masterful performance climaxing it with his powerful interpretation of the Vansetti letter. Masquer's fans may wonder

Georgia Southern will start all over this weekend with a clean slate in an effort for a winning season. With only four games to go this year, the Eagles' record stands all even at 11-11. However, those four games loom very large, and the chances for a winning season are not extremely favorable. Two of the games will be at home and two away, so the "home court" advantage is also all even.

PIKEVILLE SATURDAY

This Saturday night, the Bears of Pikeville College invade the Hanner Gymnasium. This will be the first and only meeting of the two teams this season, Pikeville, very strong last year, lost the services of talented Donnis Butcher when he signed a professional contract with the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Association. However, they are reputedly still strong, so the Eagles will have their work cut out for them.

BELMONT ABBEY HERE

The last home game of the season will be on February 17, when Belmont Abbey will make the long trek from North Carolina to Statesboro. In the last meeting of the teams, the Eagles were barely beaten, 64-63.

ON TO MACON

The Eagles will face another group of Bears on February 19, when they travel to Macon for a meeting with Mercer, a team they barely beat on a last-second bucket by Fran Florian earlier this season.

DOLPHINS LAST FOE

February 24, the Eagles will meet Jacksonville University in Jacksonville for the last home game of the regular season. The Dolphins will be out to avenge an earlier season spanking handed them by the Eagles here, 93-80. High-scoring Roger Strickland of the Dolphins should improve on his performance here, when he scored "only" 29 points.

A PREDICTION

For the record, here's a prediction from this corner on the four games: GSC should win three of the four, with the loss coming more than likely at Jacksonville. Although all of the games should be good ones, the Eagles' final season record will be 14-12.

Prospects Good

"The boys look better both on defense and offense," remarked Coach J. I. Clements Jr. when he returned from practice. With this optimistic note the 1962 session of practice for the Georgia Southern Eagles Baseball Team moved on its way.

This year's team will have 12 lettermen returning to the squad and some promising new blood Reporting out for practice are letter-winners Ed Brown and Larry Crouch, both sophomore pitchers; Clyde Miller, a senior pitcher; first baseman Charles Tarpley, a sophomore; utility infielder senior, Buzzy McMil-lan; Bill Griffin, a junior shortstop; catcher, Tommy Howland. junior: and outfielders Mike Keasler and Sandy Wells, both sophomores, along with Miller

Finley, a junior. Mike Keasler led the 1961 Eagles with a .354 batting av-erage. Ed Brown paced the team with a 5-3 (.625) record with a earned-runaverage of 2.11. Clyde Miller ended the season with a 2-0 record and a 2.76 earned-run-average. With a 2-1 record, Larry Crouch had a 2.48 earned-run-average on BILL PICKENS AND OGLETHORPE Morris Mitchell (34) play touch the ball as E. G. Meybchm the books. These three pitchers accounted for nine of the 15 Eagle victories. The loss of

Mike Keasler for the batting lead with a .354 through graduation has left a gap in the Eagle line-up. Coach Clements hopes that Pierce Blanchard

(last year's record 0-3) and newcomer Bernie Van Remmen will help strengthen the pitching for GSC. Other good prospects for this year are men like Denny Kline, third base; John Griffin, utility infielder; and Jack Raley, second base. This year marks the 17th year of baseball at GSC and the total record for the Eagles stands at 240 won and 166 lost. This includes last year's record of 15-11.
