Let's Turn The Tide Next Week

Next week the members of the freshman, sophomore, and junior classes and the student body as a whole will have a chance to nominate student council oficers and representatives. Will the usual few show up for these nominations or will we begin to all take part.

The student council nominating committee has already met to choose nominees for the officers to be filled. It does not or at least should not stop there. Next week the underclassmen will all be asked to name candidates for the positions of class representatives. Then on Wednesday the entire student body will meet to throw in additional nominations.

This is our chance to speak up and be heard. If we, the students, either do not agree with the student council's nominations or wish to nominate someone whom they have overlooked, we can do it at Wednesday's meeting.

If we fail to show and fail to speak up then we have no right

Next week will in a sense be our day of judging how we wish to be represented. If we don't speak up then we deserve to be trampled on next year and neglected too.

The GEORGE-ANNE is hoping to see a slate of candidates in the running who will be real leaders next year. The sooner we begin to nominate and elect students who will represent us in exactly the way we wish to be represented, the better off we will be.

If all goes well on capitol hill this spring, the United States government will give its official support - $25 million worth - to television as a tool for teaching. The bill which proposed this aid was introduced by Rep.

Kenneth Roberts of Alabama, and it was entirely fitting that such a measure was initiated in the South. For it was this region which pioneered in development, that has argued the pros and cons of financial support for the new teaching device. This year, if the Senate and House can get together in committee, federal support will become a reality. This support will spur growth of educational television in all regions of the country

Follows State Aid It is an interesting thing that in this case federal aid follows on the heels of earlier aid from state governments and from private supporters of educational television.

nah Morning News contained an article which should be of interest here at Georgia Southern. The article is actually a syndicated column written by Dr. Leslie J. Nason, professor education at the University of Southern California. Titled "Nason on Education" this particular column dealt with the topic 'Social Fraternities: To Join or Not To Join." Nason pointed out the fact that is a topic which is discussed many times over by parents, educators, and students.

Rightfully so, he also conceded that the whole question has TWO very good sides. Being students ourselves, we all know of others who have had to drop out of school because of too much time spent on social life in fraternities with not enough on studies. Yet, and as Nason went on, we also know those who joined fraternities and earned a name both academically and socially.

Choice Is Important According to Dr. Nason, the end result all depends on the fraternity you choose. Since many would like to see fraternities at Georgia Southern we must consider the same thing.

Tuesday's issue of the Savan- we wish to see here? We have of establishing fraternities and an advantage because at this stage of the game we could see to it that only the best would even be here to choose from. Nason listed these advantages of fraternities soscially; "they engender poise and confidence." But he noted that they vary in scholastic standards. He suggested that (and this does not necessarily pertain to our predicament) one especially scrutinize the seniors in a fraternity and choose one in which the seniors are the type one would wish to be himself

He pointed out also that individual fraternities keep about the same scholastic average each year. "In some the scholastic average always is high; in others it always is low." And those who join fall into the pattern of the line they choose He claims that a fraternity with high standards of conduct and scholarship provides that type of environment for new members while those which emphasize social life too much will continue to do so at the expense of scholastic standing.

Can Improve Grades

Along this same line Nason added that he has "seen students, under the influence of a strong scholastic fraternity lift their grades and seriously prepare for careers - with the extra bonus of fraternity friendships. With a committee now work-What kind of fraternities would ing to determine the feasability be accepted here.

sororities here we throw this into the ring. And we will add the characteristics of successful fraternities with which Dr. Nason concluded his article.

Characteristics Listed

These characteristics are: (1) Their pledges have high scholastic goals; aiming at "C" is not enough; (2) active members set an example of good scholarship for pledges. They make it plain that members are expected to be good students as well as good fellows; (3) Senior members take the time and effort to help pledges develop study skills and maintain hig grades. The secrets of good scholarship are passed from class to class; (4) The atmosphere is one of liking and respect for each other and the school; (5) Rewards and punishments are based on the behavior of the pledge, not the whim of the persons administering them. We have long been of the opinion that fraternities with standards such as these would be an asset to Georgia South ern. We already have too many mediocre organizations on campus and need no more. That is why in this matter we must work for the best.

If GSC's fact-finding committee comes up with a plan including some of these characteristics and some additional ones just as good there would be no reason why the plan could not

More Must Be Done

Already the middle of April is here. That leaves just one and onehalf months before graduation. How many seniors have taken care of all the necessary matters pertaining to commencement?

members of the senior class, not the administration, faculty, or class oficers. It is good that the entire student body, freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors take time to acquaint themselves with these and other duties which they may have.

For example, how many juniors realize that it is their duty to sponsor the "Old South Ball." Here again 'f class members of all the classes would acquaint themselves with their duties and responsibilities it would be much easier to get things done.

Communi...sm and You:

XII: What Can You Do About Communism?

For the past several weeks the series "Communism and You" has been printed in this paper. Perhaps you have read all parts of the series - perhaps only a portion. This series was prepared with one idea to stir a growing awareness of the gigantic battle being waged for the minds of men. Two adversaries face each other - the 'Free World" and the "Communist World." It is possible that the conflict is so vast that the individual may feel inadequate when he is asked the question, "What can you do

Last Saturday night brought to a close the second season of intercollegiate competition for the Georgia Southern gymnastics team. In these two seasons of competition in the field of gymnastics, the Eagles have emerged to become one of the top contenders in the Southland. With some top performers expected to return next year, the future looks bright for the Eagles at this point.

> The Eagle gymnasts owned a much better-than-average worksheet for the 1961-1962 campaign. They rolled to victory in the opener at Leesburg, Florida just prior to the Christmas holidays, defeating Florida State and other teams. In the home opener, the Eagles defeated David Lipscomb College, followed through with consecutive wins over The Citadel and the University of Georgia, and were nosed out by a strong Georgia Tech team in Atlanta by the slim margin of seven points. The Eagles then returned home for a second engagement with the Yellow Jackets, whipping the Engineers by a 64-50 count.

Tech encounter, and came home with victories over the horse vault and took second in free calisthenics. LSU Tigers and the Aggies of Texas A & M, while droping one to the University of Southwestern Louisiana, the latter being the only team to show superiority over the Eagles in a regular season meet.

EAGLES' RECORD 7-2

The Eagles, after their trip to the Southwest, rested and began preparing for the 11th annual SIGL championships, which were held here on March 24. The Eagles came in third in this meet which fielded some of the South's finest gymnastics teams. GSC performed without the services of their captain, Sam Andrews, who was ruled ineligible due to academic deficiency. This and the elimination of the high-bar hindered the Eagles' chances of winning the meet. Favored Florida State won the meet with Georgia Tech finishing second and the Eagles third.

In the U.S.A. Invitational last week, the Eagles came in second behind Florida State; they finished with a total of 30% points, and the Seminoles ended up with 72. Two of the main factors holding the Eagles' score 72. An anonymous observer, who happened to be peering through a window on the second floor of the Herty Building that night, gave this eye-witness account:

"I was standing in a room in the Herty Building, looking toward the student center. One of the ham radio operators was working in the radio shack. The transmitter wasn't in use. By and by, two girls came walking from the student center toward Within ten or twelve days between 200 and 300 students will take part in an attitude survey to gain information on the social and schclastic interests of college people, according to Ira-Dent, coordinator of the project. These students are being selected at random from the regis tration cards of the students by a process based on statistics. Cuestionnaires will be given to the students participating in this

There will be two types of questionnaires used, according to Dent. Both a professional and non-professional standardized sheet will be used. Also on the committee working on the attitude survey is Mrs. Jolane Rawl Guske, Max Sumner, and Cecil Martin.

Dent said this project is an outgrowth of the statistics class The results of this survey will be beneficial to the college since is completely based on statistics.
