'Te Deum' Highlights Fine Arts Open House

Open house in the Foy Fine Arts Building will be held Sunday, Nov. 5 from 2 until 5 p.m. Art and music majors will act as hosts for the occasion.

At 4 p.m. There will be a repeat performance of "Te Deum" which will be conducted by Dr. Halsey Stephens. "Te Deum" will be performed by the Southern Singers, organ, brass choir and tympani. Stephens was commissioned by the University System Board of Regents to compose the work. Stephens is the head of composition at the University of Southern California at Los Angeles.

Small instrumental ensembles from the music division will provide entertainment throughout the afternoon.

The music division, on the first and second floors, is equipped with practice rooms, a band room, class rooms, faculty offices, a listening room and a recital hall, which will be open for inspection by the public.

The art division, on the third and fourth floors, will exhibit the art laboratories, faculty offices, the art gallery, and class rooms.

The public is invited to attend.

Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity will sponsor a dance featuring "The Bushmen", Friday, Nov. 3 from 8-12 p.m. at the National Guard Armory. Tickets are $1.50 in advance and at the door.

New Science Building Features Four Labs

Details concerning the soon-to-be-constructed Science Building have been released by Dr. John Boole Jr., chairman of the division of math and sciences.

The new building is to be constructed directly across from the Herty Building on Georgia Ave. According to Dr. Boole, "I anticipate that, when the ground breaking ceremonies are held, the building would be completed in about two years. We expect the ceremonies to be held sometime between December and February." Cost of the building is an approximated $1,300,000.

The building will have three front entrances and will be comprised of two floors. The first floor will house four major freshman laboratories, a green house, an office complex, an animal room, an electron microscope lab, and an amphitheater lecture room with a seating capacity of 286. The lecture room will include both floors. The second floor will house four advanced laboratories, an office research area, an office complex, a plant room, large storage room, a projection room, and two small lecture rooms with a capacity of 100 persons each.

The new science building will cover an area of 45,639 square feet. Architect for the building is Edwin C. Eckles of Statesboro.

Women Elect Joan Jordan First President of WSGA

Joan Jordan was elected president of the new WSGA in an election held Thursday, Oct. 26, in the Frank I. Williams Center, with 29 percent of the undergraduate women casting votes.

Miss Jordan is a senior English major from Atlanta.

The first and second vice president are respectively: Sally Harvard, a junior English major from Savannah, and Paula Goggins, a sophomore elementary education major from Thomasville.

Sue Marie Pitts, a sophomore math major from Ashburn is the secretary.

Results of the Oct. 26 election were:

President: Joan Jordan 331, Elaine Carswell 290.

First vice president: Sally Harvard 429, Dinah Tucker 189.

Second vice president: Paula Goggins 357, David Smith 265.

Secretary: Sue Marie Pitts 332, Janelle Hudson 277.

"Winburn Tall led the women's voting with 56 percent of the dorm enrollment voting," according to Hoyt Canady, administrative assistant.

"The students elected four outstanding officers and I am very pleased with the leadership shown by all the girls in the election," commented Dean Virginia Boger.

CEEB Tests

Set For Nov. 14

All "rising juniors," students with 80-100 quarter hours, are requested to participate in an achievement testing program covering materials in general education, which is directed by Dr. Ralph K. Tyson, dean of students, and his professional staff.

The test will be administered in McCroan Auditorium at 8 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 14. A make-up test will be given Saturday, Nov. 18. A list of students who are to take the tests will be given to divisional chairmen and students will be excused from class Nov. 14.

General education is the courses that are required for graduation, excluding major courses and electives.

The general examinations provide a comprehensive measure of undergraduate achievement in the five basic areas of liberal arts. They assess the fundamental facts and concepts of the student, not advanced training in any area.

Participation in this program will provide students with a copy of test scores and informative data to give comparisons with students of the same classification at other institutions. Students will be involved in a state-wide program to establish norms for evaluating the "new core curriculum" recently established in the institutions of the University of Georgia.

The college will use the results for research purposes.

College Entrance Examination Board will provide tests, answer sheets, scoring, and score reports at no cost to the student. Test results will become a part of a student's permanent record.

Letters have been sent to all students who have completed 80-100 quarter hours, exclusive of military science and physical education activity courses advising them about testing procedures.

Opening Night Ends Tribulations Of 'A Servant Of Two Masters'

By DR. DAVID RUFFIN
Guest Columnist

Because Masquers' fall comedy entitled "SERVANT OF TWO MASTERS" is playing November 8-10, this review had to be breech-born before dress rehearsal (otherwise, stale news). To see a play midwifed is beautiful: incomplete stage set and costumes, no make-up, dusty stage, unpredictable lighting and curtains, lonely footfalls which sound too loud until opening night. Then, even more exciting is to hear young actors (who are still muffing a few lines) do their best with no advantage except characterization, diction, projection, and showmanship. Yet, that is what makes a play the thing.

Tonight "SERVANT OF TWO MASTERS" and the play's eleven characters projected that something which promises no breech, but rather a happy advent.

Miss Hazel Hall (Masquers' advisor) works neatly. She is friendly and dignified; she gives unresented orders and accepts suggestions; she maintains discipline and yet preserves all the spirit of comradeship. These capabilities are the what-it-takes to be a good actor-coach.

All students in the play can not be listed here; however, they are doing a fine performance as of tonight (though still a diamond in the rough). Some of the difficulties are acoustics and lighting; and surely, these problems can not be blamed on the actors.

Please come to see the play. You will enjoy it. The date is November 8-9 in McCroan Auditorium. Single tickets are one dollar, and curtain time is a quarter past eight. Season tickets are two-fifty; they might be fun, too — after all, how much can you do with that remaining fifty cents?

If you have not met Miss Hall, do so — and meet the cast of the play. To try to please an audience and have nobody come backstage after the play and say, "You were good," (whether that be true or false) is quite lonely work. Also, remember that the members of the cast have been working together for many weeks, have accomplished communal friendships, and feel a separation after the final curtain-call.

Masquers Work Hard Trying to 'Break A Leg'

From the deep dark passages of McCroan comes the cry of the Masquer's actor, "Has anyone seen my sword?" Any night during the week one may find a small, but dedicated group of students working long hours to provide the campus with an entertaining play. Swords, beards, and Renaissance costumes characterize the work of the actors as they rehearse the sixteenth-century comedy.

Have you ever tried to be in two places at once? This is the problem Truffaldino faces in the Masquers' fall production, "Servant of Two Masters." Truffaldino is a shrewd knave who seizes upon the opportunity to serve two masters in order to receive double wages. The fact that neither master is aware of his servant's dual role complicates matters for Truffaldino. He must continually try to please both masters, which demands a lot of time and leg work. He often becomes confused as to which master ordered what item.

Poor Truffaldino's life is further complicated by the fact that he can't marry his girl until he is free of one of his jobs. Semeraldina is a maid who is dying to get married, and she fancies that Truffaldino is the man for her.

Two sets of lovers also aid the plot. Clarice and Silvio are the classic Romeo-Juliet type of lovers; she is the sweet young innocent, and he is the hot-headed lover. They are the only serious characters in the play.

The other set of lovers, Beatrice and Florindo, are the two masters for whom Truffaldino works. Beatrice disguises herself as a man through parts of the play so that she may search for the missing Florindo.

The delightful play contains everything from a slapstick chase to an attempted suicide, fights, beatings and singing.

A group of students has been working since the end of September to present this play. The Masquers rehearse late at nights Monday through Friday and all day Saturday. The small group of actors have had to face many obstacles in preparation for opening night. One role had to be re-cast three times; the leading man was almost drafted; swords were broken in dueling scenes. In spite of these difficulties, "Servant of two masters" will open on November 8 for a three night run.

The play stars Lee Hunter as Truffaldino. Dot Bennett portrays Semeraldina. Sue Sims plays the innocent Clarice, and Bill Bishop is Silvio, Clarice's lover. The other set of lovers, Beatrice and Florindo, are portrayed by Jan Smith and Gil Hargett, respectively. Dr. Lombardi, Silvio's father, is played by Alan Milton. Clarice's father is Pantalone, portrayed by Greg Premo. Others in the cast are Jim Schuyler as Brighella; and Durwood Fincher and David McArthur as two zanies, or servants.

Miss Hazel Hall, advisor for Masquers and director of the play, commented on the vast amount of time and effort that has gone into the production. Others who have given help, according to Miss Hall, are Ulysee Mosley, assistant director; Sonny Bartlett, set designer; Earl Marsh, stage manager; Mini Flint, prop manager. Miss Marge Thomas, speech instructor, is in charge of lights.

The Masquers have worked long hours committing the script to memory, rehearsing the lines over and over for proper effect and creating costumes. Others will receive the benefit of witnessing the results of that work November 8-10. As cast members make their stage entrances, they will hear the traditional good luck wish "break a leg." Then the finished production will entertain its audience and reward its cast.

Beatrice (Jan Smith) and Silvio (Bill Bishop) engage in the sixteenth century art of fencing.

PERCY SLEDGE TO APPEAR HERE

Percy Sledge will appear here Nov. 10 from 8 p.m. until midnight at the National Guard Armory, sponsored by Sigma Epsilon Chi. He has made numerous recordings, some which are "When A Man Loves A Woman," and "Out of Left Field." Admission to the dance is $2.00 in advance and $2.50 at the door.

Alpha To Omega

Gamma Sigma Upsilon

Gamma Sigma Upsilon has planned a day's activities for the junior and senior visitors participating in the annual Gamma Sigma Upsilon Junior Senior Day, Nov. 11.

The activities include a forum by several speakers who will discuss possible college expectations and the various phases of college life, tours of the campus and the various departments, and a barbecue at the noon meal.

Gamma Sigma Upsilon sisters will serve as tour guides, help with registration and operate an information booth.

Theta Pi Omega

Theta Pi Omega service sorority is continuing another year of sponsorship for its orphan, Shirley Mouse. Miss Mouse is sponsored through the Christian Children's fund and has been a favorite project of the sorority for several years.

Dean, Two Students Attend WSGA Meet

Judy Jones and Linda Hiers represented the college at the first convention of the Women's Student Government Association of Georgia at the University of Georgia last week.

They accompanied Dean Virginia Boger who attended the Conference of Georgia's Women Deans and Counselors, at the Center for Continuing Education in Athens.

The main topics of the W.S.G.A. Convention and the Deans' Conference were the problems of lack of communication between the governing bodies of the schools and the students.

Two women representatives from almost every coeducational college in Georgia met to discuss activities and problems concerning W.S.G.A.

The women divided into discussion groups to compare and discuss women's regulations in various schools. "G.S.C. compared favorably with all the schools and better than most on the sponsored by W.S.G.A. of other colleges," said Linda Hiers. "W.S.G.A. functions as more than two governing councils by sponsoring projects such as volunteer duty at the college infirmary, bridge tournaments, child day care centers, lectures, and various other activities."

W.S.G.A. Conventions will be held annually with tentative plans for meeting each quarter. Two representatives from each school will attend the conventions which will be held at different colleges.

"We hope to invite the W.S.G.A. Convention to the college in the near future," according to Miss Jones.

THERE'S A KIND OF A HUSH

Our ears have been given a rest in the past week due to the absence of simultaneous bell ringing usually heard on campus. One wonders, however, if this blessed silence is not over shadowed by the astoundingly degenerative effect that it may have on ones mind.

"How early did we get out of second period? Maybe we didn't get out early at all. Sure wish I had my watch. I'll bet we got out late and now I'm late for my third period class. That's why there's no one around. They're already in third period. I'm late. That's not my class in that room. I knew I wasn't late."

Teachers and students alike are being perpetually perturbed at the absence of class bells sounding the beginning, and most important, the ending of a class.

It is not known why the bells do not ring. It surely would be a welcome sound to hear them ringing again, though.

STURDY AS AN ACHE

McCroan Auditorium has for many years been this college's best example of a disaster area. With the passing of each year, comes the increasing danger that someone may be injured or even killed while either performing or attending one of the many programs held there.

Several years ago, a reception was held on stage for a certain performer who had appeared here. One of the curtains fell, along with its supporting beam. Luckily for all attending, the curtain and its support crashed to the stage between two groups of people, injuring no one.

Since no one was hurt, not much was said about the incident and even less was done about it. Consequently, the auditorium remains in the same precariously constructed condition it has always been in.

Immediately following the incident of the curtain falling, the situation was supposedly remedied by hanging the curtains from the rafters with chains.

Now there isn't much chance that the curtains will fall; now, instead of the curtains falling, the added weight would bring down rafters, beams, chains and curtains. A few of the curtains are still "safe" however. They remain secured with ropes, some which appear a little less than strong.

During a performance, another trait of the McCroan Auditorium is in evidence. As one enters the auditorium the squeaking floor can be heard over every other annoying disturbance.

If the defects are corrected soon, an accident may be averted; if not, the damage which may occur could be uncorrectable.

THERE'S NO BUSINESS LIKE . .

Each year, a small group of students band together into an organization which devotes its time to the unselfish entertainment of this college's students. This group is the Masquers.

Many always look forward to the Masquers production each quarter. More memorable productions have been "West Side Story," "South Pacific," and "Panteglaize."

Many do not realize the dedication which the Masquers must have in order to work into the wee hours of the morning designing sets and memorizing lines.

All of the productions performed by the group could not have been possible without their leadership and talent.

We would like to thank the Masquers for their continuous endeavors to provide this college with good entertainment.

Isolated College Students Face World Unprepared

By ELAINE THOMAS
Editor

He considered himself a very informed student. He read "Time," "Newsweek" and other magazines. He paid special attention to the articles concerning Viet Nam and the draft. A lot of his friends were in Viet Nam, and they wrote letters about the war. The war in Vietnam should be ended, he felt, yet he did not think the United States should withdraw its troops. Neither did he advocate escalation.

He had heard about the war until he was tired of it; he was even tired of politics. He just knew that he hoped something would happen before it was his time to be drafted. He had a duty to his country, sure; but he still dreaded it.

And he had more important things to worry about. He was faced with tests and term papers, and he couldn't decide whether or not to pledge a fraternity.

He was facing many pressures which plague students. He was aware of the hippies, the demonstrations and the pill controversy, and he was part of the generation which would be remembered for these things. He didn't agree with marches or sit-ins, but he didn't have a solution, either. Just one person wouldn't make that much difference, he thought. So he pushed the depressing worries out of his mind. He had enough to think about, anyway.

He read his magazines, went to classes and dated. His days were filled with worrying about tests, doing reports and being with friends. He read about issues in the newspaper, but felt withdrawn from wars, riots and rocket launchings. These were the things he read about; he was never directly involved with them, he thought.

He was content to be one of the gang and to really make the most of his college years. This was understandable. He allowed himself to become a product of his surroundings.

It was too late when he realized that he had become a stereotype. For four years he had been satisfied with thinking on the surface, never wondering what would really become of him. He knew that he could have never spent four years with his head buried in books, worrying about a war he didn't understand or trying to devise ways to save the world from suffering. No one could have done that. But he had let his being a student isolate him from the rest of the world. He had a great time in college, then he went out to face the world.

Student Congress Reveals Findings of Investigations

By LARRY DUNCAN

Student Congress President

This year, Student Congress members are investigating areas of discussion on campus. The following are some of the reports:

In an interview Dr. Henderson stated that the Alumni Gym is being used for limited classroom activities only, and will probably be torn down at the end of the year. A temporary classroom building will replace the gym.

Mrs. Louise Screws, coordinator of housing stated that the Housing Committee will discuss placing a question about whether or not a student smokes on housing applications.

In May, Congress will elect five students to participate in allotment of the Student Activity Fee, according to Dr. Henderson. Last year three students participated in the allotment.

The book exchange board is being fixed so that students will have the opportunity to buy, sell or trade books.

Comptroller William Dewberry was questioned about the Campus Security budget. He told that money from fines and car registration goes into a budget for paving, curbing, signs and office supplies.

Students who have been assigned to various committees of Student Congress include:

STUDENT ACTIVITY COMMITTEE: Ron Rabun, Mary Jo Hall.

STUDENT UNION BOARD: Eddie Bateman, Jan Printup, Don Cummings, Terri Tillman, Lee Anna Hayes, Bill Cochran, Lauren Lane, and one to be chosen by the Board.

LECTURE SERIES COMMITTEE: Francis Barclay, Judy Stevens, Nancy Douglas, Tim O'Leary, Cynthia Hilliard, Beverly Carlson, Joan Jordan, Sammy Prince.

RELIGIOUS ACTIVITIES COMMITTEE: Joe Brannen, Nancy Flynt, Pete Brannen, Bob Henry, Gail Callaway, Dave Parker, Miriam Carruth, Jimmy Pitts.

Only through student involvement will Student Congress be able to implement any worthwhile changes. Students create this school; students should not let the school create them.

Congress Names Advisory Board

Student Congress has established an Advisory Committee in efforts to increase the activities on Congress within its prescribed sphere of operation and general efficiency, according to Sandra Hartness, communications coordinator.

The function of the committee is as follows: (1) consider ideas and new programs submitted by students or faculty members that Student Congress might initiate or promote; (2) collect pertinent data pertaining to the subject; (3) submit a recommendation or report to the Executive Committee and subsequently Student Congress.

Serving on the committee are: Joe McDaniel, chairman; Connie Dodgen, Sandra Hartness and Ron O. Strickland. James Williams was appointed as the member-at-large representative.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I would like to request that you inform your readers that right turns on red traffic lights are not legal in Statesboro. I am making this request after several near misses while turning from 67 south onto Herty Drive. Although the left turn signal there gave me right of way, I have no desire to be dead right.

Sincerely yours,
H. S. Hanson
Associate Professor of Geology

Dear Editor,

I would like to make a couple of observations known. The first thing I would like to mention is the attitude which prevailed during Twirp Week. I'm sure that most people noticed that last week was Twirp Week.

The way they noticed was that Twirp Week was mentioned in the "George-Anne." You sure couldn't tell it from the attitude of the students. I would blame this attitude on a lack of enthusiasm in the people who sponsored the week. For instance, the planned activities were sent out on a mimeographed sheet to be posted on a bulletin board. Last year, I understand, posters with the same information were sent out where people could see them. This is just an example of how Twirp Week was organized and run.

Another observation, is that I never want to hear another girl "gripe" about not having dates on this campus. In terms of the campus vernacular, "you had your chance and you blew it, baby."

Going back to the idea of Twirp Week enthusiasm, the reason we are losing tradition is that there is no enthusiasm from the responsible students on campus. Don't get me wrong now, I know there are people who want to bring back the Lantern Walk and the other beautiful traditions (like Rat Day) that are slowly dying out on this campus, but what are they doing about it?

Sincerely yours,
Gary Martin

FLU SHOTS

To date there have been 396 flu shots given to students according to Health Cottage officials.

Flu shots will continue to be available to students from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday until November 10th.

TIME

The longest word in the language?

By letter count, the longest word may be pneumonoultramicroscopicsilicovolcanoconiosis, a rare lung disease. You won't find it in Webster's New World Dictionary, College Edition. But you will find more useful information about words than in any other desk dictionary.

Take the word time. In addition to its derivation and an illustration showing U.S. time zones, you'll find 48 clear definitions of the different meanings of time and 27 idiomatic uses, such as time of one's life. In sum, everything you want to know about time.

This dictionary is approved and used by more than 1000 colleges and universities. Isn't it time you owned one? Only $5.95 for 1760 pages; $6.95 thumb-indexed.

On The Rebound

By DAN STILES, Assistant Sports Editor

I saw him cross the street and head for the Hanner Gym, but his attention must have been averted by the sounds coming from the athletic field. Anyway he turned, raised his head, and squinted his eyes in that direction.

He must not have been satisfied by what he saw, because he crawled over the fence and started tramping through the heavy sand toward the field. He thought that it might be a high school football game between two rivals, but he noticed that there were no grandstands.

Instead, he saw large numbers of students sitting on the ground, girls holding on to their boy-friends - peeping around their shoulders and jumping up and down.

Something Important

"It must be something important or all these students wouldn't be here", he said to himself.

At last he saw. It was a football game - an intramural game. He was disappointed because he didn't like football at all, but he stayed and watched a while. Those boys out there surely were rough! They weren't allowed to tackle, but they hit hard anyway. He was impressed with the spirit and support these boys were getting.

After he had watched a while, he turned around and started walking back toward the gym, and he was thinking.

"I really think a lot of the intramural program here at Southern. I can't believe that there is so much participation. But I wonder about those students who don't like football? Oh, I guess there's basketball and softball. And a few minor sports like tennis, badminton and swimming that are included in the program.

Coach Exley

And what's that guy's name? Uhh . . . Coach Exley, I think. Yeah, that's his name. He's sure doing a fine job with the program. He knows how to get people interested. But I guess no matter what he does, there will be people like me who don't participate.

Maybe - just maybe - if he would have this great big contest or something, he could get even more students interested. Perhaps he could set up this contest which included about 15 different events, and the student who scored the highest total points would be declared winner. Give this winner a title . . . maybe Mr. Athlete of GSC. Oh yes, there could be a Miss Athlete of GSC, too. To take it a step further, they could be crowned King and Queen at the Homecoming Game.

Boy! would that make the students take interest. What kind of events could be included, I wonder? Well if they let me pick 'em, I'd probably choose a 2-mile run around the campus, a football punt for distance, a free-throw shooting. Maybe even an agility-obstacle course for time, maybe uh . . . I don't know, but I'm sure there could be a list of events that would test fairly an overall athletic ability.

I think that all the students in the school should be able to compete - even the basketball players and all lettermen. A Mr. and Miss. Athlete of Georgia Southern might really add more excitement to the intramural program here. But who am I to say? I'll just let somebody else think of ideas. They probably wouldn't like mine anyway.

This boy crawled back over the fence and then took off his loafers to get the sand out of them. He was walking right pass me and I started to nod hello, but he had this "my-mind's - not - here - I'm - thinking - of - something - else - far - away" expression on his face so I didn't nod.

Ballplayers Are Different Says Radovich; Teamwork Is Secret

By TIM O'LEARY
G-A Sports Writer

Coach Frank Radovich has a pretty good idea what will make his team go. He is thinking constantly about different situations which may come up among his ball players and how he is to handle them efficiently.

"You know as well as I that some ball players have to be handled differently than others. In the case of some, it is best to be strict; for others, you have to be praiseworthy," said Radovich.

This same optimism about the team development is evident when Coach Radovich commented: "The boys have been working real hard as a unit. They pull for one another constantly which can easily make the difference between failure and success."

"ANKLES"

When discussing comical aspects of the game one can hardly overlook the antics of John "ankles" Helm. "Ankles" who never needs foot taping for some odd reasons, is a 6-2 junior from Washington, Ind. For the Washington High School Hatchets, John was a stand-out guard averaging well over fifteen points per game in his final year.

People got a chance to see his famous running one-handed jump shot when he performed for the Baby Eagles in 1965-66. The following year, they saw "Ankles" snake his way down the court on a fast break, stop at the free throw line, shake the ball a few times to see if anything was in it, and then throw it up for two more points.

Probably two of John's greatest thrills last season was when he blocked a jump-shot by Jimmy Rose during a practice session, and when he came in for Rose during a home basketball game and quickly scored four points.

"I worked in an Egyptian coal mine this summer which didn't allow any time for any extensive ball playing. Time was all mine," he commented.

"THE HAMMER"

Marvin "The Hammer" Stevens is a 6-3 freshman from Springfield, Ga. At Springfield Central High School, he was a jack-of-all-trades as he lettered in football, track, baseball, and his first love, basketball.

In the state tournament last year on the road to gaining the GIA championship, Marvin was the individual standout who was looked to for individual leadership. In two of the ball games, he scored 38 and 49 points.

"My best game was when I scored 38 points against College Park from Atlanta because I felt that I could do no wrong in any respect that night," he said.

During regular season, Captain Stevens led the pace as well with a remarkable 29.5 point average.

When asked what type of game he liked to play, he commented: "I like to play a winning ball game principally because you can't run in everybody such as a team like Beach High whereas you can with others."

He isn't afraid to bring the ball to the basket and can mix it up under the boards with the best of them. Marvin is a comical fellow who enjoys ribbing fellow team-mates Roger Moore and Eugene Brown constantly about their basketball prowess.

Mosston to Speak Nov. 11; Southern Is Host for GSLC

Muska Mosston, a noted controversial leader in physical education, will be the keynote speaker for the Georgia Student Leader's Conference to be held here Saturday, Nov. 11. Mosston will speak during the morning session of the conference.

Mosston will conduct a clinic in the afternoon for the benefit of all those attending. Physical education and recreation majors from around the state will converge on Southern for the conference. According to Dr. Douglas Leaivtt, physical all physical education and recreation majors are expected to attend all activities of the conference.

Dobson Elected

S-Club Prexy;

Kirkland Is VP

Jimmy Dobson, a senior physics major from Warner Robins, was elected president of the S-Club in its initial meeting Oct. 16.

Other officers elected were Jimmy Kirkland, vice-president; Tim O'Leary, secretary, and Denny Davis treasurer.

According to Dobson persons who recently lettered were to be sent final invitations for membership by the middle of this week and it was decided that S-Club members would take as their project ushering at home basketball games.

Committee chairmen were appointed for the upcoming programs this year. Kirkland was appointed as chairman to investigate activities for the S-Club representation during Homecoming; Allen Simmons, head-usher at basketball games and Tom King, projects chairman.

A final topic discussed was whether or not high school letter jackets should be worn on campus. No decision was made, but Dobson remarked and gymnastics Coach Pat Yeager said about it: "Those students who represent GSC in intercollegiate sports and are good enough to earn a letter in their sport should not have to be confused with weaker athletes who earned a letter in high school."

MARIE WARD FIGHTS FOR CONTROL
In Tigers' 18-13 Win Over Mustangs

Hurst Scores Five

Tigers Win Playoffs

By LINDA JORDAN
G-A Sports Writer

The Orange and Black celebrated Halloween in style. The Tigers took the WIA speedball championship Tuesday afternoon by defeating the Mustangs' 18-13 as Mary Hurst caught five touchdown passes and a strong defense held off a last quarter rally by the Mustangs.

The Mustangs' and Tigers' tight, alert defenses kept the game scoreless for several minutes. Dropkicks were blocked and many touchdowns were batted away. The Tigers finally broke the ice with a well-timed touchdown pass from Sandra Ray to Ginny Sutton.

The Mustangs struck back throughout the game with a field goal and drop kick by Brenda Smith, and two touchdowns by Micki Williams. But the Tigers' fast-breaking offensive line could not be stopped.

After a highly competitive two-week tournament, the standings are as follows: first place, Tigers; second, Mustangs; third, Yellow Jackets; fourth, Panthers.

Weak Infield?

Fall Baseball Drills Termed As 'Satisfactory'; Pitching Is Strong

By MIKE CLARK
G-A Sports Writer

Fall baseball practice ended October 27 and according to Coach J. I. Clements, "it was satisfactory. Our strong point will be our pitching." From the fall practice Coach Clements was able to view the possible weaknesses of the team and also its strong points. "Our weaknesses will be in the infield and outfield and our hitting as of right now is a question mark," he added.

WELL PLEASED

Coach Clements was well pleased with his pitchers, especially with veterans Allen Simmons, Tim O'Leary and Jim Dobson. "These three boys will be heavily depended when the baseball season gets under-way," the veteran coach commented.

Asked about the outlook for the coming season Coach Clements said, "It is hard to say. We do not know who will be coming out after Christmas. There may be a few boys who can help us who did not come out for fall practice because of schedule difficulty."

TOUGH COMPARISON

Coach Clements stated that it would be hard to compare last year's team with the 1968 squad. "Last year at this time we knew that we would have Jim Nevin, Rick Ward, Butch Davis, Vic Correll and Ken Szotkiewicz coming back. All of these are gone except Szotkiewicz and we do not know for sure if he will be back or not."

According to Clements, Szotkiewicz has a very good chance of signing a pro contract when the major leagues hold their Winter draft. Commenting further about Ken, he said, "Szotkiewicz would help us tremendously on both offense and defense."

"We did a poor job recruiting and this will be a problem for us to overcome," the head mentor said. "If everything falls into place and a few of our boys play ball, plus our strong pitching staff, we could have a good season," Clements concluded.

Dorman Claims

Initial Victory

In I-M Action

Dorman Hall defeated Sanford Hall 19-6 for their first victory of the intramural season and Phi Epsilon Kappa lost by forfeit due to an ineligible player.

Sigma Epsilon Chi then handed PKE another set back that virtually eliminated them from the race. DPA stayed in first place as they cut down APO.

A double elimination tournament will begin next week with the top four teams from each league entered. The first four from the National League are DPA, APO, PKE, and Sigma Epsilon Chi.

As the George-Anne went to press, the Blue Ribbons met the Hawks Thursday to determine the fourth team from the American League. The three teams already in the tourney are the Rebels, Unknowns and the Rhodents.

Favorites for the tournament are KPA, and the Unknowns. The Rebels, Sigma Epsilon Chi and APO rate as darkhorses.

"Both the American and National League's regular season was one of the best that the intramural football program has ever had," said intramural's director Charles Exley.

EXPLANATION — The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 30.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.
