To succeed retiring Dr. Zach S. Henderson

Regents Name Dr. Eidson To Succeed Dr. Henderson

Dr. John O. Eidson, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Georgia since 1957, has been named president of the college by the Board of Regents, effective June, 1968. Dr. Eidson will replace Dr. Zach S. Henderson.

Dr. Eidson was born in Johnston, South Carolina, December 10, 1908. He received the Bachelor of Arts degree from Wofford College, the Master of Arts degree from Vanderbilt University, and the Doctor of Philosophy degree from Duke University.

The Georgia educator has been a faculty member of the University of Georgia for the past 31 years, during which time he was on leave for four years to serve in the Army during World War II. He has been professor of English since 1950 and has been dean of the College of Arts and Sciences since 1957.

Prior to joining the University faculty in 1936, Dr. Eidson taught English in the High Point, North Carolina high school and was a Fellow in English at Duke University. He was awarded an honorary Doctor of Literature degree by Wofford College in 1954.

The newly-named president was editor of the "Georgia Review," a quarterly literary magazine, from 1950 to 1957; he is presently a member of the editorial board of the publication. He is author of "Tennyson in America," of two other books, and of approximately 30 other publications in the field of Eng-

"The Roar Of The Greasepaint" To Open Winter CLES Jan. 16

"The Roar of the Greasepaint, The Smell of the Crowd," an Anthony - Newly - Leslie Briscusse musical, will open the Campus Life Enrichment Series for winter quarter Tuesday, Jan. 16, in McCroan Auditorium at 8 p.m.

"Roar of the Greasepaint" is concerned with a simplified statement of the class war - the rich versus the poor, and the strong versus the weak. The broadly entertaining musical features Edward Earle as "Cocky," the underdog. "Cocky" is bullied by "Sir," who represents the establishment. David C. Jones portrays "Sir." The action of the play depicts trials that every underdog is forced to suffer; "Sir" and "Cocky" play the game of life while a chorus of ragged urchins romp about them.

The award-winning score of "Roar of the Greasepaint, Smell of the Crowd" includes familiar tunes as "Who Can I Turn To?," "The Joker," "Nothing Can Stop Me Now," "A Wonderful Day Like Today," and "Things to Remember."

Considered one of the few American actors capable of performing the role of "Cocky," Edward Earle made his theatrical debut at the age of three in Laurel and Hardy's "Babes in Toyland." After receiving his degree from the University of Southern California, Earle taught acting and directing at the Pasadena Playhouse

Dr. Zach S. Henderson, president of Georgia Southern College since 1948, has been named President Emeritus of Georgia Southern College by the University System Board of Regents.

At the time of the announcement, the Regents adopted a resolution of appreciation for Dr. Henderson's long years of service to Georgia Southern and to Georgia education.

Total Enrollment Reaches 4180

Total enrollment for winter quarter reached 4180 students, according to Lloyd Joyner, Registrar.

The total number of men registered this quarter is 2007. There are 588 freshmen, 425 sophomores, 515 juniors and 366 seniors. Male graduates and special students comprise the remaining 113.

The total number of women registered this quarter is 2173. There are 808 freshmen, 488 sophomores, 467 juniors and 305 seniors. Female graduates and special students number 105.

Compared to last quarter's total registration of 4407, the present figure of 4180 shows a decrease of 327 students. The present figure surpasses final enrollment figures of winter quarter 1967.

"I believe," said Joyner, "that the system of pre-registration will be continued next quarter, but with some modifications."

New Bookstore Designed To Serve

New Facility Meets Students' Many Needs

A new self-service bookstore designed with the student in mind was opened to serve students, faculty, and staff Wednesday, Jan. 3, in the Blanche Landrum Center.

Students wandered to the Ga. Southern Bookstore, which is directed by Paul Barrett, after Wednesday registration to obtain books, supplies, and various personal items.

According to Barrett, the facets of the store are designed to meet the students' needs. The new store features a complete stock of textbooks, trade books and paperback editions, art and educational supplies, and study aids. One full line of name-brand cosmetics, all fraternity and sorority costume jewelry, and small and medium sized health products enable the student to purchase personal items. Of interest to many students is the record collection containing about 8,000 albums, either on hand or ordered upon request.

The store is separated into departments. The four main sections are textbooks, paperbacks including vocational and trade books, supplies, and specialty items. Ideal conditions, if developed, will maintain a specialist as head of each section. Permanent employees and student workers will be available to aid customers in selection and location of merchandise. If the desired merchandise is not in stock, the personnel will order the item.

Equipped with merchandise to meet the necessities of students, the store is also actually owned and operated by the student. Money spent in the store remains at the college, as personnel salary is paid by the state. No discounts are allowed; merchandise is priced without mark-up. Sales prior to holidays will feature gift items for all occasions as well as trade books and art books.

A buy-back policy on all books will be set up in the store, and the check-cashing policy will be as usual on campus—checks must be made out to Georgia Southern College.

The tentative schedule of business hours is set up for the student. If a change in the hours seems necessary, an attempt will be made to meet the demand for different hours. Plans now are for the store to be open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Friday; and 9 a.m. to noon, Saturday.

In order to better serve the student, faculty, and staff, additional facilities are provided by the new store. The spacious new center, according to employees, "seems quite different from the old one." Piped-in music is played throughout the building and announcements can be made in numerous areas of the Landrum Center. Vending machines will extend across the front of the building.

Students are encouraged "to browse through the store at any time," said Barrett.

BOOKSTORE HAS JUST OPENED

Employees Label Books, Stay Busy

Merchandise in the store is clearly labeled to enable students to find products quickly and easily. A color scheme indicates merchandise. New books are marked with white labels; used books are marked by pink; trade books and paperback editions are labeled by blue; yellow labels denote supplies; and green labels denote specialty items.

No books or personal possessions may be taken into the store. Coin return lockers are provided to protect valuables while students are inside the bookstore. One can deposit a quarter in the locker, place possessions inside, and take the key from the locker. Upon returning to the locker, one inserts the key, takes out his books, and the coin is returned immediately. These lockers cannot be used overnight. Items left overnight will be removed from the locker and placed inside the bookstore until they are claimed. A book drop is also provided for student use, but it is to be used at the students' own risk.

Paul Barrett, associate director of the Landrum Center was previously employed in the bookstore at the University of Miami. His secretary is Mrs. Grace Fulmer. Mrs. Hope Shearouse is chief cashier, and Miss Marjorie Jones is in charge of supplies and specialty items. Fred McCrary will work in the shipping and receiving department.

Jernigan Voices Approval Of U. S. Foreign Aid Policy

Ambassador John D. Jernigan lectured on the relationship of the United States to underdeveloped countries, Jan. 4 in McCroan Auditorium. Jernigan is presently ambassador in residence at Emory University and was the former ambassador to Algeria.

Jernigan advocated in his opening remarks that the United States continue its present policy of giving aid to these economically unstable nations. One problem of a diplomat," said Jernigan, "is that these countries have a distrust for the United States because of its wealth and power. They feel that there is something behind the U. S. policy of foreign aid. It is difficult to make these people believe that we are not trying to dominate their affairs or overthrow their government."

The United States should also aid these countries because they include two thirds of the world's population and are gaining independence, as Pakistan, India and Indonesia. These countries have a growing political influence in world assemblies because of their great number. They could band together in an assembly of the United Nations and approve or reject any proposal put to that assembly.

"These countries," remarked Jernigan, "are in desperate need of economic, agricultural and technical aid. If they do not receive the necessary aid, they will eventually starve to death. Presently 10,000 people are starving in the world daily. Since 1960, world food production has increased by only one percent while population has increased three percent.

There are approximately ten nations who produce enough food to export, the United States being the largest exporter. This is why we must help these small countries economically so that they may soon become self-sufficient.

In reference to the Middle East, Jernigan stated, "This area is more likely to cause the next big war than is South East Asia. It is so essential that we pay attention to it." The Middle East wants and needs economic aid, but also wants a market for their raw materials and agricultural products to become self-sufficient.

The market price of various commodities fluctuates because the small nations have no control over prices. Prices are controlled by the larger, more developed nations. The recent price trend for commodities sold by these underdeveloped nations has been on a downward move. Jernigan gave as an example the market of Ghana. "If the price of cocoa in Ghana goes down, the economy is likely to collapse, since cocoa is that country's chief export. What is needed," continued Ambassador

John D. Jernigan

Jernigan, "is an international market to set a floor on prices."

These small countries have demanded that the larger countries give them preferential treatment against anyone else in the area of trade. It is speculated that if this were done then the need for direct aid would be lessened.

Recently, the Organization for Economic Development, made up of the United States, Canada and countries of Western Europe, has given special preference to these countries.

In 1965, a meeting of the United Nations Committee of Trade and Development drew a line between the minority of big powers and the small, underdeveloped countries. There were 77 of the latter, so they banded together to form the Committee of 77. They have been demanding preferential treatment and the Organization for Economic Development now proposes to discuss trade concessions on a list of commodities at its next meeting in New Delhi, India. "However," said Jernigan, "It should be noted that as soon as the nation can stand on its own feet, the special treatment will be discontinued."

"I do not believe," continued Jernigan, "that the Russians have softened toward us and that they have abandoned their original plan of world communism. If we do not aid these countries, they may turn communist; if we do aid them, they will be excellent trading partners."

Work is now being done in family planning and food production. This work is slow, however, for the individual must act. An official governmental declaration is not enough. It will not get the job done.

Library Adds New Machine

A new Xerox copying machine will be added to the Rosenwald Library, replacing the old machine now in use, according to Miss Hassie McElveen, Librarian.

The new Xerox product has been received by the library and will be put into use as soon as necessary electrical equipment is installed.

The Xerox 914 now in use will remain available to students until the 720 is installed. Then the 914 will be used primarily for copying catalogue cards and other library information.

The new Xerox 720, to be placed in the rotunda area on the second floor, will facilitate all student copying needs at the present rate of 7 cents per copy. Later, when the machine is modified to become completely self-service, the rate may be raised to 10 cents per copy.

All Greek organizations wishing to publish an article in the "George-Anne" are requested to bring the information by the "George-Anne" office no later than Tuesday noon.

"WHAT'S THIS WORLD COMING TO?"

January 4, former Ambassador John Jernegan came to this college to deliver a lecture on world affairs. He refused to accept any remuneration for the lecture and also took an entire day out of a busy schedule to speak here.

Twenty-two people were present to hear him, this figure includes the ambassador's wife, the program moderator, and his wife. This somewhat astounding figure is clearly indicative of the general trend of apathy being experienced at this college. Everyone present voiced the same reactions to the "crowd," reactions of embarrassment, disappointment, and disbelief.

Twenty students out of an enrollment of more than four thousand. And not only was the student body poorly represented, but out of the many faculty members and administrators, only one was present.

If this apathy among students and faculty should become a persistent trend then why schedule any extra-curricular activities at all, unless of course it is a dance? Then the gymnasium is swamped by the student body en masse. When a student body reaches the point of total disinterest in world affairs, the preceding generation has the complete right to call upon their favorite trite expression of "What is this world coming to?"

WHERE ALL NATURE SMILES

Winter quarter has arrived, as is evident by the chronic cases of depression, unfriendliness and sad faces viewed on campus. When the temperature drops so does Georgia Southern's reputation for friendliness. Smiles are remembrances of the world we used to know. Students become afraid to smile for fear of ice caps forming on their twelve-year molars or cracks plowing through the foundation of their pancake make-up. Friendliness has gone into hibernation.

A student must now drag himself from the warmth and security of his blankets to venture out into the cold, cruel world for a 7:30 a. m. quest of knowledge. Pull-over sweaters, heavy coats and knee socks characterize student dress. He gives the appearance of a fuzzy-wuzzy teddy bear as he reluctantly waddles to class. His breath freezes in the air before him, and he recalls that he didn't use his Scope this morning. His lips burn and begin to crack, and his hands feel lifeless and frozen. He spies a coed acquaintance, but he can't wave with hands crammed in his pockets. The student utters a noise that sounds more like a growl than a greeting, and he rushes on.

Ah, but we must look on the bright side of things! Winter quarter is the shortest quarter of the year. This means that the usual twelve weeks amount of work must be crammed into nine and a half weeks. That's a cheering note.

Of course, winter brings with it the annual visit of the common cold or the infamous flu. Yet the student may take comfort in the fact that his friendly neighborhood nurse stands waiting, needle in hand, to cure his wheezing, sneezing and post-nasal drip.

There are some people who argue that winter is a great season for outdoor sports. These contenders evidently have Sun Valley, not Georgia Southern, in mind. If outdoor winter sports enthusiasts were to try skiing down the slopes of the baseball field, they might notice that something was missing. Ice-skatters on the lake would also find something amiss. GSC offers bitter cold, not snow and ice.

We may talk about the weather, complain about the weather, or even go so far as to curse it, but we can't change it. Winter does offer one consolation. We can agree with the poet that "If Winter comes, can Spring be far behind."

THANKS TO NEW METHODS OF REGISTRATION,
IT WAS QUICKER AND MORE EFFICIENT THIS QUARTER.

'West Side Story', 'South Pacific'; What Production Will Be Next?

Audiences were delighted with the Opera Workshop's production of "West Side Story" in winter of 1966. The following year, winter quarter was highlighted by spectacular performances of "South Pacific."

Interest in a production for this year is evident. Upon asking persons connected with Opera Workshop when and what the next performance will be scheduled, one learns that no show is planned due to insufficient funds.

According to Don Northrip, assistant professor of music, the Opera Workshop fund was started by Student Congress prior to "West Side Story." The budget has been maintained separate from the college, not as a school budget item. At this time, the money appropriated has been used. Profit from "South Pacific" was used to buy equipment which was donated to the college and to finance the "German Requiem." A budget for choral activities and opera Workshop was to be instituted this year. However, money for this budget was not available. Northrip added that a musical would cost approximately $3000 to produce if no admission was charged. If admission were charged, the musical could be financed for $800. If financed, the production must be planned immediately. It would be scheduled for April.

This college is abundant in talent. It is also abundant in persons who are willing to practice, study, and spend back-breaking hours upon hours to perfect a show which will be remembered and enjoyed.

Opera Workshop productions have drawn statewide interest in the musicals and in the college. It is distressing to think that there might not be a production this year.

Since numerous lecturers have cancelled appearances for the college, the money appropriated for lecturers might be used for Opera Workshop. Surely some means of finance could be worked out.

Opera Workshop is composed of Masquers and other persons who are interested in the many facets of a musical production. Talented and interested students who are unselfish enough to want to work and perform should not be denied.

The value of Opera Workshop is evident in the enthusiasm and response to the display of workmanship in "West Side Story" and "South Pacific." Talent and dedication should neither be overlooked nor wasted. Opera workshop organization must begin immediately. Many persons are willing and anxious to perform; others anticipate another successful musical. With careful consideration and determination, Opera Workshop can present a show this spring.

Ole Registration 'Not Real Bad'; Could Be Better

Registration wasn't too bad this quarter. Of course, it could have been better, but with a new system there are bound to be a few pitfalls. But there were those long lines, cold feet and hot tempers.

For those who did not register (no really, there probably are some) the process went something like this: One arrives at the gym to be met by a infinitely long line of red noses, trial schedules and the smell of moth balls. Those with 3:00 time cards finally catch sight of the Hanner Building entrance at 5:15. Coming to registration on time does help, though. Once one is in the gym, he frantically searches for the letter "S", checking his identification card to make sure his name actually begins with "S". He is then handed a packet of course cards for three first period classes and a woman's tumbling class. Does he notice the mistake? Not hardly. After being cleared for housing he is free to pay his fees, another bedlam in itself.

Now, as previously stated, it could have been better. First the lines. Long lines are caused by two things, people and students. The line was long because registration did not begin early enough. The earliest time students who pre-registered could get their cards was 1:30. Had the process begun at about 8:30 or 9:00, workers in the gym would have had more time to work and the line would have been shortened considerably.

The main floor of the Hanner Building should have been used solely for those who had not pre-registered. The top two sections should have been divided into "A thru M" to the right and "M thru Z" to the left. This process would again shorten the lines and speed up the registration procedure.

Those valiant souls who endeavored to hand out all the course cards, find out who everybody was and where they lived, were overworked. Another essential need during registration is more help. A need was felt for help in all areas, but in the housing department the need was strongest.

One last suggestion. Why not place one drop-add card in each persons packet of cards? There is a card for everyone in the Registrar's office, so why not give it to the student? It's got his name on it. If he wants to use it, okay; if not, let him put it away in File 13. Again, saved is an hour or two of standing in a line.

Registration wasn't too bad this quarter. It must be remembered that after all, man is basically a self-centered animal. Man was cold and damp. People were uncomfortable. Registration is essential. No one died during the process. No, it wasn't bad at all.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor,

At the opening session of four out of the eight courses I have had or am taking to date here, the instructor made some comment regarding the kind of behavior or classroom attitude he expected from the students. Personally, I view education as a dynamic, joint teacher-student process in which neither party tells the other how to act; it should be mutually understood that the purpose of attending a class is to participate in an exchange of knowledge. The resultant attitudes then depend on the extent to which all individuals present, professor included, are stimulated.

Obviously, if a professor requires a certain appropriate behavior from his class, he should be able to get it by "capturing" the class in such a way that students will want to participate, respectfully, courteously, enthusiastically — whatever is desired. The same holds true, of course, for the kind of treatment a student may want from his instructor.

In college I, for one, have little inward respect for a professor who feels he must tell his students just what they must do and what they must not do, as if they were just entering junior high school.

To Whom It My Concern:

I read in the "George-Anne" which was sent to the Journalism class of the school in which I student taught this fall quarter that an election was held in late November to determine the size of diplomas to be issued. Since student teachers are full-time students and pay the required fees, I believe a severe injustice was done in not sending ballots concerning this matter to those students who were student teaching and away from the college. These students are full-time students and should definitely have a voice in such a decision when they are among those particularly concerned and interested in the proximity of their own graduation.

I also feel it is an oversight not to send copies of the "GeorgeAnne" to the student teachers. These could be sent in bulk form to each participating school and distributed to the students there. This is one of the few ways they have of keeping in touch with the college activities.

I will appreciate your consideration of the above statements and any comment may be sent to me at the following address:

An open letter to the Administration, Faculty and Students of Georgia Southern:

Dear Friends,

If you have ever kept the early morning watch to witness the sunrise, you know how gradually the dawn brightens. But when the sun's rays break through there is an ocean of light. The burst of the rising sun seems to release a joy within and immediately there is a song and a smile. My two years at Georgia Southern with you have been somewhat like a sunrise to me.

Late September, 1965, I felt I had dropped down into the midst of strangers. There were many "firsts" — first registration day, first class (English 252 with Mrs. Bitter), first dorm party, etc., etc. The German Club and Newman Federation were delightful organizations in which I participated. Then there were the many, many times when various groups such as Wesley Foundation, Twilight, Westminster Fellowship, Home Economics Club invited me to spend an evening in discussion with them. Through all these activities I was continually inspired with your graciousness, openness, thoughtfulness, inquiry and sense of exchange. Really, I was overjoyed with the "you's" whom I met.

Let me say very sincerely that I want to thank each of you for sharing your thoughts, hopes and problems with me. I am appreciative also for the services of the administration and faculty. Particularly, I wish I could find the words which would express my gratitude to each and every member of the Sociology Department. They have been extremely generous in giving their time and talents.

Most of you know I will be studying at the New School for Social Research in New York City (Greenwich Village). The one thing that has struck me so far about New York is its heterogeneity, —the land of many languages and accents, various sizes, shapes and colors of peoples. I have the good fortune of living with the Peter Berger family. Opportunities are bulging everywhere. Know that if any of you are in the vicinity, I would welcome the chance to see you.

Thank you each for my personal "sunrise" of understanding at Georgia Southern. It has been a real delight to be with you. May all of us, each day of this new year, know the joy of full Christian, human living.

Sincerely yours,

Sister Mary P. Schweitzer

Dear Editor,

I would like to write in regard to a recent situation involving the newly opened campus bookstore and the price of books.

I purchased a book which was marked with two prices differing by 25 percent. When I inquired about the discrepancy from a member of the staff, I was told that it must be a mistake and that the higher price was correct. For the sake of curiosity I checked at Lanier's Bookstore the next day and discovered the price on the same book was the lower price.

Contrary to state policy, it is quite obvious that the bookstore is making a profit or was this truly a mistake which was ignored?

Broke - unnecessarily?

Dear Editor,

I have had the opportunity to be a student on the GSC campus on two occasions. The first occurred some eight to ten years ago when total enrollment was something less than 1,000 students. The second is now as our enrollment exceeds 4,000.

I heard the complaints of "nothing to do" then I hear the same complaint now. If the truth be known, I fear the student really wants "nothing to do."

A case in point: ten years ago I was a member of "Masquers." There were 25-30 hard core members at all times and numerous others who came and went. These students had something to do because they wanted to do something.

The present Masquers organization is nowhere near the size it should be as compared to the growth of the student body in general. Those who do support the plays and the Masquers seems to be the exception rather than the rule. They act hard, work hard and accomplish something along the way. They help uplift the cultural atmosphere of our campus.

Since I am using the Masquers as an illustration I will point out some of the arguments against joining, and the fallacy of same. 1. Acting is for sissies. (Tell that to John Wayne, Marlon Brando, Jim Brown, James Arness, etc.) 2. I can't act. (Who cares- Can you paint, hammer a nail, sew, or read cue lines? Any of these is a necessary and demanding assignment.) 3. I have too much other work to do. (In some few instances this might be true, but on the whole I would have to say "hogwash"! This argument is mainly put forth by those who do not wish to admit they really want "nothing to do.")

As I said, I have used Masquers as an example because it is an organization with which I am most familiar but there are numerous clubs and organizations on campus, and they all seek your ideas, your criticism and, most of all, your membership.

I ask you to give these words some thought the next time you're kicking up your heels because there's "nothing to do."

Jim Fields

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this method of expressing my personal appreciation and the appreciation of Student Congress to all of the students and organizations who made the "Christmas Cards U.S.A." Drive and the "Christmas Caroling" Drive such tremendous successes. The final total for the card drive was 10,039 which is a phenomenal achievement accomplished in the short period of only four days. The Caroling Drive was equally successful in the collection of toys and money for the children of the Gracewood Hospital.

The cooperation of the student body made this success a reality. The outstanding contributions from Phi Mu Fraternity (3,155 cards), Wudie Hall (1,817 cards), and Alpha Delta Pi (885 cards) merit special commendation, for these three groups collected over half of the total 10,039 cards.

A big "Thanks" goes to Alpha Delta Pi Sorority and the Home Economics Club for their effort in coordinating the Caroling Drive and to Phi Mu Fraternity for counting and packaging the Christmas cards.

The Georgia Southern Student Congress is proud of its student body who took a little time to remember those service men who are risking their lives so that we can enjoy a free and democratic society.

Sincerely,

Sandra Hartness

Rosenwald Library

The Rosenwald library has added a new card catalogue composed of a complete subject file in addition to the author and title indexed catalogue.

The separate subject index enables the user to find specific information about a general topic quicker and easier.

"This system has worked well in other libraries and we felt students and patrons will find the catalogue easier to use," according to Miss Hassie McElveen, librarian. "Some details will have to be improved, but in general the division is complete and is ready for use."

The change was made during the Christmas holidays to avoid complications by users of the catalogue.

SGEA

A student teacher forum sponsored by the Student Georgia Education Association will be presented Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in McCroan Auditorium.

The panel will consist of past student teachers who will relate impressions and activities of student teaching.

Dr. J. Donald Hawk, director of student teaching, will moderate.

The chilly afternoon breeze swept across the water, gently caressing the busy ducks, then reaching Cheryl Pence standing on the dike watching the ducks in their search for food. Sunset was not far away and the brisk air made Cheryl pull her overcoat tight to her chin, slightly ruffling her brown hair. The green eyes of the 5-4 sophomore sparkled as she told about how much she enjoys athletics. But Cheryl is not going to major in phys. ed. That's for sure. What she will major in she hasn't decided, though. "I am from Roswell, but live in McDonough", she smiled; one of those warm smiles making you forget about her academic qualities and her Ph. D. aspirations. (Cheryl was the choice of the G-A Editorial Board.)

GSC Wins Opening Game 102-95

Georgia Southern College opened its 1967-68 basketball season with an exciting 102-95 overtime victory over favored Northwestern Louisiana State Dec. 2 in Statesboro and won their next two ballgames in a row before falling to Carson-Newman, 89-86.

In the opening game victory the Eagles, led by freshman center Roger Moore and junior guard John Helm, defeated a team that had beaten the Eagles handily last season, 95-70.

MOORE - 23

Southern featured a balanced scoring attack with Moore and Helm pouring through 23 each and Dave Westerfield collecting 18. Bob Bohman added 13, Barry Miller 12, and Elden Carmichael adding 11.

Northwestern Louisiana was led by center James Wyatt's 27 points. Andrew Marusak collected 17 and James Pepper 15 to lead the Demons scoring attack.

Southern led at halftime 49-37 and widened the margin to 17 points midway the second half. With ten minutes left the Eagles began to lose their lead as Northwestern tied the game at the end of regulation play, 87-87.

GSC outscored the Demons 15-8 in the overtime period to down the visitors.

Georgia Southern boosted their record to 3-0 by defeating Kentucky State College and Athens College in Carson-Newman's tournament in Jefferson City, Tenn.

Roger Moore scored 20 and Dave Westerfield 18 to lead the Eagles past Kentucky State, 86-69. Senior forward Elden Carmichael scored 23 to lead Southern past Athens College, 76-70. Larry Prichard scored 15 with Marvin Stephens 13.

FIRST LOSS

In the tourney finale, Southern met Carson-Newman for the championship. GSC suffered its first setback of the young season as Carson Newman edged the Eagles, 89-86. Once again 6'5" forward Elden Carmichael paced the Eagles' attack with 28 points, his highest point total of the year.

Carmichael got strong support from 6-6 center Larry Prichard, who scored 21. The only other Eagles to hit in double figures was John Helm with 15 and Dave Westerfield with 11.

Carson-Newman beat the Eagles at the foul line as they attempted 40 gratis tosses and connected on 33 while the Eagles attempted only 12, cashing in on ten.

Eagles Fly Past 'Mighty' Petrels With 70-65 Win

The Georgia Southern Eagles squeaked by the Stormy Petrels of Oglethorpe College last Friday evening but were defeated the following night as the Bulldogs of Tennessee Wesleyan whipped the Eagles 87-82.

"Yes, I was well pleased. Anytime we beat them up there we have a right to be pleased," said a happy GSC Coach Frank Radovich.

When asked what was the most important factor in the Oglethorpe defeat he stated, "We won on defense definitely. Oglethorpe was forced into 20 turnovers, meaning there were 20 times when they didn't get a shot at the basket."

CARMICHAEL - 20

Elden Carmichael led the Eagles attack with 20 points followed by Roger Moore's 18. Dave Westerfield tossed in 17 and Barry Miller added 11. Mike Dahl was Oglethorpe's leading scorer with 16 and Jim Hoggorth and Doug Alexander each bagged 11.

The Tennessee Wesleyan game was another story. Radovich commented on the Eagle loss, "It was the third time in a row they have beaten us. In every game, both teams have had the same number of field goals which means that we have been beaten at the foul line."

COLD SPELL

When asked if there was any pertinent reason for the defeat Radovich answered: "During the game the boys hit a spell where they didn't score a point in the final six minutes of the first half."

John Helm led all scorers with 17 points. He was followed by Elden's Carmichael's 16. Roger Moore got 13 and Dave Westerfield added 12.

Clements Named All-Star Coach

J. I. Clements, baseball coach at Georgia Southern College for 18 years, has been selected by the United States Baseball Federation to head a collegiate all-star team that will tour South America in the fall.

The Federation, which met in New York City Jan. 5-8, also named Ron Fraser of the University of Miami and Art Reichle of UCLA as Clements' assistant coaches. Danny Litwhiler of Michigan State was selected to take a similar team to Mexico City.

"This is really a big honor," said Clements upon his return from the New York meeting. "It really surprised me, but I'm looking forward to it already."

Clements was also named chairman of the coaching and teaching aids committee for the American Association of College Baseball Coaches at the meeting.

"I don't know too much about the tour as yet," said Clements. "It's to be for three weeks sometime between September and November. I don't know where we'll be going, but I heard Colombia and Venezuela mentioned. We'll be putting on games wherever we go."

Clements has chalked up 288 victories against 172 losses in his 18 years at the GSC helm, and his 1962 team won the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) championship. His teams finished runnerup in 1960 and placed third in 1964. He was selected NAIA Baseball Coach of the Year in 1963.

Southern Meets Wilmington Sat.

Georgia Southern's Basketball Eagles will play host to the Wilmington College Seahawks tomorrow night and will travel to DeLand, Fla. Monday to tangle with the Hatters of Stetson University.

Last season the Eagles defeated the Seahawks easily on both occasions with 91-76 and 88-70 victories. In the first contest between the two clubs, All-American guard Jimmy Rose led the Southern attack with 31 points.

Coach Bill Brooks' Seahawks will return six lettermen from last year's squad, including 6-2 senior forward Frand Bua, who led the attack against the Eagles last year in the first meeting of the teams with 18 points.

In the second meeting the Eagles were once again led by Rose, who poured through 30 points. Bua collected 21 and since departed Jim Hall, 6-6 Wilmington center, scored 24 points.

STRUCK TWICE

Stetson University may be happy. Ken Szotkiewicz is not playing basketball this year. Lightning struck twice last year as the little guard sank a field goal at the sound of the buzzer in last season's opener to beat the Hatters, 67-65. Then, to put the icing on the cake

Szotkiewicz sank a basket in overtime with one second remaining to down Stetson, 74-72.

Stetson returns seven lettermen from last year's squad that posted a 17-19 record, including both their leading scorers. Bob Jenkins, 6-2 guard-forward, returns after leading the Hatters in scoring last year, averaging 18.1 per contest. Walt Kilcullen, 6-3 senior guard, averaged 16.6 points per game last season.

Stetson Coach Glenn Wilkes has composed a lifetime 160-103 record since assuming the head coaching chores at Stetson. The Hatters have ample height with two boys over the 6-6 mark.

GSC Drops Two During Holidays

Coach Frank Radovich's basketball Eagles dropped two of three games over the Christmas holiday break, downing Lenoir Rhyne 71-70 and losing to Earlham College and High Point College in successive games.

Southern once again had to go into an overtime period for the third time to down Lenoir Rhyne. The score was knotted at 63-63 at the end of regulation play. Leading the scoring for the Eagles was Dave Westerfield with 16 markers, followed closely by Bob Bohman with 14. Scoring honors for Lenoir Rhyne was shared by Bill Davis and Mark LaMoreaux with 20 apiece. Dana Olson chipped in 16.

Georgia Southern played what Coach Frank Radovich called all year "in losing to Earlham College, 94-78. According to Radovich, the Eagles made numerous floor mistakes and had a tremendous amount of turnovers.

For the fourth time Georgia Southern battled to a deadlock and played in overtime. High Point defeated GSC 85-82, with Elden Carmichael grabbing scoring honors for the night with 23 points.

Tigers Capture Volleyball Title

The Tigers, intramural champions last year, continued their winning ways in the Women's Intramural Association by defeating the Mustangs for the volleyball title in three games at the end of last quarter.

Third place went to the Panthers as they defeated the Yellow Jackets in a playoff.

The Mustangs had defeated the Tigers earlier in the season. They were undefeated in the playoffs until the Tigers took two straight matches to win the championship.

In the first game the Mustangs were beaten easily by the champs. In the second game of the double elimination tournament the Tigers had a harder time winning but the spiking of Sandra Ray and Carol Grizzard was too much for the Mustangs.

OFF THE KING'S CUFF

By TOM KING
Sports Editor

Oglethorpe College, famed basketball power of the Oglethorpe campus and student body, has been beaten by a Georgia Southern team that some labeled as "green and inexperienced." Some went so far as to say that "Southern would lose by twenty points."

Inexperienced and green indeed! We all know that the Eagles have only one senior on the squad. We all know that Southern has a freshman center right out of high school. We all know that Oglethorpe had a national ranking. We also know that GSC played the "Stormy Petrels?" in Atlanta. We also know that Georgia Southern won 70-65.

FLAT

Oglethorpe's famous "Wheel" offense seemed to go flat against the Eagles. Defense was the key to the victory. The purpose of the "Wheel" is to get a man open for an easy layup. Those shots for Oglethorpe were few and far between that memorable night in Atlanta.

How can a team that was supposed to have trouble breaking .500 beat a team that was nationally ranked? One thing is the spirit that the boys have. They hustle. They enjoy playing basketball. They show it on the court. They never give up. They "play" basketball. All of the above add up to one basic reason that the Eagles have come as far as they have this season—the coaching.

Frank Radovich, head coach, and J. E. Rowe, Radovich's capable assistant, have done a better than average job in guiding the Eagles thus far. Ask Carter and the 'Cloudy Petrels.' They'll tell you the same thing.

TOP SHAPE

Radovich believes that to enjoy basketball, a player has to be in top physical condition. Radovich's boys are in top physical condition. They enjoy the game of basketball. They proved it against Oglethorpe. No doubt they'll prove it again before the season ends.

After the Oglethorpe game, Radovich stated that a lot of credit should be given Rowe. "He knows that Oglethorpe 'Wheel' as well as Coach Carter and the Oglethorpe team," a jubilant Radovich commented.

WELL COACHED

Georgia Southern is a well coached squad. Carmichael, Bohman, Moore, Westerfield, Helm, Miller are named that have now become synonymous with Georgia Southern basketball. This group has, to use a trite cliché, "come through."

But don't forget Radovich and Rowe. They help now and then. Oglethorpe won't forget their names—nor Georgia Southern's green and inexperienced crew of basketball players. Even the pride of Oglethorpe, Ogee, could not help against strong Southern.

GSC Victorious Over Mercer

The Georgia Southern Eagles defeated Mercer 90-86 in a nip and tuck ball game that was not decided until the final three seconds when freshman guard Steve Buckler calmly sank two free throws to put the game out of reach for the Bears in a game played Wednesday night.

Mercer's pair of dead-eye shooting guards, Robert Belloir and Jud Roberts, accounted for 43 points between them with little Belloir leading all scorers with 22 points. Roberts had 21, mostly all shots from around the 30 foot range.

Southern's attack was an evenly balanced one with five Eagles hitting in double figures. Elden Carmichael and Dave Westerfield led GSC with 16 each. John Helm was close behind with 15. Roger Moore had 12 and an ailing Bob Bohman came off the bench to score 10.

At the half the score was deadlocked at 47-47. When Southern ran the score to 64-55, it looked as if the Eagles were going to put the game out of reach. But Belloir and Roberts had other ideas as the Bears came back to tie the bitterly fought contest, 86-86.

Carmichael then sank a jumper with 37 seconds remaining to put the Eagles up by two. John Helm hit with eight seconds remaining to put Southern ahead 88-84. Roberts then sank two free throws to run the score to 88-86. Buckler then sank his two free throws to ice the game for the Eagles.

The Hanner Gymnasium will be open on Sundays from 1-6 p.m. for general use by students, according to Dr. Douglas Leavitt, acting chairman of Division of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation.

All varsity baseball players are required to report to the Hanner Gymnasium Wednesday, Jan. 17, to participate in a mile run, according to baseball Coach J. I. Clements.

"Everyone who wants to play baseball is required to run the mile in six minutes or less before they pick up a baseball," Clements stated.

Gymnastics Squad Wins Opener Against Citadel; Blasko Excels

Coach Ron Oertley's Eagle gymnasts opened their 1968 campaign last Saturday, Jan. 6, by defeating The Citadel in Charleston, S. C., 160.95-139.30.

Tony Blasko, freshmen all-around man, led the team by capturing first place on the sidehorse and tying for two other firsts in free exercise and long horse vault.

"Tony (Blasko) did a respectable job for his first intercollegiate meet. He performed well despite illness. He provides us depth in all events and gives us what we have needed for the past two years, a sidehorseman," Oertley commented.

Rodney Chandler took first place in the high bar. The sophomore from Atlanta won his event with a double back dismount from the bar. "He presented a good routine. He won," remarked Oertley.

Billy Godwin won the trapoline and placed second in the parallel bars. He also placed third in the free exercise. "Bill showed a good deal of promise in the p-bars. He was a replacement for the injured Tommy Nicolette and just wanted to see what he could do on the p-bars," Oertley said.

Jimmy Kirkland, one of three seniors on the squad, tied for first in the long horse vault and placed third in the sidehorse. According to Oertley, Kirkland presented an improved routine in the sidehorse and needs work to add continual depth to the squad.

"Overall, it was a typical first meet. We saw some bright spots but we learned that we need a great deal of work before the next meet. Our schedule is going to become progressively tougher," Oertley concluded.

Southern Hosts Furman Tonight

The Georgia Southern gymnastics squad, fresh from an opening victory over the Citadel, will attempt to post their second win of the season tonight when they meet the Paladins of Furman University at 8 p.m. in the W. S. Hanner gymnasium.

"We anticipate winning this meet. They beat us last year. They have a solid team. Furman has basically the same team they had last year," said Coach Ron Oertley.

Southern will journey to Tallahassee, Fla. Monday night, Jan. 15 to meet Florida State University. According to Oertley, the team expects to win. "We know nothing about the FSU squad. We are just going to go down there and do the best possible job of winning that meet," Oertley commented.

Tommy Nicolette, freshman p-bar specialist, will compete in the Furman meet tonight. Nicolette has been out of action for the last month with an injury. "It will be good to have Tommy back. He should help us considerably and add to our overall depth," Oertley added.
