A Representative Republic

It has become quite the fashion in this latter day to refer to democracy and those who gibberish the word almost always link it with the ideals of the founding fathers of this nation. Of course, anybody familiar with the history of the formation of the United States of America knows very well that democracy was foreign to the ideals and ideas of the men who created this country. They did not plan a democracy but, on the contrary, resolutely set up checks and balances to prevent popular opinion from achieving a quick and direct control of government.

Health Commandments

The following ten commandments, given by the pastor of a metropolitan church some time ago, might prove interesting and helpful to some who here in Bulloch County. Read them over carefully, one or more of them might apply to you:

- "1. Honor your parents by having a thorough physical examination every birthday; for an ounce of prevention is worth a ton of cure.
- "2. Honor your friends by taking a daily bath; for cleanliness is a part of godliness.
- "3. Honor your family by having your life insured; for life insurance guarantees the co-operation of the insurer in the prolongation of the life of the insured.
- "4. Honor your physician by avoiding patent medicines; for the most of these nostrums are humbugs.
- "5. Honor your digestion by being careful of your diet; for many a man digs his grave with his teeth.
- "6. Honor your stomach by having your teeth carefully examined by a dentist at regular intervals; for bad teeth are an abomination to the system.
- "7. Honor your lungs by breathing fresh air; for ventilation is a means of grace.
- "8. Honor your nerves by taking plenty of rest in sleep; for they work all day and play all night promote the brevity of their lives by burning the candle at both ends.
- "9. Honor your country by obeying the laws; for it is a mark of good citizenship to obey a law whether one likes it or not.
- "10. Honor your God by chastity in word, thought and deed; for the race that wishes eternity must exalt maternity."

Decline Of U. S. Male

George Anastasopoulos, a great newspaperman visiting the United States, recently said to an American acquaintance: "I am curious to see how long it will be before your wives take away your right to vote." Anastasopoulos was not altogether joking. He has been surprised, as most foreigners, with the decline of the U. S. male—as he views it in his travels. He says that in his country it would be hard to imagine a man baby-sitting with the children, washing the dishes, or washing the dog, if his wife did not work, was attending meetings of clubs, playing bridge, attending cocktail parties or associations and federations of all kinds.

Decline Of U. S. Male

In fact, Anastasopoulos says, the man seen doing this in Greece would instantly lose any public esteem he might have had. No one there would pay any attention to a man tied to his wife's apron strings.

Anastasopoulos believes that the reasons for so many divorces in the United States, for the huge number of women who are under psychiatric treatment, and for the alarming juvenile delinquency problem we have today, lie in the lap of the American male, who refuses to become the actual head of his family. He believes that many American couples, who often marry at about the same age, get off on the wrong foot. The domination of the wife begins, he says, with marriage at an early age because the woman is more mature than man at this age.

"The man is born the head of the family. His wife should help him, discuss things with him, express her opinions, and then stop. There is not room for two chiefs in any family," Anastasopoulos says.

However, in this country he finds that many males do not show any strength or authority, and fail to meet their responsibilities. He is convinced that many of the little monsters being raised by parents who pamper, spoil and baby their children, to a ridiculous degree, need to remember that there is only one good thing to bring up children—and that is with an authority at the head of the house, who can use the back of his hands, or a switch, if necessary. Anastasopoulos believes that we in America make things too easy for our children, that they do nothing more but sit down in an automobile, watch television, or in a movie, and are given whatever they want. They are allowed too much freedom to make their own choice in school, as, for example, a child becomes the actual head of the family. He believes that many American couples, who often marry at about the same age, get off on the wrong foot. The domination of the wife begins, he says, with marriage at an early age because the woman is more mature than man at this age.

John Jones & Son, Inc.

Has John Jones really slaved all of his life so his son could take over? Perhaps Mrs. Jones could throw some light on this question.

Since he was a small boy, John Jones, Jr. has wanted to be a forest ranger. But his father has so wrapped up in his own success that he has never asked his son what he wanted to do with his life.

The fact that John should be free to make his own choice of a career has never entered his father's mind.

Today's Meditation

ONE THING AND ANOTHER
Georgia Watson
WE LIKE CONVENIENCES

Most of the things we call conveniences these days can't actually be described like that. They are necessities. We had a little contention in our neighborhood the other day. The subject was a house that had been built in the early 1900's. The owner was an elderly man who was still practicing in his native land. His latest book, "The Unconquered Self" is a gem.

ONE THING AND ANOTHER

God is faithful, who will not suffer for you to be tempted above that you are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that you may be able to bear it. (1 Corinthians 10:13.)

One day a boy came to me with a problem. He was inclined to include some pleasure, but there had been planned a spiritual retreat that would conflict. He realized he would have to choose one or the other. We talked it over, and I pointed out the path he ought to choose, but told him he would have to make the decision.

"During the week he called me on the telephone and said he had decided in favor of the spiritual retreat. He had won a victory. We are often tempted, but we remember that Jesus, too, was tempted by Satan on a mountain.

OUR UNDISCOVERED SELVES

I find books on psychiatry most interesting reading. The more I read, the less I know; and I am shocked at my ignorance—not only on the subject of man's mind, but on everything pertaining to man.

Consider that little motor that is the first token of life—the little engine that begins throbbing and pulsing in the womb and enters this world. It is primed to keep going for a hundred and more years, if given a little care.

Then consider the psyche, the soul, the mind. Here we enter the realm of psychiatry. Here the wise guru has pondered the mystery of the "beginning, the mean, the end to all things is—God."

Vets May Get Free Auto Tag

Georgia disabled veterans who have received federal grants for purchase of automobiles are entitled to free state license tags for the vehicle, Pete Wheeler, Director of the State Department of Veterans Service, has reminded. Amputees and certain other disabled veterans are eligible for grants of $1,000 toward the purchase price of an automobile because of their service-connected disabilities. An act of the Georgia General Assembly authorizes the issuance of free license tags to such veterans who are citizens of Georgia, Wheeler pointed out. He said the veteran should obtain a statement from the Veterans Administration that he has received the grant for the purchase of an automobile. The certification is kept on file, and in succeeding years the veteran has only to make a regular application for the license. He noted that the special tags which are red, white and blue in color, with the letters "H. V.", cannot be obtained locally as are regular license plates. The State also awards an honorary, life-time drivers license to all honorably discharged Georgia veterans, Wheeler also pointed out. Local offices of the State Department of Veterans Service will be glad to furnish other information or assist in obtaining the license plates, Wheeler said.

Library Fountain Not A Reservoir

One of the greatest advantages a community can have is a public library. Here, just for the reading is a world of knowledge covering countless subjects. The Statesboro Regional Library is one of the finest for a city its size. It is located in the heart of Statesboro on South Main Street in a modern Library Building. The Library is open from 9 a. m. to 12:30 and from 1:30 to 5:30 from Monday through Saturday. More than 20,000 people visit the library each year and borrow across the deck more than 45,000 books. Over 35,000 volumes are available, approximately 100 magazines, 1,000 filmstrips, and records for children are available. During the past year an estimated 100 persons visited the library each day it was opened and borrowed an average of 18 books per hour. The library was begun by public subscription in 1917 and in 1937 it became a free public library. In 1944 it became the 2nd regional library in the state serving more than one county. Today the service area includes Bulloch and Bryan Counties. In 1968, the Blitch Street Branch was opened in the Blitch Street Community Center. Approximately 4,000 books are available at that branch. Library extension is provided by a bookmobile from four to five days per week. Approximately 44,000 books were used from this unit of service. The American public library needs many things, but what it needs most is an interested and informed public, concerned about its welfare and desirous of bringing its promise to full function. Arthur H. Parsons, Jr., in "Fountains, Not Reservoirs: The Public Library".

F. H. A. SHOWS FILM
The January meeting of the Future Homemakers of Southeast Bulloch High School featured a film entitled "Jan Grows By Degrees." This film depicts an average Future Homemaker in Georgia as she plans her F. H. A. program to "grow" as a member of this organization. Her projects included contributions to her home school and community, as well as in self improvement. Mary Foote, Chairman of Projects this year, was program chairman. The devotional was given by Shirley Jenkins. Ginny Lee, the president, presided over a short business meeting. A special school project has been planned by the members of the executive committee and Sue Pyle, co-chairman of projects. The display case will be cleaned regularly by the F.H.A.'ers and each faculty member will be given a specified date in which to display some of the work of his students.
