Bomb destroyed inside local apartment

GBI destroys bomb, finds GSU student dead inside Park Place residence

By Luke Hearn
Executive editor

The Georgia Bureau of Investigation bomb disposal unit was called to Park Place Apartments last Thursday after an explosive device was found while police were investigating the death of the apartment's resident.

According to Statesboro Police Department Detective Terry Briley, a white male — later identified as Carl S. Wright, 27 — was found dead in his apartment Thursday morning by a roommate and two other friends. Wright was taken to East Georgia Regional Medical Center where he was pronounced dead.

SPD Detective Kaleb Moore said body was taken to the crime lab where an autopsy revealed the cause of death was not murder or suicide, and that blood work for toxicology reports has been sent off to see if anything was in his system that may have caused his death.

Briley said after finding the body, the apartment was checked out, and an item "thought to be of an explosive nature" was found.

According to Moore, the explosive device found in the apartment was dangerous on a small scale.

"It had the capability to kill someone," he said. "No major structural damage could have been caused, but it could have caused injury or death to a person in close range."

A robot was sent into the apartment to examine the device — which was said to be about the size of a fist — and members of the bomb disposal unit technicians examined it. The device was eventually broken apart with a water cannon.

Earlier reports have stated Wright was never a student at Georgia Southern, but friend Katie Anderson said he graduated in December of 2003 with a degree in sociology.

Wright was described in his obituary as "[a] man of few words, but with an amazing and charming persona" who could "light up a room with just a smile or just being there."

A close friend of his, Ashley Holmes, said he was one of the most intelligent and funny people she has ever known.

"He always made everyone around him laugh without cracking a smile," she said. "He was very compassionate and generous, and was a beautiful person inside and out."

The Georgia Bureau of Investigation detonated a bomb at a Park Place apartment. Law enforcement found the bomb while investigating the death of a former student.

Regents pick an interim chancellor

Staff and wire reports

ATLANTA - A black woman was chosen last Thursday as interim chancellor of the state's university system.

Corlis Cummings, 42, currently one of three senior vice chancellors, was named to the position by the Board of Regents during a teleconference.

She will head the university system after Chancellor Tom Meredith leaves — probably next month — to lead the higher education system in Mississippi.

Cummings is an Atlanta native. She has a bachelor's degree and a law degree from the University of Georgia. She is the first woman and the first black person to serve as interim or permanent chancellor of the university system.

"In terms of the board's appointment of me, I really think it was more looking at my skill set as opposed to my gender or race," she said. "But I am African American and female, and this is the first time in the state's history. I am incredibly proud of having achieved this accomplishment and I am very, very honored."

Georgia Southern President Bruce Grube said he has known and worked with Cummings for the past six years, and looks forward to her leadership.

"Cummings is a very competent and talented person who will do a fine job as the interim Chancellor," he said. "We look forward to working with her and supporting her efforts. The role of chancellor is a difficult one and we are pleased she has agreed to assume such important responsibilities."

Cummings was expected to be named

Officials admit bus system has kinks, but still a successful start

Administrators in talks to change routes to help ease long lines, long drives

By Luke Hearn
Executive Editor

The transit system has only been operating for about a week, but administrators are upbeat about the progress thus far.

"When you start something new like this, you just have no idea how it's going to work," said Wendy Hagins, director of auxiliary affairs. "When I woke up Monday morning, I wondered if students would use it or not."

Hagins' fears were put to rest once he arrived on campus.

"When I pulled up to work at seven Monday morning, there were twelve or so students waiting to get on the first bus."

According to Hagins, about 1,000 students per hour took advantage of the transit system, and he estimates about 5,000 to 6,000 students total rode the buses on the first day.

GSU sophomore Jonathan Boone said he likes the new system.

"It works well for me," he said while waiting for a bus outside of the University Store. "It saves me from using my own gas, so I can't complain." Boone said that while the buses are a little crowded at times, he will continue to use the transit system. His only suggestion was that the school look at adding a few more buses to the routes.

Marenn Mosley, a sophomore, said she liked the system, but wished the buses were cooler.

"It's convenient, I just wish the air worked better on the smaller buses."

Hagins said that while he understands the concerns of the students, it's still a little too early to make any drastic changes.

"I think the students responded very well, and we're trying to react to their needs," he said. "We're trying to do anything we can possibly do to make this work right."

Many students and faculty have wondered why the buses do not travel to the back side of campus, and to Sweetheart Circle and the Hanner Building.

"Those are definitely options that we're going to be forced to look at in the future," he said. "Nearly every university that starts a transit system has to expand after the first year."

Others have complained that full buses have left them standing at the bus stop, having to wait on the next bus. Hagins said he hopes to have things work out so that every student can take the first bus.

There was talk on Monday that a bus was involved in an accident earlier in the morning.

"Absolutely not," Hagins said. "We checked out all of the buses and found nothing that showed there was any sort of accident."

Besides a dead battery on one of the buses Tuesday, Hagins said there have been no other problems with any of the buses.

On Tuesday, the buses started driving down Forest Drive instead of turning around in front of the University Store to proceed down Chandler Road. Hagins said the buses will continue to travel down Forest Drive until the intersection of Georgia Avenue and Chandler Road can be fixed to accommodate some of the larger buses that turn there.

"We plan to improve that intersection so that our bigger buses do not have trouble turning onto Chandler."

Hagins said it will take about three to four weeks to finish the improvements.

Hundreds turn out for Georgia peace vigil

Associated Press

DECATUR — Several hundred demonstrators turned out for a peace vigil Wednesday in support of Cindy Sheehan, the mother of a soldier killed in Iraq who continues her own vigil outside the Texas ranch of President Bush in an effort to speak personally with him.

Carrying signs decrying "Lots of bloody oil" and a banner pleading "Talk To Cindy," the anti-war protesters filled four corners of a major intersection in this Atlanta suburb.

Among them was Evelyn Allen, whose son, Sgt. Jonathan B. Shields, died in an accident in November in Fallujah, Iraq.

"I want to know the truth. Basically, just tell us why they're over there, losing their lives the way they are," Allen said.

Patricia Roberts, whose son, Spc. Jamaal Rashard Addison, was killed in Iraq in March 2003, said she will accompany Allen when she leaves Friday for Bush's ranch.

"Hopefully, while we're there we will be able to talk to the president and get some answers and hear what he has to say," Roberts said.

The Rev. Joseph Lowery, a longtime civil rights leader, said "Americans have decided the war's over, and it's time to bring the troops home."

"The best support we can give them is to bring them home," he said. Keith Flucis, who was watching the demonstrators, disagreed with their message.

"I think half of these folks, if they were in the Iraqis' position, and they were being beat and mistreated, they would want someone to come to their aid," Flucis said.

Making House Calls

Faculty visit students in residence halls

By Jenny Miller
Staff Writer

Fall semester marks the beginning of over 4,000 freshmen students' college careers, so Georgia Southern has created "House Calls" to ease the transition for many students who live on campus.

Tuesday, more than 50 administrators, faculty, and staff from around campus volunteered to visit the new students in their dorm rooms, as part of Welcome Week. This is the second year for the House Calls program. Last year, volunteers for House Calls spoke with approximately 1,200 students.

The volunteers had dinner and a short training session before visiting residence halls and meeting students in their rooms. Each team of volunteers met with 30 students.

The volunteers distributed packets to the students that included highlighters, disc savers and a magnet with important contact information. Those who were not in their rooms received the packets along with a "sorry we missed you" note. If problems were expressed to the volunteers that they could not deal with, it was documented and reported to the University Housing staff. House Calls is designed for students to interact with administrators on a personal level and get to know the campus better.

"There were very few concerns. The evening has gone very well. Everyone has such great attitudes," said Teresa Thompson, Interim Vice President for the Office of Student Affairs and a House Calls volunteer.

Heather Atha, a freshman living in Eagle Village, said the experience was a positive one. "The staff was very nice. They asked if we needed anything and were very helpful," she said.

Students in their rooms when visited, were entered into a drawing for a gift certificate and a DVD player.

Professors honored and awarded contracts

Special to the G-A

Six members of Georgia Southern's faculty were recognized at the Fall 2005 Convocation Ceremony with awards for excellence in instruction, research and service.

The Award for Excellence in Contributions to the teaching-learning process at the institutional level.

The Award for Excellence in Contributions was presented to Pranoti Asher, an associate professor in the department of geology and geography; and Laura Regassa, an assistant professor in the department of biology.

The Award for Excellence in Research/Creative Scholarly Activity recognizes individuals who excel in their research efforts in addition to fulfilling full-time teaching responsibilities.

The Award for Excellence in Research was presented to Ming Fang He, an associate professor in the department of curriculum, foundations and reading; and Oscar J. Pung, a professor in the department of biology.

The Award for Excellence in Service recognizes faculty who use their academic disciplines to provide non-compensated assistance to the region as well as the academic community.

The Award for Excellence in Service was presented to Mark Edwards, a professor in the department of physics, and Chris B. Geyerman, an associate professor in the department of communication arts.

Each recipient was awarded a summer contract with the university to continue instructional, research or service activities and to develop a mechanism to share their expertise with faculty, staff and students.

Over the course of the 2005-2006 academic year, the six award winners will present lectures on selected topics in the Professional Learning Center of the College of Information Technology.

The Faculty Awards for Excellence were presented each year by President

Bruce Grube and Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs Linda Bleicken, during Convocation in the Performing Arts Center.

Nashville country cookout a welcomed rest

By Rachel Weeks
News Editor

This year's Welcome Week theme was Big City, Bright Lights and each day's events represented a different city. Everyone enjoyed the ribs, chicken, baked beans, coleslaw, corn and live country music at Friday's Nashville Country Cookout on Sweetheart Circle.

Sponsors for the country-themed cookout included Eagle Entertainment, Auxiliary Services, the offices of VP of Business and Finance, the Parent's Association, Apple computers and SOAR.

Bryan Clees and the Electronic Cowboys, a local country band, kept the crowd entertained as they performed, despite misty weather and power disruptions.

In past years, the Welcome Week cookout has attracted around 2,000 students and their families, so lots of food was prepared.

Two physical plant truck beds were filled with ice to cool all the soft drinks and water required to quench the thirsts of around 1,200 people.

Food Services worked together to cook 1,500 pounds of ribs for the cookout, according to Food Services Director Tom Palfy.

"Each cook used the smokehouse smoking oven in Landrum to cook about 300 pounds every day before the cookout," said Palfy.

Many students brought their parents to the cookout and took a needed rest before completing their moving tasks.

"This event is to welcome everyone to campus and it especially gives those still moving in an opportunity to stop before finishing getting their rooms in order," said Jill Boykin of the Parents Association.

Even the tables kept with the country theme. Straw hats filled with candy were free to wear or take home with students.

Sophomore Joey Newton was impressed by the amount of food and the people. "I like it, free ribs and I didn't have a meal plan today so you can't beat a good free meal."

History professor wins annual Ruffin Cup

Special to the G-A

Vernon Egger, professor in the department of history at Georgia Southern University, is the 2005-2006 winner of the Ruffin Cup, which is awarded annually by the university's College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences (CLASS). The cup was endowed by the late David A. Ruffin, who was an English professor at GSU.

The Ruffin Cup is presented to a CLASS faculty member who exemplifies the goals of the college; has given distinguished service to the university for at least 10 years; and excels in teaching and service to students, in scholarship and in contributions to the spirit of the liberal arts.

Egger has been part of GSU's faculty since 1983. He teaches courses on the Arab-Israeli conflict and the Muslim world and he has developed a senior seminar called "Comparing Fundamentalisms: Judaism, Christianity and Islam."

In addition to teaching full-time, Egger has written three books, including a two-volume, college-level textbook. The first volume of the textbook "A History of the Muslim World to 1405: The Making of a Civilization" was published by Prentice Hall in 2004. The second volume - "A History of the Muslim World, 1260-Present: The Making of a Global Community" will be published next year.

In 1993, Egger won GSU's Faculty Award for Excellence in Contributions to Instruction, which is presented annually to honor contributions to the teaching-learning process at the institutional level.

Also, Egger wrote the original proposal for the University Honors Program, and he chaired the committee that created the B.A. in international studies degree at GSU.

Egger has served as president of a regional organization for scholars who specialize in Islam and the Middle East. He has participated in numerous workshops for middle school and high school teachers, and he has given over 100 presentations to local schools, churches and civic groups.

Egger earned a B.A. from Baylor University and a Master of Divinity from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. He earned an M.A. and a Ph.D. from the University of Michigan.

As the winner of the Ruffin Cup,

Egger will have his name engraved on the cup, which he will have in his possession for a year.

He will also receive $1,000 for use in the enhancement of his teaching and scholarship through travel or the purchase of teaching materials and equipment.

Farmer writes personal ad in cornfield

CANANDAIGUA — A farmer, in place of posting a newspaper advertisement to search for a mate, resorted to planting a message in a cow pasture in 50-foot letters made from corn stalks.

The message, planted by Pieter DeHond, a 41-year-old divorced father of two, read: "S.W.F. Got-2 (love symbol) Farm'n." (or Single White Female Got to Love Farming). Underneath was a long arrow pointing to his house.

"I wouldn't place a personal ad in the paper. To me it seems desperate," he said, laughing. "This is more of a fun thing. I put this out in a field where nobody could see it unless you flew over it."

The message, measuring about 900 feet wide by 600 feet, was easily legible from the air — airplanes frequently pass over between Rochester and New York City — when the stalks reached 7 feet tall. But a few days ago, DeHond led his cows into the pasture and they chomped up the field corn.

Car thief suspect asks victim for help

FORT SMITH — Police say a man who broke into a car severed his left wrist on some shards of glass, then kicked in a door to the car owner's home and asked for help.

Avis Pilcher, 78, called police to aid Joseph G. McQuade, 29, of Huntington, who initially said he had cut himself while being chased.

Police later discovered blood in Pilcher's garage, presumed McQuade cut himself while breaking into the woman's car, and arrested McQuade. Pilcher said she awakened to screams for help about 12:35 a.m. Monday and that McQuade entered her room, blood shooting from his left wrist, a police report said. McQuade was arrested on suspicion of burglary, breaking and entering a vehicle, breaking and entering an unoccupied structure and on other warrants. McQuade was taken to the hospital for treatment of his injuries.

Couple to wed at McDonald's drive-thru

IRWIN — Do you want fries with those vows? Ken Sinchar and Lori Sherbondy have heard that and every other fast-food joke since they announced plans to marry at a McDonald's drive-thru, where they fell in love four years earlier.

On Monday night, Sinchar rolled through the drive-thru in his white minivan, just as he had done day after day, hoping to chat with "that blue-eyed brunette named Lori."

But on this night, Sinchar rolled down his window, Sherbondy slid open hers and the couple grabbed hands as a district judge pronounced them husband and wife.

Sinchar was expecting to pick up a Big Mac, not a date, the first time he pulled through the Norwin Towne Shopping Center McDonald's.

"I didn't used to go for fast food, but I looked at that woman in the window, and wow! I came back every lunchtime after that," said Sinchar.

Man Says Rabbit Saved His Wife

PORT BYRON — An Illinois man claims a $10 pet rabbit saved the life of his pregnant wife. Ed Murphy said the rabbit was unusually noisy one night, banging and jumping up and down in her cage. Murphy tried to ignore the racket by putting noise buffers on top of the cage, but the pet would not let him go back to sleep.

Murphy then noticed his wife seemed to be sleeping heavily with her eyes wide open, so he called 911.

Darcy Murphy was quickly taken to a hospital, where she remained five days for treatment of gestational diabetes, a carbohydrate intolerance during pregnancy. Murphy's obstetrician, Dr. Anita Pinc, credits the rabbit with telling Ed Murphy "Wake up, wake up. Something is wrong with your wife."

Cops find $60K on woman sleeping in store

JANESVILLE — Police trying to rouse an 87-year-old woman snoozing on a recliner in a discount store on the found $60,000 in cash in her purse while looking for her identification.

Employees at the Big Lots store said the woman had been sleeping there for hours when police arrived at 8 p.m., said Janesville Sgt. Tom Wolfram.

Police could not manage to wake her and an officer who rummaged through her purse found six 100-bill stacks of $100 bills inside a second bag secured with a safety pin, Wolfram said.

Police temporarily took the money for safekeeping while the woman's status was clarified, the sergeant said, but the money was returned to her Monday.

The woman was taken to Mercy Hospital, checked and then released, said Nancy White, property manager of the Golden Acres Apartments for the elderly across the street.

White said she fed the woman, washed her clothes and allowed her to stay with her until Monday morning.

"We can never solve our significant problems from the same level of thinking we were at when we created the problems."

- Albert Einstein

OUR VIEW

What's the big f-ing deal?

AT ISSUE: Some in university outraged over 'bad word' said at the Fall Convocation, we wonder why

At last week's fall Convocation, in his State of the University address, Georgia Southern President Bruce Grube read a poem by de facto school poet laureate Eric Nelson entitled "The Dream Reels."

What shocked and awed the audience the most—aside from the talented words of Nelson—was the mature language written into the poem, which Grube did not censor.

Despite the fact that it was only one word said, talk of the speech has not centered on the goals mentioned or the academic strides the university has taken over the past few years. Talk has been solely based on the one word, one that starts with an "f" but rhymes with "woodchuck."

Sure, we can print the word here, but in the interest of some of our more sensitive readers, we'll keep it with the above description...you're smart enough to figure out what the president said.

The thing is, Grube using the "f-word" in his speech is not something that should stop the world from spinning.

In his speech, Grube was protected by his First Amendment rights.

The word may have been offensive to some, but it wasn't illegal for him to say it. Was it inappropriate? Well, it depends on who you are.

Coming from a business that is too often seeing its First Amendment rights challenged, we think that what Grube did wasn't that bad. He didn't kill anyone, he didn't slander anyone's name and he didn't use the word in a derogatory way.

He read a poem that contained mature language in front of a mature, academic audience. That's it. He didn't call the faculty "f-ing" idiots; he didn't tell the students to go "f" themselves; and he didn't use the word to describe any type of inappropriate behavior.

He read a poem. Those who embrace art know that it often times contains words and images that June Cleaver may not have agreed with, but the purpose is not to make everyone feel warm and fuzzy...the purpose is for the artist to express him or herself.

Since the incident, Grube has issued an apology to the university community for what he said.

He meant no disrespect, and he meant no harm.

And if people can't get over what was said in the speech and accept the president's apology, that just shows how immature some of the "academics" here can be.

Adam Crisp SCENE AND HEARD

Old yeller sure does look good

A former George-Anne editor liked to talk about how life is cyclical. She held the opinion that all things — religion, education and politics — run in predictable patterns.

And now I believe it.

When I was in seventh grade, I swore that I would never ride a school bus again. Old Yeller was the ultimate sign of un-cool.

That was during my adolescence. Now, 10 years later, I have found myself embracing the bus as a time-saver, and the ultimate rejection of long lines for parking spaces.

The crowd that frequents the white GSU transit buses are a much more stylish lot. My bus-riding cohorts have traded their Hello Kitty book bags for Coach and Vera Bradley. Gone are white Reeboks, replaced with flip-flops or $200 Nikes.

Although the college students here are stylish, they aren't very patient.

We all should put on our thinking caps from kindergarten and realize that a huge transit system, born basically in three months, is bound to have a few kinks.

Sure, the route is a little asinine. And perhaps the lines run long and the buses could hold more folks, but is anything perfect at first?

The head honcho over this project has promised to make changes if the bus system isn't working. He's promised to add more buses, change the route and add more stops. Perhaps all those options should be looked at.

In the meantime, we should all be patient.

You should get on the bus anticipating a 30-minute trip. You should realize that not every bus that rounds the corner is going to be empty. And these are used buses — our permanent buses are being built as I type this column — and since they aren't new, we should be reasonable and realize that the air conditioning might not work all the time.

Anyone who has used mass transit knows that it's not perfect. Frankly, I'm surprised all the Atlantans who attend GSU are complaining. A 15-mile trip in the ATL routinely takes 45 minutes, and the last time I rode MARTA, it wasn't the picture of punctuality.

When I was in seventh grade I swore that I would never ride a school bus again. Old Yeller was the ultimate sign of un-cool.

All that being said, our administrators should keep a few things in mind, too.

For every hour that the buses burn gas on our campus, our school is spending $100 per hour per bus to ride the streets. Each of us, even those of you who have elected not to take the bus, have paid $40 to finance this new system. For all us math-challenged journalism majors, that equals out to about $600,000 per semester.

Let's hope that considering the financial investment these buses represent, our administrators will be swift in making the changes students see fit.

It's funny how times change. I wrote off school bus riding when I was in the middle of my primary education. Now, as a senior, hopefully approaching the end of my time in post-secondary ed. the same sort of hot, often-late and crowded mass transit is the ultimate cool way to get to my "grown-up" classes.

There aren't any single-file lines or teacher's helpers at college, but it seems the school bus is here for good and we should all get used to the idea of being a little patient.

Katie Anderson: YOUR TURN

A friend remembers Carl S. Wright

The first conversation I had with Carl Stephen Wright was during the summer of 2002. It is amazing that I remember the words we exchanged that day, because I could not tell you my first memories of any of my other friends. I was at a friend's lake house and had just walked in from a long, hard day of tubing on Lake Rabun. He was sprawled out on a couch, deep in thought and reading. I interrupted his concentration to ask him about the faded tan book in his hands. He told me that this book, Zen and the Art of Motorcycle Maintenance, was amazing and had changed his life. After we talked a bit more about his book and the lake, our brief conversation ended. I never would have thought that five months later, I would meet him again through one of my other friends and that Carl and I would become best friends.

Over the following three years, I got to know an amazing person. A man who had a passion for the outdoors, Carl longed for thrills on his fast motorcycle and adventures in hunting with his cousins. The Georgia Southern graduate climbed seemingly impossible mountains and could hike for weeks. Carl was a renaissance man who excelled in every sport he tried. He was a dependable friend that would do anything for the people he cared about. Carl was a tough man with an extremely sensitive heart who loved to learn. Carl was not content with being ordinary, and he followed in no one's footsteps but his own.

This kind, loving man worked with less fortunate children last year, and decided that he wanted to continue to help children by sharing his love of knowledge through teaching school. He made us all laugh without trying, and with his devoted dog Abby by his side, he knew that nothing was impossible.

On Thursday, August 11, 2005, one of my two best friends died. The person who knew me better than I knew myself left this world, full of its burdens, to meet his Maker. He could make me madder and laugh harder than anyone else could. Because of this kind, tough, sensitive man, I will never be the same person. I will never be as great as I was when he was around. It is hard to accept that a person I talked with everyday is no longer going to call, but I know he will forever watch over me.

If you were blessed with the opportunity to meet Carl Stephen Wright, you are among the luckiest people in the world. My thoughts and prayers will continue to follow his sweet, loving mother and the rest of his amazing family and cherished friends. I love you and look forward to seeing your smile and hearing your laugh in heaven, Mr. RIGHT.

Transit system positive for campus, needs some tweaking

I am glad that we have a new solution to the parking situation on campus. Overall, my experience riding the new transit system was a good one.

I believe this is one of the best solutions I have seen Georgia Southern put into place in effort to resolve our parking situation over the past four years I have been here. I do, however, have two recommendations for improvement that I would like to share with you in hopes that they may be taken into consideration.

Number one, make the transit system two-way. Have some of the buses run the route the opposite direction making the RAC, College of Education, Science and Technology... etc.

stops first. This way, students who have classes on that end of campus are not having to wait 30 minutes on the buses while they make their rounds through campus.

Number two, instead of having the buses travel all the way up Chandler Road making no stops, have them continue on up Forest Dr. This would be more convenient being as the longer buses are too big to turn around in front of the Bookstore and it would also be easier than having them make a right hand turn into traffic on Chandler Road.

Most of the riders I have spoken with had similar thoughts about the transit system. They expressed how they enjoyed not having to walk and the convenience of parking at the stadium and riding to their classes. They also expressed the recommendations that I have mentioned and thought them to be a good solution to improving our transit system.

Again, I would like to express how grateful I am for the transit system. It is a huge improvement from the previous years that I have attended Georgia Southern. I appreciate all of your efforts that are being done to help make Georgia Southern a better place.

Adam Fogle THE NEW VALHALLA

For GOP, Hillary '08 is a good thing

Unless you have spent the last year hiding under a rock, you know that "Hillary Clinton 2008 mania" has commandeered the collective political voice of America and created a Lilliputian feeding frenzy.

Shocking as this may seem, I love every moment of it.

I hope that she capitalizes where Howard Dean failed.

I hope she goes to Iowa and New Hampshire and South Carolina and Arizona.

I hope she goes to North Dakota and New Mexico and California and Texas.

And I hope she wins and wins and wins her way to the Democratic Party nomination. YAAAAAARRRRHHH! That said, don't get the wrong idea here.

I haven't gone soft and I haven't become a bleeding heart.

You see, by endorsing Clinton, the Democratic Party will be handing Republicans the White House on a silver platter.

The veracity of Presidential politics has shown nothing but doom for northeastern liberals like Clinton because the original sin of politics is failing to truly understand that the road to the White House goes through the South.

Since Dwight Eisenhower in 1952, no President has won or retained office without carrying at least six southern states.

The South accounts for nearly one-third of the electoral vote and has become a Republican stronghold.

Once you add the other solidly red states, the Republican nominee has roughly 208 electoral votes before Election Day even begins.

The Republican nominee needs only receive 62 of 134 electoral swing votes to achieve victory.

In order to compensate for the Republican advantage, the Democratic nominee must do one of two things: win in the south or carry a majority of the swing states.

But Democrats have slipped into an almost Pavlovian, dogmatic trance and will likely replicate their 2004 Presidential model and nominate another disaffecting, left-wing northeasterner.

Even if Hillary somehow manages to overcome geography, she must conduct a Presidential campaign while serving as a U.S. Senator.

The precedent is clear; you can be an active U.S. Senator, you can be a Presidential nominee, but you cannot be both at the same time.

As Hillary Clinton will likely discover in 2008, there are just not enough hours in the day.

John Kerry tried in 2004 and lost.

Bob Dole tried in 1996 and lost. George McGovern tried in 1972 and lost.

Barry Goldwater tried in 1964 and lost.

The only way Democrats can win the Presidency in 2008 is by nominating someone from a key Republican state or a large swing state such as New Mexico Governor Bill Richardson, U.S. Senator Evan Bayh of Indiana or former Vice Presidential nominee and U.S. Senator John Edwards of North Carolina.

But fortunately for Republicans, that won't happen.

There is no need to agonize over the inevitable Hillary run because every Clinton really does have a silver lining.

King suffers stroke

MLK's widow in Atlanta hospital in fair condition

By Errin Haines
Associated Press

ATLANTA — Coretta Scott King remained hospitalized in fair condition Wednesday and two family friends said the 78-year-old widow of Martin Luther King Jr. had suffered a stroke.

Her family is not discussing her illness, but Piedmont Hospital spokeswoman Diana Lewis said King's vital signs are stable, she is conscious and her indicators are favorable. Lewis said King will spend at least one more night in the hospital.

King was admitted through Piedmont's emergency room Tuesday, and the family issued a statement later saying she was resting comfortably. It expressed thanks for the "outpouring of care and support that's being sent from around the world."

The Rev. Joseph Lowery said King had suffered a stroke and was having trouble speaking.

King had canceled some recent public appearances, raising concerns about her health. Quoting unidentified friends, The Atlanta Journal-Constitution reported Wednesday that she was diagnosed with a heart malady this spring and has had several small strokes since then before the more serious one Tuesday.

Lowery, who co-founded the Southern Christian Leadership Conference with Martin Luther King Jr. in 1957, said he was initially told by someone in King's office that Coretta Scott King did not have a stroke, but he was immediately skeptical because the family is "very protective of her condition."

"She did have a stroke, take my word for it," Lowery said, though he later stressed that he had not confirmed her condition with the King family and is not speaking on their behalf.

Poet Maya Angelou, a personal friend, also said Wednesday that King had suffered a stroke. She said they spoke two weeks ago by phone and discussed her health problems. Angelou said she planned to go to Atlanta to see her.

"She's my sister friend and I pray for her and her children," Angelou said in New York. "Everybody, please give a good thought, a positive thought for Coretta."

At a June 30 ceremony at the Georgia State Capitol paying tribute to the King family, Martin Luther King III said his mother was "doing well" and was following doctor's orders to limit her activities. He gave no details.

In the family's statement Wednesday, Martin III said, "Please continue to keep her and us in your thoughts and prayers as she moves toward a speedy and complete recovery."

The Alabama-born Coretta Scott was studying at the New England Conservatory of Music when a friend introduced her to King, a young Baptist minister working toward a Ph.D. at Boston University. They married in 1953 and had four children.

After his assassination in Memphis, Tenn., in 1968, she founded the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Nonviolent Social Change in Atlanta and traveled widely to help foster her husband's dreams.

Ebenezer Baptist Church, where King remains a member and where her husband preached, had no immediate plans for a service related to her hospital stay.

Lifelong church member Shirley Barnhart first met King when Martin Luther King Jr. introduced her to the congregation as his new bride. "She has been my idol ever since," the 67-year-old woman said.

Pocket gopher subject of state search by biologists

The Associated Press

BRUNSWICK — Can the pocket gopher be saved?

The rodent, a secretive animal that usually goes unnoticed underground, is near extinction in south Georgia, biologists say. They're starting a new push to save the creature ecologists say does important work providing habitat for other animals and aerating the soil.

The Southeastern pocket gopher was once common across Georgia's coastal plain but has disappeared from much of its former range, said Jim Ozier, a senior wildlife biologist with the Georgia Department of Natural Resources.

"It's been an animal that's been largely ignored and gone unnoticed over the years. It is a very secretive animal that has just disappeared quietly," Ozier said.

Named for their pocket-like cheeks, the gophers are vital to the ecosystem. The rodent rarely ventures above ground but is considered a "keystone species" because its elaborate network of underground burrows benefit other animals and plants, Ozier said. The gopher is found only in the coastal plains of Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

Biologists think the species has been devastated by loss of natural habitat — longleaf pine savannas and naturally vegetated rolling sand hills. The gophers don't migrate and don't adapt very well to new habitat. "If they lose their habitat, they are pretty well gone," Ozier said.

Worried that the gopher's decline could have a negative ripple effect on other animals and plants, the department last month launched a two-year survey and population assessment.

"Our research will document the decline of pocket gophers in Georgia, identify remaining habitat and discuss steps to ensure the long-term survival of this species," Ozier told the Florida Times-Union.

Pocket gophers have been identified as one of Georgia's high priority mammals in the Comprehensive Wildlife Conservation Strategy, a state and federally funded plan that will guide future conservation efforts in the state.

The gopher survey will cost about $32,300. Pocket gophers are protected by state law, but not classified as threatened or endangered.

"They are an important and declining species that we don't want to see die out," Ozier said, adding that biologists don't know how many pocket gophers are left.

of their tail. The animals need loose, easily crumbled soil for burrowing. They also need areas with ground cover of flowery grassy vegetation because they feed on the roots of those plants.

The rodent can be considered a nuisance at golf courses, lawns or gardens because their burrows are marked by small mounds of sandy soil.

"We want to work with landowners to encourage them to maintain the habitat," Ozier said.

Fired airport design team sues Atlanta for $60 million

The Associated Press

ATLANTA — The designers of a planned international terminal at Atlanta's airport were fired from the project and promptly filed a $60 million lawsuit against the city.

In the lawsuit, the design team, led by the architectural firm Leo A Daly, claims Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International Airport owes $10 million for unpaid work and at least $50 million for damaging their reputation.

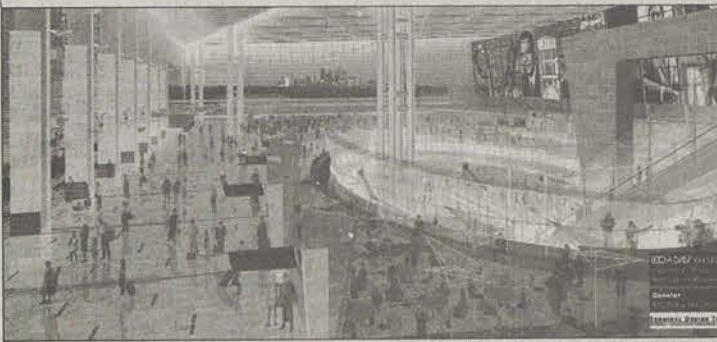

Airport General Manager Ben DeCosta fired the team Monday, calling their plans "over-designed" and "luxurious." He said they did not finish on time and that costs had soared at least $140 million above the initial $688 million budget.

But the lawsuit, filed Tuesday, claims the city-run airport acted in bad faith and with "malice and fraud" when it terminated the contract. Airport officials overseeing the project had been aware of growing costs — and kept adding to the project without wanting to pay for extras, the designers said.

"We put our hearts and souls into this terminal," said Jerry Voith, head of the design team. "This is a great design. ... I can't tell you how disappointed I am."

DeCosta said the airport will rebid the project. The new terminal, part of a larger expansion plan, was originally supposed to open next year but has been pushed back several times.

REGENTS

from the front

to the position earlier this month when the board met in Atlanta for its monthly meeting, but Chairman Tim Shelnut announced the decision would be postponed until details about the interim chancellor's job description could be worked out.

Several members of the board said privately that the delay was prompted by a desire to assure Gov. Sonny Perdue the board had considered all options, including other candidates, in filling the position.

Shelnut would not say if the governor's office submitted any other names for it to consider, saying "that really is covered in personnel issues."

However, he added, "It would be a horrible mistake for us in judgment not to keep the governor fully up to speed on our plans. But, yes, he has certainly met with Corlis and was very pleased with his meeting with her and supports our actions."

The university system enjoys special constitutional status to protect it from political interference, but governors appoint members of the Board of Regents. To date, Perdue appointees occupy 10 of the 18 board slots.

Shelnut said the contract which Cummings will be given as interim chancellor will impose no special limits on hiring or other decisions she may be called upon to make, but the job won't last long under the current plan.

Although Meredith's departure is uncertain, his new job in Mississippi takes effect Oct. 1, so Cummings certainly would take charge by then. The board hopes to name a permanent chancellor in December.

The interim chancellor will not be considered in the search for a permanent chancellor, Shelnut said.

Although he was given a new, one-year contract earlier this summer, Meredith is leaving the system largely because of pressure from Perdue for the unprecedented, midyear tuition increase.

"Chancellor Meredith did an excellent job during a challenging time for the University System of Georgia," Grube said. "We at Georgia Southern will miss him and his wife, Susan. We wish them well in Mississippi."

Owens returns to training camp

Rob Maaddi
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA - Terrell Owens returned to practice with the Eagles on Wednesday, one week after he was dismissed from camp following a heated dispute with coach Andy Reid.

Owens, again wearing camouflage and listening to oversized headphones, arrived at Philadelphia's practice facility at 7:27 a.m. He was greeted by several dozen fans, some holding signs, including one that read "TO must go."

Owens jogged onto the practice field shortly before the morning session began at 8:45. He ran routes, caught passes and even interacted with teammates, a marked contrast from his reclusive behavior earlier in camp. It didn't appear he spoke to quarterback Donovan McNabb. The two have feuded all summer.

The disgruntled All-Pro wide-out met briefly with Reid before practice.

"It was a good meeting," Reid said, avoiding questions about particulars. "He did a nice job. He worked very hard."

Owens missed several practices with a groin injury before he was sent home last week, so Reid limited his reps in practice to avoid aggravating the injury.

After spending a few days at his home in Atlanta, Owens returned to Philadelphia on Monday afternoon. A police escort led him from the tarmac and away from fans and reporters waiting at the airport terminal.

Owens' return to his home in Moorestown, N.J., Tuesday night was met with the same hoopla as when he left. He ignored reporters' questions, waved to fans and signed some autographs from a green SUV. Owens was accompanied home by agent Drew Rosenhaus and publicist Kim Etheredge.

Owens had said he'll report and give his all to the NFC champions, but won't be happy because the Eagles won't redo his contract.

The Eagles also refuse to budge off their hardline stance: Owens can play for them under the seven-year, $48.97 million deal contract he signed last year, or he won't play at all.

There was a message left on Owens'

"He did a nice job.
He worked very hard."

- Philadelphia head coach Andy Reid, on Terrell Owens' first day back at Eagles' camp

Web site last week that said he planned to catch more balls than he ever has and his "on-the-field heroics will far outweigh any off-field criticism."

"For you the fan, and your continued support in the most difficult of times, Terrell plans to reward you with a season for the ages. Where small men succumb, great men overcome," the message said.

It's no surprise that Owens has gone to the Internet to state his side of the story. After all, he's gone to the media to blast Reid from his driveway where he did shirtless stomach crunches and ripped McNabb on two separate television interviews.

How Owens and the rest of the Eagles and coaches deal with each other remains the most intriguing question for the next few weeks. Owens had been distant on the field with his teammates during his short camp stint and barely acknowledged the cheering fans.

There seems to be an irreparable rift between Owens and McNabb, who lobbied for the deep threat to join the team last year.

Owens and McNabb both say they don't need to talk to each other privately or on the field. While Owens blasted McNabb, calling the quarterback a "hypocrite" and saying the two could not be successful together (which contradicts his Web message), McNabb said the duo "can do special things together."

The Eagles sent Owens a letter detailing exactly why he was sent home last week after an argument with Reid. The team wanted to document exactly what its grievances are with Owens in case the bitter feud rises to the point where additional disciplinary action is necessary.

While the Eagles would love a happy Owens, right now they'd simply settle for a productive one. After cutting loose Freddie Mitchell and losing Todd Pinkston to a season-ending injury, the Eagles are thin and inexperienced at wide receiver.

Greg Lewis, Billy McMullen and Reggie Brown proved to be worthy targets for McNabb in Monday's game against Pittsburgh, finishing with a combined 12 receptions for 139 yards. Each had at least one catch for more than 20 yards.

Nice numbers, sure, but it's not the playmaking, showboating, exhilarating T.O.

Owens had 77 receptions for 1,200 yards and a franchise-record 14 touchdowns before severely injuring his ankle late in the season. He missed the final two regular-season games and the first two playoff games before returning for the Super Bowl, in which he had nine receptions for 122 yards.

Eagles wrap up two-a-day practice session with scrimmage

Grayson Hoffman/STAFF

GSU football players scrimmage at practice on Saturday.

GSU Athletic Media Relations

Jayson Foster capped the final two-a-day practice session accounting for three touchdowns during Georgia Southern's first preseason scrimmage, held Saturday evening at Paulson Stadium.

The team, wearing helmets and shoulder pads, practiced for 90 minutes Saturday morning in another hot and humid session that concentrated on special teams and some team offense versus defense drills.

Foster got his first TD when he connected with Tim Camp on a 46-yard touchdown pass down the left side. Camp got past the secondary and made an impressive catch. Later Foster scored from five and 15 yards out.

The sophomore quarterback looked to solidify his hold on the starting job, running seven times for 64 yards despite a 1-for-6 passing effort.

"Offensively, I thought we did a good job spreading the ball around. Tariq (Muhammad) had some good tackles and the defensive line made some good plays," said Foster. "I had a few missed reads but other than that I think I've been making good ones. We're making plays out there, which is certainly a positive."

Steve Steele broke through on a 76-yard run early on. Lionel McGriff took a pitch from Chris Griffin and raced 83 yards down the left sidelines for a touchdown.

Brandon Andrews rushed for 24 yards on five carries while younger brother Raja Andrews scampered for 23 yards, including a 15-yard TD run.

Quarterback Darius Smiley rushed six times for 17 yards and was 2-for-4 passing for 24 yards. Griffin rushed 10 times for two yards and completed a 14-yard pass. Ri'Chard Davis rushed nine times for zero yards but finished 2-for-3 passing for 35 yards. He connected with fellow freshman Patrick Paschall on a 15-yard touchdown reception. Chris Covington scored from six yards out, totaling 17 yards on four carries. Paschall netted 20 rushing yards while Maquice Maynard contributed 17 on four carries.

Defensively, Muhammad had four tackles, including two impressive tackles that drew cheers from the nearly 300 in attendance. Jerry Barker and Matt Wise both recorded a team-leading six stops. Damon Suggs, who recently moved from the offensive line to the D-line, had five tackles.

Jeremy Russell, Shun Williams and Wise each had two sacks.

Once considered a major question mark heading into the season, head coach Mike Sewak is feeling more confident about the quarterback position.

"I think Jayson did a great job moving the ball and Darius is executing the offense well. Both are capable of leading us to a victory," said Sewak. "I think we're in a great position right now (with these guys). Chris (Griffin) did a nice job today. Playing in this venue (Paulson Stadium) tonight and not committing a turnover, that will give us a chance to win some ball games."

The next scrimmage is scheduled for Saturday (Aug. 20) at 9 a.m.

OPINION

T.O. may be NFL's version of, 'when keeping it real goes wrong'

By Renaldo Stover
Staff writer

Terrell Owens is many things: Pro Bowl receiver, exciting playmaker, clutch in the big game, you get the picture.

Sadly though, I'm afraid I'll have to add "team disruption" to my list of descriptive words when it comes to explaining Owens' relationship with the Eagles since arriving at training camp this summer.

I don't have a problem with players asking for more money up front since NFL contracts are not guaranteed, however Owens is literally biting the hand that is scheduled to feed him three and a quarter million dollars this season based on the contract which he signed.

Owens had taken the high road by reporting to camp on time, after an off-season in which he demanded a trade and referred to Eagles quarterback Donovan McNabb as "the one who got tired in the Super Bowl."

The situation in Philly seems eerily similar to what took place in San Francisco, where Owens was accused of questioning quarterback Jeff Garcia's sexuality and where he berated an assistant coach on national television which was overboard, even for Owens.

Maybe Owens' train of thought is, "Hey, I got my way in S.F. and in Baltimore by burning every bridge in sight, maybe I can do it in Philly, cause I keeps it real!"

What Owens does not seem to comprehend is that the Eagles practically, saved him from having to play last season with the Ravens run-oriented offense, gave him a new contract last summer and crowned him savior throughout last season while he and "co-worker" Donovan McNabb sprinted toward the Super Bowl.

Fast-forward to the present situation.

Now Owens doesn't like his contract, isn't talking to teammates or the media and was kicked out of camp for a week because of a dispute with Philadelphia coach Andy Reid, although he was allowed back on the field yesterday.

On the field, I think Terrell Owens is one of the top three receivers in the NFL, along with Randy Moss and Marvin Harrison.

As far as team disruptions, he rivals the likes of Latrell Sprewell (choking incident), Ricky Williams (who quit prior to 2004 season but is back for 2005 after the Dolphins finished 4-12) and Ryan Leaf (total jerk).

Owens needs to accept his position and show up to work for the amount he and his agent agreed upon. If the Eagles decide to cut him at the end of this season, then he will be free to sign wherever he wants.

When that time comes, hopefully he'll read what he signs.

Women's soccer preparing for 2005 season

GSU Athletic Media Relations

With the season opener less than two weeks away, the Georgia Southern women's soccer team has one week of fall practice under their belt and continues to work towards its battle with Georgia Aug. 26 in Athens.

Second-year head coach Ashley Hart heads up a young squad and welcomes back six starters in addition to 13 incoming freshmen.

"I have been very pleased with our team over preseason," said Hart. "They have worked extremely hard and the new players are picking up our style of play quickly while our sophomores are stepping into their leadership roles."

The matchup with Georgia will be a stern test to see where the team stands this early in the season.

"We open our schedule with one of the toughest teams on our schedule," Hart continues. "Georgia will be very well coached under coach [Patrick] Baker and we will have to step out and play with confidence and not show our youth. It will be a great chance to compete with a very strong team in the SEC."

Sunday the Eagles got to see how far they had come and how much farther they needed to go when they took on Alabama-Birmingham in an exhibition contest in Peachtree City, Ga. Freshman Kate Boardman (Hilton Head, S.C.) and senior Jessica Rice (Pipersville, Pa.) each tallied scoring strikes for GSU, but a UAB goal in the final moments put the Blazers on top 3-2.

"It was great to step out against a top team like UAB who has NCAA tournament experience to find our strengths and also expose some of our weaknesses. We had a few first game jitters, which I expected with 6 freshmen starting. I was pleased with our returnees calming our team down and then our freshmen stepping up and playing key roles in the game. We now have a week and half to fix our mistakes and prepare for Georgia."

Kickoff on Aug. 26 is scheduled for 7 p.m.

GSU Athletic Media Relations

The Georgia Southern volleyball program began preseason practice last Monday, looking to build on last year's success.

"We are always excited to begin a new season," head coach Kerry Messersmith said. "We have been really impressed by the great shape that the team is in, especially the returning players. They are working hard to meet the goals that we have set."

Returning are three starters from the 20-10 team last season, including senior All-Southern Conference outside hitter Iulia Porumbescu.

Along with Porumbescu, ten letter winners and five freshmen will round out the squad.

The Eagles will begin their season on August 26th, in the opening round of the GSU/LaQuinta Inn Invitational. GSU will face off against Louisiana State in Hanner Field house at 2 p.m.

Eagle football to host ladies locker room

GSU Athletic Media Relations

Ladies are invited to join Georgia Southern head football coach Mike Sewak, the Eagle coaching staff and selected players for the 3rd Annual Eagle Ladies Locker Room at Paulson Stadium.

The clinic will be held on Friday, August 26, with registration beginning at 4:30 p.m. Those arriving early can catch part of the Eagles' final preseason scrimmage before their season-opener on September 3 at Northeastern. Dinner will be served at 6 p.m. and the program will begin shortly after.

This event is a football clinic for women where they can have fun while learning more about the sport of football and the history and traditions of GSU Football.

Topics for this year's event include: "Understanding Referees"; "Eagle Football Traditions"; "Georgia Southern X's and O's" for Offense, Defense and Special Teams; "Q & A" sessions with Eagle coaches and players; and a "Pep Talk" from head coach Mike Sewak.

The cost to attend is $20 which includes food, drink, a gift and door prizes. The event is open to women of all ages who are interested in having a great evening out and learning more about Eagle Football. The deadline to order tickets is August 22.

To order tickets or receive more information, please call Southern Boosters at (912) 681-5520.

Braves beat Dodgers 10-2

By Paul Newberry
Associated Press

ATLANTA - Jeff Francoeur homered, tripled and threw out another runner from right field, leading the Atlanta Braves past the Los Angeles Dodgers 10-2 Wednesday night.

Andruw Jones hit his major league-leading 38th homer and Tim Hudson went eight strong innings for the Braves, who bounced back from the disappointment of losing on a three-run ninth the previous night.

The 21-year-old Francoeur is off to a dazzling start since being called up from the minors July 7. He had his first career triple and followed with 10th homer of the season, a two-run shot in the fifth that knocked out Dodgers starter Odalis Perez.

Francoeur also threw out Perez trying to stretch a single into a double - the outfielder's ninth assist and only one behind NL leaders Geoff Jenkins of Milwaukee and Cliff Floyd of the New York Mets.

Not bad for a guy who's played only 30 games in the majors.

Another rookie outfielder, Kelly

Johnson, had three RBIs for the Braves.

Hudson (9-7) gave up seven hits and both Los Angeles runs. He breezed through the first five innings, scattering four hits while the Braves built a 7-0 lead.

Atlanta leadoff hitter Rafael Furcal did his job, reaching base five times. He had four hits and a walk, scored a run and drove in another. Chipper Jones chipped in with two RBIs.

Perez (7-7), who began his career with the Braves, was roughed up for 11 hits and six runs in four-plus innings.

He failed to get an out in the fifth, giving up a leadoff homer to Andruw Jones and a single to Julio Franco before Francoeur prompted the pitching change with a mammoth, 417-foot drive into the left-field seats.

The Braves jumped ahead right away.

Furcal led off with a single, tagged on a flyout to deep center and trotted home on Chipper Jones' double into the left-field corner.

Francoeur started the second with a drive off the right-field wall, racing all the way to third while Jayson Werth scrambled to retrieve the ball. Johnson followed with a run-scoring single and wound up scoring the first of his three runs on Furcal's single, pushing the Braves to a 3-0 lead.

Atlanta added four more in the fifth to blow it open. After Perez was knocked out, Jonathan Broxton walked three of the next six hitters, including Chipper Jones with the bases loaded.

Andruw Jones, whose homer started the inning, struck out to finally end it.

Hudson's only slip-up came in the sixth. Jeff Kent had an RBI double to break up the shutout, and Werth singled in a run.

Johnson added a two-run triple in the eighth.

Around the National League

Marins 6, Padres 0

MIAMI - Dontrelle Willis pitched a five-hitter for his fifth shutout this season, and the Florida Marlins shook a hitting slump to beat the San Diego Padres 6-0 Wednesday.

Willis (16-8) doubled home two runs for the Marlins, who accounted for all of their scoring in the first two innings against Woody Williams (6-9). Carlos Delgado hit his 23rd home run, Florida's third in 12 games.

Willis struck out three, walked one and benefited from three double plays. He leads the major leagues in shutouts.

In his past five starts, Willis has allowed only two earned runs in 37 innings, an ERA of 0.49.

San Diego fell a game below .500 but remained atop the NL West - the latest division leader has had a losing record.

Mets 5, Pirates 1

NEW YORK - Carlos Beltran scored twice in his return from a frightening injury, sparking Tom Glavine and New York.

David Wright and Jose Offerman each hit two-run singles for the Mets, who learned Wednesday that catcher Mike Piazza would miss at least a few games with a broken bone in his left hand after being hit by a foul ball Tuesday night.

A day after opting not to have facial surgery, Beltran reached base three times to help the Mets to their 12th win in their last 15 home games. Cliff Floyd was on base four times, hitting two singles and being walked intentionally twice.

Glavine (9-10) scattered nine hits in seven-plus innings, improving to 20-12 against the Pirates and moving into sole possession of 30th place on the career wins list with his 271st.

Aaron Heilman got the final six outs for his first save.

Jason Bay homered and doubled for the Pirates, who fell to 2-10 on the road against NL East teams. Josh Fogg (6-8) took the loss.

Cubs 4, Astros 2

HOUSTON - Nomar Garciaparra homered one inning before leaving the game with a stiff lower back, and starter Carlos Zambrano homered and went 8-1-3 in Chicago's victory over Houston.

Garciaparra was said to be day to day after hitting his second homer of the season and then leaving in the fifth inning. The shortstop was making his 10th start since returning after tearing his left groin in April.

Zambrano (10-5) allowed three hits, three walks and struck out 10 for his third win in four starts. He is 6-1 in his last 10 starts.

Ryan Dempster came on with one out and one on in the ninth. Mike Lamb reached on a fielder's choice and after another out, Adam Everett walked to load the bases. Dempster earned his 16th save by getting Brad Ausmus to ground out to end the game.

Roy Oswalt (14-10) gave up four runs and eight hits in seven innings. After a stretch of going 9-2, Oswalt is 0-2 with a 4.67 ERA in his last four starts.

Phillies 4, Nationals 3

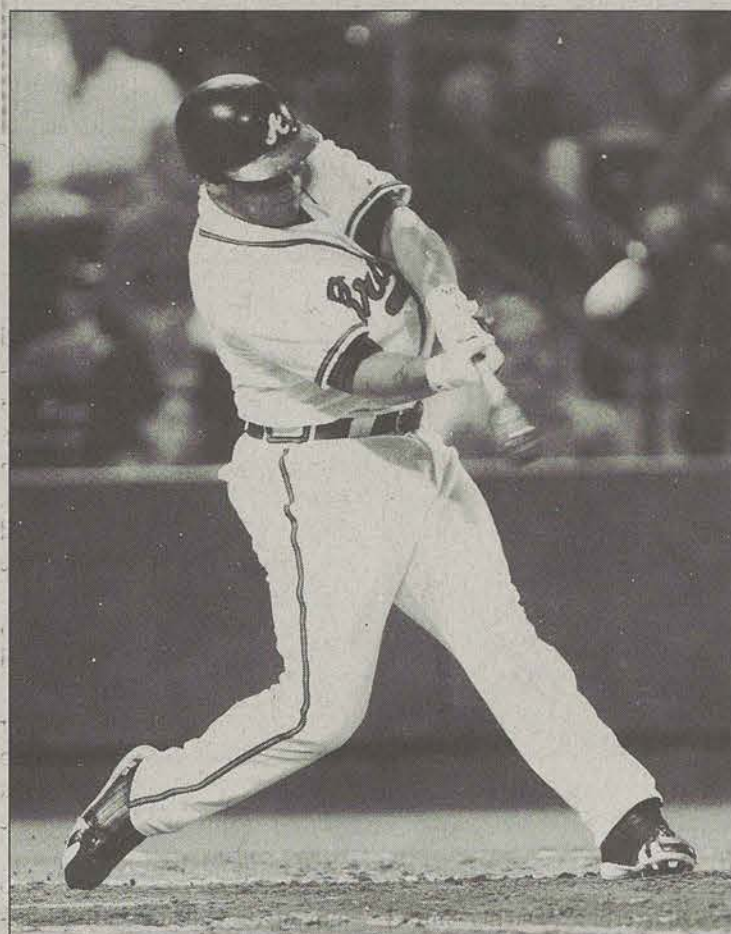

PHILADELPHIA - Jon Lieber pitched six strong innings, and Bobby Abreu hit a two-run double to lead Philadelphia over Washington.

The victory moved the Phillies into a tie with Houston atop the NL wild-card race, and Washington remained a half-game behind.

Lieber (12-10) allowed two runs and three hits to win his third straight start after losing six of seven decisions.

Billy Wagner pitched the ninth for his 28th save.

Esteban Loaiza (7-9), who gave up four runs and 10 hits in 5-2-3 innings, was the losing pitcher.

NHL hockey returns this October

By Bryan Metcalf
Staff writer

On July 22 the NHL owners voted unanimously in favor of the league's new Collective Bargaining Agreement that was reached just over a week earlier.

The NHL Player's Association ratified the new CBA the day before. After becoming the first professional sports league in North America to lose an entire season to a labor dispute, the NHL is back.

The question, however, is who even noticed they were missing in the first place? Before the lockout began September 15 last year, the league was rapidly losing money.

According to Forbes Magazine, the NHL lost about $200 million over the past two seasons. The NHL had stated their losses at closer to $500 million over that same period.

These losses are in large part due to an apparent lack of interest in hockey in the United States, where 24 of the 30 NHL teams are located. Each team receives only $4 million from the league's cable TV deal.

By contrast, NFL teams earned about $81 million from their TV deal during the 2003 season.

A sold out hockey game will have only about 20,000 fans present. A sold out football, basketball or baseball game will have closer to 50,000 fans. Sports fans simply don't care that much about hockey.

League revenues in the 2003-2004 NHL season were over $2 billion. The best estimates for the 2005-2006 season are $1.7-$1.8 billion.

The new CBA hopes to fix the problems of revenue and bring more competition and fans to what is literally the "Coolest Game on Earth." The players will be taking a 24% roll back on all of their existing contracts. They also have accepted a salary cap, the one thing they said they would never accept.

The cap system ensures that teams will spend between $21.5 million and $39 million. The maximum salary is set at $7.4 million, with a minimum of $450,000.

The new six-year deal also carries some new rules for the NHL. Goalenders will see the size of their equipment and the areas where they can handle the puck more strictly regulated.

The nets will be moved two feet closer to the end boards, and the red-line pass rule that was put in place after its debut at the 1998 winter Olympics in Nagano will be removed from the books.

The league is also adding a shootout to decide games that remain tied after regulation and a five-minute overtime period.

With a new CBA in place, the league moved on to setting up an entry draft. All 30 teams were placed in a lottery drawing, with teams that did worse in recent years getting the best chance at earning the number one overall pick.

The Pittsburgh Penguins received the top pick, which they used on Canadian standout Sidney Crosby. Crosby has been tagged as the next Wayne Gretzky by some media outlets.

His 2.8 points per game in Juniors beats out even Mario Lemieux's mark of 2.5.

The new deal has also allowed Pittsburgh, which finished dead last in the NHL in 2004, and other smaller market teams to sign big name players they would not have been able to acquire under the old CBA.

The Penguins, for example, have signed former Philadelphia star forwards John LeClair and Mark Recchi, while Phoenix has signed future hall of fame goalie Curtis Joseph.

The 2005-2006 NHL season will begin on October 5.

Today's Birthday (08-18-05). Rely on a partner who can maintain objectivity. Use lots of expert advice this year, to enhance your decision-making skills. To get the advantage, check the day's ratings: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging.

Aries (March 21-April 19) _ Today is an 8 _ There's hardly time for everything you'd like to do, so choose.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) _ Today is a 5 _ Be careful taking on a big assignment. Do it for love, not for money.

Gemini (May 21-June 21) _ Today is a 10 _ You're not only having a marvelous time, you're winning the respect of somebody you admire.

This is just how it should be.

Cancer (June 22-July 22) _ Today is a 5 _ Nobody else needs to know exactly how much you have stashed away. You should find out, however.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) _ Today is an 8 _ You're in for more opposition. This is not a bad thing. A compromise can be reached that works for everyone.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) _ Today is a 6 _ A technical challenge may have you temporarily stopped. Take deep breaths, and call in an expert.

It's OK.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) _ Today is an 8 _ You're good at solving puzzles, today more than ever. Clean up an old mess, and rejoice.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) _ Today is a 5 _ The dilemma that appears next seems to be insurmountable. Instead of pushing, wait.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) _ Today is an 8 _ Keep studying, even when the material gets difficult.

Believing you can do it really helps.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) _ Today is a 6 _ Ask for what you want. The odds are excellent you'll get it now, easily.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) _ Today is an 8 _ OK, you can travel now. That may cause consternation, however, if you leave a loved one behind.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) _ Today is a 5 _ Finish old paperwork and keep promises. You'll make an impression on an important person that's worth more than cash.

Athens rock history draws tourists, stumps preservationists

By Doug Gross
Associated Press

ATHENS The rusty, tin roof is still standing, but not much else remains of the so-called Love Shack, made famous by the B-52s' 1980s pop music hit.

There's just a steeple left from the church where one of the world's biggest bands, R.E.M., once lived, recorded and threw rollicking all-night parties.

Other landmarks in a town some say still boasts the world's highest per-capita number of rock musicians are long gone or threatened by projects ranging from new apartment complexes to extra parking spaces for college football tailgaters.

Still, the tourists flock to Athens to see them. Every year visitors from as far away as Japan arrive in this college town of about 100,000, looking for their own slice of the scene that has launched R.E.M., the B-52s, Widespread Panic and hundreds, if not thousands, of other bands.

"We get people who come take pictures of the steeple or take small rocks from the base of it," said Bob Sleppy, director of the nonprofit music resource center Nuci's Space. "There are people who go to the cemetery still to see (former B-52s guitarist) Ricky Wilson's grave. There were people who went to Allen's (a defunct diner mentioned in the B-52s' "Deadbeat Club") to eat a greasy cheeseburger just to say they were there."

At the Athens Welcome Center, officials say at least 10 percent of the 1,100 visitors who stop in each month are in town strictly because of the music scene. They estimate thousands more music tourists visit on their own and others who arrive to live, work or attend the University of Georgia first heard about the town through its rock legacy.

"We had two women from Germany in here last week and one of them said, 'The reason we've come to Athens is because of R.E.M.," said George Granade, who has volunteered at the welcome center since he retired in 1998.

But some locals fear the landmarks of a music scene that exploded into the consciousness of the nation and world in the 1980s are disappearing.

Visitors can still eat at Weaver D's Delicious Fine Foods, the soul food eatery with the "Automatic For the People" slogan that inspired the name of a 1992 R.E.M. album. They can check out bands at the famous 40 Watt Club — albeit in its sixth location since it opened in 1978 — and take a walking tour of spots where seminal acts such as Pylon, Love Tractor and Guadalcanal Diary once performed.

The years haven't been kind to other spots.

In December, fire gutted a five-room cabin on the outskirts of town where the B-52s' Kate Pierson once lived, and which is considered the inspiration for the group's Top 40 hit "Love Shack."

"The Church," where R.E.M. lived, recorded and appeared in the 1986 documentary "Athens, Ga.: Inside/Out," was torn down in 1990 to make way for condominiums. The steeple is all that remains of the old St. Mary's Episcopal Church. It's beginning to crumble and owners of the Steeplechase Condominiums have found no takers willing to adopt the landmark, with its liability concerns and thousands of dollars in needed repairs.

"There's a real sense of urgency," said Jeff Montgomery, co-owner of athensmusic.net and a member of the government-backed Athens Music History Project. "That thing is starting to show its age."

After years of haggling, the Athens-Clarke County government bought a historic railroad trestle pictured on the cover of R.E.M.'s 1983 album "Murmur." They plan to incorporate it into a series of bike and hiking trails, but some supporters feel Tailgate Junction, a parking area being built nearby for Georgia Bulldog football fans, threatens the site's appeal and the integrity of the old trestle.

In a town where they say you can't swing a guitar without hitting a musician, plenty of individuals and groups are taking their own small cracks at preserving and promoting Athens' rock history.

Sleppy heads the Athens Music Preservation Society, which seeks to archive obscure and hard-to-find recordings of the town's music scene.

Kate Pierson and Fred Schneider, background, of The B-52s perform at the 40-Watt Club in Athens in this Jan. 1994, file photo. Every year visitors from as far away as Japan visit Athens, looking for their own slice of the scene that has launched R.E.M., the B-52s, Widespread Panic and hundreds, if not thousands, of other bands.

AthFest, an annual summer music and arts festival, frequently features historic exhibits and early plans have been made for a "Walk of Fame," with plaques noting sites significant to the town's rock history.

But few of the groups have coordinated their efforts and none have the big money backing for projects such as an official rock history museum, which has been discussed for years.

"It sort of ebbs and flows," Montgomery said of the Athens Music History Project. "We're a little bit dormant now."

He says the group has talked about an official repository for music memorabilia, but the discussions have never gotten far. "That's something, that's always on the back burner that we'd like to see down the road, but right now it's not extremely tenable for us to do," Montgomery said.

The closest the town has now is an annex at Wuxtry Records — a downtown landmark in its own right since 1976 — which owner, Dan Wall has dubbed the Athens Music Museum.

Dan Wall, right, talks with University of Georgia graduate student Brook Reynolds in front of his Athens Music Museum in Athens.

The modest space, which Wall opens several days a week, features rare albums and CDs, posters promoting classic Athens music shows and other items, such as copies of the first T-shirts ever made for R.E.M. and the B-52s.

"It started out as just a little showcase of Athens music," Wall said. "That case multiplied and multiplied until we couldn't keep up with it and became so overflowing we had to get an entire building for it."

Tourism officials in Athens say the benefits of music tourism are clear. Folks who flock to town pay for hotel rooms, meals, cocktails and souvenirs. But they say the prospects of getting government money to restore old sites or build new ones seem slim.

Those devoted to preserving the town's musical past remain optimistic.

"We all have a very strong desire to not forget the past," Sleppy said. "We understand that change happens, but to just disregard the past is something we all want to make sure doesn't happen."

Almost two-thirds in poll remember a teacher who made a difference in lives

By Will Lester
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The most memorable teachers may be good at bringing a school subject to life, making the classroom fun, listening to students talk about their troubles or training them to trust their own instincts.

Or maybe all of those things. Most people say they remember a teacher from their school days who made a difference in their lives, an AP-AOL News poll found. For many, that teacher connected with them on a personal level far beyond the class subjects.

"She took the time to listen to a student and ask questions and she really cared," said Diana Jackson, a 57-year-old account manager from San Antonio. "She had no qualms if you wanted to stay after school and talk, it didn't have to be about her class. The last day of school, I was crying."

Almost two-thirds in the poll, 63 percent, said they remember a teacher who changed their lives.

Dolphie Potter, a mother of two from Jacksonville, Fla. who now works in sales, recalls being told by a school counselor that test results suggested she should go into a mechanical field.

Her world history teacher sensed this advice, on top of other pressures, had upset her. Potter, who had just lost her parents, was living with relatives, attending a new school and looking for encouragement.

"It's only 10th grade," the teacher told her. "Be what you want to be." "I was alone and the new kid," Potter said. "He made me feel like I was not an idiot."

Teachers often are remembered for lessons that have nothing to do with school subjects, said David Inaba, a 39-year-old resident of Riverside, Calif. He had a sixth grade teacher who made one class about bullying in the classroom.

"A little girl was getting picked on," Inaba recalled, so the teacher used the rest of the school day to talk about the damage done by picking on a classmate. "She went out of her way to show us what people were doing to this little girl, that what you do affects other people. It made me stop and think."

Almost half of those polled pointed to a high school teacher who changed their life. Some mentioned elementary school teachers, middle school teachers and college teachers. Women were more likely than men to remember an elementary school teacher who changed their lives.

Sharon Clark, a dental assistant from Florence, Ky., remembers an elementary school teacher who found ways to make each one of her students feel special. And she's confident that good teachers like her aren't getting paid what they deserve.

"They're helping form the future leaders of our country," Clark said. "A lot of children come from broken homes and are being raised by a single parent. They don't get the attention they need, the help they need, the family is just not what it used to be."

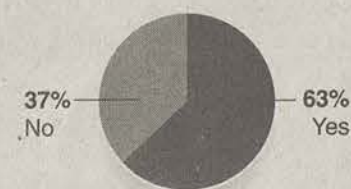

The effects of a memorable elementary school teacher were not evident until years later for Stewart Fletcher, a homemaker from Suwanee, Ga.

"She was kind, she was loving, and positive, and you were happy to go to school every day. She made everyone feel like they were successful and a winner. I just loved her, I grew up and wanted to be her," said Fletcher, who Bronco provides musical entertainment at Saturday's iConcert.

iConcert provides fun and music for Welcome Week

By Cheryl Frost
Staff Writer

Saturday as part of Georgia Southern's Welcome Week, the Student Activities Center hosted an iConcert outside the University Bookstore, sponsored by Apple Computer, Dominos Pizza, the University Store and GSU's 91.9 The Buzz. Live entertainment by Bronco, kept the crowd upbeat with their energetic performance.

Students were drawn to the sidewalk party by free pizza and drinks.

Then representatives from 91.9 The Buzz, gave away prizes, but calling the items 'free' would be inaccurate as the radio station made the students work for their freebies.

For keychains or water bottles, all a person had to do was provide something with the number 91 on it, like driver's licenses, dollar bills and even underwear tags. For a larger prize, participants were asked to do something extreme, like sing or dance in front of a crowd. One young man was awarded a t-shirt for having a third nipple, while another did a break dance for a free hat.

"I just came here to hear the band," said graduate student Ashley Anderson, who was handed a t-shirt for licking the sidewalk. Other people stumbled across the party quite by accident. Sophomore Amy Gunther, was on her way to work at the Russell Union movie theater, when she stopped to enjoy the festivities.

"I'm just chilling before work," said Gunther, who agreed the iConcert was a nice way to start her shift.

Student representatives for Apple Computer also joined in the game of giveaway, offering Apple promotional products to those who could answer trivia questions about the university. They also offered participants the chance to win a free iPod or free iTunes, and got to show off Apple's impressive line of student-friendly computers.

While the party fizzled out, when the food and drinks ran out, the iConcert was still a great social event and lots of fun. The workers did an excellent job organizing it and provided an insight into what can be expected for the rest of Welcome Week 2005.

Junior Eagle Club invites young fans to experience GSU Athletics

By Christina Calloway
Staff Writer

LaVene Bell-Koepeke/STAFF

Junior Eagle Club member Riley Callaway gears up for future GSU games.

Kids follow a regular routine: they eat, they sleep, they go to school and sometimes they play. Georgia Southern Athletics understands the aspects of being a kid and is launching a new program to cater to its youngest fans.

The Junior Eagle Club is an organization for Eagle fans up to the 8th grade, according to NCAA regulations. Ricky Ray, GSU's marketing director, is excited about the program.

"I think it's something that is going to be lots of fun and it's a good way to get kids involved early."

For $15, parents can sign up their children for a kid-centered package that includes an official membership card, a GSU backpack, a "Go Eagles!" wristband, complimentary admission to select GSU sporting events, the club's e-newsletter, a birthday surprise from Gus and various Junior Eagle Club events, including clinics and autograph sessions with Eagle student-athletes.

GSU Athletics plans to allow admission to a few of the spectator sports that GSU has to offer, which Ray says will help to build crowds and introduce children to sports they may not have been familiar with. In previous seasons, young GSU fans only had Junior Eagle Day with perks such as $1 game day tickets.

The Junior Eagle Club will provide a better outlet for involvement with GSU before children are high school students thinking about which college they would like to attend.

While many may think the organization is only about money, Ray says the organization is about community and establishing a connection with local children.

"Junior Eagle Club will keep the GSU name in front of people and with a school like this in a tight-knit community, Junior Eagle Club helps further the ownership of GSU."

A membership drive was held the first week of August, but parents are welcome to sign their children up all throughout the 2005-06 season, even at football games.

Information about signing up for the program is provided at GSU's homepage as well as at www.georgiasoutherneagles.com.

"We've had a good response so far and hopefully the kids will be excited," says Ray. For more information contact Amber Crouch at 912-681-0051.

Students at the RAC try to knock each other down as part of the Eagles Night Out.

Students swing into semester with Eagles Night Out

By Angela Beal
Staff Writer

The eagles were out in full force Sunday during the Eagles Night Out festivities held at the RAC. The event offered all forms of entertainment, everything from free food and giveaways to climbing walls and mechanical bulls.

The event was fun for students as well as organizers. "Eagles Night Out is a chance for the students, new and old, to learn more about Georgia Southern University and Campus Recreation Intramurals (CRI), not just tonight, but all year long," said facility coordinator and event co-creator, Mr. Carter Walton.

Eagle Entertainment advisor, Mr. Bill Pickett, was on hand assisting with the events as well. "I feel that Eagles Night Out is a major kickoff event for Welcome Week. We want the students to get to know each other and how to get involved on campus."

Cassie Tibbitts, 18, of Douglas County expressed her excitement about the event. "It's fun," she said. "I've met so many people tonight." With a host of student organizations in attendance, there was something for everyone to get involved in.

Facility intern and event co-chair Sriravong Sriratanakoul felt that the event was a great representation of the university. "It's great to see CRI, Eagle Entertainment, MAP and other organizations come together to put on such an awesome event for the students—they are being informed about the university and having fun at the same time."

Team leader, Angela Leaphart says that an attendance of over 1,000 was expected, but she believes that number was exceeded, especially with the chance to win a free iPod during one of the giveaways.

Tony Pryor of Marietta was the winner of the iPod. "I enjoyed tonight, mainly because I won. The first thing I am going to download will be Young Jeezy and Akon."

This was truly an event that delivered fun and excitement to the students. Sound stage team leader Brenda Bridges felt that the event was beyond successful. "It's fantastic! Amazing crowd, great food and prizes. Everyone's excited about the first week of classes and Welcome Week activities and I can guarantee it's going to be hot!"

TimeShop invites students to time travel

Special to The G-A

There's one travel abroad opportunity at Georgia Southern that students may not have heard about. TimeShop is gearing up for a third successful year in which student volunteers take kids (8-12) on exciting journeys into world history, and beginning August 25, a series of informational sessions is planned for interested students.

"We have more than 40 GSU students in the TimeShop Team," said Dr. Annette Laing, TimeShop Director. "They keep coming back because, plain and simple, TimeShop is huge fun, and it attracts dedicated and enthusiastic student volunteers. One of our students not only chose to spend her birthday at TimeShop last year, but she brought her kid sister to participate in the program."

Students help to plan and run the program, in which children move among rooms in the Nessmith-Lane Continuing Education Building, experiencing the past through scenery, music, food, encounters with costumed characters and much more.

"TimeShop is unique for lots of reasons," Laing said. "It's all based on solid scholarship, so we tend to be a bit 'edgier' than most programs aimed at kids. We don't shy away from gross stuff, for example. We don't host school groups, so instead we have to work to show kids that a history program doesn't have to be boring. Most importantly, the whole event is suffused with excitement, joy and some really poignant moments."

TimeShop: Wartime England is scheduled for February 16-19, 2006, while Medieval France is planned for April 7-9, 2006.

"Because we are planning two different workshops this year, we need to increase the size of the Team. We'll need enthusiastic students to serve as TimeShop Guides, costumed characters and 'behind-the-scenes' folks," Laing said.

Laing stressed that TimeShop is also a great way to meet people. "The great thing is that the Team is an awesome, interesting, and incredibly diverse group of students, and so this is as much a social opportunity as a volunteering opportunity. We welcome all majors, from chemistry to business to interior design, and all class levels, from freshmen to grad students. Even if you're not sure you like working with kids, come check us out!"

Prospective volunteers can visit the TimeShop webpage at <http://class.georgiasouthern.edu/timeshop>. For more information on the series of TimeShop student volunteer information sessions beginning Thursday, August 25, e-mail TimeShop@georgiasouthern.edu.

Hundreds of Gaza settlers defy evacuation deadline, await confrontation with Israeli troops

By Amy Teibel
Associated Press

NEVE DEKALIM, Gaza Strip — Hundreds of Jewish settlers defied a midnight Tuesday deadline to leave Gaza, attacking Israeli troops and dancing around the Torah in celebration of their resistance to Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's historic plan to disengage from the Palestinians.

While a few of Gaza's 21 communities were deserted by midnight, settlers and their supporters in other outposts hunkered down to await a dawn confrontation with Israeli forces prepared to forcibly evict them. Settler leaders shouted over bullhorns for protesters to go to bed and conserve their strength.

Earlier, some 2,000 Israeli troops poured into Neve Dekalim — the largest settlement and epicenter of resistance.

Soldiers marched in formation through the gate and fanned out through the village. Commanders carried maps, and troops took up positions near the industrial zone, linking arms to form a cordon. Other soldiers went house-to-house, trying to persuade residents one last time to leave voluntarily.

At times, both settlers and soldiers were reduced to tears as they argued over wisdom of Israel's abandoning Gaza, land seized from Egypt in 1967 and the focus of deadly Israeli-Palestinian conflict for decades.

One woman was overheard telling a soldier how her mother was forced to pack her bags and flee Nazi Germany. "Just remember that you are the evil one who is throwing me out of my house," the woman said, rebuffing the soldier's offer of help.

Moments before midnight, scores of settlers were in synagogues in several Gaza communities, dancing around sacred Torah scrolls. They waved flags and sang nationalist songs in a show of defiance against Sharon's plan to unilaterally hand the territory to Palestinian control.

Israeli officials said about half of the Gaza's 1,600 settlement families had left voluntarily. At least three settlements were abandoned, and several more were nearly deserted. Military spokeswoman Miri Regev said the army would assist anyone who wanted to leave voluntarily, even after the deadline.

Earlier in Neve Dekalim, the army burst through the main gate to clear the way for about 120 moving trucks. Within hours, a crowd blocked the trucks from entering, and scuffles erupted when security forces tried to push the crowd back.

Protesters pelted soldiers with bottles, eggs and stones, and set fire to garbage bins and tires. Smoke blackened the air. Police said four officers were injured — one by an unspecified liquid thrown in his face.

Settlers in several farming communities burned their greenhouses and homes rather than leave them behind. One man punched holes in the walls of his house with a sledgehammer.

Defense Minister Shaul Mofaz said he expected the evacuation to take two about weeks. "I look with hope to the future, that the price we are paying ... will in the end bring about a positive change in Israel's situation," he said.

appoint two investigative judges to determine legal responsibility.

Venezuelan investigators were focusing on the possibility of contaminated fuel, or some other fuel problem that led both engines to fail simultaneously, said Nelson Serrano, an emergency official in the western state of Zulia where the crash occurred.

Investigators took samples from what remained of the engines, but "the near-total destruction of the plane makes this investigation tough," police investigator Hernan Zurita said.

"The one thing that can cause an engine like that to have a problem is fuel contamination," said Paul Czyns, emeritus professor of aerospace engineering at St. Louis University in the United States. "It could be water. It could be any number of things."

Stocks rise after oil prices slip, but inflation worries loom

By Ellen Simon
AP Business

NEW YORK — Stocks climbed Wednesday on drooping oil prices and an upbeat outlook from Hewlett-Packard Co.

But inflation concerns are capping the day's rise, as government data showed wholesale prices for July increased by the largest amount in nine months thanks to higher gas prices.

Wall Street has been looking warily for signs that higher energy costs are accelerating inflation, which could curb consumer spending, raise business costs and spark more interest rate hikes by the Federal Reserve.

On Wednesday, the Labor Department reported that its Producer Price Index, which measures price pressures before they reach the consumer, jumped by 1 percent in July, the biggest advance since a 1.5 percent increase last October. Rising "impact costs," the costs of raw materials, energy and just running a plant, are affecting companies' earnings, said Jeanne L. Mockard, a senior portfolio manager at Putnam Investments.

The drop in oil prices still cheered investors enough to send stocks slightly higher, however. A barrel of light crude was quoted at $64.25, down $1.83, on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

In midday trading, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 61.01, or 0.58 percent, to 10,574.46.

Broader stock indicators also rose.

Stampede ensues at school computer sale

By Kristen Gelineau
Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — All in the name of getting a bargain.

People being trampled, beaten with a folding chair. A woman urinating on herself. The police being called, then having to call themselves for backup.

The stampede erupted Tuesday when thousands showed up at the Richmond International Raceway to purchase $50 used laptops. The Henrico County school system was selling 1,000 of the 4-year-old Apple iBooks to county residents. New iBooks cost between $999 and $1,299.

"I could not move, I could not breathe," said Latoya Jones, 19.

Officials opened the gates at 7 a.m., but some already had been waiting since 1:30 a.m. When the gates opened, it became a terrifying mob scene.

People threw themselves forward, screaming and pushing each other. Witnesses said an elderly man was thrown to the pavement, and someone in a car tried to drive his way through the crowd.

Seventeen people suffered minor injuries, with four requiring hospital treatment, Henrico County Battalion Chief Steve Wood said. There were no arrests and the iBooks sold out by 1 p.m. Police estimated around 5,500 people turned up for the sale.

"It's rather strange that we would have such a tremendous response for the purchase of a laptop computer — and laptop computers that probably have less-than-desirable attributes," said Paul Proto, director of general services for Henrico County. "But I think that people tend to get caught up in the excitement of the event — it almost has an entertainment value."

Jesse Sandler said he was one of the people pushing forward, using a folding chair he had brought with him to beat back people who tried to cut in front of him.

"I took my chair here and I threw it over my shoulder and I went, 'Bam,'" the 20-year-old said nonchalantly, his eyes glued to the screen of his new iBook, as he tapped away on the keyboard at a testing station.

"They were getting in front of me and I was there a lot earlier than them, so I thought that it was just," he said.

Blandine Alexander, 33, said one woman standing in front of her was so desperate to retain her place in line that she wet herself.

Campus volunteers work together during residents' Operation Move-In

By Tori Ivey
Staff Writer

Crowded parking lots and concerned parents were rampant as Georgia Southern volunteers helped students move their things into the residence halls Friday during Operation Move-In.

Faculty, staff and administrators welcomed nearly 4,000 students moving into the 11 dormitories on campus, according to University Housing.

Starting on August 12, students reported to the RAC for their keys and inventory papers before unloading.

Parents, students and professors were not the only ones carrying boxes, clothes, furniture and cleaning supplies.

Volunteers from the Parents Association, Eagle Entertainment, Baptist Student Union and Student Government also helped.

Operation Move-in is designed to lessen parents' fears of leaving their children.

History professor Lisa Denmark volunteered during Operation Move-in and thought that the event helped parents deal with leaving their children away from home.

"Some parents were stressed out," Denmark said. "You could see the relief on their faces as they met some professors who helped them move boxes and who were able to answer some of their questions."

Wade Hall helped his daughter unload her car and move into Johnson Hall.

"The hardest thing to unload was all of Jessica's clothes," said Hall. "But other than that, it was pretty easy moving in and all the people were really helpful."

Even though moving in was a big event for all students, the main attraction at GSU this year was the new dorm, Eagle Village, where only freshman will reside for the year.

Chelsea Warren, a resident of Eagle Village, said, "I like living in Eagle Village as opposed to a dorm like Johnson or Oliff because I actually have my own room and I only have to share a bathroom with one person."

Eagle Village has apartment-style dorms with two, three and four bedroom rooms available. "However, I don't like how far I have to walk to all of my classes from home," said Warren.

With only a couple of days before classes started, Operation Move-In was a weekend-long event with plenty of full boxes and empty dorm rooms with not quite enough time to unpack boxes, get books, pay fees and decorate bare rooms.

Work continues on $31.8 million RAC expansion

By Casey Altman
Assistant News Editor

The plans and blueprints are finished and construction began May 2005 on the new RAC Expansion. The approximately 120,000 square foot addition will include space for additional indoor courts weight/fitness rooms, indoor pools, and outdoor upgrades as well, including sand volleyball courts, extended walking trails and a covered performance stage with raised platform.

The total project cost is $31.8 million and it will be paid by an increase in the student RAC fee, approved last year by the Board of Regents. The RAC fee for the 2005-2006 school year is $128, an increase of $43 from last year's fee of $85, according to the Office of Student Fees.

According to Director of Campus Recreation and Intramurals Gene Sherry, a large atrium area will be located just inside the entrance. It will include a snack bar and the entrance to new administrative offices.

The project will include four basketball courts, an indoor and outdoor pool, about 18,000 square feet of additional fitness space with new exercise machines and a new Southern Adventures Center for renting outdoor equipment like canoes, tents and sports equipment.

The main entrance will be moved, and the entrance tower will be completely glassed in to provide a view of the new climbing wall. The project will also include an expansion and upgrade of the outdoor fields.

GSU representative Architect Haroun Homayun of the physical plant planning, design and construction department says that construction is moving along as planned.

Grayson Hoffman/STAFF

Despite rainfall, RAC construction is on track and, upon completion, the new addition will offer indoor and outdoor pools, extended walking trails, another lake, a covered performance stage, outdoor sand volleyball courts, additional weight and fitness rooms, four additional basketball courts and a new Southern Adventures Center.

"Currently we are pouring concrete slabs. We divided the building into 6 different zones and we have completed two of the zones so one third of the slab is complete and the site is being prepared through the grading process," he said. "Underground utilities are being completed and we will start excavating the pools soon. There will be an indoor pool, an indoor whirlpool and one outdoor pool."

Regular rainfall has slowed the construction process according to Homayun but he says it should not create any long-term delay and the RAC will continue to be available to students until construction has ended.

"Rain has been inconvenience but we are hoping to make up the time. Every effort will be made to stay on schedule. We want to complete the new part first and make it usable before renovating the old part," said Homayun. "It will be a continuous process so building will not be shut down at any time during construction."

Homayun says that in the second phase of construction, three multipurpose practice soccer fields by Akins Blvd will be completed. The jogging track will be extended to circle the building and lakes. At the RAC entrance, another lake will be added so there is a lake on each side.

The club field closest to Old Register Road will remain open to students during and after the expansion, but the field closest to the RAC will be closed to provide space for the expansion. Club teams will be afforded a space within the M.C. Anderson Park (Multiplex Fields) to practice during the time of the expansion and afterwards until the remodeling of the Multiplex fields, which includes new field space, is finished.

Georgia's fallen soldiers to be honored

Special to the G-A

Flags on public buildings will be lowered to half staff and clergymen from different faiths will lead a Capitol memorial service Thursday as Georgia pays tribute to its service members who have died in Iraq.

Four more have been killed since Gov. Sonny Perdue first announced plans for the memorial.

Perdue tearfully called for the vigil and moment of silence two weeks ago after the Georgia National Guard's 48th Brigade suffered losses for the third time in 10 days. Four more have died since then, bringing the unit's losses to 16 since it deployed to Iraq in June.

At 1 p.m., the hour set for the moment of silence, the fallen will be remembered during a prayer service in the statehouse. At roughly the same time, members of the 48th will participate in the observance in Iraq.

Georgia Public Broadcasting will provide live television feeds of the ceremony to stations across the state.

Perdue previously has called on Georgians to pause at 1 p.m. to pay homage to the fallen.

On Wednesday he signed an executive order directing flags to be flown at half staff on all state buildings and grounds to honor not only the fallen but those who continue to serve in the Middle East.

Among the 48th's latest casualties were three members of a Douglasville-based detachment killed Monday when their vehicle overturned during combat operations in south Baghdad.

The Pentagon identified them as Sgt. Thomas Strickland, 27, of Douglasville; Spc. Joshua Dingler, 19, of Hiram and 21-year-old Sgt. Paul Saylor of Norcross.

A fourth serviceman, Spc. Michael Stokely, 23, of Loganville, was killed early Tuesday morning after he stepped on an improvised explosive device, said his wife, Niki.

In an emotional news conference on Aug. 4, Perdue called for the state to pay tribute to the fallen servicemen.

"These most recent deaths fall especially close to home because they are members of our citizen-soldier brigade. They live next door. They're our neighbors. They're part of the community," he said, his voice choked with emotion and his eyes brimming with tears.

The prayer service is scheduled to begin at 12:30 p.m., and will include prayers by Protestant, Catholic and Jewish clergymen. A lone bagpiper will send the notes of "Amazing Grace" skirling through the building.

Capitol police said they expect that an extremist religious group from Topeka, Kan., which has picketed similar memorial services for soldiers, will demonstrate on the Capitol sidewalks.

"We're going to make sure nobody gets hurt and everybody gets a chance to express their freedom of speech," said State Patrol Capt. Al Wilson, director of the Capitol police department.

Atlanta panhandling ban approved despite protests

Associated Press

Protesters yelled "Shame!" and "Crybaby!" as city council members approved a ban on panhandling near tourist attractions, but the mayor is expected to sign the legislation.

The ordinance, approved Monday, makes it illegal to ask strangers for food or money near downtown museums and the Martin Luther King Jr. National Historic Site.

The measure was pushed by business owners who say the area is awash in aggressive beggars, but it got spirited opposition from civil rights groups and advocates for the poor.

The ordinance will become law when Mayor Shirley Franklin signs it. Franklin has said she supports the panhandling ban, but a time for her to sign the bill hasn't been set, said her spokeswoman, Catherine Woodling.

The vote capped a summer of debate over the proposal, pitched by a business group in advance of a large aquarium opening downtown in November. The council delayed the vote at least three times because of protests.

Some argued the panhandling ban was an illegal limit on speech. One council member who supported the ordinance, Felicia A. Moore, said before casting her vote: "I'm not sure if it's constitutional or not."

On the eve of Monday's vote, several dozen protesters camped on the lawn of city hall, and the crowd swelled to more than 200 by the time the council met.

"The ability to ask for alms is a God-given ability. You can pass laws to protect trees, but what about human beings? God help us!" protester Elisabeth Omilami told council members.

Only a few of the speakers favored the ban, and they were jeered. Georgia State University student William Moore told the council, "We're tired of students being harassed" by panhandlers. But someone in the crowd shouted, "Crybaby!" and Moore left the room.

The area near the King center was added to the panhandling ban Monday after some critics said the original proposal was neglecting tourist areas of interest to blacks. Center officials did not immediately return a call Tuesday seeking comment.

Violators of the ordinance would get a warning on the first offense and a referral to a city resource center on the second. A one-month jail sentence is possible on the third offense.

When approved, Atlanta would join cities including Orlando, Fla., and Indianapolis with no-panhandling zones.

After the vote, several people, including former city councilman Derrick Boazman, were led away in handcuffs after shouting and refusing to leave the council chamber. "This is a day nobody in Atlanta should be proud of!" Boazman shouted.

Police did not immediately return a call Tuesday seeking detail on the arrests.

Dorm Economics 101.

frontier® HIGH-SPEED INTERNET ONLY

Perfect for apartments, dorm rooms, students and faculty.

It's the same great high-speed Internet service that we offer with our packages, but without the dial tone. It comes right through your existing phone jack so there are no holes to drill and no cables to run—and no slow-poke cable guy to cramp your busy schedule.

Here's what you'll get:

- Fast and easy installation.
- Download speeds up to 3 Mbps.
- An always-on connection—no waiting to dial up or log on.
- Instant access to WebCT, GoSOLAR, research sites, music, videos, e-mail and instant messaging.
- The best value in raw high-speed Internet access—without any extra services you don't yet need.

Call 681-3634 today.
