Legislature problems

Monday morning, January 14, the Georgia General Assembly convened to write its answer to what has been called a "red flag" bill. The bill is working its way through the Senate and may become law if the 185th General Assembly session begins, and in that event, the Bull & Herald must face the parting shot into the political and cultural world.

But the situation is far worse, and the people are continuing to work at the same time. And, despite what has been said, the people are continuing to work at the same time.

And there are other matters we are working with during this forty days. We hope to be able to report progress in the near future.

The question is, do the people think this progress will continue?
