Operation Slow Down and Live is workable

More than 800 cars were stopped Friday night between 7 p. m. and 1 a. m. during the first phase of the State Bureau of Operation Slow Down and Live.

Designed by those young business men to impress upon tourists using our U. S. 301, U. S. 25, and U. S. 80 that to slow down might be the insurance for living, the operation was considered very successful.

More than 400 cups of coffee and 300 cups of orange juice were served to the tourists and their small fry when they responded to the Jaycees' signal to stop.

The highway hospitality of these young men was graciously and enthusiastically received with high praise from every person who stopped. Many expressed profound appreciation of the idea behind the operation and felt sure that it would mean the difference between safe arrival at their destination and possible disaster.

A side benefit not deliberately conceived was the good will that the Jaycees built up for our community with tourists using our highways. They "sold" Statesboro. They handed out a brief account about Statesboro, they talked to their "guests," they learned about other sections of the country.

There will never be any way of knowing if Operation Slow Down and Live actually saved lives on the highways during the long Labor Day weekend. But, if nothing else, the few minutes each automobile driver and his family spent here over a cup of coffee or orange juice provided them with a brief respite and renewed energy for their trip.

The Statesboro Jaycees were not the only Junior Chamber of Commerce group to participate in this operation. Many of the Georgia clubs were doing the same thing. It had the approval and support of Governor Griffin. And we hope that when the Jaycees meet at their next national convention that this project will be made a nation-wide operation. There can be no doubt that it could do a great good.

Traffic accidents and highway killings are fast becoming a part of our casual acceptance of our pattern of living. It's a shocking admittance—but can it be denied?

And anything, such as this Operation and Slow Down and Live that can be conceived to jar us out of our casual attitude toward the frightful fact that over 100 people are being killed every day, that over 6,000 are being injured every day, deserves approval and strong support.

We commend these young men of Statesboro. It's not an easy job to do what they did last weekend. They should have the applause of every person in our community.

Rather have polio? It needs to be done

So you'd rather have polio? If we were to put such a question to you and you thought we were serious you would bow your top and accuse us of having gone out of our mind.

But we do ask you the question. And we're not out of our mind. Dr. Hubert King, director of the Bulloch County Health Department, reported last week that only 200 adults had the good sense to report to one of the seven clinics sponsored by the Bulloch County Medical Society to receive the first polio immunization, and only fifty-eight had reported for their second shots.

We join Dr. King in hoping that every adult will secure immediately these shots to protect them against this deadly disease. Unless the adults of our county manifest more interest in immunizing themselves against polio we cannot blame the health department and the county medical society for abandoning their clinics.

So it would really seem that you'd rather have an attack of polio—or you would have already had your first shot and be standing in line for your second shot. And it could be too late.

We are pleased with the reception of the first installment of Chapter 1 of "The Story of Bulloch County." The second installment of Chapter 1 appears in this week's Herald. There will be many more and we hope that you'll keep up with the story as it unfolds here.

Our project has emphasized the need of preserving the existing old records, deeds, letters, newspapers, receipts, church minutes, copies of family histories, and all materials which can reveal the past of our great county. We found many items that, with time, will be lost—items that should be preserved that they might be seen by future generations.

We would like to see provisions made at our Regional Library for preserving and displaying these historical items. We would like to see citizens of the county who have such items "lend" them to the library that a real appreciation of the heritage that is ours might be developed. We would like to see the provisions made for properly displaying them that the children of our county might see how their ancestors lived.

Here is a wonderful opportunity for our county commissioners, our school board, our city fathers to join forces with those citizens of the county to "point with pride" at what helped make Bulloch County the great county it now is.

THEY'RE BACK... DRIVE CAREFULLY...

This Week's Meditation

By The Rev. L. E. Houston Jr. Hold up the hands of all those who seek to bring the Kingdom of God to reality in our day. Read: Exodus 17:8-13

The average Christian pastor often has someone to complain to him: "You say I ought to do something for the Lord? What can I do? I have no special talent to be of service to God's cause in the world?" A honest question deserves an honest answer.

Tucked away in the seventh chapter of the book of Exodus is the account of a battle in which the Israelites engaged the Amalekites. Moses had instructed Joshua to choose his men and go out to battle. And then he made Joshua this promise: "I will stand on the top of the hill with the rod of God in my hand."

The next day, Joshua began the battle and Moses went up to the mountain, accompanied by Aaron and Hur. When Moses' hands were raised, the tide of battle turned in favor of Israel, and when the hands of Moses were down, it turned in favor of the Amalekites. Soon Moses tried so that he could not lift his arms, and it seemed as if he were about to be defeated. It was then that Aaron and Hur stood on either side of the exhausted prophet and held up his hands until the sun had set. And the writer of Exodus reports: "Joshua moved down Amalek and his people."

Note that the victory of Israel was accomplished only with the aid of two rather insignificant men who were called "hand-holders" for Moses. "What can I do for the Lord?" You can become a "hand-holder" and help the inward goodness of your life, the faithfulness of your prayers, and the sincerity of your love for God and His Church, you can off the main thoroughfares as local residents take to the back streets and alleys to reach their destination. Many people have suggested that the situation could be considerably eased on the local level by the making of additional streets in Statesboro available to local traffic on a thorough basis. This would of course mean the opening up of these avenues of travel to outside motorists in some events but it is believed that the flow of traffic on these streets could be controlled by local ordinances.

THE LARGER cities are spending millions of dollars in the making of expert studies in a desperate effort to remedy serious problems brought about in the ever increasing road placed upon our city streets and inter-state highways by a traveling public.

Small cities, under attack by automobile clubs and highway associations to ease the flow of traffic, are making every effort to give traveling public better and safer conditions on their streets as they pass through from one locality to another.

Residential areas, long free from the noise and rush of heavy traffic, face the possibility of having quiet avenues opened to a constant flow of passenger cars and trucks as part of the answer to the dilemma.

HERE IN STATESBORO where streets are filled with the flow of travelers along three federal highways, local traffic finds itself virtually crowded

NO MORE PRESTIGE Colleges are putting in more entrance exams this fall. You will find out something about how good the teaching is at your high school. You'll also see a new college pattern: no more going to college because it is stylish. They'll get in now only if they have the brains and high school training. Answer: more study, more good teaching, and community colleges.

INCOMING TEACHERS Applications for certificates from out-of-state teachers and from other countries took a sharp upward spurt in July. We had 195 that month that paid one dollar each for a Georgia certificate. With last year's applicants, this brings us up to more than a thousand foreign teachers who have qualified to teach in Georgia schools this fall—and we're still short!

WHERE, OH WHERE? The United States is short 135,000 qualified teachers. The schools are opening with 143,135,000 children in our public schools, says Lawrence Derick, U. S. Commissioner of Education. If your child has a good teacher, better keep her happy!

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

This week finds a change on our editorial page. Senator Herman Talmadge's column is out but we expect to have it back in when the Senate reconvenes next year.

Let our readers get the idea that we deliberately discontinued the Senator's column we quote from a letter he wrote us dated August 28: "I am deeply grateful to you and The Herald for the prominent place you have given my column."

"I regret that I must suspend it during the forthcoming recess, but the fact that I am planning to make some fifty speeches throughout Georgia will preclude any writing effort on my part during that period."

This week the Rev. Lawrence Houston, pastor of the Pittman Baptist Church, then the Rev. J. W. Groves, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, then the Rev. Page of the First Baptist Church wrote in for a while. This week the Rev. Houston begins writing it. From time to time the column will be conducted by other Bulloch County ministers.

I remember a semi-invalid in a former church who could not get on his feet on Sunday but she kept the congregation informed by telephone of the activities of the church, and was invaluable help to her pastor. She was a "hand-holder."

Dr. Paul S. Rees of Minneapolis, Minnesota, tells the story of Dr. A. C. Givert of Boston, who preached a Sunday morning sermon with this sentence: "Everyone can win a soul to Christ." After the service, a quiet little woman, who was a seamstress and a faithful member of his congregation, took him to task for his statement. "You know," she says, "that I cannot go out and do soul-winning. As a seamstress I stay in my shop all week and only get out on Sunday for church." Her kindly pastor smiled and asked: "What about the milkman and the paper boy? Have you ever asked them about their relationship to Christ?" She dropped her eyes and muttered: "No."

The next morning when the milkman arrived at her door, she was up to meet him. After they had exchanged morning pleasantries, she rather timidly asked him, "sir, have you ever committed your life to Jesus Christ?" He answered, "I was saying to my wife this morning that our boys ought to be in Sunday School."

At the end of the year she had won twelve persons to Christ and His church. One month, and he was the one who complained that her pastor's request was unfair. She had become a "hand-holder," and you can become one, too.

COLLEGE STREET could ease the load of local traffic on all three of the federal roads all the way from the city limits on the north to the city limits on the south. This street would feed into U. S. 301 on the south side, by following its present route with the exception of the allowance which would have to be made at the 301 entry. At that point an entry could be made by opening a road across the state property immediately across the highway from the college gate.

Here I would ask that you bear in mind the fact that these plans have to do with the convenience of travel for local residents and the paramount concern being the safety and welfare of Bulloch County citizens.

At some future time it might be necessary to make these two avenues of traffic one way. Should this action be taken these two streets would answer for a long, long time. Of course one would be open to traffic to the north and one to the south.

We continue with this discussion next week.

Now the whole earth had one language and few words. And as men migrated in the East, they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. And they said to one another, "Come, let us make bricks, and burn them thoroughly." And they had brick for stone, and bitumen for mortar. Then they said, "Come, let us build ourselves a city, and a tower whose top shall reach to the heavens; and let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth." And the Lord came down to see the city and the tower, which the sons of men had built. And the Lord said, "Behold, they are one people, and they have all one language; and this is only a beginning of what they will do; and nothing that they propose to do will now be impossible for them. Come, let us go down, and there confuse their language, so that they may not understand one another's speech."

Today an addition might read: And they said one to another, "Come, let us build a radio so that we may send our voices over the earth. Let us make a TV set so that we may be seen over the earth. Come, let us build airplanes so that we may fly everywhere like birds. Let us build an atom bomb so that we may destroy our enemies. (One small atom bomb will destroy a city—it is not powerful enough. Let us build an hydrogen bomb—it will be much more powerful—it could destroy us as well as our enemies). Come, let us build a rocket ship so that we may travel to Mars or the moon. Come let us learn all the language of all the earth; and from there the Lord Scattered them abroad over the face of the earth." Gen. 11:1-9. Now some of these things have already come to pass, except the last one. Radios, TV, airplanes, atom bombs, hydrogen bombs, and many other miracles. The unsolved mysteries of space and life still challenge man. He does declare that he will soon discover how life came into being. One scientist has insisted that no one need expect a baby to crawl out of a test tube (well, that's not true, but this discovery of life will be on a lower level).

The chapter can't be completed, of course. The future seems to depend on man's attitude. Will man remember to fall down on his knees and worship God for these miracles or will he forget and claim these miracles in the name of science. Come, let us await God's next move.

Colson Grooms, James Wilkerson, Samuel Slater named commissioners on the Rebel Road from Burkhalter Ferry to Frederick Miller's."

But so far we've been unable to locate the Rebel Road. Do any of our readers know where William Goodman, Fred K. Miller, Jesse Thomas, or James Lewis lived in the 1800's. Or does anyone know where Young's Ferry, Buckhalter's Ferry, or Tillman's Ferry were in the early days of the county?

All these are mentioned in references to the Rebel Road and if we could find in what sections of the county these people lived or the locations of these several ferries, then we might be able to put together the several segments of the Rebel Road.

We need this information to complete our chapter on the County Roads in our "The Story of Bulloch County," now appearing in The Herald.

We'll appreciate any information on this subject.

Worship with them this week

Naturally you want them to have all the good things in life... a happy home... a good education... plenty of chances to meet other nice young people. But be sure to give them the most precious gift of all... Faith.

The wonderful part is that faith is yours to give... no matter who you are, what you do for a living, how much money you have in the bank.

Faith is the gift you give a little at a time. Every week you worship with the children at your church or synagogue. The youngsters see you... the biggest, smartest, most important people in their world... asking God for help, thanking Him for blessings. Then it's clear to them... here they can always find the strength they need, always find the happiness they want.

Then you've done the best a parent—any parent—can do.

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is one of a series of personality sketches on members of the Statesboro Business and Professional Women's Club.

In Statesboro lives a lovely lady who is partly responsible for the stardust in many a little girl's eyes.
Owner and operator of The Children's Shop, Louise Olliff sells dolls—dolls of all makes and costumes to fit. In addition to dolls, she sells toys and wearing apparel to delight any youngster.
Like an alert business woman, Mrs. Olliff is keenly interested in her town and community, and the advance of women in their careers. She has taken an active part in the Statesboro Business and Professional Women's Club since she became a member, and believes in its slogan of training to be "A better business woman for a better business world." She has served the club as an officer, and in many other capacities.
Mr. Olliff is capable at home and at her place of business. She is married to B. R. Olliff, and lives on South Zetterover Ave. Ext., Statesboro.

He's planting power in Georgia
IN ANY SEASON of any year you will find electric line construction crews planting power poles in Georgia. Years ago the holes were dug by hand with iron bars and long-handled shovels. Above, you see one of the modern earth-boring machines.
In about a minute this giant auger can bore a hole eight feet deep and 24 inches wide. Years ago it took two men half a day to do such a job.
Today we have many labor-saving machines to do many of the jobs which once were done by hand. Such progress is reflected in the high quality of your electric service and in the low price you pay for it.

Wille Wiredhand Says
SERVICE... not PROFIT!
FIVE SIMPLE PRINCIPLES guide the operation of every cooperative. Application of these principles has electrified rural Georgia.
TODAY, 41 rural electric cooperatives serve over a quarter-million owner-members, who were in the dark, little over 20 years.
SIMPLY STATED these principles are the essence of democracy. Here they are:
1. SERVICE—not profit, is our guide in making all decisions.
2. DEMOCRATIC CONTROL—one member, one vote. People, not money, control a co-op.
3. OPEN MEMBERSHIP—anyone who needs our service may join the co-op.
4. NO BIG PROFIT—for invested capital—only interest is paid.
5. ALL SAVINGS—are returned to members, based on their use of our services.
THESE PRINCIPLES, alone are not enough. It still takes people—dedicated people—who are willing to work with their neighbors for a common cause. Then the principles are applied. They have been with great success! That's why we say...

CO-OP ELECTRICITY IS GOOD FOR GEORGIA!

Chapter I — Installment 2
EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the second installment of Chapter I of "The Story of Bulloch County." We continue laying the foundation of the history of Bulloch County, as begun in the first installment last week.

In 1773 a treaty was made with the Creek Indians in which the Indians gave up the coastal lands between the mouth of the Ogeechee River and the mouth of the Altamaha River in return for which they were to be relieved of the debts they owed to traders like George Galphin and James Jackson and Company.

This treaty of 1773 opened up for settlement a large area of pine lands referred to as the "pine barrens" which covered the present counties of Bulloch, Emmanuel, Effingham, Tattnall, Appling, Ware, Wayne and Telfair. This pine land was considered poor and was not settled as rapidly as other sections of the state. However, settlers did come. Hardy pioneers from Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina came into these lands, many of them by way of Burton's Ferry over the Savannah River, settling in what later became Screven County and Bulloch County.

Many were the types of settlers who came in. Some had property and a few slaves. Some were poor, hoping to establish a homestead for their families. Some were shiftless drifters and some were fugitives from the law.

The land along the Ogeechee River was good oak and hickory land. This was taken up and settled first. Behind this was the piney woods which was settled slowly. The first settlers were stockmen.

Early settlers in Bulloch County

White, a Georgia historian, in his "Statistics of Georgia (1849) gives the following names as being some of the first settlers of Bulloch County: Benjamin Cook, Bernard Michael, John Everett, Andrew E. Wells, George Threacraft, Charles McCall, Alexander Stewart, M. Buckhalter, A. McKenzie, Daniel Lot, Arthur Lott, Wm. Mizell, Lewis Lanier, Clement Lanier, D. Hendrix, N. Sweet, Mr. Olliff, Mr. Shorter, the Groovers, the Hodges, the Hagins and the Cones.

While the early settlers in St. Philip's Parish were establishing themselves as hardy frontiersmen, the Colonies to the north were becoming dissatisfied with their treatment by Great Britain.

It seemed that these settlers in Georgia, upon whom the Trustees and later Parliament had spent a great deal of time and attention and money, might have been grateful enough to remain loyal.

But the wrath of many of these people was encouraged by the other twelve Colonies. Then settlers, who thought of themselves as Americans rather than English, moved into Georgia from other Colonies where there was discontent and they brought their feelings with them. And England had begun to tax the Colonies without consulting them in order to raise money to pay the large debt incurred in the defense of the Colonies against the Indians, French and Spanish.

This Is The Story of Bulloch County

All these conditions combined to build up an organized resistance in Georgia which took form as the "Liberty Boys." The situation worsened and on July 27, 1774, every patriot in Georgia was called to come together at a tavern in Savannah kept by Peter Tondee. The leaders of this group were Archibald Bulloch, John Houston, Noble W. Jones and George Walton.

Because this meeting was not truly representative of the Colony another meeting was called for August 10 with delegates coming from all the parishes.

In January, 1775, this radical group held the first of a series of meetings which they called "Provincial Congresses." They finally took over the authority of the Colony and drove the English governor, James Wright, out.

On July 4, 1775, the Second Provincial Congress met in Savannah and was attended by more than a hundred delegates from every parish in the Colony. They elected Archibald Bulloch president and George Walton secretary. They pledged to import nothing from England, to give up the custom of wearing mourning for the cloth could be secured only from England, to drink no East Indian tea, and to promote manufacturing and the raising of sheep.

The Third Provincial Congress met in April, 1776. The framework of government was changed. A temporary written document was drawn up. The Congress would elect a president and commander-in-chief to serve six months. A Council of Safety, composed of thirteen men, would advise the President. The Congress elected Archibald Bulloch, who had been President of the other Congresses.

In February, 1776, the Georgia delegates appointed to the Continental Congress in Philadelphia were Archibald Bulloch, John Houston, Lyman Hall, George Walton and Button Gwinnett. They were given no further instructions than to do what they thought best for the Colony. When independence was voted in the Continental Congress, the signers from Georgia were George Walton, Button Gwinnett and Lyman Hall.

Up until this time Georgians had been slow to rebel in great numbers against the British. But now the patriots began to feel bitter toward those still loyal to Britain.

Constitution adopted in Feb. 1777

With the signing of the Declaration of Independence Georgia turned quickly to the business of organizing a state government. A convention produced a constitution which was adopted in February, 1777. It provided for a governor, a legislature and courts. Since that had repudiated the government of England they wanted to abolish the parishes which represented the Church of England. To take the place of the parishes the counties of Burke, Camden, Chatham, Effingham, Glynn, Richmond, Wilkes and Liberty were created. What was to become Bulloch County was included in Effingham at that time. Archibald Bulloch was asked to serve as governor until the Legislature could meet and elect a governor. Bulloch died before this could be done. Button Gwinnett was acting governor until the election of John A. Treutlen in 1777.

For the most part the American Revolution was a dreary war for Georgia. A battle was fought at Briar Creek in what later became Screven County. This battle was disastrous to the patriots. No doubt some patriots from the south side of the Ogeechee River took part in this engagement.
The organized strength of the patriots in the new state of Georgia gave way to small guerrilla bands of frontier fighters who hid in the woods, struck out from time to time and then hid in the woods again.

In addition to the patriots living in Bulloch County, then Effingham, there were some Tories who supported Britain.

It is recorded that one of these patriots turned Tory and became an officer with the British troops. He was Daniel McGirth who was born in South Carolina and moved to Georgia. A natural woodsman, he was one of the best scouts in the American Army. But because of an unjust demand that he surrender his horse, "Gray Goose," he became bitter against the Americans and joined the Tories. The British recognized his worth and made him an officer. He kept the Colonists from Middle Georgia to the coast in constant terror. The section, which later was to become Bulloch County, was a favorite resort of this Daniel McGirth. A man named Cargile lived here and it was known that he harbored Tories and gave them information about the patriots. He had been warned that it meant death for him to be seen with Daniel McGirth. William Cone, hunting deer on the Ogeechee River one day, saw McGirth and Cargile together in the woods. He shot and killed Cargile. McGirth escaped. Some say that Cone allowed McGirth to escape because of the warm spot in his heart for the American scout, turned Tory.

At another time the Tories stole the horses of a group of settlers and carried away all they could get their hands on. Headed by Captain William Cone the settlers pursued the thieves. Of this incident L. L. Knight wrote:
"Finding, after a shower of rain, that they were close on their heels, they sent forward one of their number to reconnoiter. The approach of this man became known to the Tories, one of whom, starting out to make investigations, was killed by the scout who was concealed by a log. This was the signal for an attack, whereupon the patriots rushed forward, drove the Tories into the Ohoopce River and recovered the stolen goods. It is said that this raid ended the power of the Tories in this neighborhood."

William Cone died at Ivanhoe
William Cone came from North Carolina to South Carolina and then to Georgia. He was born about 1745 and died in 1822. He served in the American Army during the Revolution under McLean and Francis Marion. The latter part of the war he fought Tories in this section of Georgia. He lived in what is now Bulloch County and died at Ivanhoe. His grave is east of Joe Cone's field in a thickly wooded section between the Old River Road and the Ogeechee River. It is identified by a marked erected by the Daughters of the American Revolution. He was married to Kesiah Barber.

One of the most far-reaching laws passed during the Revolution dealt with the Tories. Because they had supported the British their property was confiscated and they were banished from the state under penalty of death if they should return. The law, passed May 4, 1782, was known as the Act of Attainder and Confiscation and was administered by a central board of commissioners. They moved from one part of the state to another, selling these confiscated properties to those who had fought for independence.

Out of particular respect for certain Revolutionary heroes the state made them gifts of land from time to time. Captain William Cone was granted land confiscated from a Tory, William Powell, in Effingham County, now Bulloch County, in 1785. Several other grants were made to Captain Cone in 1786, 1788 and 1793.

A deed, dated December, 1793, recorded in the Clerk's office of Bulloch County, shows that 200 acres of land, originally the property of Joseph Johnson, a Tory, was confiscated under the Act and sold to Charles Odingsell, then sold to George Threacraft.

And so the foundation of what was to become Bulloch County was laid and those brave patriots who played the leading roles so lived that the heritage that today is ours is one of which every citizen of Bulloch can be proud.

CARE OF CORN
Mrs. Betty Alexander, consumer information specialist, Agricultural Extension Service, says it is best to choose small plants for transplanting. They are much easier to handle and a better root system can be obtained. When a large tree or shrub is moved the feeder roots are greatly reduced, no matter how much care is taken. That means that a great number of these large plants will die from lack of an adequate feeder root system.

The Statesboro High School Blue Devils will open their 1957 season tomorrow night when they play the Douglas High School team here in Memorial Stadium. Game time is 8:15.

In a pre-game statement Coach Ernest Teel and Assistant Coach Ray Williams agreed that this year's edition of the Blue Devils cannot be expected to equal the fine record of last year when they went through the entire season undefeated.

"It's hard to beat a eleven win and one record," Coach Teel said. Last year the Blue Devils won ten regular games, one section game with Ellijah and tied Carrollton 6-6 for the Class A championship which they share with Carrollton.

Coach Teel has only seven lettermen on the 1957 squad, three being transfers. Returning centers are Pete Roberts, Sam Purvis and Art Jansen. The other returning lettermen are John Wheelchel, tackle; Sammy Parrish, guard; Lehman Franklin and Alexander Brown, both halfbacks.

The Blue Devils' coaches say they will change systems this season going back to the split T.

"We ran from the single wing last season to get the most out of Coley Cassidy," he said.

Members of the Statesboro Junior Chamber of Commerce are offering reserve season tickets to the Statesboro High School Athletic Association. This is the first year that reserved seats for a new season have been sold. They are $7.50 for adults and $2.50 for students.

Members of the Blue Devil squad are:

Ralph Howard, Jerry Tidwell, Burrey Deal, ends; John Wheelchel, tackle; Sammy Brannen, Arnold Cleary, and Hugh Deal, tackles; Jimmy Cason, Donald Wood, Sam Parrish, James Bryant, Jimmy Cason, Donald Wood, ward, and James Aldrich, guards; Pete Roberts and Art Brown, centers; Alexander Janson, Wendell McGlamery, Frederick Shearsouse, Jerry Keeler, Lehman Franklin, Robby Franklin, Ben Hagan, Billy Secarse, Joey Hagan, all backs; Ernest Teel is head coach; Ray Williams, assistant coach; Billy Brunson, B team coach; Billy Brunson and Billy Lee, managers.

Methodists at Hubert to begin revival

Revival services will begin at Hubert Methodist Church Monday evening, September 16, and continue through Friday, September 20.

The Rev. J. Kell Hinson of Springfield will be the guest evangelist. Services will begin each evening at 8 o'clock.

The Hubert Methodist Church is beginning an improvement program. The planning committee, with M. P. Martin Sr., chairman, has decided the first project will be the purchase of new windows to replace the old stained glass windows now in the church.

The need for additional Sunday School space is now being studied and plans considered.

The church grounds are being improved and members of the W.S.C.S. hope to plant grass and shrubbery in the near future.

The W.S.C.S. of the Hubert Church met with Mrs. P. S. Richardson Jr., Thursday evening, last week. The pastor, Mr. Williams, immediately rushed to the scene and, with other protective clothing or extinguishing agents, entered the smoke and flashing sparks caused by the ruptured and wildly flapping metal reinforced high pressure line. With-stander Williams immediately closed the oxygen valve on the cart, causing the flames to subside. The thoughtful and spontaneous actions of Airman Williams prevented the possible loss of lives and thousands of dollars worth of valuable equipment. Airman Williams has reflected great credit upon himself and the United States Air Force.

The presentation was made at Commander's Call by Colonel D. J. Munson, the base commander. Airman Williams has been in the military service for over four years, has been at Patrick Air Force Base for 18 months. He is the son of Mr. Charles Williams of 128 Blitch Street, Statesboro, Georgia.
