To equalize taxes

The January term of the Bulloch Grand Jury recognized the urgent need that something be done to bring about a more equitable basis upon which to tax county property.

In their presentments the Grand Jury recommended that Judge Renfro, in cooperation with Tax Commissioner Winfield Lee, County Commissioner Edgar Wynn and County School Superintendent H. P. Womack, get together and name a committee of at least twelve or more citizens of the county to study and formulate a plan to submit to a subsequent Grand Jury for the complete equalization of the tax structure of the county.

It is about time that such a study be made with the aim to correct many of the inequities which exist on our tax books. There are many glaring examples of under-valuations of property which result in the payment of little taxes. A program of re-evaluating all property in Bulloch County in order to equalize the tax structure would be a healthy thing for all.

There can be no denying that there is a crying need for equalizing taxes. Many are escaping the payment of their proper share in supporting our county government and services. Those who are paying their fair share would feel better about it if they knew that all others are carrying their fair share too.

And that's how it should be. But it's going to take some doing to work it out.

We hope that the Grand Jury recommendations bear fruit.

Our neighbor honored

Last week in Washington, D. C., more than 7,000 Rural Electric leaders from all over the nation gathered for the seventeenth annual REA meeting. One of their first official acts was to elect a president for the coming year.

Our neighbor, Walter Harrison of Millen, was the man they selected as their leader.

For nearly a quarter of a century Walter Harrison had devoted his time, effort, energy and thinking to the idea of electric power for every farmer no matter how isolated or how little power he might use.

Those who know Mr. Harrison are familiar with the zeal with which he carries out those things which claim his interest and so it is no surprise to us that he is today the president of the REA.

We commend Walter Harrison for the distinction which has been conferred upon him by this nationwide cooperative.

Plenty to do

Next week is a full week for music and drama lovers of Statesboro.

Monday evening, February 23, Richard Cass, a famous young pianist, will be presented by the Statesboro Community Concert Association at McCroan Auditorium at 8:15 o'clock.

On Wednesday and Thursday evening, February 25 and 26, the Georgia Teachers College Musicians will present their winter quarter production, "Little Foxes," in the college auditorium.

Last week was a full week also. On February 11 and 12 the Philharmonic Choir at the college presented Victor Herbert's operetta, "The Fortune Teller." And the week before there was the Homecoming festivities at the college. And last Sunday there was the Girl Scout's Camella Show at the Rec Center sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club.

There is never a dull moment in our community, if one only takes time out to participate.

And it makes living more interesting to participate.

Help your Heart Fund

This is Heart Month, the period in which the Georgia Heart Association conducts its annual Heart Fund Drive. The February Heart Fund is underway, and, putting first things first, we urge you to give it top priority among the causes you support to make this world a better and healthier one in which to live. The goal this year is $450,000 for the State. It is up to us to boost the collection over the top, not only for millions of heart disease sufferers, but for all of us with healthy hearts who are looking to our medical scientists for new ways to keep their healthy longer.

Of all worthy causes the Heart appeal occupies a position of unique importance. Why? Simply because more people die from heart and blood vessel disease than from all other causes combined, including accidents. There is hardly a day we do not read an article reporting the death from heart disease of a nationally prominent person or a familiar figure in our community. The obituary page is a constant reminder of the fact that the heart diseases are the nation's leading cause of death.

Contrary to what you may think, heart disease is not an exclusive liability of old people. Among those in the so-called productive years below 65, it still ranks as the leading cause of mortality.

For the individual, who is concerned about his own health and the health of his family, a Heart Fund contribution becomes less of an outright gift and more of a wise and practical investment. It is an investment to protect your own heart as well as the hearts of those you love. In a literal sense, money entrusted to your Heart Association to support research—as well as to fund education and community health programs—is a sound and practical investment. The results someday will return to you.

Help Your Heart Fund—Help Your Heart!

This Week's Meditation

LAWRENCE E. HOUSTON

Yesterday was the first Sunday in Lent. To many of our Protestant denominations, this season of the Christian year is either ignored, or only partially recognized. An explanation for this prevailing attitude can be that most Protestant groups are non-liturgical and informal in their approach to Christian worship.

I HAVE COME to appreciate the emphasis of the Christian calendar, and especially the Lenten season. The word "Lent" comes from an Anglo-Saxon word meaning "lengthening," and refers to the longer spring days.

Traditionally, the season of Lent is forty days before Easter. The word which best describes its purpose is "preparation." The practice of fasting is closely associated with Lent, and for some Christian communions, it becomes their focal emphasis at this time of the year.

However, I like to think that there is much more involved in this period of spiritual preparation than mere fasting and self-denial. Important as these practices are, an Episcopal rector once said that Lent is the time when Christians ought to deepen their reading habits. He suggested that one's reading during this season should include some "difficult" books that would stretch the mind.

Start with the Bible. The Gospel of John, often called the "Spiritual Gospel," affords an approach to the life and ministry of Our Lord unlike the other Gospel accounts.

TRY READING the "Imitation of Christ" by Thomas a Kempis, or "A Serious Call" to

Herman Talmadge Reports From Washington

THE WORST MISNOMER of our time is the use of the term "civil rights" as the title of force bills which have as their sole purpose to deny the American people their right to run their own affairs.

There has never been a so-called "civil rights" bill which did not conflict with the Constitution of the United States and take away more civil rights than it purported to grant. That is true because all "civil rights" possessed by the citizens of this country are guaranteed in the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. These rights, by specific language, are made inalienable to the individual. The prohibition against any legislative interference with the free exercise of them is unqualified.

A GREAT NUMBER of measures have been introduced under the guise of civil rights during the few weeks which the 86th Congress has been in session. They fall generally into the Johnson, Eisenhower and DeLoach categories—the only differences among them being matters of degree.

The Johnson idea is to have federal conciliators seek to persuade the citizens of each State to comply with the Supreme Court's desegregation decision. The Eisenhower plan is to have Federal Government prevent any interference by the people of the South with the implementation

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

It came up sort of fast, but that did not prevent it from being a success. The Junior Woman's Club put on a Camella Show at the Recreation Center Sunday afternoon, for the benefit of the building fund for the Girl Scout Center to be erected on the property given them by Mr. Fred Darby.

The show attracted more than 500 blooms of 112 varieties entered by camella enthusiasts of Statesboro. More than 200 visitors attended the show and contributed $87 for the Girl Scout building.

Door prizes were awarded to Mrs. E. L. Barnes who received a Ville de Nantes camella, to Mrs. Marie F. Deal who received a La Reine and to Miss Carrie Robertson of Brooklet who received a Tomorrow. These were donated by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Turner's Nursery.

In the judging done by the visitors, the Supreme received the most votes. The Tomorrow was second, the Pink Perfected was third, and the Donckelari was fourth.

It seems to me... There is this sort of show which gets in one's blood and sends you to the nursery to buy new camella plants. It also points up the value of such a practice, and in the approach to Christian worship.

Another excellent spiritual preparation during Lent lies in the area of personal prayer. There are moments when all of us realize the poverty of our praying, and we usually resolve to do better. The Lenten season is a good time to begin. Why not set aside fifteen minutes a day for personal prayer? Notice that I suggested sitting aside the time, that is, making room for the prayer period. No one denies the value of such a practice, but so few ever begin. A devotional reading at the breakfast table, before the members of the family are scattered for the day, can make for family harmony and understanding. Why not choose this as a Lenten project?

WE MAKE LENT simply a time for a personal spiritual retreat to be less than a Christian. In order to make this season of preparation complete, devote some time to the study of the Bible. Here is a suggestion: Our community includes several nursing homes which house those aged and infirm people who cannot care for themselves. Just yesterday someone remarked, "It will break your heart to visit those homes." Maybe so, but our obligation is to "do all the good you can, to as many people as you can." A friendly, unassuming visit each week might put a smile upon some of those saddened faces. A cherry word of interest and concern will gladden a heart.

There is no time like the present to begin, for Lent is here!

The day was a rainy, Friday-the-thirteenth and Valentine's party day for school children. For teachers, it was the day of many days to finish and pray for SAT's. It also has its drawbacks. There is more confusion at the first of the day when the Valentines are put in the individual holders. Such was the start of the day. A bright, sunny day would have helped some. But Alas! the weatherman forecasters. The clouds were profusely through the first short break.

CONSTANTLY, children had to be reminded of walking quietly in the halls, of quiet behavior in the rooms. The second recess came and the rain had ceased but great puddles of water stood here and there. The children couldn't be trusted outside. Even the most intelligent will wade or splash—the temptation is irresistible. All day teachers were struggling with themselves. It is on days like this I'd give a pretty penny to see the authors of books who tell teachers to never raise their voices! IN MY ROOM I fussed and growled all day long. But we kept our faith well until the

Light No. 1's ..... $15.12

Our Wednesday prices with heavy bush should be Top Prices for the week. With the drastic drop in the market we did not bush hogs Friday, and this will give you an indication of what the hog market really is.

Thanks for a Wonderful Offering of Cattle

Light Stocker Steers ..... $25.50 to $32.50

Heavy Stocker Steers ..... $24.50 to $27.50

Good Slaughter Heifers ..... $24.00 to $26.50

Slaughter Cows ..... $18.50 to $20.50

These prices were very good, but there is a decided weak undertone in the cattle market, from oversupply of fed cattle on the market. Many packers pulled out of the market Thursday and Friday.

PLANTING TREES

February is a good month for planting trees and shrubs. "Bare root" plants such as Dogwood, Cape Myrtle, Crabapple, Oaks, etc. should be planted before spring growth begins.

Here are several things to consider about trees, as very important parts of a landscape plan, in the planning and planting stages:

- (1) Growth rate and size at maturity; (2) Is it an evergreen or deciduous tree; (3) general form—height, spreading nature or branching; (4) resistance to insects and diseases; (5) root system; (6) hardiness; and (7) litter—leaves, fruit, etc. This falls to the ground.

Always try to choose the tree to best do the particular job you have in mind. Some trees are better for shade, others as windbreakers or barriers and others for ornamental purposes.

OVERCROWDED SHRUBS

Often shrubs will become overcrowded after several years of growth. An over-crowded plant looks as bad as no plant at all. Where shrubs have become crowded you can thin them out and use the plants removed in another part of the yard or for a shrub border.

You can avoid over-crowded shrubs by learning the plant's growth habits, size, spread, exposure, etc. before planting and allowing enough space for the shrubs to spread to maturity when you plant the first time.

Now is the time to fertilize pecan trees, says County Agent Powell

By ROY POWELL, County Agent

If you are a pecan grower, now's the time to fertilize. With four to six weeks growth of trees begins and fertilizer will need at least this much time to dissolve and get down to the root roots where it will do some good.

This month each tree not in a pasture system should receive three pounds of 8-8-8 fertilizer for each year it has been growing. This means a 33-year-old tree should need 100 pounds of fertilizer broadcast over the spread of its branches, beginning three to five feet from the trunk and extending three to five feet beyond the vertical tree shadow.

Lime should be applied to the soil if soil tests show the pH is below 5.5. If liming, or if protection against rust is needed, also apply zinc sulfate. For trees five to ten years old, three to four pounds of zinc sulfate should be broadcast under the branches. Mature trees should receive six to eight pounds.

For trees integrated into a pasture system, apply two pounds of 8-8-8 fertilizer for each year of the tree's age. For trees in addition to that given for the pasture during the spring or fall, if soil tests show a low amount of phosphate and potash are in the soil, then fertilizer containing only nitrogen may be applied in February. Apply one pound of actual nitrogen to trees five and six years old, two pounds if 10 to 12 years old, four pounds if 20 to 22 years old, and six pounds if 30 to 32 years old.

Manures and organic matter are also beneficial to pecan trees. The lack of fertilizers is one of the main causes for low pecan production in Georgia.

Master Farmer W. H. Smith Jr. lists seven qualities needed for success

In addition to using sound technical management practices, certain spiritual qualities as well as use of the intelligence are needed to make a success at farming.

This observation was made at the opening of the season of the two-day Farm Management Short Course held Thursday and Friday, January 22 and 23, at Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College in Tifton (with the cooperation of the College of Agriculture, University of Georgia) by W. H. "Bill" Smith Jr., Bulloch County "Master Farmer."

Mr. Smith, 60 years of age, county agent, soil conservation men and various technical agricultural men attended the management course. J. W. Fanning, head of the Department of Economics, was one of a number of specialists who led the group in discussion of specific problems relating to farm management in such categories as crop and livestock production, soil conservation, farm operation, farm economics, farm insurance, farm labor, farm taxes, farm credit, farm machinery, farm equipment, farm buildings, farm safety, farm health, farm education, farm recreation, farm religion, farm ethics, farm citizenship, farm leadership, farm organization, farm cooperation, farm community, farm progress, farm future.

Among the qualities a farmer must have and use he listed the following points:

1. He must learn to accept disappointments and failures without worry, or else he "will be a nervous wreck and a failure."
2. He must love farm life, and accept the problems therewith as a challenge; and he must have a wife and family of the same mind.
3. He must have sound knowledge of his farming operations, and keep a good set of records.
4. He must have a desire for the latest information available on farming, and know where to look for this information, and must be able to fit the information into his own schedule wherever practical.
5. He must keep up with the latest information on buying and selling and in general, follow this information insofar as it fits in with his program of farming.
6. He must maintain his credit rating in a-1 condition at all times. If he is unable to pay a debt when it is due, he must not shun his creditor, but rather must go to see creditor and work out some plan for future payment. If at all possible, he should pay his debts when they are due.
7. He needs to know all facts bearing on his specific problems, but he must learn to make his own decisions.

Smith pointed out that the farmer is the only one who can make his decisions because problems come up day by day in each phase of farm operation. He showed that each phase of farming has different problems, because of the nature of the project. He listed some of his problems in his operations, such as pasture, cattle breeding and feeding commercial egg production, tobacco, peanuts, cotton, and others.

He mentioned also the difficulty of procuring farm labor when industry is offering jobs. He said it may be necessary to offer better wages, better housing, and incentive payments to farm workers in the current labor problems.

Soil And Water

By E. T. (RED) MULLIS

It has been some time now since we have had time to sit down and write this column. And as the old saying goes a lot of water has gone over the dam. This is very true in reference to Soil and Water Conservation. In fact, so much has been going on that I haven't had time to write about it.

First of all I would like to review 1958 progress before beginning on 1959 work. I think the highlights of 1958 were: (1) The acquisition by the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District of a motor grader for use in Bulloch to get the conservation job done on the land; (2) the adoption of much planting of soybeans following combined grain by many Bulloch County Conservation Districts; (3) Getting a fine District Report printed and in the hands of District Co-operators with the assistance of farm equipment dealers, oil companies, fertilizer and lime distributors, and others; (4) A fine essay contest in the high schools with better participation than ever through the cooperation of the Statesboro National Farm Loan Association, and the Statesboro Production Credit Association; and (5) an outstanding "Man of the Year in Soil Conservation" meeting sponsored by the Banks.

The above are considered highlights, but underneath are many, many more things just as important. For instance 41 basic soil and water conservation plans were developed covering 8,930 acres; 1,129 acres of cover crops planted; 1,041 acres of conservation crop rotations; 721 acres of permanent pastures planted; 577 acres planted in pine trees; 35 ponds properly stocked with Brown and Bass (by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service); 227 acres of land properly drained by 5.6 miles of open ditches.

plant Coker 100-A

The cotton that can take it!

Regardless of the season we have this year, you can depend on Coker 100-A to come through if any cotton can. Farmers who planted it for the first time last year found it kept on going and made cotton when others quit. In fact, on both wet and dry soil, Coker 100-A produced more and better cotton than any other leading competitive variety! Reason enough for you to plant it this year, too.

- One to two percent higher gin turnout
- Highest degree of resistance to Fusarium Wilt
- Best yield and money value per acre
- Outstanding in fiber quality and mill performance
- Excellent picking quality by hand or machine

Chevy panel steps lively in Florida...runs day and night, delivers 19.3 miles per gallon!

This '59 Chevy panel is on the go, morning, noon and night; it covers as much as 387 miles a day... runs so constantly that its engine never cools off completely. Yet Clark Farmer, the Tampa Truck circulation manager, reports that the truck is delivering 19.3 miles per gallon!

This year, the light- and heavy-duty trucks of the 1959 Chevrolet Task-Fleet force are out to whip anything that comes their way—and they've got what it takes to do it!

Take the panel pictured above, for example. Powered by the '59 Thriftmaster 6 with new economy-contoured camshaft, it's building a sensational economy record, despite the stalling pace of its work. That's typical of the way Chevis of all sizes are turning-to on the most challenging jobs in America. The way they're made, with tough-built truck components, they make the hardest haul look easy!

If you have a job that puts a truck on its mettle, see your Chevrolet dealer!
