'Fresh water a limited natural resource,' says Mr. Rockwell

By W. F. ROCKWELL JR.
PROCKWELL
 How often have you turned on a water faucet without giving water any thought? Not very often. Yet it might be a very good thing if one day everyone in the United States had that experience, all at the same time. Nothing else would dramatize so well the degree to which we depend on water for convenience, comfort, health, and fire protection. It would also help emphasize two other very important facts:

Second, our present water facilities are stretched to their limits, and are not being expanded fast enough to keep pace with population growth. A survey by the Public Health Service shows that of the 18,000 water utilities in the United States...

First, water is a limited natural resource. It is needed to grow our crops, to produce our goods, and to sustain our population. A practical "freshing" process has been provided and thousands of miles of pipelines have been built. But for the predictable future, there is just so much water and it must be made to serve a rapidly growing population that uses far more water per person than our grandfathers ever dreamed of.

 In June of this year regular revival services were held for four nights at the prison camp, when a Statesboro minister was the guest preacher. Twelve made public profession of faith and were baptized in the prison pond.

Let's go 1st class on concrete!

On light-colored concrete you can really see where you're going and you won't find yourself constantly "sliding your head" at night when your far better visibility at night than any dark surface. This high night visibility saves tax money on lighting. Fewer fixtures are needed. It cuts the highway electric bill, too—up to $720 per mile per year. Concrete also gives you a grainy surface for dependable skid resistance and a smooth, flat ride. Initial cost is moderate, yet modern concrete will last an expected 50 years and more. Upkeep costs will be as much as 60% less than for asphalt. No wonder modern concrete is the preferred pavement for the Interstate System. A new booklet about highways is yours for the asking.

Bulloch County doctor puzzled over resistance to polio vaccine
 The Bulloch County Medical Society states that its doctors are greatly puzzled at the public's reluctance to receive the polio vaccine. Apparently this is not a local situation, but unfortunately is true throughout the United States.
 The California Department of Public Health conducted a survey among unvaccinated citizens to try and determine the cause for this inertia. They found that the biggest reasons for not obtaining protection were fear and procrastination.
 Fourteen per cent of the people refused to take the vaccine. The survey was a problem to 15 per cent. 24 per cent of the people interviewed with children under six years thought their offspring were too young for the shots.
 The evidence compiled by Dr. Alexander Langmuir at the United States Public Health Communicable Disease Center, located in Atlanta, revealed that this year the public was going to continue until a vaccine offering to immunize the public.
 Doctors now feel that it takes four injections to be properly immunized against the polio virus. Many people have received three shots who have shown an antibody titer toward taking a fourth injection. This fourth injection should be given one year after the third injection. A spokesman for the Medical Organization of Georgia (your doctor) State Medical Organization, stated that he was afraid the apathy of the public was going to continue until a vaccine offering to immunize the public.
 The program will include "Aqua-Mads On Parade," "Spray Makers," The Topside-Tandem Ride, The Criss Cross, The Pyramid, Jumping Spectacular, the Aqua Ball, Clowns, The Kite Flyer, and others.

Tobacco market make Growers happy

Tobacco farmers who sold tobacco on the Statesboro market the first two days last week have reason to be happy.

Official figures show that on Thursday, July 23, the first day of the 1959 market, 825,110 pounds of the golden weed brought $479,351.49 or average $58.09 per hundred pounds. This compares with 658,158 pounds of tobacco sold on July 29, the opening date of the 1958 market, for $373,042.59 or average $56.82 per hundred pounds.

This is a wonderful climax to the many months of anxious worrying and fretting over one of the roughest crops a farmer can grow.

During the tobacco planting and growing and curing season the farmer is tormented by many things. There are his plants... he worries if there will be good ones, will they be good ones, can he get them set out in time, will he get a good stand. Then, once set out he watches the skies, hoping for the proper rains at the proper time. Then there's the insects which wish to devour his plants.

Then comes time to harvest it. Tobacco must be picked at just the right time and the weather-man can play havoc with a beautiful tobacco crop if he does not provide the proper conditions under which to gather the precious weed.

And if the grower gets through all these several phases and he considers his crop a good one, there is still the delicate business of proper curing. The heat in the curing barn must be just right during the curing process, or the tender leaf will lose its quality.

Then, when his curing is done and he feels that he has a good leaf he worries about the opening date of the market. Too early and he's not ready. Too late and his crop might spoil in the packing house.

It is no wonder that many tobacco farmers operate on a calendar with thirteen months, including "Tobaccary?"

Now that the market is open and begins its second week tobacco farmers have been given a preview of what the prospect might be.

The first two days, Thursday and Friday of last week, gives them the feeling that it was worth the risk, the effort, the days of worry, the hours of near despair, all of which are a part of the annual battle of the farmer and his family to hold their place in the sun.

We hope that the balance of this season will be as good as the beginning. If it is so, then it will have been a good 1959 tobacco year.

A dog census

On August 10 a new kind of census will be taken in the City of Statesboro.

On that date the members of the Statesboro Chamber of Commerce will make a house-to-house check to determine how many dogs there are in the city and to whom they belong.

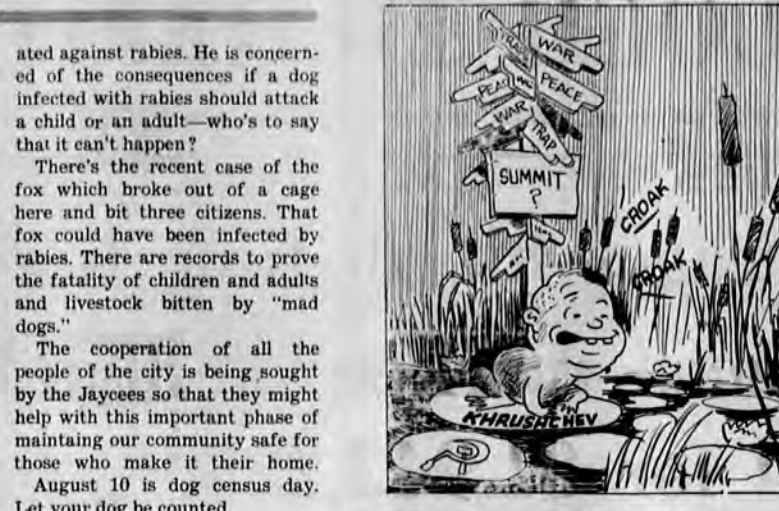

The commissioner of the Bulloch County Health Department is concerned about the failure of the citizens of both the city and county to have their dogs vaccinated against rabies. He is concerned of the consequences if a dog infected with rabies should attack a child or an adult—who's to say that it can't happen?

There's the recent case of the fox which broke out of a cage here and bit three citizens. That fox could have been infected by rabies. There are records to prove the fatality of children and adults and livestock bitten by "mad dogs."

The cooperation of all the people of the city is being sought by the Jaycees so that they might help with this important phase of maintaining our community safe for those who make it their home.

August 10 is dog census day. Let your dog be counted.

...Which Way Will He Jump?

Check your status

Within the past few weeks ten children of Fort Bragg, North Carolina, have suffered poliomyelitis. Two of them died.

The Army, alarmed at the outbreak, took steps to increase its immunization program for soldiers and their dependents.

The doctors at the Fort Bragg hospital state that five of the victims have never received Salk polio vaccine shots and that the other five's immunization was not up to date.

The doctors in Bulloch County are concerned about the problem of parents neglecting to have their children properly protected against attacks of crippling polio.

Check the immunization status of your family and if it is not up to date, do something about it. Take the Salk vaccine shots.

And do it now.

He commands respect

Yellow jackets demand respect. We're not referring to the Yellow Jackets of nation-wide fame which make up Georgia Tech's football team, but to the little insect which stings like the dickens.

A man in Rome recently died from the stings of several of these insects, and a few days later another citizen of Rome was taken to a hospital in a "poor" condition after one yellow jacket stung him.

In Perry, the chief of police was stung on the ear by a yellow jacket and was rendered into a state of shock. He had to be carried to a medical doctor for attention.

So reappraise your respect for the yellow jacket and be sure that it is proper. He's small but he's powerful.

Herman Talmadge Reports From Washington

THOSE WHO HAVE taken it upon themselves to try to sell the American taxpayers on the idea that the farmer is "living high off the hog" at their expense just do not have arithmetic on their side.

The favorite device of anti-farmer individuals and groups is to cite the cost of operating the Department of Agriculture as the cost of the national farm program. The figure in current usage in that regard is $7.4 billion which is a rounded-out total of the budget of the Department of Agriculture for the 1959 fiscal year just ended. By even the most liberal interpretation, no more than $4.3 billion of that amount can be charged to the benefit of the farmer and the truth of the matter is that only $2.3 billion of that amount went into the pockets of the farmers in the form of price support payments.

AMONG THE ITEMS included in the extreme figure of $4.3 billion are $785 million for interest on and the cost of storing, handling and transporting surplus commodities (a total which will increase to more than $1 billion for the Soil Bank, $715 million of this fiscal year); $854 million which went to complete payments under the now-defunct Acreage Reserve phase of it; $231 million for various agricultural conservation programs and $80 million for operations under the Wool and Sugar Acts.

The remaining $3.05 billion spent by the Agriculture Department last year went for items which cannot by any stretch of the imagination be considered as being of direct benefit to the farmer. For example, $1.3 billion of that amount went to subsidize the overseas disposal of surplus agricultural commodities as part of the foreign aid program and another $413 million was used to pay for food distribution in this country, including the school lunch program and food donations to the needy and unemployed. Loans made by the Rural Electrification and Farmers Home Administrations accounted for another $633 million and $626 million was budgeted for long-range programs of resource improvement, including agricultural research and the activities of the Forest and Soil Conservation Service.

IT IS UNJUST and unfounded to point the finger of blame at the farmer or the soaring costs of operating the Department of Agriculture expenditures which have increased from four to almost 100 per cent of the federal budget since 1954. The farmer hardly can be held responsible for the unrealistic farm policies of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson when he ought to be an actress? "You ought to be an actress," I could hardly contain my emotions. Apparently, I had really impressed him no voice about saddling them upon the taxpayers of the United States.

The fact that cost of operating the Department of Agriculture has increased so outrageously should not be used as an excuse to attempt to discredit the farmer but rather should be regarded as a compelling reason for giving this country at the earliest possible time a realistic and meaningful farm program which will benefit the farmer and the taxpayer alike.

Thinking and discussing mental health for children could continue for many weeks, there are so many facets to mental health. Yet, I no longer wonder why most articles of this type are written by people without children or by people whose children are grown and gone from home. No doubt these persons are written by people who have not had a child at home for any length of time. An example of what children can do to one's ego at a recent wedding, I was dressed in my wedding 1 best. The daughter leaned over and whispered, "you ought to be an actress." This dated me so much, I could hardly contain my emotions. Apparently, I had really impressed my youngest! But one of my failings is not to keep my mouth shut so I, in turn whispered "why?" she replied, "Because, you look so tragic."

Well, after all a parent is supposed to be mature and emotionally healthy. So, to offset such let-downs, it is very necessary to develop a sense of humor.

It seems to me that a sense of humor is a prerequisite of mental health and should be developed in early childhood. If all of us could learn to laugh at ourselves, this world would be a better place in which to live.

Over a half dozen years ago our youngest was memorizing the twenty-third Psalm. She was repeating it to her Daddy. She quoted "... surely, goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life. ..." she stopped and questioned "Daddy, are surely, goodness, and mercy written by people who have never had a child at home?" The rest of the family roared with laughter, but this young one ran, crying, to her room. She saw nothing funny and could not be convinced that we were not making fun of her. But today she is a different person and poses fun at herself. She laughs about her nose, (she inherited a double-rose nose from both sides of her family) and she laughs at herself all the time. We feel that she has come a long way in accepting herself.

We parents also have to work on ourselves, too, about accepting our children as they are, if they are to develop mental health.

For instance, the athletic father who was the star football player in college has some adjusting to do when his son prefers to read books to playing football.

The lovely, effeminate mother, sometimes is troubled when she Discover her daughter prefers plain clothes to fancy ones, prefers tennis and swimming to parties, but this mother's big job is to accept this daughter just as she is and convince her that she loves her just as she is.

There's no doubt that parenthood is rather complicated but the challenge it presents, makes any one want to help his children develop into mature adults.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

ONE LEARNS the most interesting things reading the newspapers. For instance, did you know that Tokyo, Japan, restaurants serve the most unusual beef in the world? According to a news story in Sunday's papers it's so. Beef served in Tokyo's restaurants comes from beer-drinking cattle which enjoy the luxury of a daily massage. It is believed that the beer stimulates the appetite of the animal and the massage relaxes him and makes his flesh tender. Makes a man wonder if some of our U. S. beef growers might learn something from the Japs.

REMEMBER WHEN YOU used to get a hair cut and the barber singed the hair on the back of your head just before he let you go and you gave him his quarter?

Our memory was jostled Sunday when we read that men in London are warned to think twice before getting a crew cut in a London barber shop. It seems London barbers level off the growth of hair on the top of your head with the flame from a wand of wax. It's called "singeing." You escape being barbecued only because the barber keeps the heat of the flame dancing around your skull like a jet propelled fireball. As we recall the barber who cut our hair when we had hair used a comb to put out the fire while he was singeing it. We were in high cotton when we got that kind of treatment.

TODAY WHEN we get into a barber's chair it just a matter of a clip-clip here and a clip-clip there around the bottom fringe of our pate, a dab of lather and a swipe or two of the razor and a parting of our dollar and we're on our way. Remember—"Shave and haircut, two-bits," dum-de-um?

DENT NEWTON out at Rockwell sent us this and we liked it. According to Dent it was written by the editor of a western newspaper and went like this:

It Seems to Me...

max lockwood

IN 1929 a young married couple living in Savannah had a dream concerning the development of a recreation area for commercial operation. Looking around they selected a beautiful spot on the Ogeechee River and started out on a project which has been successful in many ways.

Since that time thousands and thousands of people have spent some time there with their friends in family reunions, on fishing trips, at birthday parties, hunting, camping and enjoying good food.

Many people living in the Bulloch County area have spent countless hours there enjoying the beautiful view of the river, shad fishing, on fish fries with friends, and just stopping by for refreshments and a good meal.

When Mr. and Mrs. Claude Dasher started on their project, which later became the fishing and hunting lodge as we know it, they never dreamed that their project would be so successful. I don't think they ever measured their success in terms of making a million dollars but were primarily interested in the development of an area which could be enjoyed by the many thousands who have since visited there.

ABOUT FIVE YEARS ago Mr. Dasher passed away. Since that time Mrs. Dasher has continued to live near the lodge and still supervises the preparation of the food at the restaurant. The overall facility is managed by Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Odum who are carrying out the thinking of the late Mr. Dasher concerning his desire to keep "Dasher's" the kind of place where a man could take his wife and children and enjoy the many facilities for recreation offered by the Lodge. I have a lot of friends in this area who enjoy catfish as much as I do. If you are one of them then my suggestion to you is to plan your next trip to Savannah so that you will make a meal time. You will find some of the best fish and shrimp and it back by "Dasher's" about corn dodgers prepared anywhere and you will be more than satisfied with the generous portions and the more than reasonable prices.

ALL OF YOU men folks who are looking for a place to hold an evening business meeting for your staff or just a fine outing you couldn't find a better place than "Dasher's." For a very nominal fee you can use the large pavilion area for meetings which can accommodate a large group. The handy grill, located under the pavilion, are gas fired are just right for cooking your own fish if you are inclined to do so.

If you have a family of boys and would like to spend the night on the river then "Dasher's" is just the place. Just a thirty minute ride from Statesboro and just off the highway is one of the most beautiful spots located on the Ogeechee river. Boats are available for just a nominal fee and the river for fishing and the Lodge offers overnight accommodation for those who don't like sleeping in the open.

THE NEXT TIME you rush off to Savannah with the family and want to stop somewhere along the way for a rest and a stretch of the legs, take just a minute longer than usual and drive down behind the lodge and down to the river. The beautiful view from the concrete steps leading to the water edge is worth a special trip there any Sunday afternoon just to see.

While you are traveling around this summer looking for places to go and see, add "Dasher's" to your list. It'll be disappointed, and if you take time out to try Mrs. Dasher's cooking I'll guarantee that Dasher's will become a popular stopping place on your list.

Oh you don't know where Dasher's is well just ask anybody. They can tell you. Just before you cross the river going to Savannah, There it is.

MILLARD MARTIN RECEIVED CALF

Millard Martin, a member of the Stillson 4-H Club, presented a 6-month-old Herford Bull calf for the excellent work he has been doing in livestock conservation projects. The calf was given by the Exchange Club of Savannah.

Millard will be showing his calf at the Coastal Empire Fair in Savannah this year and next year. He will be competing with 5 other boys for a scholarship of 250 dollars to use to go to college or to further his livestock projects.

Young Martin has been active in 4-H Club work for 4 years. He has shown several steers in the Fat Stock Show held in Bulloch County. He has participated in the District Project Achievement the last 2 years. This year he will represent Bulloch County again in the District competition in the project, Livestock Conservation.

A dog can be man's best friend; it can also be his worst enemy

By Charles T. Brown, M. D., L. District Medical Director

From earliest history dogs have been closely associated with man, and due to their loyalty the dog has been called man's best friend. It's commonly known that dogs are subject to a fatal disease known as rabies and this disease may be transmitted to other animals and to man as well.

Dogs may be classified into two general groups - namely pets and strays. Our pets usually have better care and better food and are more closely watched than strays which belong to no one and live by their wits alone.

In order that rabies may be controlled and prevented, it is necessary that each animal have the anti-rabies vaccine once each year. Dogs properly vaccinated against rabies seldom if ever develop the disease even if bitten by a rabid animal.

It is therefore perfectly reasonable to assume that if we are to prevent a possible rabies outbreak in our community, it is the responsibility of each dog owner to have his pet protected, and in addition all strays should be removed from our streets.

The danger we face today of a rabies outbreak resulting from indifference and apathy is unthinkable in a well informed society. The apathy of the public concerning this matter is a source of great concern to the city officials, civic groups and your local health department. In order that accurate information may be obtained, on August 10 a survey will be made and a census taken of all dogs in Statesboro and in addition the number of dogs yet to be treated. Your Junior Chamber of Commerce has agreed to make this census and will promote an all-out campaign to have every dog in Statesboro given the anti-rabies vaccine.

The danger of rabies cannot be minimized because once the symptoms have developed, the disease is invariably fatal. The full cooperation of all our citizens, we can make our city safe from rabies and demonstrate a spirit of cooperation which will be a mark of good citizenship to all those around us.

Industrial Arts Building To Be "Finest In South"

Georgia Teachers College broke ground recently on its new Arts and Industry Building, and construction is now under way.

Logan and Williams of Atlanta were architects, and Bryan Bryan Construction Company of St. Simons Island, Georgia, is the contractor.

Dr. Donald F. Hackett, chairman of the industrial education division, says "When this building is completed it will afford the most modern facilities for instruction and research in all phases of arts and industrial education in the southeast."

The building is 296 feet long and 153 feet wide. It will have 36,000 square feet, and will be air-conditioned throughout.

It will contain five lecture classrooms and 12 faculty offices, a conference and library room.

Other features are shops for ceramics, woodworking, metalworking, graphic arts, power mechanics, electricity and electronics, and general wood.

FINE ARTS ALSO

Fine Arts facilities include studio, a drawing and painting studio, and art education and crafts rooms.

It is hoped that the structure will be completed by fall quarter, 1960.

Kay Hendrix presents program at Methodist Youth Fellowship meet

By Mrs. Jim Rowe

Kay Hendrix had charge and presented a very interesting program at the regular meeting of the Nevils Methodist Youth Fellowship on Thursday, July 23, 1959.

The children of Mrs. O. H. Hodges honored her Sunday with a Birthday Dinner at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. H. Weatherbee, and Mr. Weatherbee. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Richardson, Mr. Clarence Harris and children and Mrs. Frankie Harris, all of Langley, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Weatherbee and Mrs. Nora Harberson of Statesboro.

FISH FRY

Mr. and Mrs. Leodel Smith and children, Sara Lou, Danny and Robert of Richmond Hill, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Jordan and son, Jimmy, Mrs. John Howard and C. G. Burroughs, all of Savannah; Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Price of Register, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Collins of Palaski and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rowe, all enjoyed a Fish Fry Saturday at Kennedy's Pond.

Mrs. Sara Lewis and son, Gene of Claxton, and Miss Ann Barnard of Porterdale, visited Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rowe.

If you find it necessary to "touch up" a dark cotton garment, cover with a soft clean cloth and press lightly to avoid a shine. Advise Miss Doris Ogletree, housing - equipment specialist, Agricultural Extension Service.

Quick cooling is a vital step in freezing cooked foods, according to Miss Nellie Thrash, food preservationist, Agricultural Extension Service. It stops the cooking process and also helps retain natural flavor, texture, and color.

120 Days Around the World on The Flying Hawk....

BY GUY H. WELLS, STATESBORO, GEORGIA

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of accounts written by Guy Wells of Statesboro about the trip he and Mrs. Wells made around the world aboard the freighter "The Flying Hawk." They left the U. S. on February 26, 1959 and returned July 7, 1959.

Dear Reader:

I have already mailed you a brief account of our world tour that we had as far as Istanbul. Since landing in Turkey eight days ago, we have visited for two or more days Athens, Greece; Beirut, Lebanon; Jerusalem, Jordan; and Cairo, Egypt. All of these trips were made by plane, a distance of approximately 4,000 miles. We now are going through the Suez Canal and are half way through, waiting at a passing place for a convoy of fifteen ships to pass before proceeding on to Port Suez.

The past two nights and better of three days we have spent in Egypt, Cairo, and Alexandria. In Cairo we stayed at the Mem Hotel next to the famous Cheops Pyramids. It would require many days to see all that should be seen in Egypt. This ancient African Country has long been a delight for tourists. Centuries before many countries were discovered, people were coming to this ancient land. The Nile Valley was the birth place of civilization. The pyramids were a source of wonder even in Biblical times. The story of Egyptian Civilization is a long one beginning before the dawn of recorded history.

In Cairo we visited the pyramids, the Sphinx, four famous mosques, and the famous Museum containing the relic from King Tut's tomb.

There is nothing like these things from the tomb of the old king in the world. It requires most of one large floor of the museum to hold the things taken from this tomb in Luxor. In 1923 I visited Cairo and saw the mummy of King Tut. It has since been taken back to Luxor where he ruled and was buried 2,300 years before Christ. The three coffins in which the mummy was buried are exhibited in that museum. The first coffin is of solid gold, and the second coffin is covered by gold. These three coffins were inclosed in one box inside the other and one coffin inside the other.

The beds he used, the chairs, the couches, all the things he must have used in the palace were buried with him along with his chariot, even his rabbit's foot, his chess game, his finger bowls, his dishes, his food. It is almost beyond the imagination of men to conceive all that this tomb portrays about the early civilization of Egypt.

First of all, the king believed in an after life. The arts were highly developed, for the vases, the jewelry would compare favorably with present day arts.

We saw several palaces of the old king, palaces that cost millions of dollars. One is impressed with the wealth of the few, and the poverty of the many. There are 23,000,000 people in Egypt and most of the land and wealth are concentrated in the hands of a very few people. Twenty-three million people live in a narrow strip of land a few miles wide on each side of the Nile. There were beggars on every street and every corner. Cairo has a population of three million and Alexandria about one and a half million.

Egypt is interchangeably tied up with the Holy Land. The Children of Israel resided here for centuries and must have learned much from the ancient people about religion, law, and politics. The place where the king's daughter found Moses is pointed out. The tree under which Joseph and Mary rested when they escaped to Egypt with the child Jesus is pointed out.

The City of Cairo contains hundreds of Mosques and Christian Churches, and two great universities, one the American University in Cairo.

The people, as a whole, were friendly, and we had no trouble except to feel sorry for the many beggars and poor people roaming the streets and highways.

Next I will write about Lebanon.

Growing pigs in pens with concrete floors is increasing in Georgia

In recent years interest in growing pigs in pens with concrete floors has increased tremendously in Georgia. Recently research was undertaken at the Georgia Coastal Plain Experiment Station, Tifton, to compare the economy of growing pigs in concrete floored pens with growing them in pasture plots. The comparison was done from the standpoint of both the performance of pigs and labor requirements.

For this study 520 pigs were used. 280 were grown in concrete floored pens and 240 in small pasture plots.

The investigators found good rates of gain were made by pigs on both concrete pens and small pasture plots. However, the pigs on pasture gained significantly faster than did those on concrete pens.

There was essentially no difference in average amount of feed required to produce 100 pounds of gain between the two groups of pigs.

Farm ponds can be a great pleasure if proper safety provisions made

SOIL CONSERVATION

By E. T. "Red" MULLIS

Cooperators of the Ogeechee Soil Conservation in Bulloch County have constructed over 500 farm ponds in the last twenty years since the District movement began. These ponds are a great source of pleasure and profit when properly managed. Today I would like to discuss one aspect of our ponds which has not received much attention over the years, and that is safety.

Never swim alone! This is dangerous ever for an expert swimmer; you may take the cramps and drown. Stay out of the pond during thunderstorms because water attracts electricity and you may be electrocuted. Stay away from overflow pipes and spillways when flowing water is powerful and may pull you in. Keep small children away from ponds when not accompanied by their parents. If you have a pond that will float if clogged with wood or metal and fiberglass with seal or air chambers or styrofoam under the seats.

Other important safety points you should consider: Non-swimmers should always wear or have with them suitable life preservers. All children and adults should be encouraged to learn to swim and give artificial respiration. We have the best opportunity for this right here in Center. I believe Max Lockwood and his staff to be the best in the State for teaching swimming and his safety.

Let's all take advantage of our wonderful opportunity and learn to live happily and safely.

Producers Coop is 'posted' stock market

The Producers Cooperative Livestock Exchange has been posted under the Packers and Stockyard Act, M. P. Martin Jr., manager and W. L. Holston of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, announced this week.

A "posted" market, Mr. Martin and Mrs. Holston explained, is one that comes under the jurisdiction of the Packers and Stockyard Act, and at which notices to that effect have been posted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The federal act prescribes rules of fair business practices for all persons or firms engaged in livestock marketing or meat packing and dealing in interstate or foreign commerce.

Holston is district supervisor of the Agricultural Marketing Service's Packers and Stockyards Branch, with headquarters at Montgomery, Ala. His territory includes Alabama, except the northern edge, the southern two-thirds of Mississippi, and Louisiana, Florida, and Georgia.

"Before Congress amended the Packers and Stockyard Act in 1958, only markets of 20,000 or more square feet were subject to posting," Holston said. "Now that all public markets doing interstate business are subject to the act, USDA is extending its posting program to cover all the public markets." Holston explained further that at a "posted" market, the Packers and Stockyards Act specifies a livestock producer should be provided with:

- Accurate weights. The market operator must install, maintain, and operate scales in such a way as to assure correct weights. Protection in his funds. All marketing agencies and dealers at a posted market are obliged

ONE OF THE 7 BIG BESTS CHEVROLET GIVES YOU OVER ANY CAR IN ITS FIELD

Take it, not from us, but from official results of this year's Mobilgas Economy Run: Chevy's pennypinching 6 delivers the most miles per gallon in its class. A pair of these Chevrolet sixes with Powerglide walked away with the first two places in their class, getting the best mileage figures—40.3 and 38.2—of any full-size car. And here are more expert, impartial opinions: Chevy's far larger, built with bonded linings, to help lengthen brake life by as much as 60%.

BEST BRAKES
In direct competitive tests of repeated stops from highway speeds, conducted by NASCAR, Chevrolet out-stopped both of the other leading low-priced cars—and why not? Chevy brakes are far larger, built with bonded linings, to help lengthen brake life by as much as 60%.

BEST ROOM
Official dimensions reported to A.M.A. make this clear. For example, Chevy front seat hip room is up to 5.9 inches wider than comparable cars.

BEST STYLE
It's the only car of the leading low-priced 3 that's unmistakably modern in every line. "In its price class," says POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, "Chevrolet establishes a new high in styling."

BEST ENGINE
Every motor magazine has given Chevrolet's standard and Corvette V-8's the highest praise. AS FORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED puts it: "Indeed this device is surely the most wonderfully responsive engine available today at this price."

BEST RIDE
MOTOR TREND magazine calls Chevy "the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class." You'll be able to tell this yourself, instantly. And your Chevrolet dealer can tell you about a long list of other advantages besides these 7 big ones!

Mayor Bill Bowen writes open letter to Statesboro Jaycees

July 27, 1959
Mr. E. W. Barnes, President
Statesboro Junior Chamber of Commerce
Statesboro, Georgia

Dear "Buddy":
The Mayor and City Council wish to take this opportunity to express publicly our appreciation to the Junior Chamber of Commerce for the fine program which you have undertaken in order to help alleviate the dog problem in our City. It is due to apathy on the part of the general public that the rabies situation has become so alarming. Only as individual dog owners become aware of the gravity of the situation and undertake to comply with public health and local law enforcement regulation will any appreciable progress be made in eradicating the problem. Your survey will help to impress upon our citizens the urgent need for the cooperation of every dog owner. We feel sure that under the able leadership of Dent Newton, as chairman of this committee, an outstanding job will be done.

Your City Administration appreciates the fine civic spirit evidenced by your organization in rendering this valuable public service. Again we say, "Thank you."
Very truly yours,
W. A. Bowen, Mayor

Bloodmobile to observe tenth anniversary here August 12

Bloodmobile will make its regular visit to Bulloch county on Wednesday, August 12, according to an announcement made this week by Jimmy Gunter, chairman of the county blood program.

The bloodmobile will be at the Recreation Center on Fair Road from 1 to 6 p.m. Mr. Gunter calls attention to the fact that this visit marks the end of ten years of Bulloch county's participation in the blood program. He stated that it was the summer of 1948 that it was the summer of 1948 that the Bulloch County Chapter of the American Red Cross requested the South Atlantic Regional Blood Center to be allowed to come under its plan of securing and distributing blood where it is used.

The Bulloch County Red Cross Chapter realized that with the growth of the Bulloch County Hospital as an area hospital it was urgent that blood and blood derivatives be available at any time of the day or night for its patients.

The South Atlantic Regional Blood Center immediately set up an operating schedule for Bulloch County. In September, 1948, the first Bloodmobile was made here.

First there were twenty-one. Then there were ten. And then there were five. And then there were four. That's how it went as the judges considered the twenty-one lovely girls in the Fourth Annual Miss Memorial Park of 1959.

The beautiful ceremonies, under the direction of Miss Mary Alice Cheney, runner-up in the 1959 selections, were held at the Swim Center at Memorial Park in the Statesboro Recreation Center on Thursday evening, July 23.

Revival services will begin at Temple Hill Baptist Church on Sunday August 9, and will continue through Friday, August 14. Services will be held each night at 8:15 o'clock with the pastor, the Rev.
