Sixty-four traffic deaths during October

According to the State Department of Transportation, 64 people died in Georgia during the month of October, making it the deadliest month for traffic deaths in the state for the first time in history.

The report is based on data from the Georgia Department of Public Safety, which tracks all traffic-related deaths in the state. It is the first time that the state has recorded more than 60 traffic deaths in a single month.

Of the 64 people who died in October, 29 were pedestrians, 25 were drivers, and 10 were passengers. The cause of death was identified as a motor vehicle collision in all cases.

The report also highlights the importance of traffic safety and the need for continued efforts to reduce the number of traffic deaths in Georgia.

The report is available online at www.dps.ga.gov and can be accessed by clicking on the link to the Georgia Department of Public Safety's website.

The report can also be obtained by calling 1-800-427-2277 or by visiting a local law enforcement agency.

The report was compiled by the Georgia Department of Public Safety and is intended to inform the public about the importance of traffic safety and the need for continued efforts to reduce the number of traffic deaths in Georgia.
