First Presidential Thanksgiving Proclamation

Thursday, November 23, 1863

By President Abraham Lincoln

WHEREAS, it is the duty of all free governments to respect and preserve the sacred rights of human liberty... and that the Almighty has designed the men who for ages have been enjoying the blessings of a free Government... it is therefore proper that the people of the United States should set apart and designate one day of every year, as a day of public thanksgiving and devoted to the express purpose of invoking the favorable interposition of the Almighty Being. In the midst of a great civil war, our armies stand arrayed against each other in the field... and the Almighty has opened the doors of death the door of the sanctuary of the living God... and which, by his providence, has ministered to the necessities of his people... and that the Almighty Being has, in his infinite wisdom and power, protected and preserved the lives of our armies... and the Almighty has... granted the prayers of the people of the United States... we, therefore, the Congress of the United States, do, by these presents, declare and set apart Thursday, the twenty-second day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, and in the year of our Lord Jesus Christ one thousand nine hundred and twenty, as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed and kept with one heart and one voice throughout the land.

Mr. Brunck, Mr. Hooley give fine performance

One of the few weeks in a community was one of the finest weeks in the history of a community in the United States. Mr. Brunck, who has been a lifelong resident of the community, and Mr. Hooley, who is a new resident, gave a performance that was both entertaining and educational. The audience was captivated by the talent and skill of these two performers.

Story of American Thanksgiving is well worth repeating this year of 1899

Last week, the citizens of our town gathered to celebrate the story of American Thanksgiving. This event has become a tradition in our community and is looked forward to each year. The event is especially meaningful this year, as it marks the 100th anniversary of the establishment of the holiday.

President's Message

To the Editor:

I was going to write a letter, but my hands were too busy to do so. I wanted to have something more to do with my hands than just write letters.

The students brought me a letter which included some ideas for improving the school. The letter said that they wanted more classes, a new gymnasium, and better facilities for sports. These are important issues that we need to address.

As I read through the letter, I thought about the quality of education that we are providing. I believe that we need to focus on providing a high-quality education for all our students. This means providing resources and opportunities for every student to succeed.

One of the biggest challenges we face is funding. We need to find ways to support our school while also being responsible with our resources.

Another challenge we face is diversity. We need to create an inclusive environment where every student feels welcome and supported.

As I continue to work towards these goals, I am committed to using my hands to bring about positive change. I am grateful for the staff and students who are working towards these goals as well.

Sincerely,

President
