AN EDITORIAL

... to President Clem Rath and the entire LION'S CLUB ... from each and every person that attended the performance of the United States Navy Band on Monday afternoon and evening of this week.

We believe that we can speak for every person that heard the band that it was a rare treat for all that was in attendance. The artistry and perfection of the performance can be in no way described by words ... only to have heard the performance would one know what a truly great organization the United States Navy Band is.

The band performed to approximately 4,000 school children in a special afternoon performance and the kids were spellbound, thrilled and delighted with the numbers created for the youngsters.

Bloodmobile to be Here Monday March 28

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the Recreation Center on Monday, March 28, from 1:00 to 6:00 p.m. All citizens are urged to present to help Bulloch County meet the quota.

On two visits this year with a total blood quota of 250 pints, only 75 pints have been collected leaving a deficit of 175 pints. To make up this deficit and also collect the March quota of 125 pints, will require a total collection next Monday of 300 pints.

The Blood Program in Bulloch County is facing a crisis. Unless the people show a willingness to support the program by donating blood freely, the Bulloch County Hospital may be taken off the list of participating hospitals, according to the medical staff of the hospital, this could be a calamity as it is difficult and not always safe to supply the great quantities needed solely through local voluntary or commercial channels.

A blood bank is necessary to save life. Much major surgery is impossible without it. Won't you come down to the Recreation Center next Monday afternoon and donate some blood? Somebody in your family may need it.

Preston brands Civil Rights bill

Prince H. Preston in a speech before the House branded the civil rights bill before Congress as "the same legislative hemlock juice that was administered to our forefathers of the South a century ago."

Mr. Preston said during House debate on the bill that the old Reconstruction plan "has been dug out of the cellar of time, its mold skinned off, and is being offered now in the righteous chalice of modern-day civil rights to this new generation."

The scars of history are too deeply inscribed, however, for us not to recognize this as the same concoction that was conceived in hate and brewed in revenge by the despotic trio of generations ago, Thaddeus Stevens, Charles Sumner and Salmon P. Chase," he said.

He said the reason for these statutes in Reconstruction times, as now, is the same—"politics, cheap politics."

Mr. Preston said "the hour is at hand when the forces of reason and justice must focus beyond next election day and visualize the evils we will reap from the plan before us."

"This plan has been tried and scrapped long ago," he said. "Its demise is etched indelibly in the pages of history," the Congressman said.

He stated that it is inconceivable to me that this potent venom of disunity would be resurrected at a time when, in the international scene, we need more than ever to build strength and unity.

"Even those who prescribe this dose must know how unneeded it is and how much more harm it can cause to race relations in our part of the country," Mr. Preston said.

The Statesboro Motor Lodge proposal for federal voting rights legislation would sound the death knell of our secret ballot, certainly, the greatest method yet devised by democratic governments to protect the individual from discrimination because of political views.

After criticizing the proposal section-by-section in his 18-page speech, Mr. Preston concluded with: "They are reprehensible to me personally and to the majority of the people of the southern states. I believe that if they become law, eventually they will find their reprehensibility in other parts of the nation which will find their reprehensibility."

STATESBORO MOTOR LODGE NOW QUALITY COURT

The Statesboro Motor Lodge in Statesboro has been admitted to membership in the non-profit motel association Quality Courts United, Inc., according to President Tommy Tucker.

Among the many features of the Statesboro Motor Lodge are room-to-room hot water heat and air-conditioning; 24-hour service; swimming pool; restaurant with room service; TV and telephones in every room, according to owner Lehman Franklin.

Quality Courts United, Inc., is composed of over 500 independent operators in all states and the international scene, we need more than ever to build strength and unity.

The association is dedicated to maintaining exceedingly high standards of comforts, courtesy, efficiency and physical property. Only about 10 percent of those applying for membership are admitted.

Rockwell Growth Predicted for 60's

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — Rockwell Manufacturing Company should "grow at an accelerated rate in the coming decade," W. F. Rockwell, president, reported to shareholders in the 1959 annual report to shareholders this week.

"There are four major reasons for this belief," Mr. Rockwell said:

1. Most of our major customers are in the acknowledged growth markets of the future;
2. our tested formula of related diversification continues to be successful; 3. we have established research and engineering leadership in the fields in which we operate; and 4. our European operations were established early enough to put us in an advantageous position both for doing business inside the European Common Market area and for competing in all world markets."

This year's annual report is devoted to an analysis of Rockwell's 22 markets with five selected for closer view under the microscope.

It answers such questions as what product diversification and plant decentralization mean for doing business inside the European Common Market area and what is the relationship of the growth of these markets to Rockwell's own growth.

Electricity does scores of jobs in the modern home, leaving you extra hours in every day. It does a full 24-hour day's work for just a few pennies, too.

While practically everything else has gone up in price in the past 30 years, the unit price you pay for electricity has declined 65 per cent. In fact, the average Georgia family today pays 19 per cent less than the national average for each kilowatt-hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Anderson of Jacksonville, Fla., spent the weekend here.

Mr. Fred Blitch, a longtime cooper of the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District and one of its first Supervisors from the Westside community, has recently had his old soil and water conservation plan completely rewritten. Mr. Blitch was a leader in the movement to organize this Soil Conservation District and was one of the first 100 farmers to have a complete plan made for his farm. There are about 1,000 farms in Bulloch which have been planned.

Mr. Blitch, the "Man of the Year in Soil Conservation" from Bulloch County in 1954, has forged ahead in several aspects of his soil and water conservation program. His timber and grass programs and plans would certainly qualify as a model for others to follow.

His timber program consists of turpentine, thinning for lumber and pulpwood at regular intervals, and harvesting for poles and sawlogs. He plans his harvest of poles and sawlogs after the maximum has been obtained from turpentine without decreasing the value of poles and sawlogs.

His pasture program, one of the first in this section of the state, has constantly been improving. From carpet grass and common and annual lespedezas, kudzu, fescue, coastal bermuda and pensacola bahia grass, he has tried them all. He has finally settled pretty much on coastal bermuda and bahia grass.

Mr. Blitch has come to the conclusion that pensacola bahia grass serves his purpose better than any of the others with the exception of coastal bermuda for hay. He says the bahia gives a longer period of grazing with less attention and expense. With his soil-seeding of small grain on the permanent sod, he is getting close to year-around grazing.

Besides his grazing, Mr. Blitch also combines seed from his bahia pastures. He harvested the most seed per acre last year that he has heard about. From 45 acres he combined over 600 pounds of combine run seed per acre. After cleaning and bagging he still had 550 pounds per acre as pretty seed as I've seen.

It is easier to understand human behavior when we remember that all behavior is caused, points out Miss Audrey Morgan, family life specialist, Agricultural Extension Service.

Reports From Washington

THOSE WHO HAVE been castigating the South for its criticism of the Supreme Court's school ruling now have found out that the shoe pinches might be hard when it is put on the other foot.

The same papers and persons who have preached that the Court's decisions are the "law of the land" and must be obeyed without question are loudly decrying that tribunes recent edict that state governments can fire employees who refuse to identify before committees of Congress about alleged subversive affiliations. They contend the Court has, in effect, reversed a 1956 decision holding that teachers who invoked the Fifth Amendment under similar circumstances could not be discharged. The New York Times, which vigorously applauded the former ruling, has deplored the latter as a performance which "deprives the Supreme Court of the intellectual respect it needs."

THERE IS NO difference in the manner by which the High Court reached its verdict in the school cases and that by which it fashioned its latest employment ruling. In both instances the Justices ignored precedent and upset previous decisions of the Court. They proved the point Southerners have tried for almost six years to make—that however much one may approve of the result of an illegal decision he must recognize that the same procedure can be followed later to reach a result that he may violently disapprove.

Farmers urged to protect allotments

By Roy Powell, County Agent

COTTON ACREAGE

In recent years there has been a decline in cotton acreage allotments in Georgia. One reason for this is that cotton farmers in the state are not planting all of their acreage allotments.

Farmers can slow down this loss of cotton acreage by releasing the cotton acreage they do not intend to plant to their County ASC committee. When this is done, the committee can report released cotton acreage to other farms.

The law provides that the state's farm cotton acreage history can be protected in one of two ways—by planting at least 75 percent of the farm's allotment or release the allotment to the County ASC Committee. To maintain cotton history on the farm, some cotton must be planted during one out of every three years.

If you have some cotton acreage that can be released to the County ASC Committee, it must be done by March 21. That is the deadline date. If you're not sure what your cotton history status is, you might wish to check at your County A. S. C. Office.

Wearing Pigs

Which is best—wearing pigs at 3 weeks of age or at 8 weeks? In recent studies at one of Georgia's Experiment Stations pigs weaned at 3 weeks of age gained at a significantly faster rate during all seasons than pigs weaned 8 weeks.

A total of 397 pigs were used in the tests. The pigs were either weaned and confined to a pig nursery or placed in an alfalfa pasture with their dams when they were 3 weeks of age. The pigs weaned at 3 weeks had a daily gain of .81 lb. compared to .65 lb. for those weaned at 8 weeks. Mortality among the 3-week weaned pigs was slightly less than among those weaned at 8 weeks.

SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION NEWS

By E. T. "Red" MULLIS, Soil Conservation Service

Dr. Roy A. Grizzell, biologist with the Soil Conservation Service, was in Bulloch County last week helping plan a complete wildlife program for W. A. "Bill" Bowen, cooperator of the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District. Mayor Bowen's farm is located about 10 miles west of Statesboro in the West-plant community. Included in the plans were numerous small plantings of Brown-top scattered over the farm at strategic locations.

Mr. Charlie Nessmith, a cooperator of the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District, in the Port Community has recently completed a jam-up water disposal system on his farm. Mr. Nessmith leveled off his old terraces and reteraced with parallel terraces and sodded waterways. After the District motor grader had completed construction of terraces and waterways, Mr. Nessmith did an excellent job of shaping and widening out the terrace beds, moving topsoil into the water channels and smoothing the back slope of the terraces. Another important thing Mr. Nessmith did was to break his land with the terraces while the water was in doubt about the terraces, because you maintain your terraces by pulling them every year, while simply breaking over them every other year. In parallel terraces this method prevents breaking "crossways" a terrace bed which would happen in unparallel terraces or where you broke land and rounded up. Mr. Nessmith was very encouraged this year by more and more people breaking their land by terraces while "dead-heading" at the ends. Those who are doing this say it doesn't take any more time than by breaking land across the terraces. They can turn quicker and get started back without tedious backing up at four corners. This is a very healthy trend which I hope and believe will completely eliminate a round and round breaking in Bulloch County.

Protect Trees

During summer months we all appreciate resting in the cool shade of a large tree. Perhaps you have considered planting a shade tree in your yard this spring. There are many species of trees native to the state that can be grown as shade trees. However, some of the more popular shade trees are willow, water oak, pin oak, pecan, maple, silver maple and Florida maple.

The willow oak is a rather large long-lived, and fast growing deciduous tree that develops a fairly short trunk in an open area. It has a dense oval or round topped crown. Growth is best in moist soils, but it also thrives satisfactorily in drier soils.

Water oak grows fast in early life and provides quick shade. It is tall and rather slender, with a well-developed, fairly symmetrical crown of ascending branches. It is more subject to mistletoe and storm damage than other shade trees.

Pin oak grows at a moderate rate and is hardy and long-lived. It has a rounded, pyramidal top when young but tends to become irregular at maturity. Leaves turn attractive scarlet in the late fall. Dead leaves persist into the winter.

Red maple grows rapidly, is relatively short-lived, and sheds its leaves early on various sites. It has brilliant scarlet to orange autumn coloring. Growth of silver maple and Florida maple is similar to that of red maple.

A pecan tree may be planted where nut production is wanted along with the benefits of shade. It is fairly exacting in requirements and may demand a little more care than some other shade trees.

Of course, once you decide what tree you want for shade, you'll have to plant it. This job is an important one. Often it has been said that if a person has $10.00 to spend on a tree, he should spend $2.00 for the tree and $8.00 to prepare the planting hole.

The hole should be dug deep enough to accommodate the full root system of the tree. In poorer soils the hole should be larger and deeper. If you are in doubt about the size, just make it larger and deeper.

Remember to separate the soil from the subsoil. The subsoil should either be discarded or replaced with topsoil or it should be improved by mixing liberal quantities of well-rotted manure or peat moss with it.

The tree should be planted to about the same depth that it was originally. Some people have found that if a tree is set a bit higher in its location than in its former one, the chances of continued good growth are increased.

When trees are planted bare-root, add the soil gradually and work the soil thoroughly around all roots. You should be sure to eliminate all air pockets. Some water may be added to help eliminate air pockets.

In caring for your shade you may want to know about such things as tree supports, fertilization, tree injuries, and diseases. See your county agent for more complete details about shade trees.

"I WOULDN'T PLANT COTTON AGAIN WITHOUT ORTHOCIDE SOIL TREATER X"

Cotton grower Bill Weaver (pictured above, left, with ORTHO Fieldman Jim McCarty), says, "I wouldn't plant cotton again without ORTHOCIDE Soil Treater X—it proved itself under real rough conditions during planting season. I treated my entire 2,700 acres and didn't have one bit of trouble from diseases like root rot and big shank. My neighbors who didn't treat had to replant. With results like this I'm going to treat again next year with ORTHOCIDE Soil Treater X."

ORTHOCIDE Soil Treater X creates a protected zone in the furrow—allows tender seedlings to develop normally despite cold, wet, infested soil.
