Polio is still dangerous in Bulloch county

Polio is a disease of the non-immunized, says Dr. Chas. T. Brown.

In an interview today, Dr. Brown, Health Commissioner of Bulloch County, cautioned parents of small children against the belief that polio was no longer a real danger in our area. He explained that, as more and more children and adults in Bulloch County are protected against polio through immunization, those without shots have less opportunity to build natural immunity against the disease in childhood. Consequently, children without immunization are unprotected from the polio virus infecting them, and the disease may be more severe; its effects more serious.

Dr. Brown stated further that a complete series of four shots of Salk vaccine is needed for adequate protection against polio. He urged parents, who are not sure whether or not their child has had the necessary shots, to contact their physician or local health department for further information.

Tobacco markets to open in flue-cured belt Thurs., July 28

Commissioner of Agriculture Phil Campbell has issued an order for the opening of tobacco sales on July 28.

Campbell's action came after a meeting of the State Tobacco Advisory board Monday at which members of the board, after a careful survey of the tobacco crop, recommended July 28 as the best date to begin sales.

The July 28 date was established at a meeting of the Tobacco Advisory Board Monday, following surveys in all of the state's tobacco growing counties.

This is a week later than the 1959 opening date, but still is earlier than most growers had hoped for. He announced that the state's tobacco growing counties.

The voting of the eight-member committee was unanimous and, according to members of the committee, the "most harmonious tobacco meeting in history."

Various other dates were suggested for the opening with Aug. 4, a week later, being the most prominent mentioned. However, the majority was clearly established by the July 28 date as shown by the results of surveys conducted by the committee members.

A Georgia law created the Tobacco Advisory Board from members of the Senate, House of Representatives, farmers and the Georgia Farm Bureau. Commissioner of Agriculture Phil Campbell, who has the authority by law to set date, is an ex-officio member of the committee.

Rep. Bill Lanier of Candler is the committee member that the late survey, as opposed to an earlier one last year which resulted in a changing of the date, brought a virtual agreement from everyone on a date. He suggested a similar move next year.

THE COMMITTEE voted to ask the commissioner to write the Eastern Carolina Belt to consider an opening date that would allow Georgia at least 10 selling days to maintain a complete set of buyers on the markets.

John Duncan, president of the Georgia Farm Bureau, the message to request such consideration from the tobacco-producing areas to the north.

More than 80 warehouses in 22 Georgia towns will be selling tobacco last year topped some 130,000,000 pounds, worth approximately $65,000,000.

Working together for a prosperous future!

EDITOR'S NOTE—With several small industries and one major industry and Georgia Southern College in our community we must strive constantly to maintain good and wholesome relations between our people and management of the several industries and the administration of the college. This is elementary but we tend to take them for granted, and allow ourselves to drift into indifference toward them.

Recently we read a piece in the Tupelo Daily Journal published in Tupelo, Mississippi. What it says about Northeast Mississippi can be taken as a reminder, that to maintain a favorable climate in which our industries and our people might live and operate, we must work at it diligently and intelligently.

A DECADE or more ago we began to realize as businessmen and civic leaders that if the people of our state were to prosper it was necessary to secure new industrial jobs for them.

Since that time all of us have seen the small farmer fight a losing battle in attempting to earn a decent living in the face of increased costs on reduced average allotments. Literally hundreds of our friends and neighbors have been forced to move or to supplement their farm income with off-farm employment. This will continue to be true in the past, just as it has been true in the past. As businessmen, we also realize that during the early nineteen sixties our area would be faced with more young people seeking jobs than ever before in history because of the large increase in the number of births that took place toward the close of World War II.

We saw that unless all the people of Northeast Mississippi worked together to provide more good jobs, our children and our children's children would be forced to leave home when they reached maturity. It is because civic and business leaders recognized the pressing need for more and better job opportunities for these leaders have been and still are making an all out drive for industrial development.

HAPPY PLANTS BRING MORE PLANTS

During the past twenty years Northeast Mississippi has earned the reputation of being a good place for industrial development. All of our people in town and country have been only by voting for BAWI bonds but also by their continuing interest in the success and growth of each of these industries after it located in our area.

There is no question about the fact that one of the most powerful advertisements for the industrial development of Northeast Mississippi is the success of our existing industries. The managers and directors of our existing industries can do more to help persuade new industries to move to our area than any other single group.

Equally, if they find that they are constantly being harassed by labor troubles, by unfair laws or unfavorable public opinion they can keep new industries out of the area by reporting that the area is unfriendly to industry.

We are most fortunate in the fact that the managers of our existing industries have been so cooperative and have stressed the good business climate to be found in this area.

LOYAL WORKERS HELP CREATE MORE JOBS

Another group that is of tremendous importance in expanding industries or attracting new industries is made up of our friends who are employed in existing industries. All of us owe these loyal workers a great debt of gratitude for their cooperation with management and for their outstanding record of productivity.

We think we have the finest work force in the world and we are proud that they have earned the reputation of giving a fair day's work for a fair day's pay. Furthermore, this group of loyal Northeast Mississippians has not followed outside agitators and as a result we have not had strikes and other violence that has marred industrial relations in many other sections of our nation.

It is of the utmost importance that our people continue the good relations that we have between management and labor and that we never let anyone or any group stir up enmity and discord between them.

The people of Northeast Mississippi need not repeat the mistakes of Detroit and other strike-ridden areas of the North. In some of these northern sections there is open antagonism between management and labor. This type of thinking has stopped industrial growth in many of these places and this wrong type of thinking could stop industrial progress in Northeast Mississippi.

All of us, by our attitudes and by our actions, are determining whether peace and prosperity and goodwill shall be the continuing characteristics of the people of our area.

As businessmen we pledge ourselves to work together with the people of our area.

Let's Play It Safe All Year!

NATIONAL FARM SAFETY WEEK

ARE YOUR fish stories losing their touch of glamour? Are you saving to hang your tales? You'll shame when tales are being told of fantastic catches by your friends? Has the horror thought entered your mind that you're not the fisherman you used to be? Do you find yourself shunning your fishing companions and your fishing companions shunning you?

Well, listen to a man who is no fisherman, who only tells fish tales told to him by others, who is endowed with the kind of patience a fisherman likes to find in a man to whom he can relate his fishing prowess.

We got the word.

Get you a thermometer! "Aw, nuts!" you say. "No, really, get yourself a thermometer!"

You can find the fish if you know the water temperature; they prefer and have a thermometer with you.

Fishery biologists say that most warm water fish prefer water between 70 and 75 degrees for feeding. This means that they will not likely strike your lure if the water temperature is 80 or even 40 degrees.

This Week's Meditation

By LAWRENCE E. HOUSTON JR.

CONTAGIOUS CHRISTIANITY

CHRISTIANITY can be likened to a contagious disease. If it is not catching, we don't have a very good case. In fact, Christianity is contagious or it ceases to exist. There is a law of the mind that says if an idea is not expressed, it will die. Another authority states that ninety percent of our learning is lost in ninety days unless applied.

The AUTHOR of the New Testament knew the value of contagious Christianity. In the early days of the church, their motto was: "Come, see, and go." One Jewish rabbi appreciated the situation correctly: "All religions are glad to have inquirers come to them, but this Christianity is different. . . . It seeks out the lost, it goes to the lowly, the undeserving, the sinful." Consequently, our Christianity is different. . . . It seeks out the lost, it goes to the lowly, the undeserving, the sinful. . . . It seeks out the lost, it goes to the lowly, the undeserving, the sinful. . . .

Equally so, the general public must have a clear understanding of the problems and the greatest goodwill on the part of management and of employees.

Most of our people have a diary the size of the telephone book. Remove one of these legs and the stool falls. This is the general public, employees and management are the three legs on which sound industrial growth must stand.

FRICTION CAN RUIN AREA

All of us in these three groups must definitely decide never to let our area become the "happy hunting-ground" for outside agitators.

Welfare laws and unfavorable public opinion they can keep new industries out of the area by reporting that the area is unfriendly to industry.

We are most fortunate in the fact that the managers of our existing industries have been so cooperative and have stressed the good business climate to be found in this area.

Another group that is of tremendous importance in expanding industries or attracting new industries is made up of our friends who are employed in existing industries. All of us owe these loyal workers a great debt of gratitude for their cooperation with management and for their outstanding record of productivity.

We think we have the finest work force in the world and we are proud that they have earned the reputation of giving a fair day's work for a fair day's pay. Locating water with the proper temperature is not difficult. Simply take a minimum reading thermometer and attach it to a line. (No, not for bait). The knots in the line will not likely strike your lure if the water temperature is 80 or even 40 degrees.

Order forest tree seedling by Oct. 1

By T. R. POWELL, County Agent

Don't delay! Even though forest tree seedlings will not be planted until winter, now is the time to order. The Georgia Forestry Commission will receive orders until October 1.

All of the most popular species, including slash and loblolly pines, yellow-poplar and red-cedar are available. In addition to these, twelve other species may be ordered. This includes many hardwoods which are available for the first time.

Order forms and instruction booklets may be obtained from your county ranger. County agents and S. C. S. technicians have them in counties with no ranger.

If seedlings are to be spaced 6x12 or 8x6 to 7 hundred trees will be needed per acre. Most pine seedlings will cost $4.00 per thousand with the price ranging to $10.00 for some species. There is a 25 cent per thousand delivery charge if the seedlings are delivered to your county. There is no limit this year as to the number of seedlings that may be delivered. But orders must be for at least 500.

It is never too early to make plans or orders. Early orders will help you get the seedling you want along with the desired delivery date.

LAWN MOLDS
During the spring and summer following rainy periods, fungi causing slime or smutty mold of lawns move out of the ground onto the grass as yellow to gray jelly-like structures. They later mature into dark spore masses. These spore masses may cover small areas completely of several square feet. Since these slime molds feed on decaying organic matter, they are not parasitic or disease causing. However, they are unsightly and may cause some damage to the grass by smothering or shading.

Slime molds can be removed by mechanical means such as mowing, brushing, raking, or by using a strong stream of water from a hose. If they occur often during wet weather, you should spray affected areas with Zineb (65% wettable powder) at the rate of 2 ounces (1/4 cup) in 2 gallons of water per 1,000 square feet.

USING CHEMICALS SAFELY
Modern pesticides, drugs, and feed additives have an established place in livestock production. They are important aids in safeguarding the health of livestock and increasing production efficiency.

All of these chemicals cost money. So it pays to use them only in recommended amounts. When properly used, they are safe and effective, but some of them can be injurious to humans or animals if used improperly.

Residues of certain chemicals are stored in animal tissues. In some animals, these may accumulate little by little over a long period.

By using recommended procedures, you can guard against harmful residues that would make your products illegal for sale.

Here are 11 rules to follow in the use of chemicals in connection with producing livestock:

1. Carefully read and observe the letter all instructions on the label.
2. Accurately measure and thoroughly mix ingredients.
3. Follow recommendations as to type, age, and condition of animals treated.
4. Use prescribed methods of administration.
5. Observe required time intervals between treatment and marketing of livestock.
6. Implant or inject materials only in recommended locations on the animal's body.
7. Guard against pesticide contamination of drinking water, feed, and utensils.
8. Observe safety precautions to avoid harmful effects to persons administering chemicals and their benefits. Here, ministers, doctors, and farmers made some interesting remarks. The minister, Rev. J. L. Little of Swainsboro, said, "Farm Bureau is a way of life. It prepares man and helps man to live, abundant and circumspet lives. And, if man will only live that kind of life here, he can live anywhere he goes, and he even will not have to worry about where he is going when he dies, because he will have done God's bidding here on earth." The deacon spoke of the benefits of Farm Bureau from the angle of fellowship. He said that in Farm Bureau, "We get fellowship that is equal to that of Christianity. And that if we receive no more out of Farm Bureau than fellowship which is living with, working with, and sharing the problems of life with our fellowmen, then Farm Bureau is for worth more than the $10.00 membership dues."

The farmers stated that the organization helps them to grow more produce and receive more profits which helps them to live better generally, eating better food, wearing better clothes, living in better houses, having better furniture, and in sending their children to school and giving them better education so that they too will be equipped with the tools of solving life's problems.

To avoid injury to germinating cotton seed and small plants, place fertilizer two to three inches to side and two to three inches deeper than the seed, say agronomists. Agricultural Extension Service.

MR. LAMAR SMITH AND MR. JOHN CROMLEY of the Brooklet community report excellent cotton insect control. For sure Cotton Insect Control we recommend the use of a mixture of ENDRIN-METHYL PARATHION and DDT, applied on a recommended schedule.

Here are the advantages you get with Endrin methyl parathion

Men's Softball League Review

By RALPH TURNER

Hutchinson suffered the loss for Rockwell. Thursday night, June 30, the Men's Softball League was frustrating and exciting. Two games were postponed by the National Guard and one forfeited by the Nic Nac. The National Guard had to postpone two games until they could get back from summer camp.

Tuesday night, June 28, the College Pharmacy trounced the Franklin's Restaurant team 16 to 6. The Pharmacy scored their 16 hits on 13 base hits while the losers scored their six runs on 12 hits. Don Waugh led the Pharmacy with three hits and seven RBIs. Ty Adams led the losers with four hits. Arnold Cleary and Reggie Beasley helped out with two hits each. Leading the hitting attack for the winners were Ronnie Griffith and Ronald Staring with three hits each and Jackie Anderson. Gilbert Williams collected two hits each. Raymond Shaw and Gilbert Williams hit trapezoids for Brooklet. Brooklet's winning pitcher was Bill Strickland.

Dr. Robert David Ward, associate professor of history at Georgia Southern College, is the author of an article published in the June issue of the Mississippi Valley Historical Review. The article is entitled "The Origin and Activities of the National Security League from 1914-1918." It discusses the League's organization and attempts to stir up military preparedness prior to America's entry into World War I through its investigation by the House of Representatives in 1919 and the ultimate decision that the League had violated the Espionage Act.

Dr. Ward's summation: "It had turned from its original advocacy of preparedness, and using the influence and conformity of war which it had helped to foster, had become the interests that it represented with a public sanctity."

"Though the League as an organization failed, other organizations came forward to take its place as the upholders of military preparedness and patriotism, and the development of the 1920's suggest that its ideas were far more durable than its corporate life."

Dr. Ward received the bachelor and master of science degrees from Auburn University and the doctor of philosophy degree from the University of North Carolina. He has served on the Georgia Southern College faculty since September, 1955.

Mr. Ward's summation: "It had turned from its original advocacy of preparedness, and using the influence and conformity of war which it had helped to foster, had become the interests that it represented with a public sanctity."

The old house was run down with the windows out and the paint peeling off before Mrs. Franklin and her son, restored it. Although the original timber is still there the house has been remodeled and painted. And it looks like it will be good for at least another 185 years.

There are six large fireplaces on the second floor and two upstairs — in the big rambling house. The stairway opens on the front porch and has no direct access to the room down stairs. It is an easy way to remove guests from the porch, declares Miss Doris Oglesby, housing-equipment specialist, Agricultural Extension Service.
