COTTON:

Bulloch County grower reports best insert could be ever had with a season-long model methathison program

John Jenkins, Brooklet, Georgia, says "I check with all the cotton growers in our area and the yield was a little higher than last year and got good quality cotton set. It's a good year, and I'm happy that we had the weather to get the cotton grown."

We made 1,266 pounds more peanuts per acre, thanks to aldrin soil insecticide.

Reilly and Jack Hanna tell it better than we can...

What makes a peanut grower have more peanuts in a field than the one next to him? The answer is aldrin, the new soil insecticide. It has been used successfully in this area for several years.

As we speak, the peanuts are being harvested and the results are in. The peanuts that received aldrin have been harvested and are now being sold. The peanuts that did not receive aldrin are still in the field and will be harvested later in the season.
