Our Investment In The Future

FOR ONE DAY Statesboro will be "governed" by the youth of the city. On Civic Youth Day, sponsored by the Statesboro High School Tri-Hi-Y Clubs and the Statesboro Lions Club, a Youth Mayor will serve as our community's chief executive.

On Thursday of last week registration books were opened. The "Acting City Clerk" together with two assistants conducted the registration.

On election day the youth of Statesboro goes to the polls and elect their Youth Mayor and members of their Youth Council.

CITY REQUIREMENT - A prospective voter must first be a registered city voter. This requires that he be able to interpret a paragraph from the Constitution of the State of Georgia, and be able to write his name.

Before 2:30 on September 25, candidates for the Youth Mayor and members of the Youth Council may qualify.

Candidates for the Youth Mayor must be in the twelfth grade and must have been a student in the Statesboro High School for his or her entire junior year.

We can think of no finer activity than this stimulating experience for the youth as they become interested in the operation of our city government.

Members of the Youth Council will sit in a joint session with the Statesboro City Council. The appointive officials—fire chief, city engineer, city attorney, will be given practical demonstrations in city administration.

Still At The Top

WITH THE FIRST RETURNS IN, Bulloch County again leads the state of Georgia in Farm Bureau membership.

The incomplete figures show that 1,760 citizens of the county joined or renewed their membership in the one-day membership drive on September 9.

County Agent Byron Dyer states that additional memberships are coming in and when all the figures are together Bulloch County will have well over 2,000 in her Farm Bureau.

We congratulate the farm leaders of our county. They did a wonderful job. The membership drive represented a lot of planning, a lot of cooperation and hard work.

It's that combination which keeps Bulloch County at the top of the list in most things, a lot of planning, a lot of cooperation, and a lot of hard work.

He Stood In Shy Dignity HE STOOD UP with a shy dignity and just said, "I thank you. I hope I deserve the honor you have paid me."

Young Averitt, winner of the J. B. Seacore Community Service and Sportsmanship Award, was trying to say that he appreciates the honor paid him by the more than 200 youth of Statesboro with whom he associates.

In announcing the award Max Lockwood, superintendent of the Statesboro Department of Recreation, made it plain that there are scores of other youth in Statesboro who might just as easily have been selected for the award.

Which it true. In the first balloting ten young boys were named. Then began the process of elimination which proved to be a difficult task.

And J. B. Seacore, for inaugurating the award, will want to express the community's appreciation for the things it represents to the youth of our community.

At the award luncheon held at the Community Center last week community leaders paid high tribute to the youth of Statesboro as represented by young Averitt.

The city's recreation program shared with Hal the praise accorded youth of our community. Mayor Gilbert Cone reviewed the struggle the Recreation Center has had since its inception. He praised the citizens of the community for the part they have contributed and expressed pride in having been the mayor at the time the program was inaugurated.

Joe Neville, representing the Junior Chamber of Commerce, reviewed the part the Joyceces have played and are taking in the center.

Allen Lanier, chairman of the Recreation Board, and chairman-elect of the County Commissioners emphasized the growing number of county youth who are taking part in the program.

S. H. Sherman, principal of the Statesboro schools, commended the youth of our city, pointing out that "you can't fool the youth of today."

Mrs. W. A. Bowen, member of the Recreation Board, remembered the first days of the recreation and the difficulties it experienced.

Awarding the Community Service and Sportsmanship Award to Hal Averitt threw the spotlight full upon Statesboro's recreation program. It emphasized the high position that the Department of Recreation holds in the state of Georgia.

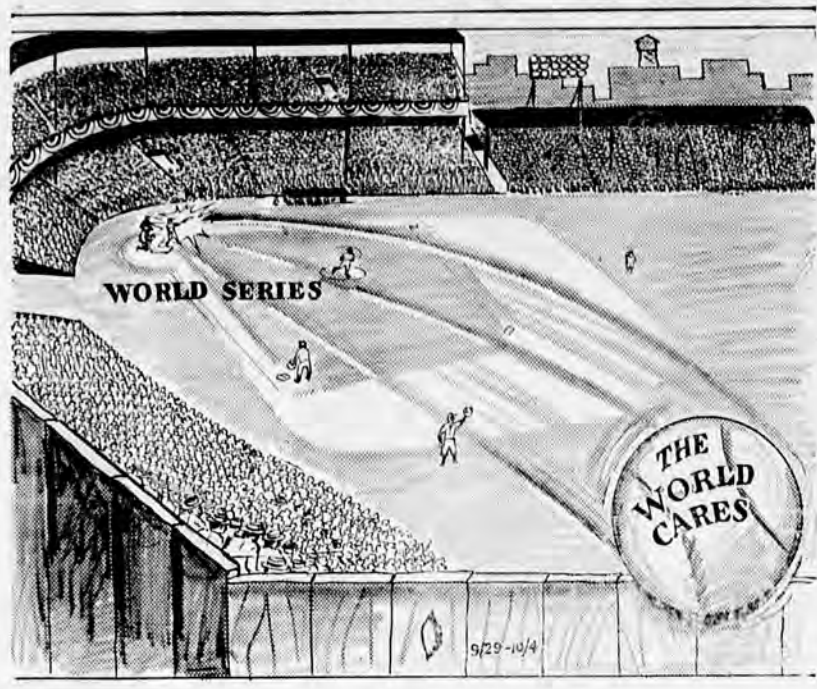

We congratulate Hal Averitt. We are proud of him and the young people he represents.

We commend his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Barney Averitt.

We commend Max Lockwood and the Department of Recreation for helping develop youth like Hal Averitt.

And J. B. Seacore, for inaugurating the award, will want to express the community's appreciation for the things it represents to the youth of our community.

County Unit Safe in Primary

BEFORE THE PROponents and opponents of the County Unit get any deeper into name-calling fights, it might be well to point out that the defeat of Constitutional Amendment No. 1 will not remove the unit system from the primary.

When a similar proposal was beaten by the people in 1950, many persons believed in a unit system of weighing votes for the primary and the unit system in the Democratic primary in this one party state.

Things Teachers Expect From Children's Parents

Last week the mothers had their say about the teachers of their children. This week some of the teachers have been invited to tell their expectations of the children's parents. It is with regret that we space in a column is so limited.

"1. That their children have the right attitudes. These are developed by parents long before we get them in school. Children are mimics and more often than not reflect the attitudes of their parents.

"2. A sympathetic understanding of the problems involved when thirty or more different personalities are grouped together.

"3. The parents understand that teachers are just as anxious to meet the individual needs of their children as they are to teach.

"4. A cooperative spirit. When a teacher feels that a parent is receptive to suggestions, they can be made freely and without any feeling of criticism.

"5. Support all of the activities offered by the school for the entertainment of the community.

"6. The parents should know all the facts of the school program and especially of the teacher to the school personnel. The most harmful practice of parents is criticism of teachers and of the school program in the presence of children who are in the school.

"7. When children become involved in school disputes, do not side with children until both sides of the story are known. I do not advocate parents' taking the teacher's side regardless, but I do feel that before taking the side of children parents should know all the facts.

Irrigation eliminates the risk of losing seeds, fertilizer, labor, and time when lack of rainfall would otherwise cause crops to fall short of producing good yields.

When you see young people on their way to school these mornings, our Georgia State Patrol asks you to slow down and be alert. Because they are young they are inclined to be reckless and commit foolish acts. Watch for them to dart suddenly into the street or to cross without looking properly.

There was good rolling fun throughout the entire evening. As soon as every one had arrived, the guests fell in line for the food that was arranged so attractively on the table that very little decoration was necessary.

You picked up your plate, your fork and spoon and all by yourself you picked your favorite piece of chicken, your pineapple sandwich, Open-faced, you watched them spread your patients close on round out bread, you got what you wanted from the basket of raw vegetables, slivers of carrots, and you found the rolls delicious, rings of green peppers of celery, you stopped by and Miss Myrtle poured your tea, and you proceeded to a chair and every thing was quiet.

Then came Harry Smith with second helpings of everything, and we wound up with individual cakes topped with creamy icing.

Then Lucile Smith gave minute directions for the next act. The men were directed to the East dressing room; the women were directed to the dressing rooms on the west, where they found sacks of clothing. You grabbed a sack and donned whatever you found in

Father Nagle Makes Statement.

Father Nagle, pastor of the St. Matthew's Catholic Church makes the following statement:

"The article about Father Smith has come to our attention. We feel that to the good people of Statesboro and Bulloch county, Father Smith needs no defense. He worked among you these past seven or eight years and made Statesboro his home. Perhaps the good people of Statesboro desired his free and easy manner of speech. And therefore if he engages in a little facetiousness you know that his last thought would be to hurt or insult the people back home in Statesboro. However there are a few things I would like to point out.

"In the first place, it is not true that Father Smith was in New York to raise money to carry on this work in the South, because he is no longer working in the South. He is no longer, as Mrs. Hickey writes, a missionary priest from Statesboro, Ga. This is either out of date information or the part of Father Smith's misinformed that came from Mrs. Hickey. Father Smith was transferred from St. Matthew's here in Statesboro on Aug. 14, 1951. While on a visit down here last spring Father Smith gave me a small contribution which in reality was not a contribution but was only a sufficient amount for the gas and food expenses which we incurred while he was here. With this exception, since I have been pastor here at St. Matthew's beginning on August 1, 1951, St. Matthew's Church has not received one cent from Father Smith nor one cent from Father Smith's Society of Priests through the occasional small contributions which we three members of that Society, Father Gartner, Father Farry and myself have given it. And those small gifts were given to each of us from friends and relatives of ours entirely independent of Father Smith.

"Furthermore, Mrs. Hickey writes that she is sure no Protestant would get up in church and talk about the Catholics. She is simply uninformed about Statesboro as to what has happened in the not too distant past. The statement about 'doing the worst thing the owner could have done by selling the liquor store to the Catholics' is not a fragment of Father Smith's imagination. It is the truth and quite contrary to the kind of charitable supposition of the lady writing to me and every Protestant minister—it was said from a church by a minister over the radio in this town.

"Also, if Father Smith was intent upon hurting or insulting the people of Statesboro he would have brought up the fact that a few were instrumental in bringing in the ex-priest at two different times here. But Father Smith knew you good Christian people in Statesboro did not approve of this.

"In conclusion we know that the great virtue of charity is Christ's greatest command. The priests and Catholics of this community do not wish to enter into controversy—we do not wish to antagonize our good Christian neighbors. We have come among you to exemplify the Christian ideal of charity. Let us all in this community work together for the betterment of our community.

National Guard Has Openings For Men 17 to 25

Membership in the local National Guard is open to young men between the ages of 17 and 25 who are in good physical condition. Training periods are held 2 hours weekly with a 15-day summer encampment. For this training, Guardsmen receive regular Army rates of pay, receiving a full day's pay for each day of training and full pay and allowances during the 15 days of summer field training held each year. A guardsman providing his own transportation and 15 days summer field training can earn from $163.17 for a recruit to $617.40 for a Master Sergeant annually.

As a member of the National Guard you'll learn skills which will help you in your civilian job and give you practical experience as well. Under the Guard training program you'll have at least one half of your Guard training in special subjects such as radio, radar, mechanics, administration, food handling and many other skills. In addition, Guardsmen may attend Army service schools.

The local National Guard Armory located at the Statesboro Airport is open from eight to five on week days with personnel on duty to give further information to any men interested in enlisting in the Guard.

Wintering cows on small grain-legume mixtures such as oats, vetch, etc., promises to be the most economical way of wintering cattle in Georgia.

WATCH FOR SCHOOL BUSES

"Watch for those school buses," says our Georgia State Patrol. Failure to stop when meeting or overtaking one while it is loading or unloading passengers can bring a charge of reckless driving and suspension of your driver's license. It can also bring a tragic accident involving a child that you won't forget as long as you live.

Blue Devils Defeat TCH; Lyons Is Next

The Statesboro High Blue Devils ran over a light Toombs Central High Team last Friday night on the local field by the overwhelming score of 35 to 0.

The passing combination of Jerry Fletcher to Gilbert Cone and the defensive play of the whole Blue Devils team, kept the boys from Toombs County on the short end of the score.

The Devils got off to a slow start, as they threatened to score twice in the first quarter but a bad snap from center and an intercepted pass prevented them from reaching the goal.

In the second period, Albert Stewart intercepted a T. C. pass on his 15 yard line and moved to the 18 and in two more carries, he had a bad snap from center and an intercepted pass prevented them from reaching the goal.

In the final quarter, T. C. punted a short one to Stewart who received the ball on the Toombs' 40 and returned to the 20. On a tricky spread pass, Fletcher shot a pass to Cone who scored his third touch down of the game behind a wedge of Statesboro blockers. Fletcher kicked the point after the touch down.

Later in the quarter with the Devil reserves swarming on the field, Statesboro recovered a fumble on T. C.'s 16. Second string backs drove to the five from where reserve quarterback Charlie Jo Hollingsworth scored. Fletcher booted his fifth straight extra point.

The Devils led 35-0 and the game ended moments later.

Quarterback Jerry Fletcher and end Gilbert Cone were the offensive threats for the Devils. John Webb, Wayne Parrish and Johnny McGinnery were very outstanding defensive players for Statesboro.

The Blue Devils met Lyons Friday night (October 3) in Lyons.
