Eason, the driver, met a Red who attempted to bayonet him. "I was running along," he said, "when this Chinik jumped out and yelled 'GI! GI!' Then he tried to bayonet me. My flak vest saved my life." Eason reported that his attacker made several lunges at his chest before he could pull out his .45 and shoot him.

Several of the crewmen said they became so thirsty and tired during their all-night flight that they licked the dew off leaves for water.

Expert study city's natural gas survey

Mayor Bill Bowen and members of the Statesboro city council announced this week that the city of Statesboro is working on the possibilities of securing natural gas service for this community.

Henry Ellis, president of the Statesboro and Bulloch County Chamber of Commerce, announced this week that the Chamber of Commerce has received from the printers copies of the industrial survey compiled by its members early this year.

The survey covers all the questions that officials of industry ask of a community when they are seeking sites for location.

The book, neatly bound in plastic, includes pictures, maps, charts and reading matter describing this community. It contains 23 pages, together with a pocket on the inside back cover for additional information and pamphlets.

The book covers 37 subjects including motel and restaurant accommodations, agriculture, altitude, area, banks, bonded indebtedness, building, permitted churches, climate, communications, construction costs, education facilities, electric power, fire protection, food, government health, history, housing, industry, labor supply, library, location, markets, natural resources, police protection, population, postal service, recreation, sewage, industrial sites, streets, taxes, topography, transportation, wage rates, and water supply.

He stated that these engineers are now studying their findings and will make recommendations to the city by the end of the next thirty days.

He added that the statement made last week in the Bulloch Herald by Hanson Hill, president of the South Atlantic Gas Company, of Savannah, has nothing whatsoever to do with the city's plans for distributing natural gas here. Mr. Hill, in his statement said, "Bringing natural gas to Statesboro is one of the jobs already assigned to William R. Gignilanti, newly elected vice president of South Atlantic Gas Company."

He invited Mr. Gignilanti to the council say, "if the survey by Bernard and Burck reveals that the City of Statesboro can go into the natural gas business, we will look out some way to do so." They made it plain that "if we do bring natural gas to the citizens of this community, it will be done with revenue certificates and not additional taxes."

Police Commission named to study city police department

With the intention to do something about the police department of Statesboro the Mayor of Statesboro, on Tuesday of this week, named a Police Commission to make a complete and detailed study of the needs of the city police department.

Mayor Bill Bowen announced on Tuesday of this week that he had named A. B. McDougall, chairman and Tommy Roush and Rufus Anderson members of the Police Commission.

The action was taken at the meeting of the City Council Tuesday morning.

Mayor Bowen stated that the move has the concerted support of all members of the council.

He went on to say that the council is committed to carry out completely the recommendations of the newly appointed commission.

"We recognize that we must do something to determine what needs to be done to improve our police department."

"If we need additional police, if we need to increase the pay scale, and benefits, if we need more complete and unbiased picture can be drawn by such a commission than by an individual," he said.

He explained that he feels that such action should come from the city council rather than from him as chief executive of the city government.

"A more complete and unbiased picture can be drawn by such a commission than by an individual," he said.

Grand Jury recommendation ignored

IS A Grand Jury recommendation something to be made, recorded, and forgotten. We think not.

We believe that every recommendation made by this group of our county's most conservative men should be given serious consideration with activation the ultimate goal.

The fact that they made a recommendation is evidence that the recommendation follows careful study and observation.

At the April Term, 1952, of the Bulloch Superior Court our Grand Jury included in its presentments a recommendation that something be done about the traffic hazard at the intersection of highways U. S. 301, U. S. 25, and Georgia 46, at Pine Inn, about seven miles south of Statesboro.

That Grand Jury wrote in its presentments: "We, the Grand Jury, recommend that this body call upon the State Highway Department with regard to removing the traffic hazard at the intersection of Federal Routes 301, 25, and State Route 46, known as Pine Inn, in Bulloch County, Georgia, and we further recommend that a traffic control light be installed at this point.

On Friday of last week there was no sign that anything has been done regarding solving that traffic hazard.

True, there are many, and big signs along the approach from three directions. But even so, the intersection is still a hazard.

Large trucks find it difficult to maneuver. Drivers of passenger cars, even with warnings, are surprised to find themselves fighting the curve if they stay on 301 and 25.

A few moments observation at the intersections will reveal many accidents that don't quite happen... almost, but not quite.

We believe that something should be done there.

We believe the Grand Jury recommendation a good one. We believe it should be followed up.

And that it be followed up until the hazard is eliminated.

We're reading a lot

PEOPLE IN Bulloch and Bryan counties do a lot of reading.

Miss Isobel Sorrier, librarian for the Statesboro Regional Library serving these two counties, this week told us that during the twelve months from July 1, 1952, to June 30, 1953, the people of these two counties read 106,722 books.

That's a lot of books.

With a total population of 24,740, the people of Bulloch county read 90,066 books. And of this figure 49,344 books were carried to their readers by the Bookmobile—the traveling library.

With a total population of 5,965, the people of Bryan county read 16,996, all carried to them by the Bookmobile.

The people of Statesboro used the library on South Main street to the extent of checking out 40,722 books, magazines, records, pictures, filmstrips, pamphlets and maps. This figure jumped from 34,165 during the previous year.

The library has a collection of 532 filmstrips and three machines. There are 110 albums of records, 125 single recordings, and two record players.

During the last year 4,000 new books were added to the shelves of our library, which now houses 25,642 volumes.

What are our people reading?

Here's a sampling furnished by Miss Sorrier:

Tom Watson's "Bethany," Kains "Propagation of Plants," Filson's "Opening the New Testament," Walters, "Steam and Hot Water Fitting," Connor's "Clever Speeches for All Occasions," Browne's "This Believing World," Woodhouse's "Big Store, Opportunities in Department Store Work," Barrett's "Harnessing the Earthworm," McDonald's "Plague and I," Dickerson's "Growing Into Manhood," "Irrigation Principles and Practices."

If the book you want is not in the library here, just ask for it, and if it's in print, it can be secured for you from many of the library's sources, including the Library Extension Service, the Atlanta Library, the Savannah library, the Library of Congress, the college library, or the publisher.

Like so many other services to which we have become accustomed we are prone to forget our library.

We're to lose our library we wonder what all those people in Bulloch and Bryan counties would do.

We're to lose our Bookmobile, we wonder what all the citizens of rural areas of Bulloch and Bryan counties would do.

Here's a service we must not forget, nor neglect. It makes for a better community. It makes for a more enlightened people.

Save a life — at Bethany Home

WE ARE HAPPY that the management of Bethany Home, in Toombs County, has moved to protect those precious old people who live there. In recent months we have read—and shuttered—when homes for old people have suffered the outbreak of a fire. Several terrible experiences have shocked the country.

Now Bethany Home is in the midst of installing a water system that will protect the lives of those who live there. A sprinkler system which will put out a fire in a few moments is being installed. It costs about $60 to protect every inmate of the home.

This is not an improvement that can be decided against. Every soul entrusted to their care is entitled to the protection of life and limb. To protect them against fire is a necessity. People know that this is a necessary expense and should be provided.

A boy who was in the front lines fighting in Korea heard what is being done and promptly sent $20. A man heard of what is being done and he said he wanted to protect one soul from a burning death. He sent $60.00.

We draw attention to this worthy work and hope that every soul can be protected. We would gladly forward to Bethany Home any contribution that may be sent us—and we guarantee to deliver to you the official receipt from Bethany Home.

A generous gesture

IT WAS A generous gesture and one that we applaud.

In a brief ceremony in the county courthouse on Wednesday last week, the members of the Dexter Allen Post 90 of the American Legion presented Judge J. L. Renfroe a United States flag and a flag of the State of Georgia.

Representing the Legionnaires of this county Francis Allen said "... The American Legion thinks that these flags which so right to trial by an impartial jury of peers should stand in this courtroom in full view of all who are charged with the responsibility of protecting the rights of the people of this county."

In accepting the flags on the behalf of the citizens of the county, Judge Renfroe said: "I appreciate your thoughtfulness and kindness in presenting the courts with these flags. Our freedom of speech, our freedom of press, our freedom of worship came to us through bitter struggles, self denials and bloodshed... it is important that we preserve these things... we accept these flags and will try to keep them unsullied."

And now there stands on one side of the judge's bench a U. S. flag and on the other side a Georgia flag, reminding all of the freedoms we enjoy, and must preserve.

ACCORDING TO a news release from the Georgia Petroleum Industries Committee, a motorist pays 87 cents to the state and federal governments in taxes everytime he buys ten gallons of gasoline today. Thirty-two years ago, the tax on ten gallons of gasoline was five cents.

Safety First

Driving a car is a privilege, NOT a right. Treat it as a privilege by obeying traffic rules and by driving with caution and courtesy. Heavy traffic means heavy death tolls unless YOU drive carefully.

You may be the world's best driver, but you're not the only one on the highway. Drive so you can defend yourself against the mistakes of others. Practice defensive driving wherever and whenever you drive.

How fast are YOU driving right now? Could you stop in time to prevent an accident? If not—slow down before an emergency arises.

THE GREATEST GAMBLER

People who play the races have nothing on the farmer. Even the most avid of them are prone to comparison.

Horses are predictable; the elements are not. Insects, and plant diseases and farm market prices are not.

Quietly, without ranting the farmer places his bets. Day in and day out, year after year he does so every time he seeds a crop or puts in a batch of broilers. The market may be fine when they mature; or the bottom may have dropped out. The boll weevil or the army worm or blight may hit him, or it may not. There may be a flood, a drought, or a windstorm. Excessive rain may ruin his plantings. Disease may hit his hogs; excessive heat may endanger his chickens. He never knows the odds.

City-folk often look upon the farmer's life as an easy one; as something to retire to someday. Frequently they are prone to complain that the government oddities hit too much; that the price of this or that is too high at the corner grocery... and all those surpluses!

BARBER SHOP TALK

Talk in a barber shop just naturally gets around to fishing. They were talking about Frank Rushing's pond—"Big Ole Mill." They're going to fish it come August 15, according to barber shop talk. They were questioning the wisdom of fishing a pond in such hot weather.

Dedrick Waters volunteered the information that in weather as hot as we've been having and as hot as we're apt to have on August 15, that fish get tired of trying to evade the fisherman. Well that seems reasonable. Then he said that when they take the fish out of the water they begin to sweat and that soon they die. We looked up in our Book of Knowledge and we could find nothing about fish sweating.

But then there's no accounting for some of the information you pick up in a barber shop.

Got to talking about the water station in Bulloch county, Curtis Lane allowed as how man had wasted water and that he's just learning the mistakes he made. So he's building ponds to be sure of water for his stock. Julian Tillman believes the time is coming when most of the land will be irrigated, but he says that there are some in our county who don't believe in artificial watering crops. They say that it's God's will to let the rain come when he will. And Dedrick Waters told of the ole Negro who knew about lightning striking a tree but he never heard of a tree striking lightning. We didn't just exactly get the connection.

Now baseball.

There's a fine barber shop subject.

We suggest that Manager Jake Hines of the Pilots keep a scout in each of the town's barber shops and he'll learn, first hand, what's wrong with the Pilots, how they could have won the game last night, and how to win the game to be played tomorrow night.

HARRY MILLER came in to see us on Monday morning of this week. We had not seen Harry Miller since 1925. He's now working with a hotel in Washington, D. C. He's still a bachelor. He drove his mother down to see some of her folks here in Bulloch county. Soon he's going up in Canada to do some fishing.

AND MIKE McDOUGALD came in and sat a spell. With him was Joe Rickenbaker, roving reporter for the Atlanta Constitution. We talked newspapering for a spell. Joe is here to do a story on Statesboro's efforts to attract industry here.

OUR HEALTH DEPARTMENT

A great many public health programs have been started throughout the system. As in the case of all communicable diseases, typhoid is transmitted to the healthy by infected individuals or carriers. The source of infection is from intestinal and urinary discharges of such persons. The methods of transmission of the microorganisms can be through contaminated water, food, especially milk and shell fish, and under some conditions, flies.

Knowledge of transmission of the disease enables us to invoke certain methods of control, such as:

1. Protection and purification of public water supplies; construction of safe private supplies.
2. Sanitary disposal of human excreta.
3. Pasteurization of milk and milk products.
4. Limitation of collection and marketing of shellfish to those from approved sources.
5. Supervision of other food supplies and food-handling practices.
6. Fly control and protection of foods from fly contamination by screening and use of insecticides.
7. Immunizations of persons who might be exposed to infection.
8. Finding and supervision of typhoid carriers, and their exclusion from handling foods.
9. Instruction of convalescents and carriers in personal hygiene and restraint from action as food handlers.
10. Instruction to food-handlers in sources of infection and modes of transmission.

Watch your paper next week for the final discussion of the change in the typhoid "picture."

A little reading could ruin a doctor's practice

BY VIRGINIA RUSSELL

Back in the old days it was very fashionable for the women folk to faint. Today a person is afraid to have a pain for fear it is what it's all in the mind.

We little doubt that women fainted freely a hundred years ago, when we were not more than five yards or more of water were put into a dress and thirty some odd yards made the first petticoat, not to mention the other petticoats and pantaloons.

Today, however, no woman is allowed to faint because of too many clothes. Our fore-mothers doubtless wore the equivalent of the living room drapes, lining and all, whereas our clothes of today might be compared to the dish towels hanging in the kitchen.

All of this is alright. We women of today don't want to faint. In fact we enjoy all the strenuous activities that we are now allowed to participate in, and take them in our stride.

But we do resent the new trend in medicine—or at least the new trend in the magazine articles. If we have a pain in an arm or leg, we should say in a limb—and not though we should see the doctor we'd feel very timid to go to the doctor's office. Of course, the office would be full of people, no doubt.

We'd open the office door and take our seat and we'd feel very self-conscious because we'd know that all these people have been reading the same articles we'd read. Their glances at us would make us know for sure that they were giving us a very close analysis. Each one might be wondering a different thing about us. One might wonder if our husband had been cruel to us and the mental agony of it had made us physically ill? Or another might think we weren't well-adjusted socially or another might be thinking we had the parent complex and still were longing to go back home, to our childhood home, sheltered from this terrible world, in spite of the fact we've been married for twenty-two years. We can continue naming other possible causes to the cause of our aching arm.

On the other hand, our office mates should remember one thing. We can't get our mind off our own aches long enough to analyze them. We could ask a few questions, too. So our time to see the doctor would finally come after all my fellow neurotics finished their turns.

But we'd wonder if our doctor too, had been reading these articles and changed his own practice to suit the new trends. He might look us in the eye and decide our pain was due to the work over the doctor's bill. In that case, a good doctor would prescribe what?

The way things are going doctors had better learn a side trade, farming for instance. Because these magazine articles on "it's all in your mind," may cut down on their patients!

Little?—Lawrenceville News-Herald.

HUMAN NATURE AT WORK

Vanity's name isn't always woman. A trucking company traded on his knowledge not long ago. The highway manners of its drivers were bringing in a flood of complaints. Investigation showed the drivers lacked pride in their company and came to work unshaven and in greasy clothes. So the company installed a full-length mirror where the drivers could not avoid seeing themselves. Almost at once the men began to spruce themselves up and soon ahead to work uniforms. Complainers stopped, weary gentlemen, they began to drive like gentlemen.

SOCIALS PERSONALS PARTIES

WILLIAMS—GLENN

Miss Betty Jean Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Williams of Leefield, and Airman First Class William E. Glenn of Swainsboro, were married Thursday afternoon at 5:30, July 30, in the Brooklet Methodist Church. The Rev. W. H. Ansley performed the ceremony.

The newly married couple was decorated in green and white, with baskets of white gladioli, palms, and ferns, with the seven-branched candelabra with the lighted tapers.

Miss Nona Hodges of New Hope, presented a program of hospital care, and Mrs. Charles Moseley of Swainsboro was soloist.

The bride entered with her father, by whom she was given away in marriage. She was lovely in her wedding gown of lace over linen. The bride had a sweet heart necklace, and the groom had a watch with length. Her veil of illusion was attached to a crown studded with seed pearls. She carried a white corsage, topped with an orchid.

Mrs. Donald Brown of Stilson was her sister's matron of honor. She was dressed in pink nylon organdy, and carried pink asters.

Miss Sandra Williams, younger sister of the bride and Miss Ginger Hollingsworth, cousin of the groom, were junior bridesmaids, dressed in aqua organdy, and carrying pink asters.

Little Lynn Brown, of Stilson, niece of the bride, was the dainty flower girl. She was dressed in pink organdy and carried a basket of pink rose petals.

Feeder-stocker sale here Aug 26
Calling attention to the second annual series of Georgia feeder-stocker beef calf sales coming up in August and September, C. G. Garner, marketing specialist for the University of Georgia Agricultural Extension Service, said this state is becoming an increasingly important source of feeder cattle.

A sale is scheduled for Statesboro on August 26. He attributed this to the extensive use of purebred bulls. "The quality of calves produced," he said, "has greatly improved until excellent-type feeder calves are now available in volume."
