They now have a real job to do

WE WANT TO COMMEND Mayor Bill Bowen and the members of our City Council for their action in setting up a Police Commission to study the needs of our police department.

A. B. McDougald was named chairman of the commission. To serve with him are Tommy Rushing and Rufus Anderson.

They must know that they are on the job. They must know that they have a job to do.

They must know that it will mean forgetting personalities and petty politics.

The simple fact that the mayor and council have named a commission and that those named have agreed to serve is confirmation of what most citizens of Statesboro have known for a long time—that something should be done to improve our police department.

And now that the move has been made we believe that the thinking citizens of Statesboro will not be satisfied with anything less than a complete search of what needs to be done.

We can't think of them being satisfied with just superficial "study."

We believe that when the commission has completed their study and make their recommendations that their findings and their recommendations should be made public.

To do otherwise will be only to defeat the purpose of the setting up of such a commission.

We know that Mr. McDougald, Mr. Rushing, and Mr. Anderson are completely aware of the responsibility that our mayor and council have placed in their hands. We know that they will do the very best job they can.

We urge the citizens of Statesboro to help them and cooperate with them to the fullest extent in this step toward civic improvement. Out of their investigations should come the foundation for a police department that Statesboro deserves.

Let's talk about industry

LET'S TALK about industry a little.

Right now we're excited a little about the small children's dress factory which has moved to Statesboro and soon will go into production in the new building constructed by the Bulloch County Development Corporation.

We are also excited over the interest a very large corporation is showing in Statesboro.

But let's get excited over an industry that has been here for a long time.

The A. M. Braswell Jr. Food Company.

"Oh," you say, "that's just a hometown boy."

That's right.

And all the more reason that we should be come excited.

For Albert Braswell and the A. M. Braswell Food Company is one of the finest packers of fruits in the country.

"But he's small business," you say.

So was the Ford Motor Company fifty years ago.

But the products of the A. M. Braswell Food Company—peach preserves, pear preserves, artichoke pickles, artichoke relish, fig preserves, watermelon rind pickles, watermelon rind preserves—are finding themselves, by excellent selling methods and by virtue of their quality and wonderful taste on the shelves of food stores all over the Southeast.

The Albert Braswell Food Company is the only packer in the United States to put up a jar of fresh, tree ripened, peach preserves, and a jar of fresh, tree ripened, pear preserves.

His products are getting wide distribution by some of the country's large jobbers.

"But what about his payroll?" you ask.

Right now he is working between 90 and 100 people on twenty-four hour shifts. He has extended his canning operations until he is now running nearly every month of the year.

He has grown from a one-kettle operation with two people in the West Side Community to a large plant located out on North Zetterow Avenue.

Just because the A. M. Braswell Jr., Food Company was established by a hometown man does not disqualify it from being classified as industry.

It's the finest industry that a community can support.

He's using products produced right here in Bulloch county and this section. All his watermelons come from Bulloch county. His peaches come from Georgia and Florida. His artichokes from Georgia and North Carolina.

We take off our hat to A. M. Braswell and his associates and we say his is one of Statesboro's finest industries and in our book will remain so regardless of what may locate here in the future.

But let's get excited over an industry that has been here for a long time.

The A. M. Braswell Jr. Food Company.

"Oh," you say, "that's just a hometown boy."

That's right.

And all the more reason that we should be come excited.

For Albert Braswell and the A. M. Braswell Food Company is one of the finest packers of fruits in the country.

"But he's small business," you say.

So was the Ford Motor Company fifty years ago.

But the products of the A. M. Braswell Food Company—peach preserves, pear preserves, artichoke pickles, artichoke relish, fig preserves, watermelon rind pickles, watermelon rind preserves—are finding themselves, by excellent selling methods and by virtue of their quality and wonderful taste on the shelves of food stores all over the Southeast.

The Albert Braswell Food Company is the only packer in the United States to put up a jar of fresh, tree ripened, peach preserves, and a jar of fresh, tree ripened, pear preserves.

His products are getting wide distribution by some of the country's large jobbers.

"But what about his payroll?" you ask.

automobiles being the powerful engines they are, our highways being the antiquated traveling surfaces they are, our police being indifferent to traffic law enforcement—these and many other forces act to make it hard for us to do something about it.

But we must try!

Bound to do a good job

THE ABILITY of our congressman, Prince H. Preston, continues to be recognized, even under a Republican administration.

Congressman Preston, ranking Democratic member of the House Appropriations Committee, has been named to go into foreign countries to study the use of foreign credits the United States owns and is using in the foreign building program. The credits were acquired after World War II when the United States sold its surplus equipment overseas and where the foreign governments did not have the money to pay, accepted credits.

Republicans Frank T. Bow of Ohio, and Sam Coon of Oregon will go with Congressman Preston. They will leave September 17.

We commend our government on recognizing the qualities he possesses in putting them into use for our nation.

Any committee on which he serves is bound to do a good job.

An attractive possibility

A LOT OF PEOPLE in Statesboro are interested in the outcome of the survey made by a firm of consulting engineers for the city of Statesboro to determine if it is economically feasible for the city to enter into the business of natural gas distribution.

A lot of citizens built homes and put in heating systems looking forward to the day they might convert them for use of natural gas.

With the cost of living constantly rising the difference in the cost of natural gas and manufactured gas makes the possibilities of Statesboro getting natural gas attractive.

We commend our city fathers on having the survey made.

With a natural gas line being laid not far from our city limits the possibilities of Statesboro tapping it could not be overlooked.

For them war is over

MRS. CLARENCE BRACK must have said simply, "Thank God."

Pfc. Walter O. Moore, her son, was released on Thursday night of last week by the Communist at Panmujong in Korea.

Only three months ago Mrs. Moore had a letter from her son telling her that he prayed the war would soon end. And now for him and his mother and Mr. Brack the war is over.

We join Mrs. Moore's and Mr. Brack's friends and neighbors in rejoicing over the wonderful blessing.

A short summer

GOODNESS, gracious! School was just out. The swimming pool just opened. The baseball season just began. Vacation has just begun. Oh yeah? Well, listen to this kids. Superintendent H. P. Womack of the Bulloch County Schools announced this week that school will begin on Wednesday, September 2—just nineteen more days. Short summer, wasn't it?

Editor's Uneasy Chair

A died-in-the-wool Bulloch County democrat is having fun with his friends who he knows voted for Mr. Eisenhower for President of the United States.

He has a newspaper clipping from which he quotes House Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn. It goes something like this:

"House Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn said today the voters who demanded a change in last November's election 'are getting it—with vengeance.'"

Mr. Rayburn went on to say, "Mr. Eisenhower must be unhappy" with the showing the Republicans made during their first half year in office.

"They have failed to keep their 1952 pledges," he said.

"The Republicans promised to balance the budget. The budget is more unbalanced than they found it."

"They promised to stabilize the nation's economy. Prices of many commodities are rising. The cost of living index is at an all-time high. Farm income is down 14 per cent."

"They promised to reduce the national debt. Instead they have asked Congress to increase it."

"One promise the administration has been fulfilling," Rayburn said. "The Republicans promised hard money. They have made it harder to get. They raised interest rates on the little fellow, the home buyer and the farmer. But the big bankers and financiers are doing well."

Our democratic friend, still quoting Mr. Rayburn, allows that all but two of the major bills enacted by the first session of the 83rd Congress are merely "re-iterations of policies and laws initiated by Democratic Congresses."

"The exceptions he noted were the 'Fidelitas' Act and the measure to admit 21,000 refugees. We don't know what sort of comebacks our dyed-in-the-wool Bulloch county democrat is getting from his friends, but we bet they are not taking it lying down.

Politics is a wonderful thing.

THIS MAY BE a little bit old but we think it still good. We picked it up from one of our exchanges who picked it up from the Chattanooga Times.

A bit of behind-the-scenes flurvy over Queen Elizabeth's choice of words in her coronation radio broadcast ended up in our favor, the way we looked at it.

The news service said the Queen began her address this way: "When I spoke to you all last Christmas..." Another had it "Her Majesty avoided the 'you all' and merely said 'you.' The same variance was to be found in their version of her closing remark: "I thank you (you all) from a full heart."

Well, a newspaper man in Memphis—where else?—really wanted to know. He queried the newspaper service's New York headquarters. New York called London. London replied: "Apologies

Our Health Department

Recently we began the discussion of Typhoid Fever, its effects on organization of health departments, its seriousness, and methods of transmission. We also discussed in detail the method of control. The typhoid picture is entirely different today as compared to 10, 15 or 25 years ago because of several factors.

First of all, medical and public health authorities have done a magnificent job of controlling the disease by protecting food, milk and water supplies; improved municipal and rural sanitation; control of carriers; sanitation requirements in food handling establishments; immunizations, etc.

Now comes the introduction, for the first time in the history of the world, of medicines, antibiotics, such as aureomycin and chloromycetin, which will cure typhoid.

Another serious illness can at last be treated with specific medication. And now comes the part of the "changing picture" which will really be good news to everyone. There is no need for taking typhoid immunizations, "shots," that there once was. There are many fewer cases to which we can be exposed, and typhoid carriers are becoming scarce. Then too, if one has ever had his original series of three injections required to produce good typhoid immunity, that immunity can be re-established by taking one booster "shot"—not 2 or 3 injections which used to be thought necessary.

So, when we balance the dangers against methods of control, and treatment, and lessened danger, we in public health are now beginning to de-emphasize the need for typhoid immunizations. If people want them, we'll be glad to render the service, but we will not promote such protection except among foodhandlers. Typhoid immunizations will not be required in the schools any more, but we still think it advisable for every child and person to at least obtain the initial series of three doses.

2. Don't refuse to give typhoid immunizations in schools, but will render the service upon request only. School children, particularly, should be appreciative of the "changing picture."

But, exercise care in the kind of water you drink, your milk supply cleanliness in all eating establishments, and use of shellfish from approved sources.

—W. D. Lundquist, M. D., Commissioner of Health, Bulloch County Health Department.

Some pro's and con's for men carrying umbrellas in hot weather:

1. Sometimes considered effeminate. The he-man either sweats under a raincoat, waits out the rain or soaks it up.

2. The needed umbrella is usually to be found, not at the point of departure but at the destination, where it was left last time.

3. Possession has been known to cool ardent friendships, as in the case of borrowing and not returning.

4. Removes at least one hand from other activities. (Not always to be considered a disadvantage.)

5. Does not retard speed.

Valley TO GEORGIA COUNTIES

The Little White House FOUNDED 1827 COUNTY SEAT, GREENVILLE

Warm Springs, in Meriwether County, has become a shrine in the hearts of millions of most Americans since it came into national prominence as the site of the "Little White House" and thousands still flock to see the grounds and buildings, complete with furnishings, just as Franklin D. Roosevelt left them at his death April 12, 1945. The D. Roosevelt springs were brought into national prominence by Roosevelt's own affliction, and he lived to die more than any other individual to combat polio. The county is one of the best in the state for agricultural and dairy products and has produced many famous men including 3 Georgia governors, 2 Alabama governors and one Louisiana governor. In this and other Georgia counties, the United States Brewers Foundation works constantly to maintain wholesome conditions where beer and ale are sold. Close attention is given areas near camps of the Armed Forces, and both military officials and Georgia law enforcement officers have commended this self-regulation program of the Foundation. Frequent retailer educational meetings offer sound suggestions for continued operation in the community's interest.

Chamber of Commerce seeking county support for promotional campaigns

Businessmen of all sections of the county are being given an opportunity to become members of the Statesboro and Bulloch County Chamber of Commerce, according to a statement made this week by Henry Ellis, president.

He stated that Don Thompson has accepted the job as chairman of the finance committee to renew memberships in the Chamber of Commerce and to seek new members.

This week Mr. Ellis mailed out more than 400 letters to businessmen in the county asking their support of the Chamber of Commerce in its program of promotion of Bulloch County. Money spent on advertising, promotional work, and other expenses incurred in carrying out such a program is actually an investment in the future of your community, and in turn an investment in the future of your business and your welfare.

Continuing, he wrote, "We feel that the business people in all sections of the county will share a proportional benefit from such a program since the growth of our section will, in turn, benefit all the people in an indirect way, if not directly."

He asks the businesses of the county to "show the confidence that you have in your community."

Cooperators of the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District in Bulloch County are again finding sericea lespedeza a very important pasture for hot dry periods as well as early grazing. Fred Hiltch of Westside, Kennedy and Auther James Riggs, near Jimps, and A. P. Murphy, just north of Statesboro, are a few of the many farmers in the county who have discovered the good qualities of sericea pasture: (1) Early spring grazing; (2) Drought and heat resistance; (3) High protein and other food value content; (4) Low fertilizer requirement; and (5) Excellent soil building and soil protection.

Many farmers in the county are planning to save some seed from their sericea this fall. R. Y. Bailey of the Soil Conservation Service has made some important observations along this line. Seed production will be much greater on fertilized than on unfertilized land. Combining will be easier with less loss if sericea is cut for hay or grazed in early spring and then allowed to grow uniformly the remainder of the season. Combine when seed begins to shatter in the fall, and if no artificial drying is to be had, spread seed very thinly and air until thoroughly dry, otherwise seed will heat and ruin.

There are a few seed cleaners and driers in this vicinity which will enable farmers to take their seed directly from the combine and avoid the spreading and uncertain drying.

Since farmers are catching up with their field work, many are devoting their time to building good farm ponds. Ray Trammell and J. H. Putch of Nevis, J. A. Banks of Register, and Paul NeSmith, Dan Lingo and S. B. Waters of Westside, are among those who have built or are building ponds.

The Millen Fish Hatchery, U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, has completed stocking 75 ponds in Bulloch county with large mouth bass (trout). The last pond with requests is through the Soil Conservation Service office was stocked with bass about two weeks ago. This was William Cromley's pond at Brooklet. This is an unusual record for the Millen Hatchery, considering its very recent installation and tremendous requests for fish from its area.

Available food supply is the main factor in boll weevil migration, according to cotton specialists for the University of Georgia Agricultural Extension Service.
