Byron Dyer named Georgia County Agent Of The Year
 Byron Dyer, Bulloch County Agent since January 1, 1934, has been named Georgia's "County Agent of the Year" for the general excellence of his work. His selection was announced by W. S. Brown, associate director of the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Georgia College of Agriculture.
 In honor of his outstanding achievements during 21 years in extension work, he will be presented with the Lederer Award for Distinguished Farm Service by Governor Talmadge in ceremonies at the State Capitol in Atlanta on Friday, September 4, at 9 a. m.
 Selection of Mr. Dyer coincides with the 50th anniversary of the first organized farm demonstration in the nation. The plaque which will be presented him is a symbol, Mr. Brown said, of exceptional service rendered by all county agents to the people and lands of Georgia "in the advancement of scientific agriculture."
 Each of the six district agents of the Extension Service nominated one county agent from his district to compete for the award, which is presented by the Lederer Laboratories Division of American Cyanamid Co. to agents who have rendered exceptional service to the agricultural economy. Mr. Dyer was chosen from the six nominees by a committee of the Extension Service. "The judges" said scores of the nominees were "extremely close."
 Mr. Dyer, a graduate of the University of Georgia, College of Agriculture in 1932, was appointed assistant county agent in Bulloch county on July 1 of that same year. He was named county agent a year and a half later. A native of Carroll county, he is married and is the father of two children.
 The community development program which he has directed by working with and through the Farm Bureau is outstanding. Mr. Brown said he has guided an unusually successful livestock and pasture program in Bulloch.
 Bulloch is a highly diversified county, and Mr. Dyer has worked closely with its farmers in both the growing and marketing of their products.
 L. E. Lanier, now district agent for Bulloch and surrounding counties, was, incidentally, county agent in Talifer county during the year that Governor Talmadge was an eager 48-year-old.

Mother Russell was ready for this journey

BY VIRGINIA RUSSELL

Our family had a message this beautiful Sunday morning saying that one of our most loved people had left us for the great world beyond.

The children's grandmother, the father's mother and my mother-in-law, she was loved by us all. No other person we've ever known was more ready for this journey.

When the telephone call came to us we all cried. Then we thought how selfish we are. Mother was at last in the promised land united with so many of her other loved ones.

We could not in so short a time as we all about this great soul. Many people thought she was remarkable because of having given birth to fifteen children and having reared thirteen of them. This we admit is an unusual accomplishment.

Perhaps one of her finest traits was her deep interest in people. Not just her people but all people. In her younger days when her mind was more alert, she was concerned and interested in every one who ever met her.

For mutual goodwill

"I WANT to make you, the Rotary Club, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Chamber of Commerce, the Bulloch County Development Corporation, the people of Statesboro, proud of Marydell Styles, Inc."

These are the words of Harvey Rosengart, secretary of the company, now a citizen of Statesboro, spoken Monday at the regular meeting of the Statesboro Rotary Club.

Marydell Styles, Inc. is the new industry that moved into Statesboro early in July and has been in production since the middle of July.

Mr. Rosengart expressed his appreciation for the "wonderful reception the people of this community have given us."

It is this kind of expression of cooperation between the community and its new industry that promotes mutual goodwill.

It's what sets Statesboro and Bulloch county apart from most other communities.

Watch Those Lifelines

WE GOT THROUGH THE WEDDING BUT WE'VE NEVER LOOK THE SAME

A lot of fathers have been through the same thing. They are reproaching Frank's story believing that all these fathers who have weathered similar occasions will appreciate it.

When Ye Editor got married, he got a couple of friends, got in our tin limo and went to the wedding. The bride and groom were waiting for us at the door.

Rev. Frederick Wilson, pastor of the First Methodist Church and the bride's father, officiated at the ceremony. The bride and groom were waiting for us at the door.

But, as we have been so busy, we have had to be a little more partial to our daughter Ruth, who wanted a wedding in the church and stay until the last minute on Monday. That will mean congested traffic, too many drivers in a hurry to reach their destination and other hazards always connect with holiday traffic.

The best advice we have for you is to stay at home. Leave your automobile in the garage. If you must travel, be alert. Respect the law; be courteous and take your time. It's better to get there safely than to never get there at all.

Remember—the human factor is still the greatest cause of traffic accidents. Were it not for our foolish mistakes behind the wheel, thousands of lives could be saved each year.

Frank Miller weathers a big wedding

Frank Miller, editor of the Bulloch Journal, and his neighbor, has just weathered a big wedding.

In his last week's Journal he released his personal feelings about the whole thing under the headline:

MISS NEVILLS IS BRIDE OF MR. HENDRIX

The Statesboro Primitive Baptist Church was the scene Sunday afternoon, Sept. 30, of the marriage of Miss Marilyn Nevills, daughter of Mrs. Charles E. Nevills and the late Mr. Nevills, to Charles Hendrix, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Hendrix of Port.

The impressive ceremony was performed by Elder V. P. Agan, before a background profusely banded with wood-ward ferns, palms and leather leaf fern, accenting the beauty of a sunburst arrangement of white gladioli and white asters supported by a Grecian column. Heavy white satin robes were draped across the rostrum, extending to beautiful gladioli trees on each side, and terminating in two small standings which held smaller bouquets of white gladioli and white asters. White burning candles in tall branched candelabra enhanced the beauty of the nuptial scene.

Jack Averitt presented a program of organ music while guests were being seated. Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Joan Griffith sang "Thine Alone" and "I Love You Truly."

Usher-groomsmen were Waldo Martin of Hahira, Ga.; Randy Everett, Emerson Brannen, Tommy Blitch, and John Newton of Statesboro; Gene Trappell of Sylvania; Richard Byrd of Port and Emory Godbee of Fort Bragg, N. C.

Miss Patsy Odum was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Misses Jackie Price, Betty Brannen, Melba Prosser, Mrs. Jimmy Cooper, Vidalia; Frances Rackley, Charlotte Hendrix, Peggy Whitehurst and Man-chester, Ga.; and Joann Shearouse.

The flower girls were Cindy Brannen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Brannen and Mary Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Anderson.

Their lovely dresses were identical in style but contrasting in color. Some wore mint green, others wore maize. The skirts, floor length clouds of billowing nylon tulle, were over matching taffeta, with bodices shirred and strapless with detachable fiascus. They carried crescent bouquets of purple asters with orchid satin leaves.

Escorted by her uncle, Aston Proctor, who gave her in marriage, the lovely blonde bride wore a gown of imported chantilly lace over shimmering layers of tulle. The bodice was close fitting with long tapering sleeves and fastened down the back with small covered buttons. The bouffant skirt of sheer tulle with Chantilly lace panel in back extended into a sweeping train. Her tiered veil of silk illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of Chantilly lace with iridescent sequins embroidered on the lace.

She carried a cascade bouquet of lilies of the valley and stephanotis centered with a white orchid. Her only ornament was a diamond lavalier given by her father to her mother before they were married.

The bride's mother wore aqua lace and tulle with small matching headpiece.

Mrs. Hendrix, the groom's mother, wore dusty rose crepe with matching lace and sequin trim. Both wore orchid corsages. Mrs. A. L. Davis, grandmother of the bride wore a black sheer dress. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Brilliant Reception Following the ceremony, Mrs. Charles Nevills entertained the wedding guests at The Woman's Club. The guests were met by

MISS NEVILLS IS BRIDE OF MR. HENDRIX

The Statesboro Primitive Baptist Church was the scene Sunday afternoon, Sept. 30, of the marriage of Miss Marilyn Nevills, daughter of Mrs. Charles E. Nevills and the late Mr. Nevills, to Charles Hendrix, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Hendrix of Port.

The impressive ceremony was performed by Elder V. P. Agan, before a background profusely banded with wood-ward ferns, palms and leather leaf fern, accenting the beauty of a sunburst arrangement of white gladioli and white asters supported by a Grecian column. Heavy white satin robes were draped across the rostrum, extending to beautiful gladioli trees on each side, and terminating in two small standings which held smaller bouquets of white gladioli and white asters. White burning candles in tall branched candelabra enhanced the beauty of the nuptial scene.

Jack Averitt presented a program of organ music while guests were being seated. Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Joan Griffith sang "Thine Alone" and "I Love You Truly."

Usher-groomsmen were Waldo Martin of Hahira, Ga.; Randy Everett, Emerson Brannen, Tommy Blitch, and John Newton of Statesboro; Gene Trappell of Sylvania; Richard Byrd of Port and Emory Godbee of Fort Bragg, N. C.

Miss Patsy Odum was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Misses Jackie Price, Betty Brannen, Melba Prosser, Mrs. Jimmy Cooper, Vidalia; Frances Rackley, Charlotte Hendrix, Peggy Whitehurst and Manchester, Ga.; and Joann Shearouse.

The flower girls were Cindy Brannen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Brannen and Mary Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Anderson.

Their lovely dresses were identical in style but contrasting in color. Some wore mint green, others wore maize. The skirts, floor length clouds of billowing nylon tulle, were over matching taffeta, with bodices shirred and strapless with detachable fiascus. They carried crescent bouquets of purple asters with orchid satin leaves.

Escorted by her uncle, Aston Proctor, who gave her in marriage, the lovely blonde bride wore a gown of imported chantilly lace over shimmering layers of tulle. The bodice was close fitting with long tapering sleeves and fastened down the back with small covered buttons. The bouffant skirt of sheer tulle with Chantilly lace panel in back extended into a sweeping train. Her tiered veil of silk illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of Chantilly lace with iridescent sequins embroidered on the lace.

She carried a cascade bouquet of lilies of the valley and stephanotis centered with a white orchid. Her only ornament was a diamond lavalier given by her father to her mother before they were married.

The bride's mother wore aqua lace and tulle with small matching headpiece.

Mrs. Hendrix, the groom's mother, wore dusty rose crepe with matching lace and sequin trim. Both wore orchid corsages. Mrs. A. L. Davis, grandmother of the bride wore a black sheer dress. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Brilliant Reception Following the ceremony, Mrs. Charles Nevills entertained the wedding guests at The Woman's Club. The guests were met by
