Thrift, care of property, taught us as children

By VIRGINIA RUSSELL

That the people of the world may know us better

Tuesday they left on the first leg of their return journey back to their homes in another part of the world.

For seven days they were the guests of the Statesboro Junior Chamber of Commerce and all Statesboro and Bulloch county.

During those seven days they saw us at worship, at work, at play and at ease. They saw our businesses operating. They saw our farming process at work. They saw our children learning. They saw our youth playing. They saw us in our Houses of God.

And all the while they were telling us how they worshiped, how they worked, how they played and how they took their ease—in Indonesia, in Korea, in Burma, and in Vietnam (South India China).

It was a wonderful experience to talk to these people here for a week as guests of the Jaycees as part of a great ideal to promote good will, understanding and friendship between people of nations all over the world.

One significant thing came out of their visit that we wish could be put over in all nations—Mr. Koko Gyi of Mandalay, Burma, put it briefly and to the point, "Color prejudice to Negroes are not pronounced as the exaggerated story

May they handle our future prayerfully

Marvin Griffin will be our next governor.

In winning the election we are glad that his victory was so overwhelming. There can be no doubt that the people of Georgia wanted him for their governor. Of the 4,846 votes cast in the governor's race in Bulloch county he received 2,243, with all the other eight candidates receiving 2,603. Nearly one-half of the Bulloch county voters said they wanted Mr. Griffin.

We'll go along with them. It's been over said, but it bears saying again. Marvin Griffin is now our governor too.

We applaud him for his first public statement of his intention to make the Market Bulletin a publication of the College of Agriculture at Athens. We believe that they will do the farmers a great good in promoting the great business of farming.

We join with the voices of all Georgia in expressing our hopes that our new governor will do a fine job for our state. The opportunity is there.

We're glad that Ernest Vandiver was elected our lieutenant-governor and that Phil Campbell was elected commissioner of agriculture. We believe that they will fill their responsibilities to the people of Georgia with honesty, dignity and efficiency.

For the next four years, beginning with 1955, the future of Georgia is tied up in the intention of these and our other state leaders.

May they handle it carefully and prayerfully.

The game is the thing that counts

We like what Coach Ernest Teel had to say about the game of football last week at the Chamber of Commerce meeting.

It must be reassuring to the parents of boys who play football with the Statesboro High School Blue Devils to know that their sons are in the hands of such a man as Coach Teel.

"To me football is still a game, and I try to coach the boys with that always in mind," he says.

We hope that the Blue Devils in Statesboro will keep that in mind too, as they watch them play the game of football. Their first game is tomorrow night. Go see them play.

And as you watch them there on the football field remember that they are your sons and that they are playing a game.

It's good to win—and there is something in us all that want to watch winning teams—but remember, win, lose or draw, it's not if they win, but how they played the game.

Good luck to Coach Teel and his 1954 Blue Devils.

OUR YOUTH... Kemp Mabry

Bud Fisher is dead. His real name was Harry Conway. He died of cancer at the age of 69 after 47 years as creator of Mutt and Jeff, said to be the first comic strip.

Millions of readers will be saddened by the passing of an arthritic though Mutt and Jeff was continued by Bud Fisher's successor.

A lot of people begin the day with the funnies. Probably as many adults as children read the comic section of their daily newspaper. There are some off-color comics which the adults do not read. These are the comic books.

When our editor came out, three columns to the left, with an editorial on the comic book industry, I looked over the magazine and saw the name of Dennis the Menace.

In the days of my youth we knew that we either took care of our own or we'd be without. Today, however, the general idea is that we'll get another if this one tears up or wears out.

My mother was also a teacher of thrift while my father preached to us on the care of property. The only two times he ever administered a switching and a spanking was when I was abusing furniture and some farm equipment.

Perhaps different people emphasize various things to care for. I nag my family about the care of the furniture and house.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

Our piece last week on the game "Bucky-Buck" struck a responsive chord in the recollections of many of our "boy" readers. Beasley Smith in Atlanta wrote: "I couldn't help but get a terrific bang out of your piece on 'Bucky-Buck' that brings back so many pleasant memories, nostalgic with pains in my back and necked knees, plus lumps and knocks I received while being in the middle of the line."

Now Beasley wants a piece on the game "Half-Rubber." He wants to teach it to his youngsters.

We always like to oblige our readers, especially when they take time out to write us.

Half-Rubber is a ball game. Rather a half-ball game, since it is played with a half-sprung rubber ball. You can't buy half-sprung balls. You buy a full, round sprung rubber ball. Then you slice it in two halves with a sharp knife or a razor blade. This gives you two half-rubbers. The ball is an old broom handle. This is an attractive feature of the game. It costs so little to equip a team. There are no gloves, no masks, no suits—just a half-rubber and an old broom stick.

Half-rubber may be played by two teams, or it may be played with each player competing with his own and competing with each other player.

First let's consider the two man team play.

When the pitcher and the catcher. They take their positions at any reasonable distance apart in any area. The batter takes his stance in front of the pitcher. Now the pitcher can't just throw the half-rubber.

He makes a windup with an underhand or sidearm movement. He then pitches the half-rubber. The batter stands in the batter's stance. The batter never runs. Each time he hits the half-rubber he chalks up a base. If he hits the half-rubber four times straight he scores a run. If he should hit the half-rubber pitcher sails the half-rubber by scores a home run. He stands at just as long as he can.

Dr. Charles L. Allen reads detective stories. Dwight D. Eisenhower was reported to have been found reading a wild west novel after he had done all he could on "D" Day. We just can't classify all books or magazines as bad because they are the same size and are printed on the same kind of paper. We need to examine the contents of reading matter which our boys and girls read before we can condemn.

Dick Flinn, pastor of the Carrollton Presbyterian Church and the moving spirit behind the famous Carroll County Service Council, has been directing a model camp for boys down on Sapelo Island for several years. Among the things that Camp Sapelo doesn't have are comic books.

The camp does not have anything against comic books as such, but who would have time for comic books when there is a fine library available and an adequate camp program at hand. Flinn has replaced the less desirable with the best. We don't favor censorship. We do favor a more selective program in the purchase of such literature. We need to replace the undesirable with the best. We really should have "dimes for decency" to paraphrase a gubernatorial candidate's television slogan.

Maybe parents and interested adults should read some comics, pulp magazines, and quarter novels, to see for themselves what the situation is. But he sure nobody sees you reading the stuff. It might be hard to explain.

The American of today, regardless of his station in life, knows that he is in a better position in America than he would be anywhere else in the world. All this is made possible because of the confidence that we possess in every portion of our daily living. A confidence that we accept without thought or question which tends to show how great it really is. During every waking hour of every day we express it hundreds of times without ever being aware of its existence.

Those who live and break the law go before the jury and the judge, confident they will be punished but also confident they will receive just and rightful punishment and that their rights under the law will be protected regardless of the seriousness of their transgressions.

Each day we send our child to school, knowing he will be protected. Knowing he will be given the proper training in how to live. Knowing all the cares of his body as well as his mind will be given him. Knowing that the people who are there to lead are properly trained in guidance and understanding of our most precious possessions, our children.

Every day we express confidence in our way of life as we go about the many tasks of living. At the grocery store we shop with trust, knowing that the goods are fairly marked and that we are confident that the meats are clean and free from contamination, and even when the bill of goods is totaled for us we are confident that it is correct.

We accept the milk which is delivered to our door, knowing that it is clean and pure and full of nourishment. We look for the daily paper, being sure that it will come even as our paper boy has a share in our confidence of living.

We go to church each week, sure of our beliefs, sure of our salvation, confident in our communion, and happy in our communion. Here we listen in silence and with confidence as the pastor explains to us the word of God.

Yes, confidence is the way of the American. He has confidence in his government, local and national, confidence in his fire department, his police department, his hospitals, his schools and all his public agencies and this confidence is the thing that makes him strong.

Bulloch County Farm Bureau

The Denmark Farm Bureau will have a new stove to cook on in the kitchen by the October meeting. Mrs. R. P. Miller, chairman of the stove committee, reported at the regular meeting Tuesday night. The unit will be at Register from 1 to 6 p. m. October 5. Mrs. J. D. Fletcher stated. Mrs. Eunice Turner had charge of the games and recreational program for Warnock Wednesday night. She conducted several active games and a few guessing contests that caused lots of laughter and merriment by the entire group. President Billy Simmons, asked those serving on the membership committee to complete their list as quick as possible. J. W. Roberts, county forester, reported that they had sent to 63 wild fires this season, 16 of which were caused by careless smokers, 23 by lightning, 23 by people lighting trash fire get away from them, two from lumbering and one from pulpwood workers. There were 35 fires in the county last month, indicating the seriousness of the dry weather as a fire hazard, he stated. However, he pointed out that the fires had burned over 240 acres and that they brought most of them early. They burned an average of some 10 acres each. Some of the fires before being brought under control. The fire protection unit will be able to place additional lines until it rains and rains the present fire hazard, he stated. It is necessary to keep the tractors ready to go in case of a fire. Lewis and Kay Ann Hendrix, county and district Farm Bureau talent winners, did not sing for the group. William Cromley was at piano.

SINKHOLE FARM BUREAU
Judge Leroy Cowart made the bloodmobile appeal at the sinkhole Thursday night, enumerating some of his experiences in World War II where the blood program saved so many lives during the invasion of Europe. Despite the fact there are numerous drugs on the market that are good, there has never been anything found to replace human blood during a period of shock or when a victim has lost lots of blood, he stated. Mrs. H. V. Franklin, who is in charge of the Register visit of the Bloodmobile on October 5, asked the group's cooperation in making this trip a successful one. Mrs. Fletcher stated that as long as the program was active and anyone in the county needed blood, it would be available through donors if not from the bank. Joe Robert Tillman had charge of the program, which dealt with irrigation. He showed a motion picture on the need for irrigation and how a system should be set up. Graham Daniels, Athens, assisted with the discussion and answering questions on the functions of various systems. G. B. Bowen, the Sinkhole president, was one of the first to use irrigation in the county. Some five years ago he irrigated some tobacco from Lott's Creek. There are several systems in the Sinkhole community now and probably will be more next year.

DENMARK FARM BUREAU
Mr. Bunce announced to the Denmark group that he was in charge of the graduation exercises down for their October 5 meeting and that the public would be invited in to hear them. Mr. Tillman agreed to show the picture in three other communities this week and in others next week if desired.

Conservation of water important

Water conservation is becoming more and more important as we see our water table falling lower and lower. We read more about water needs and water shortages every day and what can and must be done if we are to continue our present way of life with an abundance of water. This alarming situation has been brought to the attention of city water officials and industrial users of water but as yet the whole population has not been awakened to the seriousness of the water shortage. Farmers in Bulloch county are making every effort to correct this bad situation by the only solution known at the present time—holding the water on the land near where it falls. Water which falls on our land and buries off to the sea never does our falling water table any good, but water which falls on our land and is held by grass, terraces and ponds will soak in to the soil and help a lot. Therefore our farmers are not only helping themselves when they build ponds, but are helping us who live in town as well. Let us all give them encouragement and assistance in this vital conservation job. The more ponds are built the more rainfall we may have because of more evaporation and higher atmospheric humidity.
