The safety of our school kids at stake

The tag-a-long who was running behind the school bus on Monday morning was a real menace to the safety of the 50 children who were aboard the bus.

The boy who was hit, was riding a bike behind the bus and was not wearing a helmet. It is likely that he would have been gravely injured by the accident.

Another time, an old man riding a bike could have been run down by the bus. This could have been avoided if the kids were educated about the importance of safety.

The education of our youth is paramount and we must ensure that they are taught about the importance of safety at an early age.
