ARMED FORCES DAY

SATURDAY, MAY 19

Rites held for W. A. Nunnie Lee
N. A. (Nunnie) Lee, 64, died late Friday night, May 4, in the Bulloch County Hospital after a long illness. He was a life-long resident of Bulloch county and a member of the Friendship Baptist Church. He was a prominent farmer of the Middleburg community until his health forced him to retire. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Sarah Smith Lee, wife of Statesboro; seven daughters;

Honorary pallbearers were Pete Cannon, Miller Lanier, Herman Deal, Pate Deal, Milton Tankersley, Dewey Deal, Ewell Deal, Joe Tillman, Dr. A. M. Deal, Claude McGlamery, Dan Riggs and Charlie Shaw. Barnes Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

First place in the state was won by W. R. Bennett and H. O. Thomas, Morgan county, and second place was won by John I. Spooner Jr., Seminole county.

The grazing system and feed production program is sponsored by the Georgia Plant Food Education Society. Out of the records of the winners will be compiled and distributed to county agents and farmers in improving future livestock feeding practices.

Awards were presented by Dr. C. C. Murray, dean and coordinator of the University of Georgia College of Agriculture. Others honored were E. W. Ogden of Wayne county, and Zack Wilkins of Lowndes county.

Judges for the state contest included Henry Blitch of Bulloch county, 1955 state winner.

Revival set for two churches
By MRS. J. A. ROBERTSON
Revival services will begin at the Leefield Baptist Church Monday, June 4, and continue through Sunday evening, June 10. The Rev. Allen C. Johnson of Dahlgren Baptist Church, will be the visiting minister. Mr. Billy Wells will direct the music.

Rev. Johnson is well known in Bulloch county. He married the former Miss Mildred Lewis, daughter of Mrs. Paul B. Lewis and the late Mr. Lewis of Brooklet and Statesboro.

Mr. Wells is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wells of Statesboro and has attained prominence in the field of music. He is now serving as music director of the Hill Street Baptist Church of Toxoco, while attending Furman University.

Services will begin each evening at 8 o'clock during the weekend and at 11:30 a. m. on Sunday. The public is invited to attend.

Revival services will begin at the First Baptist Church on Monday evening, June 11, and continue through Sunday evening, June 17. The Rev. Roy Lee of the First Baptist Church of Rossville, will be the guest minister. Mr. James McCall, choister of the Brooklet church will direct the music.

Services will be held at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. The public is invited.

The two churches will hold their union Vacation Bible School at Brooklet each morning during the week of June 4 through 10. The school will be for the school. Mrs. Hamp Smith is principal.

Editorials

A Southern newspaper does a great service

A Montgomery newspaperman, Grover C. Hall Jr., editor of the Montgomery Alabama Advertiser, has done and is doing a great service to the South in his pinpointing of the fact of racial conditions in other sections of our nation.

Mr. Hall is a stickler for facts about segregation throughout the nation, and like most Southern editors, deprecates Northern newspaper treatment of the race problems as if it were something existing only in the South.

Through his editorial columns he has created widespread interest in several Northern communities.

Remembering race riots in Chicago, Mr. Hall put a reporter on the telephone with a tape recorder to talk with Louis P. Dennaenzo, who was described in a major editorial feature as "president of the South Deering Improvement Association," a group "which he says has 700 members" protesting residential influx of Negroes in the Thrumball Homes development in that community.

The interview brought statements from Mr. Dennaenzo, a civil engineer, that as of March of this year approximately 150 Chicago policemen were allocated to the Thrumball Homes development to prevent feared outbreak of violence. This the Montgomery Advertiser reported in Mr. Dennaenzo's words, was the round-the-clock patrol. Mr. Hall allocated four of his editorial columns to the report. His point, of course, was obvious, that Chicago, too, had a touchy race situation.

Mr. Hall's staff produced an article following interviews with society editors of the New York Times, Herald Tribune, and Journal American, the Chicago Tribune, Detroit Free Press, Los Angeles Times, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and Washington Post. Again, the report ran four of the Advertiser's six columns, the results showing that of those papers, the Times had published one picture of a Negro bride, the Herald Tribune four or five. None of the other papers reported they had ever printed a Negro bride's picture in the social columns. To Mr. Hall, and of course to many Southerners, this seemed an effective counterattack against charges that the Southern press handles Negro news on a segregated basis.

The Montgomery editor talked to Paul Ringler, the acting chief editorial writer of the Milwaukee Journal, and got from him a statement that "Negroes moving into previously white areas are resented by the white residents who fear that the influx will destroy their property values." Mr. Ringler admitted that he "was genuinely baffled by the situation."

Summed up the Advertiser editor wrote: "...Wherever the Negro migrates in significant numbers, he encounters rejection." Mayor Howard Lang of Columbia, Missouri, where are located the state university and two junior colleges for women, including Stephens, admitted to the Advertiser reporter that he had never seen a Negro in a white theatre, had not seen one in white restaurants, and that "he's sure the white hotels don't allow Negroes." The Columbia, Mo. mayor preferred "not to give his opinion on integration in the city."

Mayor Orville Hubbard of Dearborn, Michigan, fourth largest city in the state, told the Alabama newspaper reporter "I am for complete segregation, one million per cent, on all levels." We commend Mr. Hall, his reporters, and the Montgomery Advertiser in their campaign to present the racial problem in its proper perspective.

Bulloch county youth make fine record

Forty-three students of Georgia Teachers College were honored in special Honors Day ceremonies in McCleorn Auditorium last week. We attended the ceremonies and were impressed... especially impressed with the scholastic standings of so many of these young people.

But what impressed us most, and pleased us immensely, was that of the forty-three honored, ten are from Statesboro and Bulloch county.

Those honored included: Janis Miller of Brooklet who won the home economics award, Lucy Melton of Statesboro won the Kappa Delta Pi award as the outstanding freshman, Etta Ann Atkins of Brooklet was honored for leadership and service. Charlotte Blitch of Statesboro, Mrs. Reba Clements of Colleago, Clarence Miller of Portal, Mrs. Kathleen Pelts of Colleago, Carmen Roach of Statesboro, Frank Saunders Jr. of Portal, and Sue Whaley of Statesboro, were all scholarship winners with exceedingly high scholastic averages. Clarence Miller also won the Marvin Pittman scholarship award.

Statesboro and Bulloch county should be exceedingly proud of

We Toss Our Hat Up For Sam Neville

This week we toss up our hat for Sam Neville, Bulloch county farmer who has been named third place winner in the state grazing program conducted by the State Extension Service.

Mr. Neville was honored at a special dinner at the Georgian Terrace Hotel in Atlanta last Thursday, together with the first and second place winners.

The Bulloch county farmer had already been declared the winner in the southeastern district of the state. Farmers like Mr. Neville account for our county's high position in the state as a leader in farming practices. Charlotte Blitch of Statesboro, Mrs. Reba Clements of Colleago, Clarence Miller of Portal, Mrs. Kathleen Pelts of Colleago, Carmen Roach of Statesboro, Frank Saunders Jr. of Portal, and Sue Whaley of Statesboro, were all scholarship winners with exceedingly high scholastic averages. Clarence Miller also won the Marvin Pittman scholarship award.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

IN SOME RESPECT it was just like the old days—but in some other respect there was a difference. With the realization that you have a flat tire the feeling is exactly as it was long, long ago—disgust. Then before you even get out you begin wondering if there is a jack in the car—that's the same over the years.

Today, you lift the trunk compartment cover to find your spare tire, properly inflated, there's the bumper jack, the lug wrench—all ready. You pull the emergency brake light. You jack up the far, flip off the hub cap, loosen the lugs pull the flat tire off, slip the spare on, replace the lugs, tighten securely, slap the hub cap back on, let the jack down, put it back in the trunk compartment with the flat tire, and lug wrench, lower the trunk top, brush off your hands, get back in the driver's seat and start the engine, engage the automatic transmission—and you are off, with a loss of about five or ten minutes, and you are on your way.

But remember when changing tires was a major operation. With the realization that a tire had blown out or was flattened you visualized a completely disrupted trip, day, temper, and loss of much time.

You looked for a stone, log, or rock to check up a wheel to keep it from rolling. You pulled out the front seat, hoping that the jack, the jack handle, the lug wrench, the pump, the tube patching, were all there. Anyone missing sent you off up the road to seek help from the first source available. If you were lucky and found all these you rolled up your sleeves, if in the summer, or took off your coat, if in winter. If the family was with you there was plenty of advice on how to go about the job of fixing the flat.

These young people and for them we toss our hat high into the air.

These young people and for them we toss our hat high into the air.

Meditation for This Week

By THE REV. J. W. GROOMS

A HUMMING BIRD LESSON—TEXT: "His own iniquities shall take the wicked himself, and he shall be holden with the cords of his sins. Prov. 5:22."

This week's meditation is in story form as told by Mr. C. L. Cowan, but the text is cited by myself. Mr. Cowan's story is as follows:

"One Sunday morning recently, coming downstairs to the dining room, I heard a quick whirr and then something soft striking the large window. I looked out and I saw that a beautiful humming bird had somehow got into the house. With a little difficulty I caught it. I was afraid, for I could feel its little heart palpitating violently. Swiftly I ran upstairs with it, and then went downstairs again and opened my hand! With a glad bound and a chirp it was off to the flowers, its friends, and perhaps, to its little birds."

THE HUMMING BIRD taught me that I should avoid places where, perhaps, I could not get out without help. The bird had no business in our house, and had there been a cat in the house, I think that it would have lost its life. A boy or a girl, and grown-ups, too, for that matter, get into dangerous places when they acquire bad habits. I went into a fellow-student's room one day. He had a small electric battery. Take hold of the poles, he said to me. I did, and he began to find and wind until he was twisted up. Now, if you had come into that room you would have said that I was holding those poles; but I was not. I let go, and they, charged with electricity, were holding me! So many a person thinks that he is in full control of himself, and had there been a fully he has to admit that he is held by the habit."

BAD HABITS are bad things. One feels that he can lose himself at any time he chooses. But not so. Bad habits are powerfully strong and one cannot lose himself from them as easily as he thinks when he begins them. "And he shall be holden by the cords of his sins."

AND I THINK of that great majority of people who love their schools and appreciate their teachers and yet somehow never find the time or energy to the effort to speak and say, "Thank you, thank you very much."

It Seems to Me...

By Max Lockwood

IN A FEW DAYS now that high school son or daughter of yours will march down the aisle for the last time in the schools of your county. This will be an occasion which will call for mixed emotions. There will be a spirit of happiness and a spirit of sadness as they and we realize the final closing of their first chapter in their lives.

Yes, the course is charted now. Decisions have been made, character has been determined. For the large part of these graduates their futures have been decided with the guidance and the love given to them by those who have been a part in their development.

Oh, of course you have been paid. We have given you a salary for what you have done. We do not force you to be a school teacher and we do not force you to give of yourself more than we pay for your services. Why then do you continue on the task if the way is easier in other places of labor? Somehow deep down inside I know the answer to that question. I can see the answer when you reach into your pitifully small money sack and any others, guided these young folks along the paths of life. Yes, to the school teachers, you are dedicated, and never in the history of the world have men and women labored so long and so devotedly to the principles of guidance of a generation.

THESE TEACHERS HAVE loved them, they have led them, they have guided them, and they have given them the knowledge needed to live their lives. It is true of course that many have taken for themselves advantage of every opportunity afforded while others have been content to be carried along with the tide. Nevertheless, they have given their hearts to their work, and they have given their lives to their work.

THEN TOO, I think of that great beauty of a useful life which can be found deep down in the hearts of those who work hard. I think how wonderful it must be to know you have used this same opportunity which you can find in life that of that knowing you have read a part of greatness even when no one else even dreams of the contribution you have made? How great must be the thrill when you watch the frown on his face as he forms the decision which leads him to greatness. How real must be the satisfaction as you watch her make the choice which leads her to a useful life.

AND SO at this graduation season as others honor those who have done this first chapter in their lives I would take this occasion to remind you a thousand times ten thousand times how much we love you, and appreciate you for giving of your talents that these youth of ours may find that something through which they may truly learn to live.

OUR SOIL * OUR STRENGTH

A COMPLETE SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION PROGRAM IS PRACTICAL

A complete soil and water conservation program is a practical land use and treatment, a program scientifically based on a soil conservation survey and inventory of the farm. It utilizes every acre according to its capabilities and treats every acre according to its needs, controls and makes full use of rainfall, and meets the demands of the farmer as to products and income on permanent or continuing basis.

Warlock Home Demonstration Club meets

The Warlock H. D. Club met at the home of Mrs. Carl Blackburn for the May club meeting.

Mrs. Paul Groover and Mrs. Henry Quattlebaum were co-hostesses. About eighteen ladies were present.

Mrs. Paul Groover gave the devotional and Mrs. E. L. Barnes led the group in singing, "Bless This House." Several business matters were brought before the club for discussion.

From every indication the cool weather has made it possible for other pests to also infest the cotton fields heavier than normal, such as plant lice. A dust or spray that will control weevils and these sucking insects should be used now.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lanier give formal dance for their daughter

By Mrs. John A. Robertson

Monday evening, May 21, Mr. and Mrs. James Lanier honored their daughter, Carlisle, on her 16th birthday with a formal dance at the Brooklet community house.

The dance hall was a scene of loveliness in white and red. The rose garden in which were white metal seats, was surrounded by white trellises entwined with red roses and red and white balloons were suspended from the ceiling. The birthday table was overlaid with an imported linen cloth, and the four tiered birthday cake was white and beautifully decorated with red rose buds, green foliage and the numerals "16" standing upright on the top tier, and flanked by candles.

Among the out-of-town guests were Millie and Rosdon Hendrix and Bob Coleman from Atlanta. Danny Smith, Bennie Woodcock, Judy Edlerfeld, Niki Grady from Savannah; Lavinia Bryant, Dottie Daniel, Linda Found, Bee Carroll, Jan Futch, Bonnie Woodcock, Judy Zetterover, Margie Thomas, John Thomas and Phoebe Kelly, were from Statesboro; Kenneth Bishop, Becky Edlerfeld, Niki Fla., and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bunce of Statesboro.
