The Editor's Uneasy Chair

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

Our fellow community publisher, Ralph E. Fiske, in his recent issue of His Fiske Times has been quoted as having had a “change of heart” on the subject of libraries. It is not that he has changed his position on the subject, but rather that he has decided to discontinue his support of libraries altogether. Fiske has been quoted as saying that he had been informed by a number of his friends that the city council was planning to reduce the budget for the library system by $100,000.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

Congratulations

Our fellow community publisher, Ralph E. Fiske, in his recent issue of His Fiske Times has been quoted as having had a “change of heart” on the subject of libraries. It is not that he has changed his position on the subject, but rather that he has decided to discontinue his support of libraries altogether. Fiske has been quoted as saying that he had been informed by a number of his friends that the city council was planning to reduce the budget for the library system by $100,000.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

Our fellow community publisher, Ralph E. Fiske, in his recent issue of His Fiske Times has been quoted as having had a “change of heart” on the subject of libraries. It is not that he has changed his position on the subject, but rather that he has decided to discontinue his support of libraries altogether. Fiske has been quoted as saying that he had been informed by a number of his friends that the city council was planning to reduce the budget for the library system by $100,000.

How communities can attract industry told by Rockwell official

How communities can attract industry told by Rockwell official

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

Congratulation

Our fellow community publisher, Ralph E. Fiske, in his recent issue of His Fiske Times has been quoted as having had a “change of heart” on the subject of libraries. It is not that he has changed his position on the subject, but rather that he has decided to discontinue his support of libraries altogether. Fiske has been quoted as saying that he had been informed by a number of his friends that the city council was planning to reduce the budget for the library system by $100,000.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

Congratulations

Our fellow community publisher, Ralph E. Fiske, in his recent issue of His Fiske Times has been quoted as having had a “change of heart” on the subject of libraries. It is not that he has changed his position on the subject, but rather that he has decided to discontinue his support of libraries altogether. Fiske has been quoted as saying that he had been informed by a number of his friends that the city council was planning to reduce the budget for the library system by $100,000.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

Our fellow community publisher, Ralph E. Fiske, in his recent issue of His Fiske Times has been quoted as having had a “change of heart” on the subject of libraries. It is not that he has changed his position on the subject, but rather that he has decided to discontinue his support of libraries altogether. Fiske has been quoted as saying that he had been informed by a number of his friends that the city council was planning to reduce the budget for the library system by $100,000.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

Our fellow community publisher, Ralph E. Fiske, in his recent issue of His Fiske Times has been quoted as having had a “change of heart” on the subject of libraries. It is not that he has changed his position on the subject, but rather that he has decided to discontinue his support of libraries altogether. Fiske has been quoted as saying that he had been informed by a number of his friends that the city council was planning to reduce the budget for the library system by $100,000.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

Our fellow community publisher, Ralph E. Fiske, in his recent issue of His Fiske Times has been quoted as having had a “change of heart” on the subject of libraries. It is not that he has changed his position on the subject, but rather that he has decided to discontinue his support of libraries altogether. Fiske has been quoted as saying that he had been informed by a number of his friends that the city council was planning to reduce the budget for the library system by $100,000.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

Congratulations

Our fellow community publisher, Ralph E. Fiske, in his recent issue of His Fiske Times has been quoted as having had a “change of heart” on the subject of libraries. It is not that he has changed his position on the subject, but rather that he has decided to discontinue his support of libraries altogether. Fiske has been quoted as saying that he had been informed by a number of his friends that the city council was planning to reduce the budget for the library system by $100,000.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

Congratulations

Our fellow community publisher, Ralph E. Fiske, in his recent issue of His Fiske Times has been quoted as having had a “change of heart” on the subject of libraries. It is not that he has changed his position on the subject, but rather that he has decided to discontinue his support of libraries altogether. Fiske has been quoted as saying that he had been informed by a number of his friends that the city council was planning to reduce the budget for the library system by $100,000.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

Congratulations

Our fellow community publisher, Ralph E. Fiske, in his recent issue of His Fiske Times has been quoted as having had a “change of heart” on the subject of libraries. It is not that he has changed his position on the subject, but rather that he has decided to discontinue his support of libraries altogether. Fiske has been quoted as saying that he had been informed by a number of his friends that the city council was planning to reduce the budget for the library system by $100,000.
Johnny Dekle's 30th in fifth

Lehman Dekle on FHA committee

Changes made in Post Office mail schedules

National Guard leaves for Fort Stewart Sunday

The Bulloch Herald — Page 10

Stromsburg, Georgia, Thursday, July 26, 1953

Johnny Dekle's 30th in fifth

Lehman Dekle on FHA committee

Changes made in Post Office mail schedules

National Guard leaves for Fort Stewart Sunday

The Bulloch Herald — Page 10

Stromsburg, Georgia, Thursday, July 26, 1953

29th Tobacco season opens with first day's average good

Recommendations for Bulloch white schools

Gospel concert at LUT tonight

City assumes beautification, upkeep of Eastside Cemetery

Miss Zula Gammage makes report to B&PW Club on national meet

Bill Lewis in Sales at Rockwell Plant here

Lockwood named workshop dean

29th Tobacco season opens with first day's average good

Recommendations for Bulloch white schools

Gospel concert at LUT tonight

City assumes beautification, upkeep of Eastside Cemetery

Miss Zula Gammage makes report to B&PW Club on national meet

Bill Lewis in Sales at Rockwell Plant here

Lockwood named workshop dean