ROY POWELL HAS STORY IN GEORGIA REVIEW MAGAZINE Roy Powell, director of public relations at Georgia Teachers College, is among the writers who have articles or stories in the Georgia Review to be released September 15. Mr. Powell's story is entitled "Home for Uncle Benny." The Georgia Review is printed at the University of Georgia in Athens and has wide distribution.

Short course set for September 18 The fall short course on winter grazing and small farms will be held at Sam Neville's farm in the Sinkhole community Tuesday, September 18, at 10 a. m. The course will be held at the farm of Sam Neville, an agronomist, Athens, will be in charge of the discussions. Mr. Neville was third place winner in the state grazing contest this year. Holding this short course at his farm will give everyone interested in a good grazing program an opportunity to see the best of the operations and to procure first hand the latest information on fall grazing plans, as well as small grainings for grain. The program Tuesday will last a couple of hours, but those attending will take all the time they desire to see the some 200 acres of improved pastures on this farm, as well as his modern dairy operations. Mr. Neville milks around 350 cows.

Mrs. Wendzel in Northwest Ga. An increase in the services of the State Y.M.C.A. to the Hi-Y and Tri-Y program in the Northwest District of Georgia was announced this week. Several additions and changes in State Y.M.C.A. staff positions were announced. Mrs. Evelyn Wendzel, a native of Statesboro, has accepted an appointment as assistant district Y.M.C.A. secretary for Northwest District. Mrs. Wendzel was Tri-Y advisor for three years in Statesboro before joining the State Y.M.C.A. staff. A graduate of Georgia Teachers College and Draughton's Business College, Mrs. Wendzel will be in charge of the district office located in Cartersville. She is affiliated with the Baptist Church.

WOMAN'S CLUB PRESIDENT SAYS THANKS FOR SUCCESS OF FASHION SHOW Mrs. L. M. Durden, president of the Statesboro Women's Club, this week says "thanks" to all those who had a part in making the success complete of the production, "My Fair Lady Fashion Show," presented at McCroan Auditorium at the College on Tuesday night, September 4. She stated that the funds taken in at the performance will go into the club's air conditioning project for the library in order to make it more comfortable and attractive to its patrons.

200 more homes may now get natural gas Beginning tomorrow morning the Natural Gas Department of the City of Statesboro, will begin taking applications for piping natural gas into an additional 200 on the first-come, first-served basis on no charge to the property owner or user except the $10 deposit required at the time of filing application. The decision to accept these applications followed the result of an audit of the Natural Gas Department which revealed that $12,000 remains in the gas system construction fund originally earmarked for construction of the distribution system.

Since the construction of the distribution system has been completed Mayor W. A. Bowen and members of the City Council have decided to use the $12,000 to provide more customers to the system. These will be handled exactly like the first ones who made applications in the original offering, and will mean that 200 more homes in Statesboro will be added to the system to make approximately 1,550 homes to be served. The free installation will be done only for first users of natural gas. Those who are present using natural gas will not be eligible for additional piping unless a meter is set and a new account added to the system.

The city officials stated that "if you have been wanting to convert to natural gas but felt you could not afford the cost of conversion, this is your opportunity. Apply tomorrow at the city office on Selbald Street. Remember, this will take care of only 200 homes and it must be on a first-come, first-served basis. The city office is open from 8 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Monday through Saturday and will be glad to accept your application for free piping so that you, too, might become one of the homes served by the City Natural Gas Department."

Rep. Prince H. Preston's smashing victory of last Wednesday will be celebrated by a mammoth barbecue at the Statesboro Recreation Center on Thursday, September 20. The Bulloch County Congressman carried sixteen out of eighteen counties in the general election of the County Unit Vote.

The victory barbecue, scheduled for 1 p. m., will follow the First District Democratic Convention to be held at the courthouse at 11 a. m. The convention will formally designate Preston as the nominee for Congress at the Democratic Party.

The public is invited to the barbecue and hundreds of supporters from all points in the First District are expected in attendance.

John B. Spivey of Swainsboro will serve as chairman of the convention, a post he has held since Preston was first elected in 1946. Since his successful bid for re-election, Congressman Preston's office has been thronged with well-wishers and overwhelmed with messages of congratulations from all parts of the state and nation.

Dyer, county agent, and Mrs. Sara Thigpen, home demonstration agent, both of whom expressed their appreciation for the building, Miss Marie Dyer of the Pledge to the Flag and Miss Maxine Brunson led the 4-H Club pledge. Mr. Carlton Kirby acted as song leader.

After the program the guests inspected the building and were served Cokes and cookies by the presidents of the Home Demonstration Clubs of Bulloch County.

Mrs. J. E. Rowland Jr., president of the County Home Demonstration Council and Betty Jo Brannen, president of the 4-H County Council, in accepting the building, expressed deep appreciation on behalf of their organizations to the county and city for a wonderful new building so badly needed.

Mr. Lanier spoke of the need for such a building and recounted the various steps taken in developing and renovating the building for Home Demonstration and city for a wonderful new building so badly needed.

Miss Leonora Anderson, district home demonstration agent, spoke briefly of the extension work at both the state level and the county. Miss Anderson stressed the cooperative features of this work and pointed out the high position that Bulloch County holds in this work.

Others who took part on the program included Mr. Byron Dyer, county agent, and Mrs. Sara Thigpen, home demonstration agent, both of whom expressed their appreciation for the building, Miss Marie Dyer of the Pledge to the Flag and Miss Maxine Brunson led the 4-H Club pledge. Mr. Carlton Kirby acted as song leader.

After the program the guests inspected the building and were served Cokes and cookies by the presidents of the Home Demonstration Clubs of Bulloch County.

Mrs. F. C. Parker Jr., president of the Community Concert Association here, announced this week that the week of October 1-6 has been designated as Community Concert Week during which the association will make its annual drive for memberships. The drive will officially begin Monday evening, October 1, at the kickoff dinner to be held at the college at 8 o'clock. Miss Frieda Gernant is chairman of the membership campaign and will be assisted by Mrs. Herbert Kingery and Mrs. James P. Collins.

Mrs. Parker states that the Longena Symphonette Orchestra has already been booked for one of the concerts and that at least a voluntary contribution to help pay for the uniforms.

Among the students leaving for college this week was Clara Sparks who has entered Georgia Military College at Milledgeville, Ga.

Education Board calls for $800,000 school bond election on October 23 H. P. Womack, Bulloch County school superintendent, announced today that a special election has been called for Tuesday, October 23, to vote on a bond issue of $800,000 for the Bulloch County school program. Mr. Womack stated that the County Board of Education adopted a resolution at a call meeting here Monday night of this week setting up the election. Official notice of the bond election is appearing in this week's newspapers. Mr. Womack stated that the board arrived at the decision to call a bond election only after months of study of the present school program and its facilities and a thorough study of the future needs of the children of Bulloch County in order that they might have the very best school program possible. The county's school superintendent pointed out that since 1951, the board, at no expense to the county, has spent about one million dollars to update the white schools in the county and about the same amount to modernize the Negro school program. The board estimates that the program for the white schools in the county, as conceived in 1951, needs about $750,000 more with which to complete it. The Negro program has drawn since 1951 needs about $150,000 in financing to make it complete. In announcing the bond election it was pointed out that the board of education is being guided by the needs of the school of the Bulloch County students made by experienced educational men who specialize in planning for the future. A recent series of studies in the two local newspapers gave the details of the results of the recommendations made by these educational leaders.

Lions Club buys two wheel chairs The Statesboro Lions Club has purchased two wheelchairs for the use of the citizens of Bulloch County, President Ray McMichael announced this week. These two chairs will be placed at the local funeral home, one at the Smith-Tillman Mortuary and the other at the Barnes Funeral Home. In presenting these chairs, President McMichael stated that the money for these chairs came from the support of the people of Statesboro in the annual bromide sale and the community birthday calendar. It is the aim and wish of the Statesboro Lions Club to fulfill needs in Bulloch County as they arise. The Statesboro Lions Club wants always to be civic minded and community conscious. President McMichael added, "Anyone who has a need for a wheel chair is welcome to go by Smith-Tillman Mortuary or Barnes Funeral Home and pick one up. The Statesboro Lions Club is grateful to these two fine organizations for being willing to be the lending agency for these chairs."

Warlock H. D. Club holds meet The Warlock Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Miss Mac Kennedy for the September club meeting. The club hostesses were Mrs. Ralph Moore and Mrs. Charles Cone. There were sixteen ladies present. Mrs. Gear showed a film on home furnishings and we were asked to take particular notice of the pictures. Her demonstration was very beautiful and she showed us a finished picture which was very beautiful indeed. During the business meeting the ladies gave their orders for trays. That will be our project at the next meeting. The October club meeting will be a spend-the-day at the home of Mrs. Lester Martin. Each lady is asked to take a covered dish and some kind of work to do. The hostesses served Cokes and cookies.

Flower workshop for garden clubs Members of the Magnolia Garden Club invite members of all garden clubs of the county to attend an all-day workshop in flower arrangement at the Recreation Room of the Statesboro Primitive Baptist Church on Tuesday, October 2, with Mrs. Earl W. Clapp as consultant. During the morning session from 10 to 12 o'clock there will be a lecture with the students taking notes and asking questions. There will be demonstrations of several types of arrangements. Following the lunch hour the afternoon session will begin at 1 o'clock and will continue until 4 o'clock. The workshop will consist of each student making an arrangement followed by individual analysis of each arrangement. There will be a $1.50 fee for each person taking the workshop course. Those who wish to enroll for the workshop may bring a lunch for each person and be invited to attend if they have to make arrangements.

Other besides garden club members are invited to attend the workshop. "You are what you eat." "Relaxation: A woman is as old as she looks and feels; relaxation is the fountain of youth." "Standing: The way you stand can make you appear ten pounds slimmer." "Hands: "Using hands beautifully is an art." "Figure inventory: Fashion is only worth what fashion does for you—it's not what you wear, but how you look. There is no one fashion that can wear every woman, but there is one fashion that does something for every woman."

Color and Fabrics: "Color and fabric are like clothes; they can make a woman look taller, shorter, fatter, or thinner." Fashion Applied to You: Being well dressed is not an accident and there are many women on with a closet filled with clothes, yet have nothing to wear."

The cost of the course is $5 and tickets may be secured from any B. & P.W. Club member and at Henry's Store.

Howard Johnson now open here Mr. Bernie C. Rains nor snow... nor dogs

There's an old saying about our U. S. postmen fighting the elements—the winds, the rains, the snows—to get your mail through your door.

But we can't find anywhere any old or new saying which might have a mailman fighting dogs to get your mail to your door.

Yet the postmen who go about the daily task of delivering your mail, regardless of how inconsequential it may be, are having to fight past dogs, some strays, some not strays, up to the mailbox at your door.

On a recent Saturday a postman, while on his delivery route, was bitten by a dog. He was not sure but that he should have taken the rabies treatment.

One mailman on another route has to fight dogs off with a stick.

Investigations reveals that all the postmen who make the city deliveries have dog trouble.

This is a situation which should not be.

There are enough hazards to such a public service without these men having to put up with the nuisance created by dogs on their mail route.

The next time you think your mail delivery is late, look up or down the street—maybe you'll see your mailman fighting a pack of dogs or fending off the "playful antics" of a single dog, trying to get through your door.

Sounds as though its exaggerated, doesn't it?

Talk to your postman and you'll learn that it's not an exaggeration.

But it is a situation which needs remedying.

And the remedy is in the hands of those who own dogs, and in the hands of neighbors who fail to report packs of stray dogs cruising in their neighborhoods, and in the hands of our city officials and the enforcement of the city ordinances governing the control of dogs.

We're glad he won

The hue and cry is over. The returns are all in and the voice of the people has endorsed Prince H. Preston to another two-year term in our National House of Representatives.

And the voice is that loud that there can be no doubt about the endorsement.

And so we congratulate Mr. Preston upon his winning the congressional race in the First District. We commend him upon the methods he used in his campaign. We did not hear him say one disparaging remark about his opposition. He went about the business of conducting his own campaign in a manner befitting the high position he was seeking. His appearances on television were with dignity and what he had to say was thought provoking. His advertising copy was simple, straight forward and with point. His news releases were news in which the people of not only the district but the section were interested.

We're glad Mr. Preston won, and to use a campaign slogan

For our teachers

There'll be no problems to come up. There'll be no program to discuss. There'll be no room prize to award.

There'll be just fellowship and friendship when the county's school teachers and many of the school's patrons get together tonight as guests of the Statesboro and Bulloch County Chamber of Commerce at a reception at the Recreation Center from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock.

It is hoped that every teacher in the county can be there. It is hoped that as many parents as can will be there.

This is not a P.T.A. meeting! This is a reception at which an attempt is being made at making our teachers feel that they belong to our community. It has become an annual affair of the Chamber of Commerce and one which deserves high praise from all.

For the county owes much to the teachers of its youth.

And it's wonderful that our businessmen are developing an interest in those to whom we entrust the task of teaching our young people.

Just like that!

The Blue Devils let Coffee County High School, a Class AAA school, have it with both barrels in their own back yard Friday night as they defeated the Comets 19 to 6 before an opening night crowd in Douglas.

This is good for our boys. It's good for the fans. It gives the Blue Devils an idea that they're going to whip the league, and the fans will expect them to do just that.

But let's play 'em close to the chest—there's still nine games to be played and some are going to be tough ones.

We toss up our football ball high into the air for these 1956 Blue Devils—they're going to be trouble.

They play Eastman on our home field tomorrow night. After 'em Blue Devils!

More and more homeowners are learning that they are trying to operate their new up-to-date electrical appliances—refrigerator, freezers, garbage disposals, vacuum cleaners, radio, TV, fryers, broilers, toasters, percolators—all on a wiring system which was out of date and insufficient long ago.

These home owners have been limping along, putting up with distorted TV pictures, overloaded motors, submitting to poor lighting because of inadequate home wiring.

This week we are picking up the slogan, "Live Better Electrically," and are focusing attention on the need for modernizing home wiring, and the place electricity plays in the lives of Americans today.

Think upon this.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

And so we went to Atlanta. And there were only two really nice things about the trip—one was getting back home, and the other was the hospitality of the people who run the Nancy Hanks for the Central of Georgia.

Mr. J. T. Stewart, passenger traffic manager, was aboard in the train with Mr. H. L. Perkins of the industrial department. Mr. Stewart made us feel that the "Nancy" was making the trip last Friday morning just for us. It gave us a glow to know that the "Nancy" considered her passengers worthy of the best she could offer.

But the rest of the trip was strictly for city slickers. Every time we go to Atlanta we forget that we're in a big city and want to go avoiding like we do when we get time off here. We went to see our friends over at the Constitution—Ralph McGill, Bill Fields, "Baldy" Not a one was in. Then went over to the Atlanta Journal side—Jim Childers, Jack Tarver, Luke Greene. Not a soul in. So we went down to the press room and just stood for a little while feeling lonely there before those great presses, standing quiet and majestic.

We wanted to talk to somebody. Ended up over at Bealy Smith's (Mr. D. C. Smith's boy) in the C. & S. National Bank Building where he heads the Connecticut Mutual Insurance Agency for Georgia. There I got plenty of conversation. Bealy was in a talking mood. He still remembers Statesboro—but rather vaguely and with youthfulness in his eyes like all who haven't been back home here much in the past five, ten, fifteen years.

He talked about Mr. Monts, Miss Mary Lou, Mr. Hucklebee, and Fred Fletcher. "Miss Lillian Deal, and 'gosh I wish I could son suffered such disillusionment this first summer session with teachers. To him as a teacher to do wrong was an impossibility. In a class with some teachers he was utterly dismayed to see them cheat. The college teacher said that cheating among the young, regular term students was almost nil. But that cheating ran high during the summer.

IF YOU thought that the young people are going to the "dogs," perhaps such discussions would surely jar you.

But what effect will these people, who are the larger numbers who will help mold good characters and seek to guide young people and their most effective tool will be their own splendid example of living. Thank heavens for them.

Yet a workshop to re-evaluate personal integrity would still be a splendid idea anywhere.

WHAT COULD I say to her? What I said had little meaning, perhaps, to a student who is trying to do well in her studies and competing with this sort of thing. All I knew to say was that when she reached my age she would know that there was one main reason for being honest, and that was to be able to live with oneself. I doubt that that had much consolation for a person twenty-five years my junior.

On another occasion I heard the mother of a college student (She is also a teacher) say to the college professor that her

GOD'S PLAN FOR A CHRISTIAN. TEXT: "Filled with all the fullness of God." Eph. 3:19.

The text is a culmination of the teachings of four verses of this chapter, beginning with Verse sixteen. In this passage the Apostle gives in outline his inspired sketch of a Christian. He prays that the whole family of Christian believers may be characterized by power, faith, knowledge, and love in a marked degree; indeed, that they may be filled with God—unto all the fullness of God.

The measure of the filling is the "fullness of God." That is an overflowing measure. By this I mean that, in order to meet the requirements of this sketch of a Christian it is necessary to have power, then we must overflow with power, or faith, then we must overflow with faith; in the party are going to have some sleepless nights.

ON THE OTHER SIDE of the Capitol Mr. Stevenson has set up his national headquarters and every day the pressure grows as he rushes about the nation making speeches and meeting political leaders with a different prepared speech for each and every section. If there is one thing about our Democratic candidate that makes him different from the rest of the pack is his ability to come up with a prepared speech to meet any and all occasions. He is in favor of everything for

1. THE OVERFLOW OF POWER. "Strengthened with power, through the Spirit, in the inner man—unto all the fullness of God." This means that the whole moral nature must begin to glow with God, and so strengthened by that contact as to be the expression of God's power.

2. THEN THE OVERFLOW OF FAITH. "That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith—unto all the fullness of God." Faith removes mountains. It has done so. It will continue to do so. The victories of faith in God are simply marvelous. But victorious faith is not a sentiment, nor enthusiasm, nor idle dreaming. It is action in action. It begins with the man but it demonstrates its reality in the outside world.

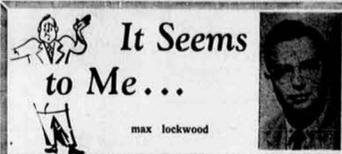

3. THE OVERFLOW OF KNOWLEDGE. The apostle says: "That ye may be able to comprehend." That is to know, the length, breadth, depth, and height of God's plan of a Christian—unto all the fullness of God. "Any person who is spiritually responsive to the touch of God on his soul is a larger man, made so by that very touch. He has a knowledge not possessable by the world."

4. THE OVERFLOW OF LOVE. "And to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge—unto all the fullness of God." Omnipotence is not the greatest attribute of God, for "God is love." Whoso dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him. How wonderful! Lord fill us with, "All the fullness of God."

PASTURES FOR EWES. It is important to provide early temporary winter pasture for ewes suckling big lambs, states Pete DeLoach, sheep specialist for the Agricultural Extension Service. Ewes should have access to lush grazing through May at which time they are marketed at weights of 80 to 100 pounds.

In 1955 a record twenty-one counties in Georgia received all blue ribbons in the 4-H Poultry chain work, states H. W. Bennett, poultryman for the Agricultural Extension Service.

Two important steps for fall grazing dairy cows are to plant early and to use plenty of nitrogen, Frank Fitch, Agricultural Extension Service dairyman states.

With the state primary over the people of Georgia are beginning to turn their attention to the national political scene and start to ask themselves questions concerning their decision as to how they will cast their ballot this November.

Mr. Eisenhower, part-time president if we have ever had one, is going to have a most difficult time this fall convincing the people of the Southern States that they should again cast their ballot for a Republican president. With his long list of broken promises, with his long absences from the White House, and with his long list of friendly nations who have turned their backs to us during his administration, Mr. Eisenhower and the political big wigs in the party are going to have some sleepless nights.

There are millions of Americans today, and not all of them from the South, who realize the futility of even voting at all. This November the average voter won't have any more idea as to what he is voting for than a man in the moon. In 1952 I cast my ballot for Dwight D. Eisenhower. I did so for I had a deep faith in his leadership. I believed him to be a man who would lead the American people to a better standard of living in all phases of life. I believed him to be a man who would not be too concerned with political promises to individuals and that in him we would find a leader who could and would lead the people of the United States.

WELL, I WAS partly right. He has not been concerned with the blanket and ads that individuals but to anyone else, indeed of strong individual leadership we now have a situation in which the people are simply marionettes. But vicariously the Republicans used in 1952, the same old issues of poverty, high taxes and not enough prosperity.

THE POLITICAL writers for both parties are having an interesting time out doing each other. The trend of the times is to see who can promise the most, since Mr. Eisenhower and the Democrats are now in the lead.

It makes little difference to the South whether a man is elected but if there is a lesser of the two evils then I surely hope in some way I will be able to find it out before November.

THE BETTER LIFE—AU JUS (An Editorial)

No doubt the most spectacular thing that has happened to us Americans in this twentieth century is electricity. As the century began, not quite two per cent of the nation's home were wired. Today, only two per cent are NOT! And where only the most opulent homes have enjoyed the luxury of electric light (without appliances) half a century ago, almost everybody today is on the threshold of electrical living, or so we're told.

To us oldsters, having lights and a washing machine and a toaster—maybe a mixer in the kitchen and an electric drill in the basement toolbox—is living electrically. And the TV set, of course, is the last word. Naturally, most farmers are a little ahead of us, with lights in the barn, electric milkers and cream separators and perhaps a refrigerated milk tank.

But it seems we've hardly begun to make full use of kilowatts, and a new age is about to dawn in which we will, as the electric people say, "Live Better... Electrically."

To give you an idea of what's ahead, we shall select at random a few of the twenty questions contained in a quiz sheet we received the other day:

"Must you feel your way around a room before you turn on the light?" It noisily asks. Sure, we do. But we've been doing it so long it's no great hazard—except when the lady-of-the-house takes a notion to shift the furniture around.

"Do your youngsters monopolize the television set?" Of course they do, we reply. And the quiz sheet comes right back at us with the idea that a second set would fix this problem. You know, we just never thought of that.

"Is there always enough hot water to go around at bath time?" Don't be silly! "Does your clock tell more than the time?" We had always thought that was responsibility enough for a clock. But it seems now it will turn the radio on or off and make the coffee, too. The quiz doesn't say how it is in waffles.

"Do you have a good reading lamp at every chair and sofa in your living room?" Guess we really don't! But it's a darn good idea.

"Do you have to unscramble a tangle of extension cords whenever you want to use an appliance?" We'll take the Fifth Amendment on that one!

"Is one blanket all you need on even the coldest nights?" Gosh, no. We get out all the bedding in the house—and then put wool socks on.

The foregoing sample may give you an idea of the push-button life that lies ahead. But there's still one appliance they haven't invented yet. It would have a hopper at the top into which we could put our ideas, then snap a switch and get editorials like this out of the bottom—like paper towels out of a dispenser. When they come up with that one, then we too will "LIVE BETTER... ELECTRICALLY."

—THE STANDARD & REVIEW, Aiken, S. C.

Electricity means comfort, leisure to nation's families

American families this year, more than ever before, are aware that they can live better... electrically. Young married couples, established families—even retired people planning their long-sought cottage—realize the benefits of comfort and convenience provided by electricity. And these benefits are brought right into every room of their homes.

With the public interest in mind, today's electrical appliance manufacturers spend no little effort designing their products to give every family in the country an important end product—leisure time and the comfort to enjoy it. That's what these "electrical servants" do in every room of the house.

A brief visit through an all-electric home illustrates this happy fact.

Yesterday's kitchen, for instance, was a place for mother to work. Today it is a "center" of living. Home designers and manufacturers brought forth smart ideas to abolish the time-taking chores. Food freezers and refrigerators to fit any family and almost every space on the market. The electronic oven at lower prices is just around the corner; meanwhile the automatic electric ranges make cooking a new-found pleasure. Efficient dishwashers, waste disposals, and washer-dryer combinations surround the other appliances in a well-lighted arrangement. Group all these together and they give the American housewife the ultimate in convenience as she prepares for her busy family.

New Worlds Open. TV, radio and hi-fi phonographs bring new worlds of entertainment into the living room. For they can be enjoyed in a cool, air conditioned setting. On occasion, home movies are displayed for friends, or the tape recorder is plugged in to preserve important events of family life.

In the bedrooms, electricity heats the blanket and adds that little luxury of reading in bed. Adjacent is the bathroom, perhaps, where adequate lighting, comfortable temperatures and a plentiful supply of hot water give practical demonstration of electricity's worth.

Electricity relieves Mother's concern in the nursery room in many ways. The bottle warmer, bottle sterilizer, hot plate for warming up milk, are all within easy reach at feeding time. A Phillip A. Rowland, special agent, National Agricultural Teacher, Swainsboro, Ga. visited Cox's farm last Tuesday to make plans for the clinic.

Meanwhile, throughout the home, the all-electric heating or cooling system operates smoothly to keep the family comfortable and healthy. There are no messy smells with electric, climate-controlled heating units.

It's no wonder people are thinking electrically. They want the leisure time it brings, they enjoy the comfort it affords, and they like its low price.

Bulloch County's first Farm Electrification Clinic will be held at the farm of Robert T. Cox, October 10-12. Sponsored by the Southeast Bulloch Young Farmer Chapter, the clinic will teach the participants to run a simple electrical circuit, and to plan adequate wiring systems for their farmsteads.

A group of 16-20 farmers will attend the clinic's opening session Wednesday night at which time there will be a discussion of such topics as: understanding electrical terms; running simple circuit; and solving general problems of farm wiring. The group will get actual practice in running a circuit and installing a meter box on miniature houses.

Continuing the clinic's activities Thursday afternoon will be a meeting at the Cox farm, where the group will examine the present wiring system. Plans for the clinic are being prepared by the group.

Friday morning the participants will again meet at the farm, a real problem of faulty wiring exists on many farms because the homes and other buildings originally wired for lights only, now have circuits overloaded with numerous electrical appliances.

Previous electrification clinics held elsewhere in Georgia have met with good results and keen interest Rowland reports. Bulloch Countyans interested in the October 10-12 clinic may contact Gordon Hendrix or O. E. Gay, vocational agriculture teachers.

Personnel from the Eleonor Membership Co-op, the Georgia Power Co., and other electrical companies will assist in the clinic.

SCHOOL DAYS AGAIN

Most of Georgia's rural schools are buzzing at this time of the year. The new school term is beginning and youngsters are back to their school days again.

Today's rural youth in Georgia go to a far improved kind of school from a few years back. A vast state school building program has transformed the countryside with modern facilities, ready to give every pupil a good education.

Electricity in rural areas has made it possible to furnish these new schools in our counties with equipment second to none. Thus our farm youngsters can go to schools as modern as their city counterparts. Today's rural schools are bright with modern electric lighting, the girls learn to cook on shiny new electric stoves, and all the wonders of electrical living are in our rural schools for our youngsters to profit by.

The efforts of community leaders years ago brought electricity to Georgia rural areas after power monopolists refused. Today's living in rural Georgia is modern living because of this electrification program.

For over 20 years, Georgia's 41 rural electric cooperatives have been striving to bring you an abundant supply of electricity at the lowest possible cost.

Proper care adds years to life of modern appliances

Here's one small word of caution before you start flipping switches on your new electrical appliance—read the instruction manual. Better yet, read it twice.

Any electrical appliance will last long and perform well if you take the time to learn exactly what the equipment is designed to do and how to make it operate efficiently. The book of directions will help you get more out of the appliance, and thus a better value for your money.

The most important single rule is maintenance on a regular basis. Keep your appliance in good shape all the time. Repairs should be attended to promptly and should be done only by a licensed electrician.

A wise buyer will investigate the service policies of the appliance seller before he makes his purchase. In case of difficulty caused by improper operation, you should have a clear idea of exactly where to go for repairs and what kind of service you can expect.

Remember that if the seller is not equipped to care for your appliance in the future, a few pennies saved in original price might, in the end, turn out to be poor economy.

Regarding all-important-day-to-day care, here are a few tips which may help you keep your appliances in top-shape all the time:

Electric ranges are less of a chore to clean if surfaces are wiped after each use or after each meal or as spill occur during cooking. When cleaning enamel surfaces while the range is hot, a paper towel or cloth should be used—a damp cloth might crack or "craze" the enamel. Drip trays should be cleaned meticulously. Food that has been allowed to dry on electric surface units should be removed in water. Refrigerators should be washed regularly, in-

METHODIST W.C.S. MEETS

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. R. Bristow with Mrs. Bob Mikell co-chairman. Mrs. H. G. Parrish Sr. arranged the program and presented Mrs. A. C. Waits who gave the story of "Ruth and Naomi." Mrs. Brooks Lanier conducted the business meeting and announced the seminar that will be held at the Springfield Methodist Church this week. She also announced that the fall study course will be held on four Monday afternoons in October, and Mrs. John A. Robertson will be in charge of the study. A silver tea was held during the meeting. The dismissal prayer was offered by the Rev. Ernest L. Veal. The hostesses were assisted by Mrs. W. B. Parrish.

OUTDOORS TURNED INTO LIVING AREA

Weatherproofed outdoor lighting equipment and portable appliances have opened a new era in outdoor living. With electricity the smart family can make outdoor areas the most important set of "rooms" of the home—to dine, to entertain, to work and play, and best of all, to relax.

Until recently, the National Electrical Code required underground lead sheathing for underground wiring. Now a practical and less costly way is the use of direct burial plastic-coated wiring. Weatherproofed electrical outlets also are available which can be attached to fence posts, trees or buildings.

Outside electrical service of this type makes "now and then" outdoor living a thing of the past. No longer must you flee the coolness of the garden to catch a favorite television show inside the house. (Move the TV outside, or get one of the new, compact portable sets.) Twilight moments on the terrace need not be interrupted because it's time to get dinner started in the kitchen. (Cook outside on an electric range-broiler or a portable electric barbecue pit.) There's no reason to call it a day for that game of croquet when darkness falls. (Just flip a switch and bathe your backyard in light.)

The bride's table with white linen cover was centered with double tulle hearts with delicate pastel flowers at the base. Each corner of the table had white lace wedding bells caught with clusters of white ribbon.

Miss Betty Jo Brannen and Miss Glenda Banks served punch, petits fours, nuts and sandwiches in wedding bell and wedding ring shapes.

Fifty guests called between 8 and 9:30 o'clock.

CIVIC GARDEN CLUB

The Civic Garden Club met at Mrs. Bryant's Kitchen September 13 at 10 o'clock. Hostesses were Mrs. J. L. Brannen, Mrs. Al Sutherland and Mrs. Loron Durden.

A pretty salad plate was served with coffee.

An African violet, an arrangement of begonia and coleus leaves, and another of Eclipta roses were brought by the hostesses.

Mrs. Glenn Jennings, president, presided at the business meeting and heard reports from officers and committee chairmen. The club voted to cooperate with other garden clubs in the community project at the Bulloch County Hospital. Old wiring systems cannot meet modern appliance needs

YOUR SKIMPY WIRING CAN BE FATTENED UP WITH HOUSEPOWER

Today, millions of American homeowners, who are either modernizing their homes or are buying new homes, are operating their up-to-date electrical appliances with wiring which was out of date and insufficient five years ago. According to the National Adequate Wiring Bureau, about 80 per cent of the homes in the United States are putting a modern electrical load on a wiring system designed for 1930.

If you are limping along on inadequate wiring, you had better take stock. You have invested in the electrical appliances which you and your family wish to enjoy for modern living, but what about the wiring which is essential to get the best service from them?

No single factor in the home counts so heavily toward the comfort and convenience of the family as their HOUSEPOWER. In making improvements, too often householders notice that the paint on the outside of the house needs repainting, that the decorating and furnishings inside need renewing. To these people outdoor appearances are all that count: the plumbing and wiring in the home are forgotten.

When Mrs. Housewife's new iron doesn't heat up very fast, she thinks it isn't good as she thought it would be. She fails to realize the real trouble: the heat overloaded the electrical circuit to which the iron is attached.

What about the times when the family's television set flickers, shrinks and fades? Do they immediately think of their electrical wiring or do they, too often, blame the manufacturer of the set which they own? Unfortunately, most homeowners think the appliance is at fault when it does not operate properly.

Does Mr. Householder irately blame his wife for not making his coffee fast enough in the morning? In many cases, the percolator is connected to a circuit which does not carry enough electrical power to accommodate the percolator, toaster, waffle iron, and refrigerator—all in use at the same time.

Most homes have 30-ampere, 120-volt wiring, which provides only 3,600 watts for all the lights and appliances in the home. Modern homes require at least 100-ampere service with three service entrance wires from the main power line. A 100-ampere service provides a total of 24,000 watts, 120 volts for lights and small appliances and 240 volts for heavy electrical equipment like the percolator, water heater, and clothes dryer. By referring to the table of appliances listed at right and by adding up the watts required for the appliances you have, you will know how your present wiring compares with the 24,000 watts you should have for modern living.

To get a better idea of the "load factor" your home requires, you should call a qualified electrical contractor, or your local electric utility to figure it for you.

Installation of modern electrical service will provide for present wiring requirements in the home, as well as future additions to your appliances and lighting.

"Inside Story" of Wiring electrical appliances you have now in your kitchen, dining area and laundry. You probably have thought recently that it might be nice to have some new ones. Before you purchase those additional shiny appliances which will make your kitchen and laundry work so much easier, why don't you consider the wiring needed for them?

Here is the "inside story" of the wiring: the circuits and outlets within the walls of your kitchen, breakfast nook, and dining room which are needed to give you HOUSEPOWER to operate those modern electrical appliances.

For the kitchen: 1) Your range requires three #6 wires on a separate circuit. 2) Your dishwasher and your waste disposer unit each requires separate circuits with two #12 wires; 3) Your small kitchen appliances (like your toaster, broiler, electric percolator, electric frying pan, etc.) are all serviced by a kitchen appliance circuit consisting of three #12 wires. The connection is made through split-wired receptacles; 4) Your refrigerator and freezer require two #12 wires. Your kitchen clock and ventilating fan are installed on the same circuit with your kitchen and laundry lighting.

For the laundry area, if you have adequate wiring: 1) Your water heater requires a separate circuit which is supplied power by three #10 wires or four #12 wires, depending upon your utility company's rules; 2) Your automatic clothes washer requires a separate circuit consisting of #12 wires; 3) Your clothes dryer should receive power from a separate circuit of #10 wire if "standard" type of #6 if "high-speed" type. 4) Your ironer and hand iron are supplied power from your kitchen appliance circuit; 5) Current for the lighting in the laundry is supplied by the general lighting circuit.

Over the breakfast room table, a convenience outlet which is supplied power by the kitchen appliance circuit, provides a place to plug in the various appliances which can be used more conveniently in this room.

Housepower said low in many homes

Perhaps the most often overlooked aspect of a house is its electrical capacity. Yet it is among the most important features in a new home, in terms of day-to-day living.

power of the house—is of construction, size and number of rooms and the color of paint or wallpaper.

Experts in the electrical industry and economists say that by 1970 the home owner, in his effort to live better electrically, will be using three times the amount of electricity he is using today. This fact is pointed up by surveys, by the growing rate of appliance purchasing and by the many new types of appliances now on the drawing boards of various manufacturers.

Despite this, the prospective home buyer usually neglects to look into the electrical capacity of the house. He does not find out if there is enough wiring

Does Your House Have Weary Wiring?

When you plan to build or remodel your home, be sure to include up-to-date wiring... for the many electrical appliances that you now use... for the other electric servants that you'll want in the future.

So many houses are limping along on old, inadequate wiring. They just don't have the HOUSEPOWER needed for today's electrical living.

If you're entangled with an extension cord maze or suffering from fuses blowing out, shrinking TV pictures, slow-heating appliances; you need a little more wiring or a few more circuits for smooth operation of your labor-saving, pleasure-giving electric helpers.

Modern wiring will save you time, money, annoyance and inconvenience. You'll have no further worry over present or future HOUSEPOWER.

OUR SOIL * OUR STRENGTH

By E. T. "RED" MULLIS
Soil Conservation Service

"Signs of the Times" is the name often used by the District-Cooperator Signs now being erected about over Bulloch County. They show that the Ogeechee River Soil Conservation District and the farm owner have cooperated fully to get a good all-around job of soil and water conservation on the land.

There have been signs of this type erected in the past, but a total of thirty-seven has gone up over the past week, well distributed over the county.

This shows the good cooperation of the farmer and the conservation practices for his farm. This means that a cooperator must have applied 90 per cent or more of the planned conservation practices for his farm. This means that a cooperator must be keeping his soil and water at home. It may also mean that one cooperator may be able to qualify much easier than another due to the lesser needs. Anyone interested, however, should contact me or Henry Blitch, our local supervisor, for details.

Captain C. J. Feete, retired Air Force officer, and his hard working family are blazing a good conservation trail on their farm near Groveland in Bulloch County. They have taken an old run-down farm and made it blossom forth abundantly. Their pastures of coastal bermuda

Farm Bureau Miss Laurel Lanier is declared Ogeechee Farm Bureau queen

Miss Laurel Lanier won the Ogeechee queen contest last Tuesday night and will compete for county honors the first part of October.

The talent winners at Ogeechee were Misses Patsy Simmons, Peggy Miller, and Lynn Clark singing "I Need You Now."

Miss Henrietta Hall, Farm Bureau Women chairman for the county, was not definitely scheduled the time and place for the county contest because she does not know exactly when the communities will finish with their contests. The community winners have to be named prior to the county contest. However, she things it will be near October 12. The county winners have to be reported to the Georgia Farm Bureau by October 15.

The county winners from all over the state will compete in Atlanta this year at the annual meeting of the Georgia Farm Bureau. In years gone by they have held district contests prior to the state meeting.

J. R. Murry, Decatur, and A. L. Crittendon, Dublin, were the Ogeechee judges. Mrs. Janie Ethridge accompanied the groups at the piano.

BLUE CROSS-BLUE SHIELD DISCUSSED

Mr. Crittendon discussed the coverage offered Farm Bureau members under the Blue Cross and Blue Shield health service. This program is now working in most of the counties in Georgia and being offered the Bulloch Farm Bureau for the first time. Edgar Miller is enrolling the Ogeechee members in Blue Cross and Blue Shield. Mr. Miller advised those present to

It is a story of stamina, hard work, and a vision.

SINKHOLE

Carlton Kirby and Mrs. H. H. Godbee discussed the health insurance program at the Sinkhole on Thursday night. Mrs. Godbee thought their chapter would also have 60 per cent or more enrolled by October 10. Mr. Kirby pointed out to all these groups that destroying old cotton and tobacco stalks could save growers of these two crops a lot of problems next year, in the way of getting rid of places to continue grow diseases and insects. Under existing conditions, especially the increased costs of fighting insects and diseases, it is just plain good

Allotment for wheat is set up

Farmers on land on which no wheat was seeded for grain for any of the years 1954, 1955, and 1956, may apply for a 1957 wheat acreage allotment, according to Mr. John C. Cromley, chairman of the Bulloch County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. To be considered for an allotment on a farm which had no wheat seeded for grain for any of those years, the farmer must apply in writing to his county A.S.C. committee by September 28, 1956.

Blank application forms are available at the county A.S.C. office for use in filing requests for allotments.
