The Editor's Uneasy Chair

With your exciting claims in the past few months, I was considering whether I, as a politician, should not make an unaccustomed effort at conforming to some of the huge claims with which I have been charged.

Yet, to be perfectly frank, I am inclined to analyze the situation at the present time, and I am not sure whether I am going to make a welfare benefit to my constituents, or whether I am going to give them education and socialized medical care.

More important, and perhaps more immediately, is the question of whether I shall be able to return to the government to the people.

I know that the present system requires many changes, and I cannot promise a true day of living.

Yet, in the past few months, I have been considering whether I should be able to make any welfare benefit to the people, or whether I shall be able to give them education and socialized medical care.

As I have been considering these reasons, I have been considering how I can make any welfare benefit to the people, or whether I shall be able to give them education and socialized medical care.
