How Your Television "Commercial" Will Look
To enhance an impressive list of manufacturing "firsts," Chevrolet now engages in another pioneering venture as the first motor car manufacturer to sponsor a regular commercial television show.

Four weekly shows were staged by Chevrolet and broadcast through the facilities of the American Broadcasting Company's television network. The shows were telecast at the Dumont Studios in New York for the three stations currently teamed in the ABC television network. Shown above is a scene from the second of the series, a half-hour program titled "Roads to Romance."

Candidates Watch As Congressional Recount Proceeds
The recount of the congressional election in Bryan County is proceeding slowly but surely.

The recount board is expected to complete its work by the end of the week. The board is composed of representatives from both parties.

Judge Renfro Urges Federal Education Aid
Judge J. L. Renfro of the Ogeechee circuit in his charge to the Bulloch county July grand jury at the opening of Superior Court here Monday morning urged a more program of improvement, the national government's contribution to schools, and the improvement of the country.

Judge Renfro told the jurors that the labor situation in this section has not improved in the last twelve months and that he has found farmers co-operating in barning tobacco. For that reason, he explained, the July term of court would be shortened as much as possible.

The Ogeechee jurist touched on land waste, urging the adoption of a soil improvement program. He stated that people move away when the soil becomes poor and that he feared loss of both our people and resources unless some thing is done.

He also urged the adoption of industrial enterprises to help balance the agricultural program. Judge Renfro stated that in the South two-thirds of the population get education in rural schools and that the rural sections do not have finances to maintain proper schools.

He stated that he favored the national government contributions for schools. He also pleaded for improvement of rural homes, landscaping and modernization of farm homes.

J. W. Robertson was named foreman of the July grand jury. GRAND JURY REPORT.

As one set of tobacco buyers at the New Statesboro Warehouse were buying 2,272 pounds of tobacco from Mr. H. L. Geradeau, of the Hagan District, for $1,101.98, the second set of buyers at Cobb and Foxhall Warehouse were buying 942 pounds of tobacco from M. B. Hodges for $445.22.

He's 'Mister' To Us Now

The hue and cry have died down... He is the man who controls the figures... "Take nice little dainty steps," and directs the ladies to join a circle.

In one of the most "rugged" campaigns in the memories of the younger voters... "The Man" was Eugene Talmadge.

We do not hesitate to admit that the results of the election had us low, but we're now up and about.

This will be interpreted by many as "our covering up statement." That's ok by us. Those who know the county are being generous.

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

It can be as hot as a fire popper. But that don't make no nevermind. If there's a square dance in the community they'll be there.

Dance with the gal with the waterfall. Skip light, ladies, the cake's all dough.

Nevermind the weather so the wind don't blow. So sings out the caller.

And to you young people a "waterfall" is not what you see when you go to Niagara Falls, but, of all things, a hairdo!

Next to the fiddler the caller is the king bee at a square dance. He tells 'em what to do.

To Know Georgia See It First

All over Georgia people are becoming better acquainted with their state as a result of the "Know Georgia Better" campaign, recently launched by the State Agricultural and Industrial Development Board's Tourist Panel. The campaign, which opened in June and continues through August, has as its principal operation exchange visits among civic clubs and other groups throughout the state.

More and more calls and letters outlining plans of clubs to either visit or act as host to other clubs in various sections of the state are being received in the office of Lee S. Trimble, director of the A. D. Board's tourist panel, who is in charge of the unique campaign.

Latest clubs to indicate participation in the campaign are the Moultrie and Macon Chambers of Commerce whose officials say that they are open to entertain any group of directors of other C. C. groups. Carrollton Rotary Club indicates it is ready to visit some other club, and the Hartwell Rotary club says it is eager to act as host to any visiting club.

The women folk likewise are interested in the idea of knowing Georgia and her people better. For example, Pilots Clubs in Atlanta, Fitzgerald, Macon and Moultrie have indicated they are anxious to either entertain or visit other clubs over the state. Still other groups are in process of making their plans and several have completed arrangements for visiting or entertaining other clubs. Mr. Trimble pointed out.

The "Know Georgia Better" campaign has caught on because it is designed to benefit every community in the state both large and small. Letters and resolutions of endorsements have poured into the A. D. Board from civic clubs, state departments, banks, business associations and individuals. "However, I am of the opinion that owners of defective cars and trucks should be required to show that they have had repairs made within a reasonable time. This is especially important where one does not have a cool egg room."

"This is the only way we will ever be able to reduce this slaughter on our highways," Spence pointed out that Georgia's percentage on defective machines is higher than most other states. For the same period, Rhode Island had only nine percent of defective vehicles on roads, while Arkansas reported 78 percent of cars checked were defective.

The State Patrol officials say they will join Athens police in demanding state legislation compelling drivers of defective autos to have their machines repaired or face a fine or jail sentence.

No arrests have been made yet, but the city police say they have some good finger prints of the thieves taken off of the whiskey bottles.

Ball weevil population in the southern half of the State the first of July was about as high as it normally is by the end of July. Weevil population throughout the northern half of the State is extremely high.

Of straight news variety, and editorials in the state press are lending their support to the campaign, which is attracting the attention not only of Georgians, but of out-of-state citizens as well.

Among the many letters coming in to the campaign headquarters, 20 Ivy Street, S. E. Atlanta 3, Ga., are numerous suggestions as to how to take care of prospective tourists. They range from better highway patrol measures and catching more hotel and lodging accommodations. One letter brought to light that nowhere on the coast of Georgia was there adequate accommodations for a group of thirty boys from North Georgia who had been promised an outing at the seashore and a deep sea fishing trip.

"During the safety check, of course, we only gave the driver a ticket showing the repairs his vehicle needs. We are not making cases, and I know many drivers cooperated with us willingly. "However, I am of the opinion that owners of defective cars and

THIEVES LOOT SUTTON'S WHISKY STORE SATURDAY

Last Saturday night about 1:30 Sutton's Whisky Store was robbed of approximately 13 cases of whiskey. Three men were reportedly involved.

Street sweepers noticed the door to the store was open and reported it to the city police. When the police arrived they discovered that the door had been torn down with a crow-bar which the thieves had left. Upon further investigation it was discovered that the thieves had been calmly taking the whiskey off the shelves at the store and walking out the front door with their loot and storing it in the alley back of the furniture stores on South M. Street.

STATE SAFETY CHECK REVEALS 50 PERCENT OF VEHICLES UNSAFE

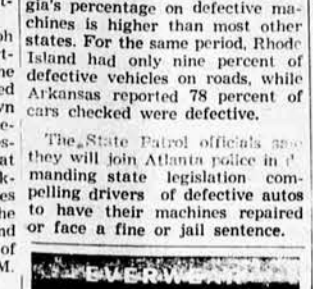

In the recent safety checkup of cars on Georgia highways, the State Patrol inspected over 32,882 vehicles and found 16,257 unsafe.

Of automobiles checked, 2,460 had insufficient brakes, 1,432 had no horn, 1,906 had no windshield wipers, 3,091 had front headlights out, 4,351 had no rear lights, 579 had unsafe tires and 2,438 were ruled unsafe for other defects.

"If the average person can glance over machines on the highway and find that many defects, just think what a trained mechanic would find," Major W. E. Spence, State Commissioner of Public Safety, said.

"During the safety check, of course, we only gave the driver a ticket showing the repairs his vehicle needs. We are not making cases, and I know many drivers cooperated with us willingly. "However, I am of the opinion that owners of defective cars and

Information on Early History of Tobacco Growing Is Vague

Authentic information on the early history of tobacco is quite limited. Available records of culture and use by the American Aborigines and the early colonists are fragmentary, widely scattered, often ambiguous and at times contradictory.

The name "tobacco" originally was applied by the natives to the tube or pipe in which the leaf was smoked. Use of tobacco was not merely a matter of personal habit but pipe smoking was an important feature of the formalities observed at state gatherings.

Pipe smoking was introduced into England about 1585 and soon extended into Continental Europe. Tobacco was introduced into Russia, Turkey, Persia, India, China, Japan and the West coast of Africa around the close of the sixteenth century.

Builder clearly indicate that use of tobacco in America extends far back in history. The Spaniards began culture of tobacco in Haiti in 1511 with seed obtained in Mexico and production was extended to other neighboring islands.

and Maryland tobacco averaged about 29,000,000 lbs. Throughout the eighteenth century Virginia and Maryland continued to produce the bulk of the tobacco crop. Production methods were considerably improved during the period.

Lack of home-grown feed has been the greatest limiting factor in beef production in Georgia. The grain shortage need not curb production of the home pork supply.

Claim American Spas

Equal Those Abroad

American mineral spring resorts are unfairly considered inferior in their healing power to foreign spas, states Dr. Samuel Weiss in a special article in the Journal of the American Medical Association. The article, prepared under the direction of the Committee on American Health Resorts of the American Medical Association, says that "millions of patients have spent small fortunes in hunting health at European spas, when they could have had the same scientific care and considerate attention at home."

Citing a recent report on the subject, the article points out that we have in the United States 2,717 areas with 828 known mineral springs, indicating that our spa reserves have scarcely been touched.

Much of the popularity of mineral spring resorts is attributable to the great number of digestive ailments, Dr. Weiss says that most digestive disorders originate in the nervous system and tend to become chronic as the nervous condition continues. Improved digestion is usually concurrent with improvement in the nervous condition. Nervous indigestion is usually induced by prolonged emotional strain, anxiety, overwork, lack of exercise and of rest, and above all by dietary abuses, including in some cases overindulgence in alcohol and tobacco.

The mineral waters act as an antacid, and as a cathartic or purgative. They tend to increase the flow of bile into the intestine, restore the mineral elements in the body and raw fluid from the intestinal tract.

'Thermostabilization' New Way for Preserving Eggs

A new method for preserving eggs in the home has been developed at the Wyoming experiment station by Miss E. J. Thlesen and Dr. Lawrence Morris. The new method, known as thermostabilization, will preserve eggs satisfactorily for periods up to six months. Eggs which had been stored seven months still scored very high in eating qualities, according to the judges who sampled them.

Thermostabilization consists of treating eggs in a hot water bath at 130 degrees for 15 minutes. The eggs must then be dried, dipped in a mineral oil bath, drained and stored in a cool basement at a temperature of from 35 to 50 degrees. The mineral oil bath should be at room temperature when the eggs are dipped, according to Miss Thlesen. The oil should be a thin tasteless mineral oil.

Thermostabilization is one of the newest and one of the best methods for preservation of eggs, asserts Miss Thlesen. The method used by the state experiment station should be followed closely for good results, and a thermometer is absolutely essential to check the temperatures during the hot water bath.

Storage Hazard
"Mothproof" containers alone do not eliminate the pest hazard. If they're tightly enough sealed, with no cracks, they keep moths from getting in from the outside but they don't prevent any moth larvae already lurking in the clothes from doing their dirty work. Hence the necessity for having the woollens thoroughly cleaned. As an added protection, use a spray of flakes of naphthalene, or paradichlorobenzene, or moth balls—pound for a small chest, 3 pounds for an average closet. The flakes or balls give off a gas which discourages the larvae from feeding and kills them if the concentration is high enough. As the gas is heavier than air and sinks, the flakes should be put high in the closet and renewed, if necessary.

Garden Lettuce
A newly developed lettuce known as Slobot was developed by the department of agriculture especially for market and home gardeners. The new summer leaf lettuce withstands mid-summer temperature without quickly shooting or "bolting" to seed. Because of this characteristic, it produces usable leaves three weeks longer than such well-known leaf lettuce varieties as Grand Rapids, Black Seeded Simpson and Prize Head. If plants are set 10 to 12 inches apart and only the basal leaves are used as they reach a desirable size, lettuce may be harvested from the same plants over a period of several weeks. This characteristic makes it very desirable for home gardens.

Easy Ironing
Ironing is a tiring job but oftentimes something can be done to help relieve some of the strain. For example, some parts of the work can be omitted. If the wrinkles are shaken out of sheets and they are hung carefully on the line, they will look smooth enough to use without ironing. The same is true of dish towels, wash cloths and hose. Turkish towels are really softer and fluffier if left unironed. Practically one whole step in the ironing procedure can be eliminated by taking the clothes from the line when they are just damp enough to iron well. Pieces that combine thick and thin parts may need some spritzing but the others can be rolled loosely just as they are.

600 Famous Stradivari

Violins in Existence

Judith Klein, who applies the Italian name to the famous instruments, in an article in the New York Herald-Tribune, is authority for an estimate that there are about 600 Stradivari violins in existence. Their value, she says, ranges from $5,000 to $100,000 each.

Of the 500 violins, 60 cellos and 14 violas bearing the dated imprint of Antonio Stradivari, the master craftsman of Cremona, some 200, including about 18 double basses, violas, are in the United States, 150 in England, 75 in France, 20 in Russia, 12 in South America and the rest scattered about the world, according to the Herald-Tribune survey.

Ironically, Italy, fatherland of the great instrument makers, had only five Stradis. Of some 150 and 200 Stradivari instruments last known to have been in war devastated regions of Europe, some are believed to have been destroyed, others rescued and hidden to be brought to light in future years, and still others to have fallen into the hands of people who do not know their value, says the report. It is stated that most of the Stradivari instruments carry the names of celebrated past owners. For example, Michala Elman owns the "Madame Recamier," Yehudi Menuhin owns the "Prince Khevenhuller" and Iso Bressell the "Lord Norton."

Machine Age Comes to

Large Brazilian Industry

The machine age is coming to Brazil's big carnauba wax production industry. Machines developed during the war are described as extracting one-third more wax powder than wasteful hand-beating methods produce.

Carnauba (pronounced car-nova) is the most valuable of all vegetable waxes. It comes only from thirty palm trees in the lowlands of northeastern Brazil. Wax of a thousand uses, it puts the shine on floors and furniture, automobiles and shoes.

The carnauba palm (Copernicia cerifera) has been transplanted to French Africa and Ceylon. But only the semi-arid easternmost bulge of South America inflicts on it the long annual season of drought that causes its leaves to exude their own moisture-retaining cover of wax. The wax appears like a layer of sticky yellow dust on the fan-shaped leaves and their yard-long stalks, the branch out from the crown of the palm 20 feet and more above the ground.

Lightweight Wool

The lightweight woolen fabrics in the world were recently exhibited in London—the finest of which weighed a mere ounce per square yard and the heaviest only three and one-half ounces per square yard. Several dress fabrics were shown which weigh only one and one-half ounces per square yard, which means that a woman's frock for a woman need weigh only five or six ounces. The production of so fine a material is the result of experiments carried out in Leeds university and is due to the discovery of a soluble carrier to be used in the weaving of worsted yarn so finely spun that it will not stand the strain of normal weaving. This carrier, made of alginate, the base of which is ordinary seaweed from British shores, is embodied in the yarn to give it support during the weaving. It is later dissolved away, leaving behind the light fabric in pure wool.

DDT of Long Use

Definite proof that a DDT spray kills flies, spiders and wasps 10% months after application has been found by an extension entomologist. He sprayed his garage on July 1, 1945, with a single spray application of a 2.5 per cent wettable DDT powder. On May 14, 1946, he found that the insecticide still had the power to kill flies. The DDT spray was applied with a three gallon pressure sprayer on the walls, windows, doors and on part of the ceiling. Fifteen minutes later the flies, mosquitoes, spiders and wasps were showing the deadly effects of the DDT. In May this year the extensionist caught two bluebottle flies, placed them in a jar and put the open mouth of the jar to the wall where DDT had been sprayed 10% months before. Within a few minutes these flies showed visible effects of DDT poisoning and within two hours they had died.

Street Lighting

A poll by the Street and Traffic Safety Lighting Bureau, Cleveland, Ohio, shows that 96 per cent of the police officials replying from cities of 10,000 population and over believe adequate street lighting can reduce the number of traffic accidents and that 71.8 per cent consider their own cities do not have adequate traffic safety lighting. A Utah city cited 9 night traffic fatalities during one year before improved street lights were installed and none in the four years since. A Washington city reported a 73 per cent decrease in traffic fatalities following installation of adequate street lighting. In addition to the regular traffic markings, the painting of dark walls, bridge railings, fences, etc., with white paint can vastly increase the illumination through light reflection and help to guide and safeguard both motorists and pedestrians.

Diplomas Cost American

Colleges Over $1,000,000

Diplomas awarded at commencement this year cost high schools and colleges throughout the United States more than a million dollars, for an estimate that there are about 600 Stradivari violins in existence. Their value, she says, ranges from $5,000 to $100,000 each.

Of the 500 violins, 60 cellos and 14 violas bearing the dated imprint of Antonio Stradivari, the master craftsman of Cremona, some 200, including about 18 double basses, violas, are in the United States, 150 in England, 75 in France, 20 in Russia, 12 in South America and the rest scattered about the world, according to the Herald-Tribune survey.

Of some 150 and 200 Stradivari instruments last known to have been in war devastated regions of Europe, some are believed to have been destroyed, others rescued and hidden to be brought to light in future years, and still others to have fallen into the hands of people who do not know their value, says the report. It is stated that most of the Stradivari instruments carry the names of celebrated past owners. For example, Michala Elman owns the "Madame Recamier," Yehudi Menuhin owns the "Prince Khevenhuller" and Iso Bressell the "Lord Norton."

Art of Braemaking

The art of braemaking was first described by Hippocrates, the father of medicine. Since that day, braemaking has become a highly developed art and an accomplishment often handed down from father to son. Early braces were often as much instruments of torture as of healing. They were usually manufactured by the armorer or the blacksmith and frequently weighed a hundred pounds. The modern brace dates back only as far as the close of the 19th century when the medical profession came to more fully understand and appreciate surgical deformity. The First World War, which resulted in so many deformities and injuries, gave considerable impetus to the work of the braemaking. Well-fitted, comfortable braces became the means by which thousands of crippled persons left their beds and wheel-chairs and started to lead useful and self-supporting lives.

Tobacco Growers Guard Good Tobacco Formula

Tobacco growers will give their formula for growing good tobacco rather freely—after they get their plants in the field. There is something rather "funny" about the answers you get from a tobacco grower before transplanting his plants.

Maybe he is afraid some one will talk him out of his plants, or something, but he just positively will not talk in public about his plans or progress. When cornered alone tobacco growers will admit success when they have experienced growing a good crop of good tobacco.

"Cornered" points could be summarized about as follows from the plant bed story:

Keep plant well drained. Trees should not obstruct sunlight on the tobacco bed.

Use one of the methods of blue mold control developed by the Tilton Experiment Station, and use it as recommended. (The Bulloch county farmers stuck by Ferman in 1946.)

If the plants need additional nitrogen top dress the bed with about five pounds of nitrate of soda per 100 square yards of bed.

Keep weeds out of bed. Water the plant bed when it needs it.

Information is not so hard to get from a weed grower on how he produced a good crop of tobacco. Brief summary of these points is about as follows.

Select the best tobacco land. Prepare land well. Fertilize with 1,000 to 1,500 lbs.

Use common sense judgment in of a 3-9-9 fertilizer made especially for tobacco. Place the fertilizer to the side of the plants or mix it with the soil so as not to injure the roots of the plants. If possible, apply two or three tons of well rotted, finely pulverized manure in the drill about two weeks before setting plants.

Set plants in four-foot rows, 18 to 24 inches in the drill. First two cultivations should be deep and close to plants, and so that cultivate fairly shallow and so as to throw dirt to the plants each cultivation.

Use recommended practices in controlling the budworm and hornworm.

Top tobacco at proper time and keep the suckers pulled out.

Harvest tobacco when at best stage of ripeness. Use common sense judgment in

Land Bank Can Still Make Loans

Congress has extended the authority to make Lank Bank Commissioner loans for another year, according to T. W. Rowse, secretary-treasurer of the Statesboro National Farm Loan Association, who has just received official notice from Julian Scarborough, president of the Federal Land Bank of Columbia.

"The action of Congress in extending the Commissioner loans for another year will make it possible for the Federal Land Bank to serve a larger number of farmers," Mr. Scarborough said.

The loans are handled through the local national farm loan association just like regular land bank loans. They may be secured by a first or second mortgage on farm land and its improvements.

Secretary Rowse says that the extension of the Commissioner loans will be good news to many farmers in this section who are planning to rearrange their indebtedness on a basis that will put them in a safer position for the years ahead.

The association office is located at Statesboro, and handles the making and servicing of Federal Land Bank loans in Bulloch, Bryan, Evans, Effingham, Liberty, McIntosh, Long, and Chatham counties.

PREPARING PEACHES Demonstrations and instruction on preparing peaches for freezing have been given at four home demonstration club meetings in Lamar County. Since no packing of fruits or vegetables is done at the local locker plant, homemakers must prepare their peaches at home before taking them to the freezer-locker.

Cull all hens that start to shed their feathers (molt) in summer. Also take out all hens that do not appear thrifty. A hen that is laying has a large, moist, white vent.

Land Bank Can Still Make Loans

Congress has extended the authority to make Lank Bank Commissioner loans for another year, according to T. W. Rowse, secretary-treasurer of the Statesboro National Farm Loan Association, who has just received official notice from Julian Scarborough, president of the Federal Land Bank of Columbia.

"The action of Congress in extending the Commissioner loans for another year will make it possible for the Federal Land Bank to serve a larger number of farmers," Mr. Scarborough said.

The loans are handled through the local national farm loan association just like regular land bank loans. They may be secured by a first or second mortgage on farm land and its improvements.

Secretary Rowse says that the extension of the Commissioner loans will be good news to many farmers in this section who are planning to rearrange their indebtedness on a basis that will put them in a safer position for the years ahead.

The association office is located at Statesboro, and handles the making and servicing of Federal Land Bank loans in Bulloch, Bryan, Evans, Effingham, Liberty, McIntosh, Long, and Chatham counties.

PREPARING PEACHES Demonstrations and instruction on preparing peaches for freezing have been given at four home demonstration club meetings in Lamar County. Since no packing of fruits or vegetables is done at the local locker plant, homemakers must prepare their peaches at home before taking them to the freezer-locker.

Sinkhole Planters Reveal Their Secret Of Success

While other tobacco growers were looking for tobacco plants to set out early this year when Blue Mold layed havoc with tobacco beds, the growers in the Sinkhole district had plenty plants.

Harry McCormick of Brooklet Joins US Marines

It was announced in Savannah this week that Harry D. McCormick, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McCormick, of Brooklet, has been accepted for enlistment in the U. S. Marine Corps.

Young McCormick is a graduate of the Brooklet High School where he was active in sports particularly in basketball. He was transferred to Farris Island, S. C. where he will receive his boot training. He will then be assigned for duty with an aviation unit.

will be ample for spraying a 100 square yard tobacco bed an entire season.

Directions for preparing fermanate spray: Six pints of fermanate weigh approximately 2 pounds and this is the correct amount for mixing 100 gallons of spray mixture. For smaller amounts use fermanate at the following rates:

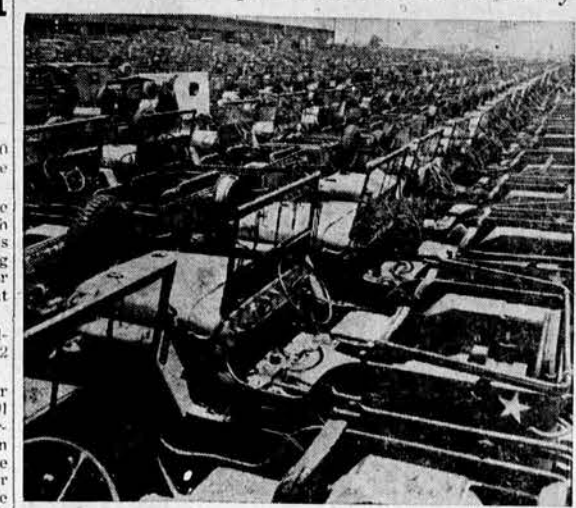

Fermanate—1 1/2 pints to 25 gallons of water, or Fermanate—1/2 pint to 8 or 9 gallons of water.

Place the powder in a fruit jar or similar container with a small amount of water and shake thoroughly. When all the powder is in suspension pour the contents of the jar into correct volume of water and spray this suspension on the tobacco plants. Mix only enough at one time for single application and stir constantly to prevent settling. Apply about 3 gallons per 100 yards of plant bed when the seedlings are small, increasing to 5 gallons when the plants are half large enough for transplanting.

When preferred, vatol OTC may be used as a wetting agent at the rate of one pound of vatol to two pounds of fermanate, but this is not considered necessary.

When and how often to spray: Begin spraying each year BEFORE mold appears in the plant bed and continue regularly twice a week (Monday and Thursday) until the plants are ready to set, or the disease has caused a limited attack and the plants have started to recover. In mild winters, when beds are too far advanced, begin the first week in February or when the seedlings reach the 4-leaf stage. On most farms it will not be necessary to begin spraying until mold has been reported in the state.

Maine's Record Potato Industry Got Early Start

Maine's potato industry had its commercial beginning early in the 19th century, with some coastal farmers recorded as raising potatoes for foreign trade around 1820. To Aroostook county early settlers came at about the time of the second war with England, attracted mainly by vast opportunities in lumbering. As time went on, however, it was found that available lumber resources were being exhausted and the settlers realized that potatoes had considerable commercial value.

Around 1870 the first starch factory was established in Aroostook, thereby placing commercial potato raising upon even more secure financial ground. From this point on potatoes became the chief crop of the county. In 1909 Maine began to lead the nation in potato production with a total of 23,550,000 bushels grown that year.

With developments in the use of farm machinery and expansion of railroad facilities, and employment of other modern practices, Maine's potato industry has continued to expand by leaps and bounds. In addition, increased use of fertilizers has resulted in higher yields per acre and improvement of seed and better seed selection has also been noted.

Unrestricted Use of Bromides Are Dangerous

Bromides as sedatives are valuable in the treatment of disease, but prolonged or unsupervised use may lead to serious consequences. Dr. F. Garm Norbury of Jacksonville, Ill., told the Illinois State medical society. While sedation with bromides is often justified to quiet an excited nervous system and controlled use causes no more hazard than any other form of therapy, uncontrolled use could result in bromide intoxication, he said.

"Bromide intoxication," Dr. Norbury explained, "may result from individual idiosyncrasy, overdosage, prolonged usage, habit formation, cumulative effect and self-medication. An increased desire to sleep, dulling of the higher mental functions, slurred speech, unsteady gait and ultimately clouded consciousness are symptoms of bromide intoxication."

Many states, he said, have restrictive acts on the sale of sedatives, but bromides can be purchased over the counter in Illinois. Although federal labeling requirements demand that hazards be mentioned, Dr. Norbury said a recent examination of labels on proprietary nerve sedatives "failed to impress" him as emphasizing that factor.

Find Walking Helps Prevent Common Colds

More colds begin on Monday than on any other day of the week. People whose work requires them to do a great deal of walking have the smallest number of colds and their colds are less severe.

Increases in the number and severity of colds follow sudden drops in temperature. These newly discovered facts concerning the common cold are revealed by a 1945 analysis of workers' colds in several large industrial plants, reported by the 1946 Encyclopaedia Britannica Book of the Year.

The industrial study disclosed that fewer colds are found in air-conditioned plants while the number is highest in drafty places. The analysis showed that December was the worst month for colds with October in second place. The smallest number of colds occurred in July.

Other facts brought out in the industrial plant survey indicate that with increasing age the tendency is toward fewer colds, but more severe ones. Another group of experiments, using 1,600 girls of college age as subjects, disclosed that periods of falling temperature along with heavy rains show a sharp increase in the number of new colds per day.

Turn Worn Collar to Extend Service of Shirt

Turning a worn shirt collar may be all a man's shirt needs for additional months of active service.

The first way is to rip off the collar, turn it over and restitch it. If the shirt is white, when the turned side shows wear, a new collar may be purchased at notion counters in stores. Matching colored shirts, however, in buying new collars, try to match the quality of broadcloth in the shirt as nearly as possible.

The second way is to rip open the seam that joins the neckband to the shoulder, and turn the neckband with the collar. Many homemakers find this gives a better looking job, because the new seam is covered by the necktie. However, turning the neckband requires moving the top button and working a new buttonhole.

Much wear on collars and cuffs may be saved, if shirts go into the wash before they are so badly soiled that they need rubbing. Soaping collars and cuffs and then soaking them for an hour or so before washing loosens some of the soil that otherwise has to be scrubbed off. Rubbing between the hands is suggested in washing in preference to scrubbing on a washboard. It is easier on the fabric.

Rile Hindweed

A practical method has been developed for completely killing bindweed, or perennial morning glory, by grazing with sheep. Sheep have long been known to like bindweed, but it is impossible to pasture the weeds close enough to kill them and still give the sheep enough to eat. The answer seems to lie in growing a crop less appealing to sheep than bindweed on infested lands. Such a crop supplies nourishment for the sheep at times when there is not enough bindweed to furnish proper feed. Sudan grass and rye are such crops. The botanist maintains that "since sheep prefer the bindweed to these crops, they will eat the weeds first. The weeds eventually die out because the sheep keep them grazed so close to the ground. The rye and Sudan grass not only supply the necessary feed, but aid in halting the growth of the bindweeds by competing with them for light, moisture and minerals if for any reason they are not closely grazed."

Italian History

From the early Middle Ages, Italy's many separate, self-ruled states were disorganized and dominated in turn by France, Spain and Austria. Gradually during the 19th century, the need for unity was impressed on the people, and in 1859 the absorption of other Italian states by the kingdom of Sardinia began. The victorious march of Garibaldi and his patriots through Sicily and southern Italy in 1860 hastened the proclamation of the modern kingdom of Italy on March 17, 1861. Venetia was added in 1866, Rome in 1870. Joining the Allies in 1915, Italy gained Trentino and Trieste in the northeast at Austria's expense by treaties after World War I. Italy's colonial expansion extended to Eritrea, Italian Somaliland, Libya, the Dodecanese Islands, reached a peak with Fascist conquests of Ethiopia and Albania in recent years. Italian possessions cover 1,300,000 square miles—11 times the homeland area.

Avoid Overworking Washer

Avoid overworking your electric washer by soaking the clothes about 20 minutes before putting them in the tub and by using plenty of hot water and good soap. Don't put too many clothes in the tub at once and don't wash them longer than necessary. If an electric washer sits in a cool place, the grease around the shafts and gears gets hard and stiff. Move the machine into a warm place or fill the tub with hot water a few minutes before starting the washer to avoid too much of a starting load on the motor.

Lespedeza got a one-way ticket!

If you're a city fellow, you may not have heard of Central of Georgia style pastures. If you are a farmer, you undoubtedly know all about this type of pasture.

More than twenty years ago, agricultural development men of the Central of Georgia started test pastures in fifty-six counties of Georgia and Alabama... introducing lespedeza and including also carpet grass and fescue grass.

The experiment was highly successful. It proved that the Southeast could enjoy permanent pastures equal to those found anywhere else in the country.

"A Good Friend All Along The Line"

Farmers Report Better Yields

Farmers who have installed irrigation systems are finding that irrigation increases yields and returns from their crops and enables them to keep crops growing all through periods.

His land is level enough to irrigate satisfactorily by the furrow method. Mr. Suggs reports that irrigation has enabled him to double his yields of tomatoes, snap beans and escarole. With irrigation he now produces 200 bushels of tomatoes per acre, 300 bushels of snap beans and 800 bushels of escarole.

John Lanier, Candler County, used furrow irrigation on his tobacco last year and increased his income $286 per acre. Water from a nearby pond into a supply ditch is diverted to the tobacco row.

Mr. Lanier has improved his irrigation system this year to permit easier handling of the water in the field. He believes that providing supplemental water will pay tobacco growers dividends practically every year.

Dewey Adamson, Tattnall county, won a close race with a drought by spell last month by getting his revolving sprinkler system installed in time to save a one-half-acre okra crop. He had a perfect stand of okra but in a dry period the plants had used up the soil and were wilting.

Mr. Adamson was installing an automatic pressure water system and decided to see if he couldn't save his okra. He got some extra help, obtained some pipe and revolving sprinklers and got his irrigation system in operation. The irrigation revived the plants and saved the crop.

Watson Crisp, McDuffie County utilizes water from a five to six acre pond in irrigating 30 acres of pasture for his beef cattle. Water from each end of the pond dam is turned into supply ditches which carry it to contour ditches in the pasture. The pasture is irrigated by letting the water overflow these ditches along their entire length.

Mr. Ury has a pasture mixture of Dalis and carpet grass, lespedeza and white Dutch clover on his irrigated pasture. This 30 acres of pasture supports 60 beef cattle, 100 hogs and three horses.

"Irrigation of pastures is one of the newer phases of irrigation as far as this state is concerned. A few dairy pasture irrigation projects have been started in the State this year to determine if increased grazing will pay for the cost of irrigation."

CLUB IMPROVEMENTS

Ballard community home demonstration club in Glynn county is improving its community club. A sink has been installed and members are planning to add a stage and vestibule to the club building.

To promote safety among farm people, President Truman has proclaimed the week of July 21-27 as National Farm Safety Week.

The State Agricultural Extension Service announces, this week is designed to focus attention on the tremendous toll taken by farm accidents and to stress accident prevention.

DDT ON FRUIT PESTS

General use of DDT as a control against fruit pests is not being recommended until more information has been determined about its use, about its effects on beneficial insects and about residue left on the fruits, according to the State Extension Service.
