A Verse For This Week

Flatterers are the worst kind of traitors, for they strengthen thy imperfections, encourage thee in all evils, correct thee in nothing, but shadow and paint thy follies and vices as thou shalt never, by their will, discover good from evil, or vice from virtue.—Sir Walter Raleigh.

An Honest Day's Work

When a citizen of Statesboro think it unreasonable to expect to receive at the completion is never what the homebuilder anticipated, nor is it what he figured his financial position would permit.

In nearly every case where a home has been completed the cost has run considerably more than the several original estimates.

In a recent issue of the Southern Lumber Journal there is a piece written by Richard Ben Wand and titled: "Wanted: An Honest Day's Work." We offer it here for what consolation prospective homebuilders may secure from it.

"Once upon a time a brick layer would brag about how many bricks he could lay in an hour, and there was competition between men on the same job. The modern version of this story is somewhat different, as we all know. The same brick layer has developed to a fine art his ability to lay the fewest bricks in any given period.

"What this switch has done to the ratio between work accomplished and pay rendered is scandalous. No longer does there exist the great sense of satisfaction and pride once enjoyed by a fine craftsman when he had turned out a good job in record time. His work has gotten progressively less valuable as his pay has increased.

"How most of the tons of these sands of men employed in the construction of homes and other buildings can hold on their heads and look their fellow men in the eye is a puzzle to me. Maybe I am the one who is wrong in his thinking, but to my mind, the man who will deliberately stretch the time required to do a job is in the same class with the man who will steal money from his employer.

"It is not for me to decide what a man is worth, but I do not

We Commend You All

Last week we commended the members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce for assuming the lead in completing the swimming pool for the young people of Statesboro. We commended Lannie Simmons and the members of his committee for going along with the Jaycees in their plans.

This week we commend the members of the city council in their action to cooperate with the young business men's organization and making available funds with which to have plans and specifications drawn up and the responsibility of operating and maintaining the pool when completed.

Let it not be forgotten that

VETERANS CORNER

National Service Life Insurance Act. You may have responsibilities and dependents later on. N. S. L. I. is the best buy—now. This may be the last chance many veterans have to reinstate.

Q. I don't have the money to convert to permanent insurance.

A. If you took out NSLI before January 1, 1947, you don't have to convert until eight years from the date you took it out. VA recommends that veterans continue low-cost term insurance and not convert until they are reasonably sure of their future economic status.

Veterans wishing further information about veterans' benefits may have their questions answered by visiting the VA Contact Office at 21 1/2 East Main Street in Statesboro.

The Almanac Says the Weather This Week On...
TODAY, Thursday, February 20, will be rainy and cold. New moon.
FRIDAY, February 21, will be rainy and cold.
SATURDAY, February 22, will be cloudy and cold.
SUNDAY, February 23, will be generally clear and pleasant.
MONDAY, February 24, will be generally clear and pleasant.
TUESDAY, February 25, will be clear and cool.
WEDNESDAY, February 26, will be clear and cool.

... But Don't Blame Us If the Almanac Is Wrong!

THANK HEAVEN FOR THE RUMOR
It was a good story and members of the Statesboro Rotary Club appreciated it, especially, since it was told by a lady. Mrs. Bertha Rushing, president of the League of United States Post Masters, was guest speaker at the Rotary Club Monday a week ago. She opened her talk with this story.

Sally was well in the middle of that period of a woman's life when she is cattily referred to as an "old maid," when she ferrets to herself as a "bachelor lady" and the men refer to her as "a little peculiar." A friend of Sally's approached her one day and said, "Sally there is a rumor floating around town that you are about to get married. Come on tell us, is the rumor true?" "Nothing to it," replied Sally, pleased as punch. "Nothing to it at all. But thank Heaven for the Rumor."

IT CAN'T GO ON FOREVER
Right now there are as many cracks being made by would-be comedians on the radio about Georgia's multiple governors as there are requests for "Richard to Open the Door." But about the time Richard gets the door open the country will have settled down to just one governor—we hope.

SERVICE ABOVE SELF
The Rotary Club of Statesboro and members of Rotary all over the world are mourning the death of Paul Harris, founder of this great international organization based on friendship and service. Founder Paul Harris died last month.

The idea of Rotary was born in 1905 when Mr. Harris conceived the unique idea of a club in which each man would be engaged in a different business.

On the 77th birthday of Mr. Harris, another distinguished Rotarian wrote: "To be able to create a force such as Rotary and to continue active in its development in the span of one's life is an experience that comes to but a few."

To this great Rotary leader the organization simply meant friendship on an international scale. On the 40th birthday of Rotary he said: "Rotary's formula for making friends for one's country is simple indeed. It may all be summed up in a few words: 'speak softly, avoid criticism, and individual comparisons. Interest yourself in the institutions of which home folks are proud and be not too sparing of commendations.' Steadfast adherence to this program will make many

Q. How can I reinstate my policy?
A. Visit the nearest VA office or any contact representative who will assist you. If you are unable to visit a VA office in person, write to the Insurance Service, Veterans Administration, Branch 5, Atlanta 3, Ga., for a reinstatement form.

Q. Will my beneficiary be paid off in a lump sum?
A. You can choose a lump sum payment to your beneficiary. Or you can have it paid in monthly installments. You must make the choice.

Q. I'm not married. Why do I need insurance?
A. There is no penalty pay-

Good Books Are True Friends

THE JOURNALS AND LETTERS OF THE LITTLE LOCKSMITH—by Katherine Butler Hathaway.
Readers of Mrs. Hathaway's previous books will receive this one with open arms. It amplifies the portion of her life described in "The Little Locksmith" and tells of her adventures before and after.

Mystery of the Week
"Purgatory Street" by Roman McDougald, is our choice for this week. This is one of those stories that gives a feeling of terror hovering over one, sustaining all through the book. Mona Wynne's husband Chan has been so badly burned in a plane crash in England, that his face has to be completely remodeled by plastic surgery.

ON THE CHILDREN'S SHELF
"Animal Inn" by Virginia Moe. This is the story of "Tralidale Museum, where animals are friends and can wander where they will, unneared. Each chapter tells of a different animal, how he came to be at the museum, something about his personality, and gives valuable advice on how to care for them—feeding habits, housing, etc. A Junior Literary Guild book, illustrated by Milo

With "by Katherine Gibson. It is a book on art-appreciation. It is lavishly and beautifully illustrated with color paintings, sculpture, vases, fabrics, and drawings. Ready For Subways

Part of the rehabilitation course for disabled veterans at the Veterans Administration's New York City Regional Office includes full scale models of subways, turnstiles, and traffic lights. James Cohen, double amputee from Brooklyn, here negotiates the facsimile subway exit and shortly afterward was released to renew his acquaintance with the real thing.
