A Verse For This Week

Our real blessings often appear to us in the shape of pains, losses, and disappointments; but let us have patience, and we shall soon see them in their proper figures.—Addison.

"Dear Governor..."

Governor M. E. Thompson
The State Capitol
Atlanta, Georgia.

Dear Governor:
The "expense" of the Department of Public Safety of this state by an author writing in a national magazine has caused many of us here in Bulloch county some concern.

For many weeks we of this newspaper have been engaged in promoting a safety campaign designed to save lives on our streets and highways.

We thought perhaps this campaign might help some. But we know now we can't do much when a unit of our state government, so vitally concerned with saving of lives and preventing accidents, is so completely befuddled it issues drivers' licenses to anyone who has the money, and the inclination to try and get one.

There is no excuse for what has happened. As citizens, we feel it your duty to make a complete investigation into the set-up of our drivers' license system and to make whatever changes are necessary to bring the department up to a level with those which have a satisfactory system.

As citizens, we call upon you to do just that, with the utmost speed consistent with efficiency and thoroughness. We can't expect the people of our state to have faith in any safety campaigns when they know how muddled things are in the headquarters of their state's safety unit.

Yours for better government.

THE BULLOCH HERALD.

Congratulations, Pilots

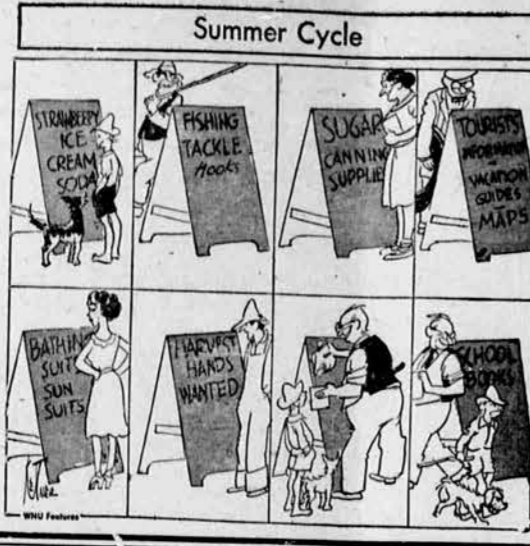

Congratulations to the Statesboro "Pilots." Let us hope that next year some semblance of organization will come forth out of the present Ogeechee League chaos. There is a crying need for efficient, fair, and unbiased officials to establish and enforce a policy without fear or favor that will exist for the duration of the season. The present set-up has proved itself unsatisfactory in too many cases. Perhaps the folly of some of this season's decisions will weigh heavily upon those who guide the destiny of this organization and force them into the formation of a strong league organization that can rule to all members alike.

The "Pilots" have proved a winning team can sustain the interest of the citizens of Statesboro. They have proved baseball can be a paying investment for those who are willing to invest their money. The team has done well in its first year. During next year's season many of the mistakes made this year will not be repeated. For experience will have taught the best policy.

Clean House Now!

State revenue officers this week arrested five persons whose business includes dealing in alcoholic beverages. They were charged with selling these beverages during hours which are forbidden by law.

These men know the law. Yet they continued their business in an illegal manner with complete disregard for the law. With the current fight between the "wet" interests of the county and the "dry" interests at such a peak it is time that the law-abiding dealers in alcoholic beverages took stock of the situation and rid of those whose actions reflect discredit upon the business. Such violations of the law lead to clean house now!

The Almanac Says the Weather This Week On...

TODAY, THURSDAY, August 21, will be fair.
FRIDAY, August 22, will be rainy and warm.
SATURDAY, August 23, will be unsettled.
SUNDAY, August 24, will be hot with some rain.
MONDAY, August 25, will be fair and cooler.
TUESDAY, August 26, will be hot.
WEDNESDAY, August 27, will be fair.

... But Don't Blame Us If the Almanac Is Wrong!

FROM ALL REPORTS, members of the Georgia Press Association who made the recent convention tour to Cuba must have had a fine time. Two editors and their wives, accompanied by the Herald office this week as they were enroute home from the trip. They were Ed Hughes and Leo Alkeman of the Cobb County Times up at Marietta.

They said they didn't want to come right out and say prices were high in Cuba but that when their ship arrived in Havana the editors and their guests were throwing dimes over the side and little Cuban natives were diving under the ship, picking them up. After two days in Cuba, as the ship sailed out of the harbor on the way home, our visitors said the editors were down in the water with the natives getting the dimes for themselves.

GEORGIA'S antiquated system of issuing drivers' licenses was uniformly highlighted this week by an author writing in the Saturday Evening Post. The author obtained 15 drivers' licenses in as many different states without leaving his home state of Pennsylvania, without taking a driver's test, without giving any proof he was mentally or physically capable of driving.

One of these states was Georgia. He listed a fictitious address (Washington Street, Savannah, Ga.) and told the Department of Public Safety that he was moving there soon. The Department wrote that he would have to furnish a copy of his Pennsylvania license before a Georgia license could be issued. He ignored the letter and sent the required amount of money for the license. Within three days his license was granted and mailed to him.

What is the moral? Eight hundred and twenty-seven people were killed on our highways in Georgia last year. Four hundred and ten have been killed so far this year. Why? The big reason is allowing incompetent persons to be behind the wheel of an automobile.

Georgia's system of issuing drivers' licenses isn't doing much to help the situation. ONE OF THE BRIGHTEST IDEAS we have seen for advertising the new highway from the upper east to Florida—through Statesboro—is that used by the F. W. Darby Lumber Company.

Buford Knight, who directs the operation of the Statesboro unit of the company, is the fellow responsible for the idea. He had a map of the route drawn, showing it as it proceeds from Maryland down through Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and into Florida. He has Statesboro shown in letters larger than the other cities which says: "Travel over the D. C. to Jacksonville, Fla. 740 miles. Now, all paved. Shortest and safest route to Florida." This map was then printed on all his company's stationery, both envelopes and letterheads, which are sent out to all parts of the

Fun at Home Good Books Are True Friends

By Margaret Charters Lyon
Boys and Girls: Read this to yourselves! Try it for yourselves!

Jack and his friend had been talking all summer about putting on a circus. "Just three more weeks till school starts; it's now or never!" they exclaimed one morning. In a great rush they went about the neighborhood and collected a dozen children of all sizes and shapes. And they set to work to have a circus. I will leave to your imagination all of the arguing and planning, the fixing of costumes and arranging of seats that went on before opening day.

At four o'clock one afternoon parents and neighbors came to the Children's Circus, paying a nickel for seats. Two blankets stretched on a clothesline, hid the circus ring from view. When the crowd was gathered, Ringmaster Jack stepped in front of the curtain, elegantly dressed in a tall cardboard hat and long coat. "Ladies and gentlemen! You will now see the sideshow!"

One by one, out walked a well-stuffed Fat Lady, a Strong Man carrying a black weight marked 1,000 pounds, a Sword Swallower with a wicked-looking knife that he stuck in his chest as well as his throat, and a fish-tailed Mermaid pulled on a wagon by a Mule-Boy. Each was introduced by the ringmaster and did a stunt.

The curtains now were pulled back to show a circus ring marked off by a rope. A Trained Dog with a yellow bow around his neck caught sticks his master threw him. As a painted clown ran in a cat jumped from his bag, a girl shirt and ran up a tree. Out of the shirt jumped a pint-sized dog; he barked at the audience till everyone laughed. Another clown walked along switching a two-man mule. The mule sat on his rear end, then rose and butted the clown flat to the ground. The curtains closed.

They opened next on a Wild Lion Act. Four girls wearing paper lion heads, tails, and stockings about four feet, were put through their paces by the Ringmaster.

They circled around, stood on each others' backs, played with a big ball, and bowed as gracefully as real lions. The audience turned in their seats to look under the tree at the acrobats. The actors, all in swimming suits, turned cartwheels and somersaults on the ground, swung gracefully, and did stunts on the trapeze. All said the Children's Circus was more fun than a real one. In these last seventeen days before school begins, why don't you plan a circus, a costume party, or a pet show as a fitting end to a happy summer? If you do put on a special show and let us hear about it at the Bulloch Herald, I promise that we will write it up in the newspaper for you!

Judith is engaged to teach and boards at Richard's home. She becomes friendly with Abigail and agrees with her, when she insists that Thorne be sent away. Things reach a climax when Abigail finds a doll, dressed in scraps from her dresses, which Thorne had made and in which Abigail insists that Thorne intends to stick pins in order to torture her. (In short, a witch's doll.) Richard takes Thorne's part and Abigail has a heart attack. By this time, Judith is in love with Richard and thinking that she could win him if Abigail were to die, frightens Abigail to death by putting the doll on her pillow with a ribbon tied around its neck.

As soon as her purpose is accomplished she hides the doll so that everyone will think that the death was a natural one. Richard never had any intention of marrying again, but Judith, clever and unscrupulous, manages to get a proposal out of him and they have a big wedding. Richard doesn't love her, being in love with Thorne, and not realizing it, and their first quarrel comes at the wedding when he refuses to dance with Judith but dances with Thorne. That night occurs the first of the mysterious acts. The next morning all the guests' clothes are found high up in a tree where a grown-up could not climb. Judith tries to blame it on Thorne, but Richard won't believe it and later claims to have gotten a confession from two young cousins. Things go on very unhappily for Judith until, half insane, she has spells in which she insists that someone is throwing bricks at her through the window. No one ever sees these 'bricks,' but Judith's horror is so apparent that she has half the town's people believing in her.

The story ends with Richard free at last, and on his way to California to find Thorne. "Tater" is proud of his Cracker heritage. "I called them people 'Yankees' and they called me 'Cracker' and we got along fine." He made himself "to home" with all with whom he came in contact. "You come to my house and you won't have to go to a hotel to eat—and you won't have to go to no hotel to sleep."

"Tater" is 74 years old. He talks loudly, but that's because he's a bit deaf. He's rough, but that's because he works in the soil. He's independent, but that's because he owes no man. And we like him. He was astounded to learn that millions of people live in apartment houses high above the street and never have an area of dirt

'Tater' Rucker Visits 'Yankee' Grand Baby

A "Cracker" granddaddy goes a-visitin' and finds his "Damm-yankee" granddaughter getting along fine. And now everybody in Bulloch County is hearing about the trip, including the writer.

While in Minnesota he saw 500 bushels of oats threshed. He felt sorry for the folk who had never seen a mule, but was greatly attracted to "the biggest horse I ever saw." He explained that it was a mare weighing more 1,900 pounds and was higher than he could stretch his arms. He saw a pig pen in which were "$5,000 worth of hogs ready to go to market."

Aside from seeing his "Damm-yankee" granddaughter, the high light of his trip was the two and one-half hour plane trip to Atlanta. His son had succeeded in securing a choice seat in the plane so that "Tater" might see all below and above him. The big disappointment of "Tater" was the absence of "pretzels" aboard the plane. When it was suggested that he might become airsick, he was hurt. "I might have got sick if there was them pretty nurses to help me, but when I learned that there was only men to help me I just swore that I wasn't gonna get sick and let no man help me. And he kept his vow. He was not sick. He was near Atlanta before he realized that he had hard-ly left Chicago and was a little sore about it. He had been told that the plane was a fast one, but when the plane was at a high altitude he was not aware of the speed and when he asked the co-pilot about the slowness of the plane the co-pilot, with a look of amazement, told him, "Sir, we're making over 300 miles per hour now!"

"Well, when we gonna be out of sight of Chicago?" "Tater" asked. It was "Tater's" turn to be amazed when he was told, "Why, you're almost to Atlanta right now." "Tater" explained that they talked for a long time and she talked intelligently. "I had no objection to her sitting by me," he said.

On his way to Chicago he spent the first night with his son, Horton Rucker, in Atlanta. "I spent the night with my friend, Horton," is the way he put it. He related how Commander Rucker met him in Chicago and showed him the sights of that great city. He was so impressed with the 60 cents meal that he had while on the naval base where his son is stationed. "It was a square meal," he said.

As he was leaving the navy yard with his son he saw a man digging in the ground and became interested. He found the man digging onions. "I was amazed to see him using the same kind of crates I use to dig potatoes," he said. "The man told me he would make 600 bushels of onions per acre on an eight-acre tract of land there by the naval station. He was astounded to learn that millions of people live in apartment houses high above the street and never have an area of dirt

PONTIAC

A fine car made finer

So many things in its favor!

Ask a Pontiac owner why he recommends a Pontiac—and he will likely tell you there are so many things in its favor that he finds it difficult to enumerate them all. He likes its "Silver Streak" styling—so distinctive that you can recognize a Pontiac as far as you can see it. He likes its eager, smooth, quiet performance. He likes its comfort and handling ease. He likes the many fine-car features which make it such a pride to own and such a pleasure to drive. He likes its faithfulness—its ability to stay on the job for year after year with undiminished performance. And, of course, he will mention that he gets all this at a price which is easy reach of any new car buyer. Yes, there are so many things in its favor that year next car should be a Pontiac. You can never do better than a Pontiac!

THE SOONER YOU PLACE YOUR ORDER for a new Pontiac, the earlier you will get it. In the meantime, take care of your present car—you will get more for it when your new car is delivered.

A WORD TO THE WISE FOR CAR OWNERS

Don't Let Your Car Choke to Death!

Give Your Car New Life... Longer Life at Low Cost... by Having the Entire Cooling System Cleaned Twice a Year or Every 5,000 Miles... THE BRADY WAY.

The newest, the fastest, most efficient and economical method known for cleaning the entire cooling system is by means of the BRADY COOLING SYSTEM CLEANER, a simple mechanism which constantly circulates water, to which a special compound is added, throughout the cooling system. This new method flushes out harmful deposits from every nook and cranny of the cooling system... cleans most systems in less than an hour... does not involve back-flushing which may loosen water pump seals and cause leaks.

SO PLAY SAFE: Give your car new life and longer life... bring it in today and let us clean the entire cooling system the fast, thorough, safe way... THE BRADY WAY.

SPECIAL: To assure a complete cleaning job for every car or cooling system, we offer two types of service. (1) For stubborn, extra-dirty cooling systems, a "double-strength" cleaning (2 lbs. chemical) for $6.50. (2) For regular 5,000-mile cleanings (1 lb. chemical), only $4.50.

MISS BOWEN WEDS FRANK CHRISTIAN IN LOVELY CHURCH CEREMONY

Ephesus Church, one of the oldest in the county was the setting Saturday, August 16, of the marriage of Miss Carolyn Bowen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Reid Bowen, of Valdosta, accompanied by Jack Averitt, sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." Miss Betty Rentz, of Columbus, sang "O, Promise Me." The traditional wedding marches were used.

Robert Bowen, small ring bearer, wore a white satin suit, from which blotted full skirts with bustles. They carried Colonial bouquets combining pastel shades of asters, roses and stephanotis tied with green satin ribbon.

Robert Bowen, small ring bearer, wore a white satin suit, escorted by his father, was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Buck Mann, of Quitman. Her exquisite gown was of shell pink satin, designed with a hand of puffed shirring below the marquette yoke. An insertion of puffed shirring was repeated below the waist, forming a bustle in the back. The leg-of-mutton sleeves ended in points over the hands and the bouffant skirt continued to form a graceful train. Her pink fingertip veil fell from a bandeau of shirred illusion with sprays of pink valley. Her only ornament was a single strand of pearls, a gift from the groom. Her bouquet was of Snow White roses centered with white orchids and showered with pale pink ribbons and tuberoses.

The bride's mother wore a becoming gown of blue crepe and a shoulder bouquet of orchids. The groom's mother was smartly attired in a black and white crepe with which she wore orchids.

The bride's parents entertained with a formal reception at their home honoring the wedding party. The entire home was lavishly decorated with pink roses.

The bride's table was overlaid by an elaborate banquet cloth of cutwork and edged with deep lace, loaned by Mrs. Herschel Franklin for the occasion. The cloth was sent from China as a gift from her son, the late Britt Franklin, while he was employed in the Orient. The table was centered by the three-tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and groom and embossed with pale pink rosebuds and placed on a reflector with a silver base encircled with fern and coral vine. Pink satin ribbons cascaded from a large satin bow on the crystal chandelier extending to the corners of the table where they were caught by pink pink ribbons and clusters of pink nasturtiums.

Billy and Bobby Holland, accompanied by Jack Averitt, sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." Miss Betty Rentz, of Columbus, sang "O, Promise Me." The traditional wedding marches were used.

MRS. ERNEST BRANNEN

LOVELY PARTIES END WITH PINK WEDDING

Parties featuring Miss Carolyn Bowen, popular bride-elect whose brilliant wedding was an event of Saturday, continued on through today.

A pretty compliment to Miss Carolyn Bowen was a bridge party on Tuesday afternoon of last week at the lovely country home of Mrs. Otis Holloway, with Miss Helen Bowen as hostess.

A profusion of summer flowers were arranged throughout the home.

Sharing honors with Miss Bowen was her cousin, Mrs. Agnes Newton, of Claxton, a recent bride. They both received silver from their hosts.

Miss Doris Burkhalter, of Claxton, won a box of Yardley's soap for top score. Miss Beverly Edwards, of Claxton, won cream perfume for cut. A dainty linen handkerchief went to Miss Betty Sue Brannen for low.

Guests were served a dessert course before the game and later cocoa-roses were served.

Miss Bowen chose a black wool dress with low neck and cap sleeves, its classic simplicity relieved by a triple strand of pearls.

Other players were Misses Betty Gunter, Betty Tillman, Miriam Bowen, Jean Rowe, Betty Barnes and Julian Hodges.

On Wednesday morning Miss Virginia Durden was hostess at a party, a pretty compliment to Miss Bowen, at her home on Crescent Drive. Garden flowers were placed attractively throughout the home. The guests were served chicken salad, potato chips, ritz crackers, olives, Toll House cookies and iced tea. The favors were tiny bags of rice tied with pink ribbon.

Miss Durden's gift to the honoree was a quilt "Mammy" whose apron served as a memo pad and who had in her possession a pencil, a cake tester, and three handy pot-holders. In contrast Miss Anne Attaway and Mrs. Joe Trappel received prizes. The guest of honor was charming in a pale pink gabardine suit.

Those present were Misses Bowen, Betty Gunter, Betty Tillman, Nona Hodges, Sue Nell Smith, Margaret Sherman, June and Anne Attaway, Imogene

BRIDGE PARTY

Miss Bowen was the central figure Wednesday afternoon at a bridge party given at the Rushing Hotel, with Misses Nona Hodges, Betty Gunter and Laura Margaret Brady as hostesses.

The room where the guests assembled for bridge was decorated with a mixture of late summer flowers.

Upon their arrival the guests were served ice cream topped with strawberries, and crackers. After the games refreshing drinks were served.

The honoree was presented Groover, with top score, was given a lapel pin. Ear-bobs, for low, went to Miss Margaret Sherman, and Miss Betty Keene, of Columbia, won a lapel pin for cut.

Guests were invited for four tables.

MRS. ERNEST RUSHING HONORS BRIDE-ELECT

On Thursday Mrs. Ernest Rushing was hostess at a delightful informal morning party honoring Miss Bowen.

Lovely summer flowers were used in decorating the home.

The hostess served lime sherbert in gingerale with ladyfingers. Her gift to Miss Bowen was a gold-banded crystal salad plate.

In contrast appropriate to the bride theme, Mrs. Julian Hodges won note paper and Miss Julie Turner won a bottle of cologne.

Other guests were Misses Betty Gunter, Betty Keene, of Columbia, Virginia Durden, Nona Hodges, Mrs. Albert Braswell, Mrs. Robert Morris, Mrs. Bernard Morris, Mrs. Joe Trappel and Mrs. Bernard Scott.

AFTERNOON BRIDGE

On Thursday afternoon Miss Betty Tillman, Karlyn Watson and Betty Sue Brannen entertained at a bridge party at Mrs. Brannen's home at Register, honoring Miss Bowen.

Varicolored dahlias combined beautifully with coral vine in the decorations.

The bride was the recipient of a goblet in her crystal pattern. The guests were served cherry

COCA-COLA PARTY

Guests pleasantly remembered with dainty gifts were Mrs. Prince Preston, Mrs. S. Earl Davidson, of Worcester, Mass., who was visiting her daughter, Mrs. Bud Tillman, and Mrs. Ed Purvis, of Rosky Mt., N. C.

In a contest Mrs. Grant Tillman, Sr., won candy. The other guests included Mrs. E. L. Poindexter, Mrs. E. N. Brown, Mrs. T. W. Rowse, Mrs. Dew Groover, Mrs. Z. Whitehurst, Mrs. Holo Brunson, Mrs. Lannie Simmons, Mrs. Oscar Simmons, Mrs. Otis Waters, Mrs. Fred Lanier, Mrs. B. H. Ramsey, Mrs. Bob West, Mrs. S. H. Sherman, Mrs. H. H. Cowart, Mrs. Grady Attaway, Mrs. Frank Parker, Sr., and Mrs. Jack Carlton.

MORNING PARTY FOR VISITOR

Mrs. A. M. Everett, of Columbia, S. C., guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Frank Williams, was the inspiration of a morning tea recently. Those invited were neighbors and close friends of the hosts.

Gladioli and a mixture of garden flowers artistically arranged were the decorations used.

The hostess served open-faced sandwiches, punch and cookies.
