Plans Are Formulated For "Touchdown Club" by E. D. Alexander, extension agronomist, and B. L. Southwell, animal husbandryman for the Coastal Plain Experiment Station, after visiting some of the oat fields in the county recently. Mr. Southwell stated that he was sure it would be wiser to soda this present stand of oats than to plant the late crop as many plan to do. This late crop planted now is always a chance. He thought the drowned-out condition of the oats would change immediately if soda was applied at the rate of 100 to 200 pounds per acre now.

Mr. Alexander agreed with Mr. Southwell in his recommendation. Local farmers could not plant as many plant as many plant as many plant as mediately if soda was applied at the rate of 100 to 200 pounds per acre now.

Mr. Alexander agreed with Mr. Southwell in his recommendation. Local farmers could not plant as many occal farmers could not plant as many octal sats fall as they wanted due to the weather conditions. Those they did plant seemed to have drowned during the heavy winter rains. The crop is materially needed to carry hogs and cows through until the grass comes out.

COTTON SEED

Georgia's supply of good cotton signs for planting the 1948 crop will not be sufficient to meet demands, E. C. Westbrook, Georgia Extension Service cotton specialist, warns. Farmers who have not obtained planting seed will find it to their advantage to do so right away.
