"Grandpa burns his woods ey year, and just look at the This was the remark made to me recently by a 13year old boy in our county. The is granddad and I were en tei the woods at the time this ver was made, so I very quickly suggested that we make a close inspection to see just how many trees Grandpa really had. It was determined that ther was about a 35 norcent stand of longleaf pine, ranging in age from 30 to 40 years. These wer the trees that the kid was talk ing about. He did not see the countless thousands of one-year old slash seedlings that were just peeping out of the grass, until they were pointed out to him Yes, Grandpa has the trees, but he was planning to destroy them When we left the wood I think than the grass itself, could not possibly survice even the best controlled fire.

the dormant and are less suscep- tible to damage. The damage this summer has been greater than usual because there is a fairly good seed year and the seed which are just be- ginning to fall from the pine cones are being destroyed by the fires. This will prevent the small seedlings from restocking many understocked areas. Also, this year has been most favorable to the development of insects and the summer fires weaken the trees so that they are more sus- ceptible to their attacks. The public is cautioned to be particularly careful during dry periods in order to prevent as many fires as possible.
