Forest Fires Are On Increase in Bulloch County

District Forester W. H. McComb of the Georgia Department of Forestry, headquarters at Statesboro, reports that there have been more summer fires this year than any summer in the past five years. This report includes all the counties in South-east Georgia, or the First Congressional District.

Most forest fires occur during the fall and winter when the fuel on the forest floor is dead and cured out. The increase in occurrence of fire this summer is attributed to the long periods of hot, dry weather we have had. All county rangers have been notified to be on alert in order to keep these fires at a minimum.

Farmers' Responsibility As Stewards of Land Is Great, Says Martin

"As a steward of the land, every farmer has a tremendous responsibility. He has in his hands the destiny of the nation—it is his duty to see that the land is used in a way that will benefit the future generations."

The damage this summer has been greater than usual because there is a fairly good seed year and the seed which are just beginning to fall from the pine cones are being destroyed by the fires. This will prevent the small seedlings from becoming mature.

Blue Devils Play ECI Here Sept. 24

Tuesday night of this week the Blue Devils went into night skill-drills as Coach Hall impressed the importance of learning the plays "backward and forward."

That night 37 members of the squad met Coach Hall at the school gym and crammed formations into their heads, getting ready for the opening game here with E. C. I. (Graymont) on Friday night, September 24. Game time is 8 p. m. Admission is 25 cents and one dollar.

Business-Professional Woman's Club to Meet at Country Club Tonight

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Statesboro will meet at the Forest Heights Country Club, Mrs. Bernice Brown McCullar, director of public relations, Georgia State College for Women will be the speaker at the meeting.

Methodists Begin New Season of Church Night Suppers

A new season of Church Night Suppers begins next week at the Statesboro Methodist Church, according to an announcement by the Rev. Chas. A. Jackson, Jr., pastor.

"These Thursday night fellowship occasions proved popular to the congregation, drawing supper crowds of from 60 to 100 each week all last fall, winter and spring. This is a mid-week prayer service as well as fellowship hour, lasting for one hour only, and usually followed by one of the business meetings of the church organizations. The system of advance reservation of places will again be strictly adhered to. The ladies of the church will alternate as table hostesses, and special tables arranged for young people and for the younger children," the pastor stated.

Forest Heights Golf Match Play Under Way Today

Win, lose or draw, Statesboro's golfers begin elimination play today in the second annual Forest Heights Country Club championship tourney. A record number of 48 golfers have qualified and pairings for the first round are posted.

The first round of match play will begin today and all matches must be played by Wednesday night, September 22. Upon completion of the first round, winners will move into the second round and losers of the first round will be paired off to form another flight.

A. W. Stockdale, chairman of the golf committee, stated that no golfer is out for good until he has lost two matches. He also stated that the match play will be on a "best of three" basis. Last week and the winner sold for $65,000. The champion gained horse will be crowned in Louisville Saturday after our show on Friday and one of our out-of-town visitors will fly from here to be present at that event. You see, it does get in your blood, and it's an expensive hobby.

In the center of the ring on Thursday and Friday nights will be the Los Angeles woman who was recently granted a divorce? Her grounds included the fact that her husband was afraid of horses! Folks who really appreciate these animals will agree with the judge when they see the woman's favor, Oliff Boyd says if you see this horse show you'll never forget it as long as you live—unless you lose your nunt!

A HOLE IN THE GROUND

This "Hole in the Ground" represents the unfinished Swimming Pool. We are leaving it here as a constant reminder of our need to complete this project for the young people of this community.

Make Us a Good Governor

AND SO Herman Talmadge is our Governor. There can be no doubt that a majority of the citizens of Georgia want him as our chief executive. We want to see the schools of Georgia become schools to attract the best teachers the profession offers and graduate our sons and daughters with pride and honor. We want to see the highways of Georgia become the best in the South that tourists will want to use them in their annual migrations. We want to see more and more industry moving into Georgia that the income of our people might become more and more steady and sure. We want to see the agriculture of our state fulfill the dreams of the land's finest planners. We want to see Georgia become great. Herman Talmadge in his pre-campaign speeches to civic clubs all over the state of Georgia told us he too wants to see these things. Herman Talmadge is now our governor. We hope he forgets every campaign promise he made. We hope he remembers every word of his pre-campaign speeches—"soil conservation," "dairy herds," "farming practices," "forest preservation," "the economy of Georgia," "the Statesboro Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring our city in the contest and we hope we win. . . but win, lose, or draw. . . we will have profited by our entry. For after all, that's the main object of the "Champion Home Town Contest, as we see it—to make us all conscious that we can make a better community of our town.

Is Statesboro a Champion Town?

ALL OVER GEORGIA towns are sprucing up, pushing projects, that they might stand up with their chests out when the Georgia Power Company Home Town Contest judges make their inspection to select the Champion Home Town in the State. Only six weeks more to go. Reports must be in by November 15. And in Covington, a new youth center, called the "Teen Can" has been completed and dedicated and work is progressing rapidly on a new swimming pool and athletic field. In Maysville, a contract has been let for a town-wide water system and work on the project has already begun.

The "Cobra Strikes" Here

AND SO we hang our head with our arm before our eyes. The hooded cobra strikes Bulloch County. Burning crosses fouling up the air in a community in which "Nature Smiles and Progress Has the Right of Way."

Election Eve and burning crosses at Portal and Willow Hill. Caskets on the porches of citizens of Bulloch County—homes of negroes—but citizens none-the-less. "Would to God we could have kept our record clean, saying 'It Didn't Happen Here'."

WORLD MODEL

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

The Almanac Says the Weather This Week On . . . TODAY, Thursday, September 16, will be dry and fair. FRIDAY, September 17, will be warmer. SATURDAY, September 18, will be unsettled. SUNDAY, September 19, will be windy. MONDAY, September 20, will be dry. TUESDAY, September 21, will be dry and hot. WEDNESDAY, September 22, will be hot.

A FATHER INSTRUCTS SON ON HOW TO DRIVE CAR

(Editor's Note: Of course, the following is not exactly true, but it is near enough to the truth that it should hurt—and it should hurt enough to shock some of the parents in Statesboro into the realization that there is no justification for allowing their children to handle high-powered machines before they are of age, and before they have had careful, expert instruction in driving.) This was taken from the North Georgia Tribune and we thank the editor for putting it like this: A father led his 12-year-old son up to a brand new, high-powered automobile he had recently purchased and said, "Son, it's time you were learning to drive a car, you are 12 now and are capable of driving a car in style befitting the dignity of Saturday night driving in Canton." The boy hesitated and said, "But I am not old enough and the policy of the town might arrest me." To this the father replied, "O, don't worry about the police, their car is so slow they couldn't catch a snail walking on crutches, so get in the car—I'll show you what all the gadgets are for." "Now, son, this circular thing in front of you is known to some as a steering wheel. It is never to be held by more than one hand and when meeting another car it should always be turned to the left so that the oncoming driver must dodge out of the road and you will have plenty of room to pass. Now this thing in the center of the wheel is a horn. You should crouch low in the seat and press it with your chin at all times, while keeping your eyes straight ahead on the speedometer which should register 80 at any and all places while the car is in high gear. Now that little 'hickey' on the floor near the right foot is what is known as the accelerator. It moves in only two directions—up and down. It is up now, so, naturally, when driving it should be down flat with the floor board. Now that pedal on the left is the clutch. For best results in keeping all babies of the neighborhood awake and clutching at their tired mothers' necks, be sure to have the accelerator wide open before letting out the clutch. You'll find this gives you a feeling of buoyancy, and the screeching tires will keep your mind alert as well as warn all pedestrians that you are in town and that they should take cover. "Now that pedal on the right is called the brake. It should seldom be used as it wears out the brake linings and this means costly repairs. Why they put such a thing on cars is a mystery for it has no value, it's only in the way because sometimes a person will accidentally put his foot on it and retard his flight. "Now that little button down there on the left has something to do with the lights but since it is such a small thing, it stands to reason that it is of little consequence. But if you want to press it, do it in the daytime and not at night for driving calls for constant attention to the moonlight. "Now, son, with those instructions you should be fully capable of driving a car comparable to that of many other drivers of town. Here are the keys, and remember all instructions." The young lad cranked the car, put it in low and in a violent outburst of power took off for the heavy traffic areas. Down Main street he went, whipped around the park four times, turned the corner at Marietta and Main on two wheels. After whiz-

OH, BUT IT SEEMS GOOD to be back with you in this column. But I must say I have enjoyed reading Doty Hargrove's bits of gossip and human interest stories as she substituted for me for a few weeks. I FIND DOI Foy back from her European tour and I am delighted that she did more than look at the scenery and delve into places of historic interest. DOI saw life as it is lived in those countries where, though bombs are not falling, they still feel the grim presence of hunger; they are tensed for new terrors, even as they toil to build anew. All of this DOI will present in a series of articles on her travels.

JANE ENJOYED A PEEK on Saturday at the troussau love-ly June Attaway has assembled for her wedding Friday. Clouds of white chiffon whipped up with natural color lace into a negligee to be worn with bridal satin gown with the same natural color lace with maybe a blush pink tinge. . . . Lingerie in pale blues, pastel pinks, and delicate lace all frothy and frilly like Victorian creations. . . . A shimmering garment of baby blue, a gift of June's sorority Big Sister, for "something blue." For the "something old" was a petticoat worn by one of her aunts. Fashioned from white batiste, the ruffle was made of row after row of lace, hand-whipped, and with an underarm ruffle which was hand hemstitched. These ruffles were headed by white beading with narrow lace and an exquisite design in the famous handmade Brussels applique in one corner. DOI brought a Parisian doll, and silver teaspoons from each country she visited. For Teresa and Betty there were handmade leather evening gloves, and linen table covers with matching napkins. For herself she purchased a gorgeous Brussels lace evening wrap, a Swiss clock and opera glasses. In Italy she purchased a leather bound book entitled "The Wonders of Italy." Every one buys this book, DOI says. She regretted missing Pid (Elizabeth) Deal, who is teaching in Paris. Pid has nice living quarters which were located for her by Ann Morgan, sister of the late Pierpont Morgan. On DOI's home crossing she encountered among the notables on shipboard David Niven, English actor of Hollywood; A. J. Cronin, author of "Keys of the Kingdom" and "Green Years"; and Allen Jones, the singer. . . . IN MY MAIL, last week there came a card from Gwen West ("Miss Georgia) and Grace Walker, who accompanied our beauty on the trip to Atlantic City for the finals in the selection of "Miss America." They report a "splendid plane trip—met by a police escort who followed us to the hotel, with sirens going full blast. The parade was beautiful—two and a half hours on the boardwalk. Hotel wonderful! Red roses in our room and flowers on every table at every meal." LITTLE LINDA COLEMAN, lovely daughter of Mary Dan Coleman and the late Jim Coleman (whose thoughtfulness and inspiration I depended on each week), who has been visiting Honey and Mary Nelson Bowen and her grandmother, Mrs. G. C. Coleman Sr., returned to her home in Fayetteville Wednesday under the watchful eye of the hostess on the Nancy Hanks who remembers Linda and her previous ways on former trips on the Nancy. Linda will be a junior attendant in a wedding at Fairburn Saturday.

RAN INTO a blonde young woman downtown, with a clear fresh complexion typical of the English girls, and discovered that she is Mrs. Preston Keel, formerly of Maclesfield, near Manchester, England. She was accompanied by her son, a handsome four-year-old, Preston Keel Jr. He had cut his heel in the spokes of his bicycle. Mrs. Keel likes Statesboro very much and would like to know if there are any other English girls in Statesboro or Bulloch county. Mrs. Keel works behind the candy bar at the Georgia Theatre. Her husband, Preston Keel, from the Nevils community, was in the Air Force in World War II. . . . MY EYES FOCUSED ON a lovely solitary worn by one of my favorite people, a young woman with dark brown hair and twinkling brown eyes. She and her fiancé have already rented an apartment which is being decorated for their use. JANE ENJOYED A PEEK on Saturday at the troussau love-ly June Attaway has assembled for her wedding Friday. Clouds of white chiffon whipped up with natural color lace into a negligee to be worn with bridal satin gown with the same natural color lace with maybe a blush pink tinge. . . . Lingerie in pale blues, pastel pinks, and delicate lace all frothy and frilly like Victorian creations. . . . A shimmering garment of baby blue, a gift of June's sorority Big Sister, for "something blue." For the "something old" was a petticoat worn by one of her aunts. Fashioned from white batiste, the ruffle was made of row after row of lace, hand-whipped, and with an underarm ruffle which was hand hemstitched. These ruffles were headed by white beading with narrow lace and an exquisite design in the famous handmade Brussels applique in one corner. Bethany Home Is Home For Many Faiths

On July 4, 1923, seven elderly ladies found a home. In the years to follow, many ladies, and many men were to find a home in the evetime of their life. They call it Bethany Home. And it's inspiration and management is in the Primitive Baptist Church. Located at Vidalia, Georgia, it has known only two administrators—Elder R. H. Barwick, of Cordelle, and Elder T. E. Sikes, of Vidalia, who were with the Home at its at its formal opening in 1923.

Mrs. Mary Leggett, of Statesboro, was one of the seven ladies who made their home there at its opening. She died in the home three years later. The Bethany Home has grown until it is now a $185,000 institution with 185 acres of land and several buildings. More than 650 persons have found it a comfortable and pleasant home. These include, in addition to 88 Primitive Baptists, 212 Missionary Baptists, 180 Methodists, 100 Presbyterians, 100 Episcopalians, 100 Lutherans, 100 Catholics, 100 Protestants, 100 Unitarians, 100 Agnosts, 100 Atheists, 100 Deists, 100 Skeptics, 100 Nihilists, 100 Materialists, 100 Positivists, 100 Pragmatists, 100 Realists, 100 Idealists, 100 Mystics, 100 Spiritualists, 100 Occultists, 100 Astrologers, 100 Palmists, 100 Fortune Tellers, 100 Mediums, 100 Hypnotists, 100 Clairvoyants, 100 Psychics, 100 Spiritual Mediums, 100 Astrologers, 100 Palmists, 100 Fortune Tellers, 100 Mediums, 100 Hypnotists, 100 Clairvoyants, 100 Psychics, 100 Spiritual Mediums.

Charles, La., where she visited Annie Laurie—now Mrs. C. E. Rutledge. Mr. Rutledge is a dentist. They have a son, Tommy, just three months old, who, Mrs. Johnson declares, was practically calling her grandmother before she left. Mrs. J. still complains of the coffee at New Orleans—"black as smut."

Till the real thing comes along—

Remember fishing in a pail? . . . Playing cowboy on a broomstick? . . . Or playing house with a little kitten tucked in the carriage as "baby"? Well, those of you who are eagerly waiting for your '49 Fords are a little too old to depend on such fancies as substitutes.

If you've seen the gorgeous Forty Niners, you've probably told yourself Ford's the fine car of its field, the car which you must someday own. And you've probably gone ahead and placed your order. But, while you're waiting, we have an idea that's a lot better than just "fishing in a pail" . . .

Why not drive your car in today for some real Ford service. We'll fix it up like new, give you "new-car" safety, "new-car" comfort and "new-car" pep. And the little you spend may come back with big dividends when you start figuring your car's trade-in value.
