You Just Can't Be Sure

LAST NIGHT you sat down to your supper—a beautiful piece of steak. You commented on how luscious it was. For breakfast this morning you had sausage with your mashed potatoes. The succulent lengths of tastefully seasoned sausages—and you went to work in a happy frame of mind.

And in the middle of the morning your wife visited her favorite meat market, looking for a nice roast for your lunch.

And, last night while enjoying your steak, it never entered your mind to question the condition of that piece of meat before it was prepared for cooking. When you were selected it she chose it because it was a nice looking piece of meat. Or, if you selected it, you only visualized it as it would appear before you, surrounded by rich, red steak juices. Your wife was—you were—convinced of its quality by the word and reputation of your butcher.

And at breakfast this morning your thoughts were not bothered with worries of what pieces of meat went into the grinding of your delicious sausages. The confidence you have in the meat market from which the sausages came eliminated such worry.

And the roast that you will eat at lunch today or tomorrow will be tender and tasty. And there's no time lost in wondering of the course of events which brought it before you.

And we're not ones to disturb your feeling of confidence in your butcher, nor to set you to worrying about the meats you eat at your table.

Nor are we ones to cast shadows over those who channel meats into our markets and homes here in Bulloch county and Statesboro.

Yet you buy and eat meat every day which come from the hoof to you with no assurance that it is, or was, free of contamination.

You buy and eat meat every day which goes through no semblance of an inspection to determine its healthy condition.

You can't know the condition of the animal when it was slaughtered—you can't know for sure if it were free of tuberculosis—if it were free of cholera—if it were free of abscessed liver.

You tell yourself you don't have to be sure. You are sure of the man who sold you the meat, and that's good enough for you.

Read the following facts and then tell yourself you are sure.

For a nine-month period, from March 17, 1949, to December 1, 1949, at Robbins Packing Company, recently established slaughterers and meat processors, Dr. Arundel, meat inspector for the company, condemned 1,205 abscessed hog livers and 22 abscessed hog shoulders and hams.

During that period he condemned six hog carcasses because of hog cholera, 2 for pneumonia, one of tuberculosis, 2 with erysipelas, and eight for cryptorchid.

And during the same period Dr. Arundel condemned four abscessed shoulders of beef, six abscessed livers, one carcass with tuberculosis, one with tapeworm and one with septicemia.

It doesn't take a very smart person to deduct from these facts that, without inspection, these abscessed hog livers, shoulders, hams, the meat from these diseased cattle, would have found their way into your home and onto your table.

In Statesboro there are six slaughterers of hogs and cattle who sell meats into the retail channels in Bulloch county.

Only one of these has meat inspection. There are three slaughterers of chickens who sell chickens into the retail channels in Bulloch county and Statesboro. All of these three have meat inspection. Now a meat inspection ordinance has been prepared for the city of Statesboro.

Much time and thought went into its preparation. The ordinance is designed to fit the needs of this section. It is designed to protect the meat slaughterers, the meat dealers and the meat consumer, all alike.

The ordinance lies unpassed by our city council. Local retail meat dealers are in favor of it. They have so expressed themselves in a meeting with officials of the city and county health departments.

Yet the ordinance is unpassed. It is admitted that the ordinance would make it necessary for slaughterers to make improvements at their slaughtering plants—improvements which involve sanitation, and which would entail an outlay of cash.

We believe the ordinance should be passed.

We believe that the people of Statesboro, Brooklet, Portal, Register, Nevils, Denmark, and all the other communities in Bulloch county need the protection to their health that the ordinance provides.

We believe that they deserve the protection that it would give their children.

We believe that they need the assurance that the piece of steak they eat late at night, and the sausage they eat this morning, and the roast they will have at lunch time, is a clean, healthy piece of meat, cut from a hog and a beef declared, by an approved inspector, to be a clean and healthy animal.

We believe the slaughterers of this city and county, and the individual livestock growers who slaughter animals on their farms for sale in the community want the citizens of this and other Bulloch county communities to have that assurance.

Here is Bulloch county—the largest producer of livestock in Georgia—a buying and selling and slaughtering a tremendous number of animals.

And its citizens without the protection that routine meat inspection affords.

The passage of the ordinance would set a pattern for other counties in this section of the state.

And assure you, and you, and you that your steak last night was as good as it looked—that your sausage this morning was as delicious as it appeared—and that that roast beef tomorrow will be as appetizing as your taste anticipates.

Read the paragraph about those abscessed livers again....

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

This year's toyland will be a joy to parents too. There'll be dolls that won't break and clever mimics of Mama's household tools (clearing enough to make house-cleaning fun). And construction toys will whip junior to serve an apprenticeship in carpentry or bricklaying... they're that real.

Realism reigns in toyland. A toy dog really barks when you pull his leash; his mouth pops open to reveal a set of teeth (but harmless) set of molars. Baby dolls aren't made-up of beauteous faces that look like newborns with wrinkled red faces and all. And many of the babies have soft, baby skin.

Baby dolls go on having realistic habits (some of them burp) and they're now provided with the much-needed diaper service container. It's a pink plastic can that stands about knee-high to a 2-year-old. It contains a gauze lining (like its life-size model) and the lid opens with a pedal control.

In tune with current grown-up taste, there's a ranch style doll house with a built-in garage. (A not of realism is the rake hanging in the garage, and the wallpaper suggesting the inhabitant of each room. Clowns for the children, etc.).

For talkative youngsters who like competition, there's a brightly colored hand of plastic telephones that talks back to whoever picks up the receiver. The voice on the line sounds like the noise some dolls make when they cry.

Another telephone rings like crazy when you punch a button by the dial. A key buried in the side of the phone is responsible for the noise.

ALL'S FAIR

The week before Christmas when you were a child was still a time of excitement and every one smiled. You offered your help when mother baked cakes. You tangled with brush brooms and garden rakes. For wasn't Santa watching from the tallest oak? He'd know if you were smart, or just a slow poke.

And on Christmas Day you were up before dawn looking for skyrocket fireworks to shoot on the lawn. There were the reddest apples and an orange or two. Somehow you made them last the whole day through. There were no electric trains, dy-dee dolls or gold rings. But even in remembering, your heart fairly sings. For there were never such merry times, such light-hearted laughter. You were sure of a wonderful future with happiness ever after. And though you're confronted with confusion and strife, Hold on to your dreams as you would your very life.

For therein lies the secret of Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men, Abiding faith and courage can restore the world again: So enjoy the simple things, the varieties of Time. And again will come the glow you once knew at Christmas time.

MARGARET SHERMAN thrilled her audience Wednesday evening as she and James Griffith, of Athens, appeared in the historic University Chapel in their vocal recital. Byron Warner, head of the department, glowed with pride at the success of his pupils.

"Never before," he said, "had such difficult operatic roles been attempted by any student at the University." In last week's copy of Red and Black, we found the statement re-iterated. Margaret was lovely in red satin. Her triumph was acknowledged by roses, four dozen American Beauties, Better Time roses, White Camellias, orchids and baskets of mixed flowers—and tumultuous applause which brought the singers back for nearly a dozen curtain calls. Betty Anne Sherman whispered, "Mother, don't you think Margaret is a little nervous?" A nice lady behind them whispered softly, "You'd be nervous too, honey, if you were doing what she's doing." Grandma Martin, SIMPLY INCREDIBLE but true. Recently when Dr. Brown's slater, Mrs. Charles Helmsback, was visiting here, she was all chatting happily about this and that, and eventually the conversation got around to pheasants. Mrs. Brown said she'd never seen a pheasant—others remembered seeing tall feathers on expensive hats and were told it was pheasant feather. Mrs. Helmsback had been giving an account of a tour of the United States made with her husband last year. In her narrative she had lauded in South Dakota, "I regret," said Mrs. Helmsback,

Tree of Perennial Beauty

The weather hasn't been Christmas weather here at all, but everyone is getting the spirit. People are acting gay and the smiles you see on every face indicate the joyous season of Christmas is rapidly approaching.

Events are transpiring daily on every sidewalk in the nation that won't recur again until another holiday is in the offing.

The other day, Dean and I sat in Captain's Ford and cranked impatiently until the battery was too tired to groan again. A man driving a telephone truck stopped to help and we pushed the car into the street, where he proceeded to give us "bumper-to-bumper" service. We took off with a burst of smoke and had no more trouble.

At the Ware Tire Company, an attendant noticed a peculiar noise which we had been reluctant to mention to each other. Honestly, it sounded the way it's car did when we left on our honeymoon. A lug had worked loose on the right front wheel and the man cheerfully tightened the cap off and tightened it for us.

Driving from Macon, where Birdie met us last week after Ann and Edward Slamp had given us a lift from Waycross, I was stopped just inside the city limits of Thomson by two massive state troopers. It seemed that our tail lights were out and that I had also been hitting 60 off an on—but not too much," he said generously.

Mother was muttering that a local service man had checked the car before she left and I was frantically searching for that elusive slip of paper called a driver's license. I told Trooper Harrison that Thomson was our destination and must have been too eager to get home.

Beth came out from under Birdie's fur coat, blinked a pair of heavy eyes, and, deciding there wasn't anything she could do or say at a time like that, promptly stuck the middle two fingers of her left hand in her mouth.

I had never been stopped before and the wall of that siren in my ears rocked my foundation. They were very nice. The main thing was the lack of lights on the rear of the car and, since we were nearly home, they just "warned me." But they were so gracious about the whole thing.

Seems people are just more considerate now. Maybe they're not really nice—maybe everyone just takes time to be friendly.

It seems we realize that all men are brothers. The beggar in the street gets coins in his cup instead of disapproving glances or total disregard. Grocery and dry goods clerks don't seem so bored with their work.

Cheerful greetings are exchanged by complete strangers and no one feels foolish or forward. We laugh gaily over incidents or accidents that would have galled and disturbed us two months ago.

It's just wonderful. A little excitement is a grand thing for everybody. You know, it all boils down to anticipation. If we had something really exciting planned ahead every month of the year, we'd get the same reaction. We need a certain amount of stimulation before we can get the glory glow that comes with joyous anticipation.

Something to plan ahead for—something to get excited about—something to stir our imaginations, and inspire us to dream. Such projects would keep us young, alert and alive. Shakespeare said, "A mind that makes the body sick," and with big plans for future days, our minds shouldn't drift into useless reveries or worry our bodies into sickness.

Someone has said the grand essentials of happiness are "something to do, something to love and something to hope for, and it's so. Keep that spirit!"

Up It Goes Again!

THERE IT GOES AGAIN! Our hat, we mean.

We've tossed it high into the air again. Mrs. H. V. (Miss Pearl) Franklin's living room, the most improved living room in Bulloch county and the first and only one has been declared to be the most improved living room in the State of Georgia.

And yesterday at noon, Rich's of Atlanta, one of the South's largest department stores, gave her a $200 gift certificate and a big luncheon in their Magnolia Room, to prove it.

And her daughter, Ruth Rebecca (well, o.k., Mrs. Ward Morehouse), of New York City, and her son, H. V. Franklin Jr. (we bet he had a time), was with her.

Last year it was a Bulloch county kitchen that was declared the most improved in the Georgia Power company's kitchen contest—improved by Miss Janie Warnock, and Miss Ester Warnock.

And, so, it was sort of expected that a Bulloch county living room would be declared the most improved in Rich's living room contest.

And it was plain natural that Miss Pearl and H. V. Jr. should win it.

We congratulate them and wish them many happy hours in their lovely living room.

The Highway Board

THE ANNOUNCEMENT by Gov. Herman Talmadge that he plans to insist on a constitutional highway board at the January session of the Legislature is encouraging.

As outlined by the governor the plan he proposes calls for a five-man constitutional highway board in contrast to the Gholston plan which calls for ten from each congressional district.

The governor's plan also differs from the Gholston plan in that the one he offers provides for the appointment of board members by the governor and the other provides for their election by the

Vehicle Inspection

Legislature. In both plans terms of members would be staggered.

We sincerely hope that Gov. Talmadge and Senator Gholston can reach an agreement on a highway plan that will incorporate the best features of each of the proposed measures. Gov. Talmadge is committed to a highway board removed from political control and Senator Gholston is perhaps the best informed citizen in Georgia on the best non-political setup. He has been a one-man movement for highway reform.

Whether the Legislature adopts the Iowa plan as proposed by Gov. Talmadge or the South Carolina plan as proposed by Senator Gholston, the present system substantially better than the present system need is not more money for our roads, but more roads for our money. A non-political board should help toward that objective.—Baxley News-Banner.

STATE INSPECTION of all automobiles is one way to help cut the awful traffic toll in human deaths and injuries. Governor William Preston Lane, of Maryland, told his fellow chief executives in a recent conference.

Presiding at a round table on highway safety and motor transport regulation, the Maryland governor recommended uniform traffic codes and state inspection of vehicles as means of combating the highway slaughter.

We hope Georgia legislators will get the idea and put such statutes on the law books of our state.

We need especially a vehicle inspection law and a driver's financial responsibility requirement.

We're glad to see that Governor Herman Talmadge is calling a state conference on highway safety.—Cobb County Times.

Business and Professional Women Hold Emblem Breakfast at Jaekel Hotel

The December program of the Stateboro Business and Professional Women's Club, arranged by the Public Affairs Committee composed of Zula Gammage, Fernia Gerant and Pearl Deal, included an Emblem Breakfast at the Jaekel Hotel Sunday morning, December 11, at 9:30 o'clock, and a Christmas party at the Forest Heights Country Club on Monday evening, December 12, at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Helen Knight Smothers, president of the Georgia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, of Columbus, Ga., was the speaker at the Emblem Breakfast. About forty persons attended the breakfast and heard Mrs. Smothers' beautiful talk on the club emblem. Guests of the club included six members of the new Burke County Business and Professional Women's Club, of Wayneboro, Ga., which is being sponsored by the Stateboro club; Miss Rubie Brown, district chairman, of Millen, and a number of prospective members.

Miss Ann Williford, president of the Stateboro club, presided at the breakfast and introduced the state president, Mrs. Smothers. Miss Imogene Flanders offered a morning prayer, and Miss Edna Luke, of Georgia Teachers College, with Mrs. Waldo Floyd as accompanist, sang two selections, "Shall Not Pass Again 'Till We Meet Again" and "The Birthday of a King." At the close of the breakfast they, in a body, attended the 11:30 o'clock service at the Methodist Church.

ELABORATE BANQUET AT COUNTRY CLUB

The Christmas party, which is an annual affair of the club, carried out the Christmas thoughts and meaning in every detail. Gleaming red lighted candles, interspersed between each group of Christmas balls on a silver leaf, the center ball as place card, down the entire length of the T-shaped table, was an inspiring sight. A table in front of the huge fireplace, the mantel of which was

PHILATHIA CLASS HAS CHRISTMAS PARTY

The lovely home of Mrs. T. E. Rushing, with artistic Christmas arrangements throughout the rooms thrown together for the occasion, was the scene of the annual Christmas party of the Philathia Class of the First Baptist Church.

The mantel in the living room was transformed into the Little Town of Bethlehem, complete with chapel and homes, fir trees and snow, and the manger scene with its animals. There were the Star and the Wise Men and the Babe in the Manger. Clouds floated over with tiny angels in them. The dining room table, overlaid with lace, had a yellow arrangement of angel hair at one corner, with lovebirds, red berries and silver foliage and "Christmas," spelled out in silver, was illuminated by silver candles in low silver candelabra. The mantel in the dining room showed Santa and his reindeer racing over snow clouds and ice-capped mountains. Innumerable white reindeer and fir trees were used in this scene.

Hostesses for the party were Mrs. Frank Olliff, Mrs. Wallis Cobb, Mrs. Arnold Anderson and Mrs. George Groover.

Class members exchanged gifts. A party plate was served to about forty members of the class.

R. A. Macon, of Atlanta, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Macon, last week end.

AMERICAN BANKING IN ACTION

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING?

Our Government has nothing to give that it does not, first or last, take from the people who produce or earn. Taking from some to give to others can be the beginning of loss of freedom. It is only by working and saving as individuals that we can produce lasting benefit for all. A growing account in the bank, built up by systematic deposits out of earnings, represents the kind of security for which industrious and thrifty American citizens act constantly striving.

Brooklet

By MRS. JOHN A. ROBERTSON

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Kennedy, who have been spending some time at their home at Shepley Bluff, are now at their home here.

Mrs. W. D. Lee spent Saturday in Savannah.

Last Sunday at the Baptist Church during the Sunday School hour, members of the Phebean Class made a Christmas donation of $50 to the Baptist Church building fund. This class is composed of twenty-six members. The teachers are Miss Ethel McCormick, and Mrs. A. B. Garrison is president. In a few appropriate words Mrs. R. H. Warnock, a member of the class, presented the gift.

Monday afternoon Miss Mamie Lou Anderson entertained members of the Ladies Aid Society of the Primitive Church with a pre-Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Felix Parrish. After the devotional the ladies exchanged gifts and the hostess was assisted by Mrs. Parrish in serving refreshments.

Mrs. Joe Groome and Mrs. C. E. Williams were hostesses to members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Groome. The program was arranged by Mrs. W. B. Parrish, and talks were made by Mrs. A. C. Watts and Mrs. John A. Robertson. At the close of the program refreshments were served by the hostesses.

At the meeting of the Kiwanis Club last Thursday night plans were completed for the community Christmas tree in the school gymnasium on the night of December 23.

Wednesday night the December meeting of the Farm Bureau met in the school lunchroom and a fish supper was served. Guest speakers were Eyrone Dyer, county agent. The business session was conducted by F. C. Rozier, president. The president is W. W. Meade and John C. Cromley is secretary-treasurer.

The Associated Women of the Farm Bureau met on Wednesday night in the home economics room of Brooklet School, at which time Mesdames Bob Mikell, James Lanier, R. R. Brissonne, Fred Bradford, Brooke Lanier, Harold Smith and Kempie Jones served Christmas dinner to about sixty guests.

After the dinner the ladies assembled in the school library and Mrs. Felix Parrish, president, conducted the business session. Mrs. Harold Smith was elected secretary of the organization. Miss Dorothy Denton, of the Portals school faculty, gave a demonstration on making corsages. A musical program of Christmas carols was given by Mrs. W. D. Lee and Mrs. William Cromley. Each lady present brought a wrapped Christmas gift and these were exchanged. The next meeting will be held the first Wednesday night in January.

Miss Selby Hutchinson, of Savannah, was the week end guest of Miss Barbara Griffith.

The December meeting of the W.C.T.U. is being held this Thursday afternoon at the Baptist Church. Mrs. Ward Hagan arranged the program. Mrs. E. H. Usher, president, presided at the business session.

"Whatcha Want For Christmas?"

In a survey conducted at Laboratory High School at Teachers College last week, children answered the questions, "Whatcha Want For Christmas?" and "What Do You Like About Christmas?" Here are their answers:

Louise Oliff was overheard saying, "All I want for Christmas is my two front teeth." She also said that after we play two more ball games, she won't be the only one who desires front teeth for Christmas.

"I want . . . 'I want . . . 'Everybody is wanting—or could it be hinting?"

A boy asked Sadie what she wants for Christmas. She immediately answered, "I want a doll." The boy turned around and walked away looking both puzzled and disturbed.

Ann wants a bear—excuse me—a fuzzy wuzzy outfit. That includes the gloves, scarf, and cap. Strangely but surely Don wants a C.O.D. package from Florida. Sure enough, we'll run old Santa to death this Christmas.

The girls' basketball team is stuck on new basketball suits for Christmas. They think Dr. Little and Mr. Thompson would make very good Santa Clauses. And, Mr. Peden, you can help Santa here. Merle Bunch wants to trade suits. It could be that she has a lucky number she'd like to wear.

Mary Barnes says she wants the blue set in her class ring changed to a diamond. Incidentally, who doesn't?

The seventh grade girls are all wanting copies of the latest hit

QUESTION: WHAT DO YOU LIKE MOST ABOUT CHRISTMAS?

HIS— "I like Christmas because I get a thrill out of decorating the Christmas tree. I like to give and receive presents, too. But, most of all, I like that good old fruit cake and turkey dinner." . . . Billy Deal.

The thing I like best about Christmas is the good cheer and happiness of the Christmas season." . . . Charlton Mosely.

"I like Christmas when the snow is on the ground and all the boys and girls are singing carols and playing games." . . . J. W. Holloway.

"I like to visit my kinfolks and then go to my grandmother's for a Christmas dinner, which I enjoy." . . . Preston Turner.

"I like to give presents to other people and go off from home and have dinner with others." . . . Billy Waters.

"I like Christmas gifts at Christmas, and I always want to see what Santa brings me. I also like the dinner." . . . Jean Williams.

"I like Christmas because it is Christ's birthday. Also all the lights in town are so pretty, and there is always something good to eat." . . . Christine Pugh.

"I like to sing Christmas carols and eat Christmas cake." . . . Billy Jean Miller.

Again in 1949 MORE PEOPLE HAVE BOUGHT CHEVROLETS than any other make —just as they have done during the total 19-year period, 1931 to date!

THE men and women of America know value when they see it! Consequently, they are purchasing more Chevrolet passenger cars than any other make . . . and more Chevrolet trucks than the next two makes combined . . . thereby placing Chevrolet first in sales this year, just as they have done for the total 19-year period, 1931 to date.

Naturally, we and all Chevrolet dealers are deeply appreciative of this overwhelming tribute of preference; and we join with Chevrolet in pledging to do everything possible to give you greater and greater value in the months and years to come.

was there "My Old Kentucky" of this handsome met, were on hand to greet us. They are original Home" was written.

The color combinations used in walls and furnishings are most artistic. Brown and beige, green and dusty rose, terra cotta and gray, blue and coral were some of the colors that attracted us. The floors are of tarrazzo. The baths are large and walls are tiled. The shower stalls are larger than one usually sees. The beds have Beauty-Rest mattresses with box springs. While there we encountered several people who were raving about the good dinner they had enjoyed at Mamie Groover's. Turkey 'n dressing and white meat still on the table when they departed. Hot rolls and corn sticks being constantly passed.
