Miss Sadie Maude Moore Writes Home Of Leaving S. Korea

EDITOR'S NOTE: This week, Miss Nellie Lee received a letter from Miss Sadie Maude Moore, who was in Korea, a missionary who the North Korean Revolution. South Korea. She called members of her family from Japan, saying that she was safe. Now comes this letter, which gives an intimate picture of what war can do to people we know. The names Miss Moore mentions in her letter are those of her friends with whom she worked and lived in Korea.)

Camp Hakata, Fukuko, Japan, Sun., July 2, 1950.

My dear Family:

I don't know what you have heard, read and thought and feared and hoped about us these days, but I do hope and trust you haven't been too alarmed and that the radiograms I've sent have reached you, assuring you that I am well and safe in Japan. This past week has been filled with varied experiences, there has been anxiety, and trying time, but many humorous experiences too, and through it all things have worked out so wonderfully for us, we have been taken care of so graciously all along, and we feel that we have so much to be thankful for. Of course our great concern is for poor Korea, and what she is having to go through, and our dear friends there—they were so brave and fine in getting us out of danger, but we don't know what dangers they are encountering.

How can all of this happen in one week? Last Sunday (June 25) was quite a normal day for us in the quiet little country area of Wonjo. That morning one of the American advisors, who had been coming up to see Mary Jane quite often came by to see her and said he was off to ChoonChun, in a hurry, and that "War," "Real War," was breaking out on the border. We didn't take that too seriously for last Sunday, but he had been considering fighting on the border, and it quieted down later. But about eight in the evening another of the American advisors came up and said the situation was really serious, and advised that we prepare to get out of Wonjo. Esther and Mary Jane began packing immediately. I couldn't get too excited about rushing out, so I said I wasn't packing till we got further work, and I went to bed, hoping to get some rest and be ready for what might happen on the morning. But we didn't wait till the morning. About 2:30 in the night, Olin came calling and said the American advisor was up again, saying the American Ambassador was preparing to evacuate all Americans from Korea, so we began packing immediately. We got our servants up and they helped us get our things packed in Esther's station wagon, and mine were in my jeep. We took turns driving, that is, Mary Jane helped me some and I helped Esther some. Of course I've driven a car for years in America, but I had driven this jeep hardly 10 miles in all and to start out on this trip on these roads would have been an "impossibility" under ordinary circumstances, but here I started ahead. To do but do it—and I did (with some help) and we got along wonderfully well. Esther had two flat tires on the road, but I didn't have any and she had spares, so didn't take long getting fixed up. The Stokes and Burkholders never did overtake us, they left late, and had to stop for the bag, and they took things more leisurely. We did not stop to eat, just drank some fruit juice and ate sandwiches along and kept going. We drove till about 11 Monday night (June 26), getting to Taegu and decided we had better get some sleep before going on. We went up to a Presbyterian compound there—all of the missionaries of their group had gone to Taichun for their mission meeting, and the services and help were greatly appreciated when we took them that we had this message to evacuate. They told us too that the news of the day was that though North Koreans had started fighting they were being driven back, that McArthur was sending help from Japan, and that surely there was no need for us to leave. What they said sounded so assuring and the fact that the Stokes and Burkholders hadn't overtaken us, made us wonder if they hadn't gotten further messages and hadn't come out at all. Also the fact that the Presbyterian mission seemed to be still in Taichun, made us feel that perhaps our flight was too hasty, so we went to bed in Taegu thinking it possible that we might go back home, rather than proceeding to Fusan the next A. M. (Tuesday, June 27).

But again we found that only wishful thinking, for when we got in touch with the American Military Advisors in Taegu, they said they themselves were being ordered to evacuate, so of course we knew we would go on to Fusan. We were told that it would take us about 5 hours to get to Fusan, and leaving about 10:30 we should have gotten to Fusan about 3:30, but it wasn't that easy. Esther got terribly sick on the way, she had eaten a turkey sandwich and drunk milk the morning before, and she got so tired out and a highly nervous person anyway, she got a bad case of food poisoning, we stopped 8 or 10 times for her to vomit, and finally she got so sick and weak and faint, we had to put her in a Korean house and work with her. She got cold and clammy. The Korean woman covered her with heavy covers, gave her hot water to drink, bathed her feet in hot water, etc., and I went scouting for a doctor. When I finally found a doctor she was feeling better, he said her pulse was steady, and would be able to go on. Then just as we were getting ready to start a jeep came along. Mr. Scherbacher, an American we knew, who had been with the welfare Dept. of the American Advisory Group in Seoul, hopped out and said he would join our party. He had been told in Taegu that there were possible Communist invasions on the south coast about 30 miles from Fusan, and he knew we would be going very near that area. Anyway he urged us to hurry, and said he would drive my jeep and his chauffeur could go along in his jeep. So we started out again. Esther stretched out on top of baggage in the back of our station wagon and Mary Jane drove. After a few miles we came upon this group of people by the road, Mr. Scherbacher feared it was Communist trouble, but on investigation we found that it was an American Jeep overturned, and a Korean chauffeur hurt. Esther hopped up and gave him first aid, found his pulse good, etc. So told him to be quiet for a while and left him with the others in the jeep (we heard later that he was picked up and brought to Fusan, and was not seriously hurt).

As we got nearly to Fusan—we arrived about 6:30—we met Charles. He told us that they had stopped to feed the baby many times, to eat, to rest, etc., but they had kept going all night and had reached Fusan about 5:30. He was on his way back out to get some of the luggage they had left by the roadside when the trailer they had had tacked to one of their jeeps, broke down. That was a great reunion for us, and we were glad to get together. We were directed out to the American Military compound near Fusan—there are about 60 American homes there, with big office and club houses, etc. We were given supper and told to wait for orders about sailing. At first we thought we would get to a boat right away, but it finally worked out that we were asked us to stay in his house—his wife and children had been evacuated but the house with all the govt. furniture was there, and we put up a few extra cots, so our Wunjo group stayed with Mr. Spooner for the night. What to do with our cars and jeeps was a question. See "SADIE MOORE WRITES"

Georgia's Largest Tobacco Market On Ready; Warehouses Now Receiving Leaf

STATSBORO'S eight tobacco warehouses are now receiving tobacco, as warehousemen, tobacco growers, and Statesboro merchants are standing on ready for the opening of the 1950 tobacco market on Monday, July 24.

Warehousemen and the local Tobacco Board of Trade are working at keeping Statesboro the top market in the state this season. The Statesboro market holds the distinction of being Georgia's largest tobacco market. According to the official figures of the United States Department of Agriculture the Statesboro market led the state last year with 12,583,996 pounds of the weed which was over a million pounds above the next highest market. $4,966,955 were paid by the warehousemen here.

In 1948 the local market sold 12,701,222 pounds to lead the state by more than one and one-quarter million pounds. In 1947, though selling 13,021,624 pounds the Statesboro market missed the top position in 1946 the market here led all over by over a million pounds selling 14,670,367 pounds which was the banner year on the local market.

The eight warehouses here include 470,530 square feet of selling floor space. They will be operated by E. Cobb and H. F. Foxhall who operate the Cobb and Foxhall Warehouse, R. E. (Bob) Sheppard and Aubert J. Brannen will operate the Sheppard warehouses, Cecil Wooten and Guy Stuten will operate the new Statesboro Tobacco warehouse.

The Statesboro market will operate with two full sets of buyers, with every major tobacco company having buyers here.

When the sales begin Monday it will mark the twenty-second season on the Statesboro market. Olin times recall that during the first years of operation the markets here were small. Each day that year more tobacco was sold than was sold during the entire season in the early days of the market.

The crop this year in this section has improved considerably since the recent rains. Warehousemen who have traveled the territory say that the crop will cure out good. They have given the farmers assurance that the market here will remain open until all tobacco in this territory is sold and have urged the growers not to rush their curing.

Final Rites For Lt. R. D. Warnock

Miss Ester Warnock and Miss Janis Warnock and Mr. Phis D. Warnock, of Statesboro, will leave here Monday, July 24, for Louisville, Ky., to attend final rites for Lt. Roland Warnock, son of Mr. Phis D. Warnock. Burial will be in the Zachary Taylor National Cemetery, RFD #6, Louisville, Ky.

Lt. Warnock was killed when the B-24 bomber of which he was pilot, was shot down in the vicinity of Brussels, Belgium, on February 24, 1944. He was flying a mission over Gotha, Germany, in a free dance and beauty revue. His crew of ten men parachuted to safety. He, with four of the crew, went down with the plane.

The bodies have now been recovered in the graves Registration Division, U. S. Army, they are satisfied that these bodies are those of the five men who went down with the plane. All other bodies found in that area have been identified.

According to a letter from Captain J. F. Vogt, G.M.C. Memorial Division, U. S. Army, they are satisfied that these bodies are those of the five men who went down with Lt. Warnock's plane. Because they were unable to identify the individual bodies of the five airmen, they will be buried in the national cemetery as a group.

Chamber Of Commerce Hears Three Point Program For City Progress

In a brief talk before the Statesboro Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday of this week, Alfred Dorman advocated a three-point program for the progress of Statesboro.

Before stating his program he commented on the apathy of the citizens of Statesboro to what is going on. He stated that there seems to be little interest in what is going on in the city. He did not cite returns of the 1948 and 1949 elections as examples of the lack of interest in the affairs of the community.

"The records of the city office reveal," said Mr. Dorman, "that of all the citizens in Statesboro in 1948 only 1,056 were registered."

Of that number only 463 took part in the city election and voted. In 1949 the registration list showed 1,100. In the 1949 elections only 463 took part in the election.

He suggested a three-point program to include a division of the city into wards or districts that each section of the city might have equal representation on the city council. He stated he believed such a plan would stimulate interest of the citizens in all sections of the city. His second point was to extend the city limits to include the outlying residential areas. He cited the benefits they enjoy at the expense of citizens within the city limits. His third point was the election of members of the city board of education, to replace the present method of appointment.

His three-point program will be referred to the steering committee of the Chamber of Commerce which will be asked to make recommendations as soon as possible.

Editor's Note: Before Mr. Dorman presented his three-point program at the Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday we had written an editorial on his first point. We did not know that he was thinking along the same lines. We advocated his point in an editorial in our January 5, 1950, issue.

Miss Dorothy Jane Hodges Becomes Bride Of Mr. Edward Hodges Saturday

On Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock Miss Dorothy Jane Hodges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade C. Hodges, became the bride of Edward Hodges, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Rushing, in a lovely home ceremony with the Rev. John Lough, pastor of the First Methodist Church, reading the marriage lines in the presence of the families and close friends of the couple.

The impressive ring ceremony was performed before the huge open fireplace in the living room. The first place was occupied by the bride and groom, and the bridesmaids and flower girls. The ceremony was a lovely affair, and the bride and groom were united in the presence of their families and friends.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, W. C. Hodges Jr., was lovely in white tulle and lace. The fitted satin bodice was attached to a deep yoke of nylon lace and the fitted sleeves were of lace. The full skirt flared in the back to form a graceful train. Her veil of fingertip illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls. Her only ornament was a string of pearls and she carried a bouquet of fleur de'Mours centered with a white orchid with a yellow throat.

The bride's mother wore light blue chiffon. The groom's mother wore pastel yellow voile. Both wore corsages of purple orchids. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held. The bride's table, overlaid with a white linen, was set with a three-tiered wedding cake, beautifully embossed with white roses and topped with a miniature bride and groom, and placed on a reflector. Four-branched candelabra were placed at each end of the table with graceful plumosa fern completing the bridal motif of white and green. White pom-pom chrysanthemums, white gladioli, and dahlias were artistically arranged throughout the home.

Mrs. Jack Tillman and Miss Lois Stockdale served punch from an heirloom china bowl. Others serving were Mrs. Eugene Brodgon of Lyons, Mrs. Cliff Pittman of Hampton, Va., sisters of the bride; Mrs. Julian Hodges, Miss Maxann Foy, and Miss Trudie Pittman of Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Rushing left on their wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, the bride traveling in a praline suit of lion wool. She wore a brown cloche. Other accessories were brown. She wore the orchid from her wedding bouquet. The couple will make their home in Statesboro, where the groom is associated with his father in business.

Albin Eber Bids Rotary Farewell
Albin Eber, German student who has attended Georgia Teachers College for the past two years, bade members of the Statesboro Rotary Club farewell in a brief talk at their regular meeting on Monday.

Young Eber has completed the work on his B. S. degree and will return to his home in Germany at an early date.

He was selected to attend Georgia Teachers College by Dr. Marvin Pittman, who knew the young German while he was on a survey tour in Germany. The Statesboro Rotary Club sponsored the student and shared his expenses while he was here.

In his farewell Eber expressed deep appreciation for the opportunities given him by the club.

"We belong together," he said, "I am taking a part of you with me and am leaving a part of me with you."

THE BULLOCH HERALD, THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1950

Farm Bureau Parasites Cause Livestock Diseases Farm Bureaus Told By Specialist

Many of the livestock diseases found in Bulloch county today are caused by parasites, Frank E. Dooley, livestock disease specialist from Ft. Worth, Texas, told the members of the Ogeechee, Warnock and Sinkhole Farm Bureaus last week.

In the case of nogs, worms probably cause more losses than any disease or parasite, Mr. Dooley stated. Many of the diseases that cause trouble with hogs can be traced back to worms either directly or indirectly. Mr. Dooley urged that every livestock farmer follow a good parasite control program, and recommended phenothiazine as the best all around worm material on the market today.

Phenothiazine is not new to Bulloch county farmers, even though many of them do not use as much of it as they should. It is put up and sold under many trade names by several companies, but the dose recommendations are the same of all mixtures. Mr. Dooley urged the local livestock men to feed phenothiazine to their hogs at 8 to 12 weeks of age and repeat the threatment two or three times before they go to the fields, using the manufacturer's recommended dosage. He stated that many farmers found it wise to keep phenothiazine before their cattle and hogs in minerals or supplement rations.

S. L. Lanier, City Drug Company owner, who is interested in livestock development in the county and is featuring many of the better known livestock products for the prevention and control of disease, procured Mr. Dooley from the Globe Laboratories in Ft. Worth for these three meetings. James Young, representing the Macon office of McKesson and Robbins, accompanied Mr. Dooley on the tour of the county and assisted with the program by showing a film on the uses of phenothiazine.

Ogeechee served a fresh water fish supper, Warnock a fried chicken supper and the Sinkhole a covered dish supper. The plans were made for an organized system of meeting the Blood Mobile every time with the quota from the communities.
