Chatham County a Conservation Champion

As a suggestion, I'd like to see some of our Sportsmen's Clubs offer a plaque to a judge or perhaps to a county for outstanding performance in conservation of our natural resources.

If such a plaque were now available, I would recommend that it go to Chatham County for 1950. Undoubtedly there are still violators of game and fish laws in Chatham county but they are getting fewer in number each day. Many of them are shifting their illegal practices to more tolerant counties. It isn't healthy to be caught in Chatham.

One recalcitrant fisherman heard Judge B. B. Heery, of Savannah, impose a $200 fine against him for a violation. When Judge Heery tacked on a two months sentence, it marked one of the rare incidents in Georgia history where a man was ordered to serve time for a game and fish violation. The word of this case spread like wildfire throughout Chatham county. Here, indeed, was an educational program that had its effect.

Then along came Judge Victor H. Mulling, of Municipal court, who slammed a violator with a $500 fine and a three-month sentence which he suspended upon payment of the fine. That did it! The school for violators had issued the "Master's Degree." Violators didn't just fall off-rangers and patrolmen were practically out of a job! Violators were as hard to find as chicken teeth.

Then, to close out the books, Judge Frank M. Scarlett, of Federal Court, slapped $50 fines against a host of marsh hen hunters who insisted on using outboard motors for their hunting exploits. The sportsmen in Savannah were delighted that their favorite recreations had new champions. Today, all its well in Chatham. Violators have no stomach for undercover work and should they ever decide to break local law, I expect business at the same stands. Yes sir, a great blow for our natural resources has been struck in Chatham county. What a contrast to some of our counties where convictions are as scarce as wooden legs on a goose.

Beautena Will Be Given Saturday

"Beautena" will be given away Saturday, May 12, at 3 p. m. at the East Georgia Trading Post.

"Beautena" is a Guerney heifer, 10 and 11 in Tifton.

Roger Hagan will represent Bulloch County 4-H Clubs in the district rifle shooting contest July 9, 10, and 11 in Tifton.

Roger scored 83 out of a possible 100 to win over some 40 contestants in the pen at the Trading Post, 4-H Club boys were given the privilege of selling tickets at 25 cents on the heater.

Gerald Groover, manager of the Trading Post, went so far as to tell clubsters he would redeem the tickets sold to the extent of giving the holder 25 cents off on any 100 pounds of Purina chow. The clubsters figured they could not lose on such a deal. If they did not get the heifer, the ticket was still worth a quarter on feed. To win the heifer, ticket holders must be at the Trading Post on Saturday when the name is drawn.

Some Disturbing Facts and Figures

During the month of October, 567 game and fish violators in California paid $25,551 in fines. This is a bit more than an average of $46 each. Five of the violators went to jail for 30 days and one other served 45 days. By comparison, Georgia's fines for the entire year amounted to only $22,270.80. I doubt seriously if our average fine would weigh in at more than $40. It is a pity that Georgia is not as interested in its conservation program.

Pennsylvania collected $200,888.35 from 6,107 violators for an average of about $33 for one year. Georgia must be very close to it not at the bottom of the list of fines collected against violators.

Some Odds and Ends

Edison Marshall, famed author, of Augusta, has a slambang book on "Angie Huntin' Thinks." He takes you into the jungle on a tiger and lion hunts that send chills racing up and down your spine. His description of a night in a lion's den is a corker... Shot lead leaving a gun at 250 mph per hour, slows down to a 60 mile rate after a thinner shell than yegg's... A pickerel more than doubles its weight while growing from 12 to 14 inches.

The nuthatch builds its nest in decayed tree trunks where its young may eat the insects that flourish there. The bat's wing is equipped with a hook resembling a claw which it uses to cling to rocks or walls. Without the hook, it would be one of our most helpless animals.

You Owe 'Tuck' Your Cooperation

HERE'S THE WORD!

If you have someplace to go leave early enough to get there without exceeding the city's speed limit. We have it directly from Traffic Police Officer Tucker that he's going to enforce the city's traffic regulations. "I'm going to work harder," he says. He explains that he can't be in all parts of the city at one time, but that he's going to work hard at making the streets of Statesboro safe for children, grownups, pedestrians and automobile drivers. He also warns auto drivers that they will be expected to observe the "no left turn" signs at the street intersections around the courthouse square. He says that the red blinker light at the intersection of West Main and College which orders traffic to "stop, then go" is not a Christmas decoration, and that drivers must obey it. And he points out that it's against traffic regulations to make a right turn on a red light at the intersection of North

Patients Due For a Break

MAYBE Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Patient are going to get a break. And it's about time. At a meeting of the leading medical men of Georgia held in Augusta recently, a doctor spoke out, not of the rights, but of the responsibilities of himself and other doctors. Dr. A. M. Phillips, of Macon, noted that of late medicine's rights have been emphasized in the interest of preserving its high standards. Now, he held, a re-defining of "our responsibilities" is demanded by "the breakdown of understanding between the physician and his patient, the insidious encroachment of government in the field of medicine and the crisis brought on by the challenge of communism to democratic freedom. All of which sounds a little high falutin'.

But the doctor got down to brass tacks when he went on to say that his responsibilities of the doctor are subservient to his obligation to his patient. And he put it plainly that "our first obligation to the patient is that of giving him our time and our undivided attention. We must take the time to understand the complete picture of his condition and to explain to him the causes of his symptoms and the reasons for the proposed treatment."

He admitted "we are not magicians, we are physicians; and our patients—except the very youngest of them—are people capable of understanding the general nature of their condition and the treatment we propose. To surround our practice with an aura of mystery is a technique that belongs to the cults."

The doctor from Macon had more to say. And what he said prompts us to add that doctors need to recognize their obligation to the patient who sits patiently in their waiting rooms for half-hours and hours beyond the patient's appointed time. The patient's time may be as valuable to him as the doctor's time is to him. It should be considered. Dr. Phillips didn't mention this responsibility in his statement made as president of the Medical Association's 1951 convention in Augusta, but it is one that he might add in 1952.

They Spread the Word

GEORGIA TEACHERS COLLEGE and the Statesboro Rotary Club were hosts on Monday to a distinguished group of journalists. Dean John E. Drewry of the Henry Grady School of Journalism of the University of Georgia was guest speaker at the chapel hour at the college and at the Rotary Club luncheon at noon. With him was Statesboro's own Worth McDougald, an assistant professor at the University's school of journalism. Also in the group was Mike Edwards, editor of the university's newspaper, "The Red and Black," and Ed Driscoll, sports editor of the Athens Banner Herald. In addition to Dean Drewry's appearance as a speaker, the group held a newspaper clinic for the staff of the college newspaper, "The George-Anne," and the staff of Laboratory High School's "Little George-Anne."

Let Your Vacation Fit the Hole In Your Pocketbook

By VIRGINIA RUSSELL THE TIME HAS COME to plan the summer's vacation, if you haven't done so already. What will it be this year? The New York, Chicago, Canada, New York, Chicago, Mexico, or all the way "out West"? Or are you one of those "minority groups" with enough cash on hand to travel abroad? There are some beautiful magazines now devoted just to this subject, so if your plans aren't formulated go to the newsstand, and if it's sold out go to the library. You may find any type of vacation, ever thought of in these publications, from fishing or up to the most formal type of vacationing. The National Geographic will stir the travel blood of anybody. The Bulloch Herald has already reported several citizens who have or are vacationing now. Get some tips from them on what to see and what not to see. There are some who'd rather get to the beach or the mountains in a hurry and sit out their vacations in real relaxation. But could it be that you belong to the other minority group in town, the group who will be forced to vacation at home—necessity for choice, but from necessity? (The little old purse has had a hole in it all year and the money put there just poured out.) The only hope you have is turning comminatory and eating off the relatives, and even so, they don't send you a round trip ticket. Well, don't despair. Maybe your vacation can be more fun than you know. Start with the friends you're trying to get together. Put away the lines, get out the paper napkins. Store anything in the house that looks hot, from rugs to dresses to furniture. Get out the cookbooks and jot down the coolest sounding foods, but be sure that their preparation will keep you cool. Set up the yard for a lot of outdoor living. Investigate every lead to get mosquitoes (and, in case you play golf, to get your golf bag comfortably sit in the yard. To make your trips a little spicier, fix a little supper and invite a friend who has traveled to come "sing for his supper" by retelling his experiences. For instance, maybe you have a yen to go to China. Well, not matter how much money is on hand you couldn't get to the Bamboo Curtain around China. So, call the Harmsbergers, or Mrs. Harmsberg's mother, Mrs. Woods. They've lived in China many decades and their experiences are rich as gold. Butley Lee or Miss Sadie Maude Moore could take you to Korea, and I dare say most of us prefer to travel with them from our yard instead of in reality, at this particular time. Mr. Leode Coleman could tell you much about the Pacific, as well as Dr. Albert Deal, Look at Europe, Dr. John Mooney, Dr. Bird Daniel, Everett Williams, and Bill Bowen, are just a few who could tell you about far away places, even though they had to be placed till of war. But if you want to travel without war, invite the Pittmans, for they spent a year in Mexico. Since the war, Dr. Pittman has traveled in Germany for three months and in Korea for six months. We have a student at Georgia Teachers College who is a native of Okinawa. He's no doubt enjoy telling you about his country. Say, the possibilities for your traveling are limitless. For goodness sake, don't be bound down by a lack of money or imagination. Be sure you plan your travel this summer.

Wonderful Demonstration

IT WAS a wonderful demonstration of community spirit as more than 200 people of Bulloch county gathered in the big assembly room of the Brooklet Community House last Friday night to participate in the enjoyment of eating the $1-per-pound steak cut from the grand champion show at the Statesboro and Bulloch County Fat Stock Show held here recently. The Bulloch county 4-H Club boys and girls were hosts and hostesses at the steak supper. They are proud of this annual affair. And rightfully so, for it is one of the events that contribute to the great feeling that there is no county in the world to equal Bulloch county.

See What Happens!

WHAT CAN you do if you think a price is higher than the legal ceiling? An acting regional director of the Office of Price Stabilization suggests: First, you should ask the storekeeper why the item you are buying has the high price tag. Some increases are legitimate. If you are not satisfied with the explanation given you, ask for and save the sales slip. Then, send the ticket together with the information about the merchandise in question, date of purchase and name and address of the store to the OPS regional office in Savannah. Then, see what happens!

Our Hat Off to Dr. Holland

WE CONGRATULATE Dr. Roger Holland upon his being named secretary-treasurer of the Georgia Optometric Association held in Columbus last week end. Dr. Holland is one of the youngest professional men in Statesboro and is a credit to the community into which he was born, in which he was reared, and in which he now practices his profession.

Traffic and War

IN ALL OUR WARS from the Revolution up to September 25, 1950, this nation has lost 968,838 persons. Our street and highway traffic deaths from 1903 through 1949 have been 910,060. These amazing figures were given the other day by Harry B. Mitchell, chairman of the U. S. Civil Service Commission, in addressing a meeting at Pittsburgh that marked the opening of National Employment-Physically-Handicapped-Week. Fathers and mothers are concerned about sons being drafted or volunteering for service in our armed forces. It will never be otherwise. But they should save some of the concern for the late night and early morning driving on streets and highway. And they, too, should be concerned for themselves. They may be too old ever to go to war but one is never too old to fall victim to traffic slaughter. Let's drive carefully, demand and uphold traffic law enforcement, restore peace to streets and make Georgia the safest state in the nation.

Editor's Uneasy Chair

WHEN GUY WELLS promoted the idea of planting dogwood trees along the streets of Statesboro from the college gate to the post office, we're sure he never dreamed that the idea would grow into a "Dogwood Drive" the length of Federal Highway 301. It was back in 1929 when Guy was president of the college that he saw the beauty the lovely trees would add to the streets of Statesboro. People we questioned about the details are vague as to how the idea worked. They don't recall if Mr. Wells had the college furnish the trees and the residents set them out, or if he and the college did the whole job. But the fact is that the Guy Wells enthusiasm and energy, together with his gift for the promotion of an idea, resulted in the beauty that now lights up our streets come springtime. When we started this thing we didn't realize what it would lead to. At noon Monday we learned that the dogwood idea was not Guy Wells', after all. It was E. V. Hollis, president of the college before Guy, who dreamed up the idea of beautifying the streets of Statesboro with dogwood trees. But it was Guy Wells who built the fire under the idea and got it going. Then in the late 30's, (about 1937) the Jaycees—then a red-hot outfit headed by Josh Lanier—got the bug and set out dogwoods from the college gate back to about Will Woodcock's cabin on 301, South of Statesboro. Then it was in 1949 that Jas. A. Branran, Willie Branran, and Fred

ALL'S FAIR By Jane

ANYONE who keeps up with social affairs, club meetings, engagements, weddings, and babies in Statesboro and Bulloch county must have the endurance of an ox, the eye of an eagle, the ears of an Indian, the memory of an elephant, the patience of Job, the friendship of telephone operators, and the hide of an alligator. Some of the above characteristics I may have, others I've never had. The prospect of 15 weddings when I gently told them to do this or that task. The youngest saty "I don't love you" when she was told to pick up an article she'd thrown on the kitchen floor, and I decided it was high time to heed the Bible teaching by using the rod—since it was evident that it had been spared too long. At first I thought that I'd been a little naive all these years. It was the daddy's fault. He has always said he didn't believe in Mother's Day. It has been commercialized to death. Only once in the 20 years of our marriage has he honored me on this day. On that day it happened that one of the babies had been born in May and I was in the hospital, so he rented and bought me three bars of Palmolive soap for a gift. So I was sort of blaming him for the children's neglect. Until one developed a headache and came to me for help. Another was telling me of his plans before the day was over. The littlest one sought me out when she had need of a nurse. Then I remembered that my appreciation for my own mother didn't really exist until I had reached maturity. What better Mother's Day could there be than one where your children still need you?

Farm Bureau July 4 To Be Big Day in Ogeechee Community; Barbecue at River

July 4 will be the big Farm Bureau day in the Ogeechee community. J. A. Hart, chairman of the food committee for the annual outing, stated some six hogs had been donated for barbecuing, and that the meeting would be held at Williams landing on the Ogeechee River. Homer Melton, Ogeechee president, stated this July 4 outing would be their July meeting. However, he did say plans for the big day would be completed at the June meeting. All serving committee chairmen make up the July 4 committee, with Mr. Hart as chairman. Roy Kelly entered the corn and peanut contest, and C. W. Zetterover the cotton contest at the meeting Tuesday night. Mr. Zetterover lined up the community's quota on the blood-month program.

Mrs. Dan Hagan Wins 'Beautena'

"Beautena," Guernsey heifer donated by Banks Dairy and fed out at the East Georgia Trading Post, was won by Mrs. Dan W. Hagan at the drawing held last Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Hagan had purchased three tickets and out of the some 500 tickets in the barrel Mrs. Hagan's name was drawn. The heifer was fed out from a small calf to a 220-pound heifer without having been given milk. Gerald D. Groover, Trading Post manager, stated that the heifer was fed 386 pounds of Calf Start-out which would have sold for $25.86. The heifer weighed about 100 pounds on February 28 when it was put on feed. Mrs. Hagan refused $125 for the calf following the drawing. Proceeds from the sale of tickets went to the 4-H Club. Father-Son Team Patiently Attend Grazing Project

Fescue and clover, Ladino and Dixie Crimson, will grow in Bulloch county as well as any place, Emory S. Brannen thinks. And Mr. Brannen can prove it to you, if you will believe what you see.

Mr. Brannen and son, John Ed, cleared up some land around a low place at the head of the old Kennedy pond and built themselves a pond. Some 20 to 30 acres of land adjacent to the new pond was seeded to fescue and Ladino clover. Some of this clover and fescue is more than knee deep.

John Ed says he believes there is more money in pastures, if you plant them, than in turpentine. Mr. Brannen admits that John talked him into cutting a few pine trees. A long slash pine with a good bushy top is about the nicest plant that grows, as far as this turpentine-minded farmer is concerned. However, he is all for John Ed's idea on the pastures.

So strong is Mr. Brannen's feeling for good pastures now that he is clearing up another 100 acres or more of lowland for fescue clover. There are other pasture plants just as good, John pointed out when he took a stroll out in the field. The oats would yield easily 50 to 60 bushels of seed per acre, but all around the edge you could see lots of Dixie Crimson clover. The clover is at least knee high and there is an excellent stand in the approximately 20 acres of high land. That is not all, John advised. He pointed with pride to the stand of Coastal Bermuda under the clover.

John is a Clemson College graduate and has had the best of technical training in animal husbandry. It would be difficult to prove to him that this oat-clover-Bermuda combination would not support lots of brood sows and pigs. This father and son team has brought their grazing problem along patiently, giving the plants time to get set before grazing them. They have fertilized and limed the fields adequately. Now, they are off for the races with a pasture program that will produce 400 to 500, maybe even 600, pounds of meat per acre.

Go out to see them. The Brannens will show you these pastures with pride.
