Mr. Clifton, Jr., Bulloch county, has been awarded a $100 livestock college scholarship at the University of Georgia by the State College of Agriculture.

Clifton was the state 4-H club meat animal champion for Georgia for 1936. He started in club work in 1933 with a spotted pig with just young breeding. Each year the profits from his project have been used to increase the size of his project for the next year. In 1936 he sold $822 worth of products from the several projects. He now has a purebred herd of Angus cattle started and a purebred herd of spotted Poland China hogs along with his range hogs and cobs. Feed for his livestock projects are always included in his spring plans.

Although young Clifton has always shown his fat steers to an advantage at the spring shows he reached his peak in 1936 when he finished and showed the Georgia club champion steer at Savannah.

Livestock has been just one part of this clubbers balanced farming. In 1936 he produced 2150 pounds of lint cotton on three acres of land and averaged 59.6 bushels of corn on three acres. The corn was marketed through three steers and hogs.

Acceptable tobacco prices have been continued over to the South Carolina markets, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. On the August 10 opening day, for instance, prices ranged from one to eight dollars higher than on the opening date last season.

With the recipe printed thereon. "In the first place, the approach to the actual cooking is as essential as a knot hole in a bridge is to a pelegged man in putting on brakes, first, the cooking pot should be iron in order to hold heat for some time without much fire, with a capacity of about three to five gallons. The sides should be rounded and have an iron top fitting rather snugly; the pot suspended from a pole planted at a forty-five degree angle in the ground. Naturally, we bathe our pots before using, the same as they do in Deugherty county.

State Engineer Here; Inspects Burton Ferry Route Proposals

State Engineer Vermer visited Statesboro and Bulloch county Tuesday, looking over the location of the Burton Ferry route.

Mr. Vermer also inspected other routes in the county which are being considered for the routing of the Burton Ferry Road through Statesboro. One plan routes the road up Zetterower Avenue, connecting with other highways in the vicinity of the Teachers College. The other plan is to route the business section and out South Main.

Mr. Vermer inspected both routes but was not ready to recommend a preference here Tuesday.

In connection with the Burton Ferry Route word was received here this week that the Screven County Commissioners were expecting to close a contract with the State Highway Department to build, fill and approach at the Brier Creek bridge site on the Burton Ferry route. The contract for the bridge over the Savannah has been let.

It was understood from the Engineer that there will be some changes between Dover and Sylvania and that it will also be necessary to get wider right of ways through the Ogeechee River swamp.

A survey crew from the State Highway Department has been working in Bulloch county for some time. When the crew finishes its work here they will have every state highway in the county surveyed. Beside the Dover road work has been completed a survey from Lotts Creek to the Evans county line. The survey on the Stilton to Guyton highway is also being made and when finished will present several new locations for the highway.

CONVICT COMMANDEERS BULLOCH COUNTY TRUCK TO MAKE HIS ESCAPE

Commandeering the county truck of which he was driver, Robert Williams, convict serving a twelve month term in the Bulloch county, escaped Wednesday afternoon when he was sent back to camp to have a flat tire repaired on the truck, and failed to return to the spot where he and other members of the chain gang were at work on a roadway culvert.

Sheriff L. M. Mallord gave the following description of Williams: White, weight 170 pounds, height, 5 feet, eleven inches; blue eyes; black hair, scar on left arm. Williams escaped in a nearly-new 1937 truck, having neither cab nor windshield, and without marking to indicate that it was property of the county. It was without a license tag.

1937 SALES ALMOST 2,000,000 POUNDS OVER PRIOR YEARS

According to reports at the close of the 1937 tobacco selling season here Monday, the Statesboro market sold 5,448,386 pounds for $1,090,000, which is by far the largest season here since the market was opened in 1926.

Last year the Statesboro market sold 3,929,000 pounds for a total of $18,700 a hundred. In 1935, 3,102,164 pounds were sold for an average of $18.02, the poundage in 1934 was 1,638,898 for an average of $16.00. Up until last summer the biggest year recorded by the Statesboro market was in 1929 when 3,229,000 pounds were sold. It will be seen then that the sales this summer have gone almost 2,000,000 pounds more than was ever sold here. Several figures account for the large increase here this season; one was the fact that three warehouses operated where only two had been operating; secondly the Statesboro market is the farthest market to the north and the farthest market to the east in the state; thirdly the local market is nearer the South Carolina tobacco market than any other market, and finally, the second week average on the Statesboro market was the highest in the state, the third week was second highest, which naturally drew more tobacco here. Department of Agriculture figures show that the state did not sell as much tobacco as in 1936 nor was the money as much as 1936, yet the Statesboro market sold much more tobacco than last year and much more money was paid out. In 1936 the Georgia markets sold 86,865,298 pounds for $18,145,557.25 and this summer the Georgia markets sold 82,023,499 pounds for $16,236,964.29. The 1936 average for the state was $20.56 a hundred and the average for this summer for the state for four weeks was $19.80. While the state sold less tobacco at a lower average the Statesboro market sold more tobacco at a higher average for the Statesboro market in 1936 was $19.70 a hundred and this summer it is expected to go beyond $19.00.

Secrets Of Recipe For Muldown Revealed

Large onions fine, add immediately; cover the above with a good portion of black pepper. Let this summer slowly over hot oak coals, stirring often. While this is simmering, chop a stalk of celery real fine and place it, with enough water to cover in a saucepan over another fire, cook until very until all juice can be mashed from it. Mash it good, then drain juice through clean cloth. One of two bell peppers may be cooked with celery. Add, after about an hour, one can of corn and a can of small sized English peas to the muldown. To this, soon, can be added a stick of butter and about two-thirds of a large can of cream. Keep stirring. It is about time to put in the juice from the celery and bell pepper. Follow this with a little more black pepper. (Continued on Page 8)

THE SECRET IS OUT—MULDOWN STANDS THE TEST OF LIGHT

In Monday's Atlanta Journal the editors voice the question, "If muldown is the delicacy Bulloch county folk proclaim, why should there be so much mystery as to the recipe?"

As if in answer to that question, Colonel Leon S. Tomlinson came into our office on Monday afternoon stating that the recipe is ours for publication if we wish. After reading the recipe we here and now say that one of our battle of muldown contestants' recipe will stand under the scrutiny of a flashlight and more than that, it will stand under the test of taste. We know.

We have our doubts, however, that just anyone can take the recipe, which appears in another column of this issue of The Herald, and obtain the same results that Colonel Tomlinson obtains. According to the Colonel it "requires that something, indescribable, that touch, that care . . . that—just so, which comes to one only after years of experience on the Ogeechee river."

Colonel Tomlinson's recipe reads like the finished manuscript of a famous writer. Something into which has gone hours of thought, hours of study and careful consideration of each step toward the finished masterpiece. One can picture the Colonel at the brewing of his muldown. Attention to detail. The fire just right . . . the pot bristling clean . . . his ingredients properly lined up to play their part at the bidding of the master. There goes the Colonel's muldown will, not only stand the light of day, or the scrutiny of a flashlight, but will stand out under the most powerful of spotlights.

Since the editorial in the Journal gives a recipe for a chowder and believing that there are a great number of people here in Statesboro will be interested in it and what the Journal has to say we give the editorial in full. It's title is: "A BAS, MULDOWN! VIVE CHOWDER!"

"The great battle of muldown, promoted by the enterprising young Bulloch Herald and fought to a finish in a commodious cabin in the nether environs of Statesboro, has been declared a draw. After tasting, testing, checking and double-checking, the judges professed to be unable to decide between the alleged symphonic poem composed by Judge P. H. Preston, Senior, and the reputed ambrosial epic authored by Colonel Leon S. Tomlinson. A driving, gully-washing rain failed to dampen the gustatory gusto of the epicures of Effingham and the gourmets and gourmands of Ogeechee land, a pleasant time being had by all.

"However, the contest was a failure in one respect. It did not enlighten a large and palpitant public as to how to prepare this dish, muldown or mauldown or muldawn as it is variously called. Both chefs refused to divulge their recipes. All that is definitely known is that the main constituent is Ogeechee River catfish. True, little evidence may be deduced from the fact that each contestant employed a trusted friend whose duty it was to see that no minion of the enemy slipped into his pot a runover rubber heel, a second-hand cheroot, or a bottle of ipecac. But that, is, after all, merely negative information. If muldown is the delicacy Bulloch county folk proclaim, why should there be so much mystery as to the recipe?"

"The average Georgian, in such circumstances, will be inclined to lean unmistakably to Dougherty county chowder. Not only do persons know how to pronounce and spell the word 'chowder,' instead of wandering around in a lexicographical maze, but the proud chefs who so thickly populate the valley of the Flint and its tributaries make no mystery of what's in the bowl and how it was assembled.

"In fact, the dignified and scholarly Henry T. McIntosh, of the Albany Herald, devotes a precious column of his space in a recent issue to a detailed recipe for chowder—his own recipe, be it known.

"So interesting and stimulating is the recipe that it will be summarized here, that it may be clipped and pasted on the wall of every kitchen. Here it is, the triple periods between phrases indicating omission of good and musical words, but of no important ingredient or step of procedure:

"For the sort of chowder I have in mind, the flesh of the fish must be right out of the water . . . The thing to make it in is a lard can, that has been scrubbed . . . Get your fire going, and put the can on with water measured according to the quantity chowder to be made . . . In goes the fish, but not a single bone or scale. Just strip sliced from miltle sides, washed clean in clear water . . . As the water boils the fish begins to approach the stage of disintegration, which is th promise of perfect chowder, many other things should be added. A few Irish potatoes, cut into small cubes. Half of an onion. A large can of corn. Just as large a can of tomatoes. A lemon, sliced and seeds removed. Eight or ten slices of bacon. A dozen cloves. A quarter to a half pound of fresh butter. A little pepper and salt. Then let it cook and cook, getdry, smoothly, serenely. Let those who wait sit on the ground where the savory aromas from the big can will greet their nostrils. Fifteen minutes before the call to dine, put in a final seasoning of Worcestershire sauce."

"Then, such heaven as may be experienced in this vale of tears, if Editor: McIntosh may be credited.

"To an uplander, Dougherty county has the better claim. There's something screwy, if one may resort to the venacular, about this muldown business. Apparently, it won't stand the light of day or the scrutiny of a flashlight. It is not an open covenant, openly arrived at, between producer and consumer.

"As for Dougherty county chowder—what says Maitre McIntosh? Are your deeds as fair of fulfillment as your words of promise?"

Colonel Tomlinson, in his opening statement to the Herald, gives his reason for divulging the secrets envolving the brewing of his muldown, even promising the editors of the Journal a half gallon of his muldown with the recipe printed thereon. Could the Journal ask for more? We say "Nay."

ROTARY. WHAT IS IT?

For less than a year there is a group of business men here in Statesboro that has been meeting every Monday at noon and having lunch together. They call themselves Rotarians, and are associated with the Rotary International.

The first of June there was much in the papers regarding the Rotary club in connection with the swimming pool and just prior to that notices of the Rotary club were interested in a gymnasium for the High School. Perhaps the question may have occurred to some, "What Is Rotary?"

The Rotary club is an association of business and professional men of a community selected for their value to society with regard to the realization of the ideal of service.

The meetings of the Rotary club are characterized by wholesome good fellowship and the development of more intensive and more practical friendships.

The Rotary club does not, as an organization, promote and carry on civic activities rightfully belonging to other organized agencies, but through its teachings it is hoped that every Rotarian may awaken to his civic duty and as an individual participate in the activities which go to make his community a better place in which to live. The objects of Rotary are, as set forth in a pamphlet issued at the 28th Annual Convention held at Nice, France, June 6-11 of this year, are:

- To encourage and foster the ideal of service as a basis of worthy enterprise and, in particular, to encourage and foster:
- The development of acquaintance as opportunity for service;
- High ethical standards in business and professions; the recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations; and the dignifying by each Rotarian of his occupation as an opportunity to serve society;
- The application of the ideal of service by every Rotarian to his personal, business, and community life;
- The advancement of international understanding, good will, and peace through a world fellowship of business and professional men united in the ideal of service.

Cliponreka Cullings

By Your Roaming Reporter

ROAMING THRU THE BROADENED VIEWS
MONTREAT, N. C.—Some things come wrong up here, no doubt about it at all. We don't know what it is, but just the same we've seen the signs, or at least we've "heard 'em."

In all these years of matrimonial bliss we've never heard the missus break into song enough to recognize the lilt of her voice, but this morning as we climbed up and untangled the Royal ma was singing and nary a doubt about it. The first time we heard it we decided one of Donald's pet mocking birds had flown in the kitchen window, but as we listened we decided it was that bunch of Blue Jays having the morning scray over the breakfast "leavings." Major Mike came rutting in all out of breath, and announced: "Worth, mama is singing." Worth, who doesn't allow even a thunder storm to excite him, answered: "I heard her," picked up his morning paper and promptly berated himself. Therupon Mike, having made one of the greatest discoveries of his lifetime, repeated his observation to Donald. Donald turned and inquired the startling fact to old Pap, replied: "Daddy, what you reckon is the matter with mama?"

Thereupon the old gentleman, who had been sitting and cranked his way in to the kitchen, from which the music and melody were coming. Our curiosity was becoming unbearable. We'd find out. Diplomatically we began: "Beautiful morning isn't it?" "Certainly is," answered the major portion of the firm, and began again: "Beautiful life of somebodies . . . 'Feeling good?' we ventured. 'Never felt better,' replied the Essence of Sweetness, and then began to warble in that lovely contralto, something about "The end of a Perfect Day . . . but by that time it was beginning to be the start of a miserable day for us. What was the matter with these people were getting sun struck, but then we remembered we hadn't seen the sun since we got here . . . and it couldn't be the heat for we were sitting by a nice fire when she suddenly went 'AWOL' . . . you recollect it? What shall we say about some old bean, unbeknowing to us, and reviewed that ever present modicum of romance that is a part of all of us . . . surely that couldn't be, and her keeping so quiet about her old beau all these years. And finally we just couldn't stand it any longer, so in our most fascinating manner we tried to get a new tack. 'You know ma, its just grand up here, ain't it?' we started. 'I've never been so happy in my life,' she replied, leaving us just where we were when we started, because we couldn't even guess what it was made her "so happy." Finally we blurted out in our best "I-D-E-M-A-N-D-T-O-K-N-O-W" manner: "Well what ARE you singing about?" And then she threw a kiss, jes like in the old days, and began again: "I'm being happy, I'm being happy, I'm being happy, I'm being happy, and the music and melody still filled this little cottage, and I'm still wondering. I don't feel so very good about it all. Course now if she's all this happy because she married me, I couldn't blame her. She sure did make a wonderful catch, what with all the unmarried girls trying so hard to land me and the married ones just pining because their old man wouldn't check out and let them have a chance at the "perfect husband." Now that he was on the market. But it shouldn't have taken her all this time to decide on what she should do. If she had that and start singing.

Be sweet and tender—that is doing good; 'Tis doing what no other kind deed could. — R. R.

AT THE CHURCHES

METHODIST CHURCH
G. N. Raiser, Pastor

11:30 a. m. Morning worship and preaching by the pastor.

Theme: The Blue-Print of the Model Church.
The model christian church has never existed of course except in the mind and purpose of Jesus and in the aspirations of his followers. There is the promise that it shall one day be a perfect church as Paul says, Epesians 5:27 "That he might present it to Himself a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be wholly and without blemish." Jesus built the church of the best material available—stumbling, falling but aspiring humanity. At the same time holding before us the perfect, the model church. When you examine your church and your relation to it and the great Builder of the church, are you satisfied with them? What are you willing to do to improve them?

8:30 p. m. the pastor will speak on the theme: Individualism and the Kingdom of God. Modern individualism claims that the chief end in life is to satisfy one's own desires. Have you projected your life upon that narrow goal? Or do you recognize that you are a part of a great program of living which includes all of mankind and that your rights and responsibilities are bound up with the rights and responsibilities of all others? It is time for us to find ourselves and properly relate ourselves to God and His program of right living and upward progress.
The Sunday School convenes at 10:15 a. m. Three departments and classes for all ages.
The Senior League meets at 7:30 in the evening.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
C. M. Coalson, Minister

Isn't it good to be back home and back to work! I love rest because it is essential to human welfare and to the best work. Nevertheless the greatest happiness is always found in constructive work in our chosen task. What shall we say about some of the mistaken men upon the moral and spiritual structure of our American life? Shall we assume the laissez faire attitude and say, "Oh, well, these things will have their brief day and be no more?" You know well enough that if we say that we are simply missing an opportunity and shirking a task. No, we shall not say that.

Shall we whine that the enemy is too strong for us and we are overwhelmed by the attack? That would be to admit defeat before the battle and would prove us unworthy of the honor of being called disciples of our courageous Master. We'll not say that.

What shall we say, then? Here is our answer: "If God be for us, who can be against us." And with that reply cried as a ringing challenge to entrenched greed and indifference and all other forms of sin we shall enter the fray singing "O'warrior, Christian Soldiers," with love for sinners and Godly hatred for sin and win a world from the danger of destroying itself with sin. (Excerpt from Sunday morning sermon.)

Sunday evening subject: "A Day of Questions" with us.

McDOUGALD CONDUCTS BEAUTY CONTEST
Mr. Walter McDougald of Clito, Ga., was master of ceremonies at the Fiddlers Convention held in Nevils High School Friday night and in his jovial manner he kept the audience laughing with his jokes and stunts. One of his outstanding numbers was the "Masculine Beauty Contest" of which Mr. C. J. Martin took the prize. Mr. McDougald presented Mr. Martin with a miniature moonshine still.

The John Prosser Band won the $5.00 cash prize. The members playing in the band were: Miss Ida Mae Prosser at the piano; Miss Lois Thompson with the Hawaiian guitar; John Prosser the tenor banjo, Cecil Brooks the guitar, Frank Smith, the violin and Burnel Fordham the steel guitar.

Frank Smith was the proud winner of the $3.00 in cash for the "Best Fiddler." Burnel Fordham, who was accompanied in singing by his sister, Miss Minnie Maude Fordham took the $2.00 cash prize for the best guitar number. Misses Lois and Mildred Thompson gave some interesting and enjoyable guitar numbers also. Miss Juanita Wyatt of Brooklet tractive numbers in tap dancing with Mrs. Walter Lee at the piano.

Little Shirley Ann Lanier of Statesboro was beautifully costumed for tapping and singing and was accompanied by Frank Rushing at the piano. For Shirley's second number she was appropriately dressed in a Hawaiian costume of a golden grass skirt of ankle length, with a bed of flowers for the waist, while a wreath of variegated flowers encircled the head and ankles to carry out the Hawaiian costumes. She was complimented with $1.00 in cash.

The Judges were Mrs. Walter Lee, music and expression teacher of Brooklet High School; Hon. J. E. McCroan, Ordinary of Bulloch county and Mr. B. H. Ramsey, solicitor.

CONCRETE ROADS GIVE WINGS TO WHEELS

JITTERS, jars and jolts vanish when your car swings onto the concrete. The long ribbon stretches before you smooth, safe, inviting. There's less nervous tension and fatigue; no ruts, no chuck holes, no mud. Your car is a better car, and you are a better driver.

You like concrete! And you should. You can depend on it. You know that, wet or dry, its safe, non-skid surface grips tires and helps you stop quickly. And by night its light color improves visibility. You can see obstacles, pedestrians and the edge of the road.

You can't afford not to have concrete. For concrete actually costs less to build than other roads of equal load-carrying capacity, and costs far less for upkeep. What's more, concrete saves in gas, tire and car repair bills.

Get the most for your money. Urge your highway officials to build comfortable, safe, economical concrete roads.

FARM TO FARM One crop most farmers fail to care for to the best advantage is the young dairy calves. D. C. Banks puts time and effort on this crop just as he does the regular field crops. Evidently this care was well spent, judging from the quality of the calves. Pecans can be produced every year, declares E. G. Cromarty. Mr. Cromarty keeps his grove covered in a legume except during the harvesting period. The winter legumes are disced in at the time the spring fertilizer is applied and then the summer legume is planted. This growth is disced just prior to harvesting. Only a few supermum vines are necessary to produce all that the family wants for eating and canning, according to H. L. Allen. Each winter additional post and framing of very substantial material is placed under the raw runners on the vine, gradually increasing the size of the harbor. Mr. Allen says that he keeps the ground around the vine fertile with manures. Just now there is about 100 bushels of grapes on this lot. NOTICE This is to advise that the sheriff's office has instructions to immediately collect all past due taxes in execution for state, county and schools. The authorities have been slow to force collection of taxes for past few years, owing to financial conditions, but now with better times these taxes must be collected, and the sheriff has instructions to make levies immediately in all cases where settlements are not made in full. Please act at once and save additional costs. BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS, BULLOCK COUNTY, GEORGIA. STATESBORO MARKET SELLS MORE TOBACCO FOR MORE THAN 1936

FIGURES AS REVEALED BY THE STATE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE THIS WEEK. ALSO SHOWS GREATER INCREASE THAN OTHER TWO AND THREE WAREHOUSE MARKETS.

While other tobacco markets in Georgia were selling less tobacco for less money this season, the Statesboro market sold more tobacco for more money than 1936, figures revealed by the State Department of Agriculture show this week.

Statesboro sold 4,840,528 pounds this year against 3,629,528 for 1936, or an increase of 1,111,004 pounds. The other markets in Georgia, with two and three warehouses, in the same class with Statesboro, did not have the increase that Statesboro made this season. The smaller markets and their sales for the two years ago: Baxley, over a million pounds less than 1936; Haskins, 335,000 pounds less; Habers, 231,000 pounds less; Metter, 757,000 more; Nashville, 529,000 pounds less; Pelham, 174,880 pounds more; Waycross, one half million less. The big markets also sold less tobacco than they did in 1936, with the exception of Valdosta, which sold one and a half million pounds more. Blackshear was about the same as last summer, Douglas sold 22 million pounds less, Moultrie sold about a million pounds less, Tifton over a million pounds less, and Vidalia sold about the same.

Clipping In Old Newspaper Reveals Bulloch's History

There were no colored males or females in Bulloch county in 1850 according to the census of that year. At least a clipping from the Savannah Republican of Friday, December 13, 1850, makes that statement, along with many other interesting facts concerning Bulloch county. Bulloch was a large county in those days, according to the old clipping, yellow from age. Bulloch had 900 square miles at that time and today has 688 square miles. It must be remembered that at the time the 1850 census was taken, Bulloch county was only 54 years old. Real estate in 1850 was valued at $379,205 as compared with farm lands alone in the county in 1930 at $9,595,886.
