Alcatraz In The Pinewoods Is A Modern Prison

A modern prison is Alcatraz Island, where the captors of the United States government have equipped the penitentiary with the latest improved devices for the safekeeping of dangerous criminals. The prison has a capacity of 100 prisoners and is situated in the center of the bay, over 200 feet below the surface of the water. The prisoners are fed on a diet of 2,500 calories a day, and the cells are brightly illuminated by electric light. The island is 10 acres in size, and is cultivated with flowers and shrubs. The prison is administered by a warden and a staff of guards. The prisoners are not allowed to communicate with each other, nor with the outside world. The prison is completely isolated from the mainland, and is only accessible by boat. The prisoners are not allowed to leave the island, and their clothes, shoes, and other possessions are destroyed when they are transferred to the island. The prison is considered to be a model for other prisons, and is widely admired as a symbol of the power of the government.
