A GREAT MAN TALKS COMMON SENSE

The Rotary Club at its meeting this week had the rare privilege of hearing one of the south's greatest men, Dr. Bascom Anthony. One could feel his personality before he said a word. A tall, straight-standing man, who does not look his 79 years.

When he had finished his talk of about 25 minutes, we noticed one Rotarian, who does not have the reputation of being soft, neglected using his handkerchief to wipe his

In addressing those thirty-one men present at the meeting Dr. Anthony gave them a message so simple that it seems almost no address at all. Just a commonplace talk it was but so common that it was unusual. Chocked full of the commonest common sense we have ever heard. He warned his hearers that he was going to talk common sense, but we were awed by his presence and his reputation, we think, expecting, we hardly know what, then for him to let us down only to build us up to a keen awareness of our own

"Don't dread anything," he told those Rotarians, and illustrated his point with the oldest dread of them all-the dread of hitting the water at the old washing hole after the breaking up of spring when summer has not yet warmed the water. "Hit it a running with a kicking up of your heels and it is all over in a second." And using that quotation that we have known all our lives, to drive his point home, "The coward dies a thousand times, a brave man dies only once."

Then he hit us all on the head, "Don't wait for a thing to get just right. The wind, the moon, the sun, the time-they don't ever get right."

All this forms the basis of a philosophy of life Dr. Anthony told his audience. He gave two more points which make up a good plan for life. He advised men to hunt with their fellowmen points of agreement and to live in common things an dto love common place

The Rotary Club is indebted to Dr. Pittman for the privilege of hearing Dr. Anthony, Dr. Pittman in introducing him to the Rotarians explained that it was a part of his plans for the college to try and give the students as often as he could, men who could bring something new and fresh to them and that he thought himself fortunate in having been able to have Dr. Anthony. Dr. Pittman shares his plans with us of Statesboro for when he succeeds in having men like Dr. Anthony at the college, he makes us feel free and welcome to go out to the college and share with the students the benefits to be derived from hearing and knowing such men.

WE DEPEND ON HIM

With nearly every section of the country concerned over sulfanilamide elixer we become aware of how much we depend on our local druggists and the part they play in our every-day life.

The pharmacist has a most responsible and exacting work. A slip might prove fatal. He must be constantly alert in following the prescribing physician's prescriptions. His weights must be right to a pin-point—there can be no guess work with him. He shares with the doctors the demands upon him because of his profession. He must undergo long hours on his job. He must be willing, and cheerfully so, to get out of be dat all hours of the night to answer some call for his compounds which give some sufferer relief.

His reward for such service comes from the satisfaction of work well done. Be glad that we have druggists who devote their profession to our welfare.

We are beginning to know what worry is. We are among those who are worrying about getting hotel accommodations and football tickets for the Tech-Georgia football game in Atlanta November 27.

THE GRAND JURY RECOMMENDS THE ELLIS HEALTH LAW In the Grand Jury Presentments of the October Term, 1937, there appears a paragraph that should mean a great deal to Bulloch county. It reads: "We recommend the adoption of Sections 88-303 to 88-312 of the Georgia Code of 1933 which will put into operation in Bulloch county what is generally known as the Ellis Health Law." With the installation of a health department all classes in the county will be benefited-the rich, the poor, the old, the young, the white and the colored. As public roads and public schools are available to all people, so health protection will be the right of all

When the Grand Jury recommended the adoption of the Ellis Health Law it becawe obligatory on the county commissioners of roads and revenues to provide the necessary funds for putting it into effect. The law carries with it a county board of health made up of the county school superintendent, the chairman of the board of commissioners or roads and revenues, the ordinary and a physician appointed by the grand jury.

It becomes the duty of this county board of health to supervise all matters relating to health in the county. It has the authority to enact and maintain rules and regulations deewed necessary to protect the health of the people in the county, subject to the approval of three reputable physicians of the county.

The personnel of a county health department consists of a commissioner of health and such nursing, sanitation, clerical and other assistants as may be assigned to the

Under the law a licensed physician who has had special training in public hygene and sanitation, and who has passed an examination on these subjects given by the State Board of Health, may be elected by the county board of health. And the law requires that he give his whole time to the prevention of sickness and forbids him to practice medicine or actively engage in any other business.

This is the season of the year for the selection of Health Queens as well as Beauty Queens; but who ever heard of any of us bachelors say, "I'm having a date tonight with the healthiest girl in the county!"

They've invented an invisible ray which makes it possible to read in bed without a light on and there is that inaudible radio you can just hear under your pillow-reading in the dark and not hearing the radio as it were.

And our idea of a modern success type is the man who has made so much money with a chain of bakeries that he can now afford to have his own bread baked at home.

Scoop! Only 50 more shopping days before

Have you noticed how much many of the radio comedians sound as if someone were standing behind them with a barrel stave, forcing them to be funny at all costs, an atmosphere which causes considerable strain and disturbance in our otherwise calm living-

With careful planning every family ought to be able to scatter its members so that it's always possible to go south to visit someone in the winter and north to visit someone else in the summer.

Odd, isn't it, how much less the weather matters to us after we grow up. When we were very young the weather was an important detail of the day's program every day; now it concerns us only on rare and special occasions, like football games, and trips to Savannah.

Judging from the advertising of the new radios some college ought to be offering a Course in Proper Dialing for Radio Programs. They are automatic, so they say, but who teaches us how to make them work auto-

Students of international law have been somewhat puzzled by the proceedings in China lately. There is no war-only a series of ghastly reprisals. There is no adherence to custom or the ethics of war-civilians have been slain in cold blood, by the hundred. But Britain is forced to adhere to the la wthat requires combatants to be interned for the duration of war when they enter neutral territory. And Britain has suffered enough casualties to make her forget international law, but is restrained by a strong national sentiment against war. "It's all very confusing."

EUROPE WITH LILA.

"Has everyone put on comfortable shoes?" our conductor was inquiring "Because of the royal procession, all vehicles are prohibited this morning so well have to walk if we are to see Edinburgh." Most of us had sacrificed beauty for comfort in the see lection of our shoes, so we had no fear about the walk that was shead of us. Nevertheless, we soon realized that more than shoes had to be taken into consideration, and that Americans, if we were good samples, did not possess the art of walking. We soon realized too that if we were to hear the guide sexplanations of the various sights we were seeing, we'd have to speed up. When we said, "You're go, ing too fast." he merely laughed and went on a little faster. None of our protests had the elightest effect in slowing him down. I'll never forget the woodsogne look on the faces of some of those would-be hikers on the climb up the hill to the Castle.

The oldest part of the Castle is St. Margaret's Chapel, built in 1050, and the Scottish War Memorial is the newest. We couldn't enter this because it was too near the time for the King to place a wreath of flowers there. But we did see the Crown Room, with its historic jewels and the crown of Robert Bruce, and also the banquette hall, with it is thirteenth century beamed celling and its many coats of mail standing around the wall, look-ling as if they might be harboring the ghosts of the departed ones that lost their lives in them.

We wanted to stay much longer in the Castle, but our guide hurried us out, so that we would be therefore the fine posses of the departed ones that lost their lives in them.

We wanted to stay much longer in the Castle, but our guide hurried us out, so that we wouldn't get locked in and have to stay until the King's ceremonials were over. As we were on our way out, one of my companions punched me and said, "Look!" I turned around and there, on a red velvet cushion, close enough for me to touch, was the golden key to the Castle.

Next in order were the Gordon Scotch Highlanders, tall, and mostly blonde—all perfect physical speciments. They stood directly in front of us, so we had a good opportunity to see their uniforms—khaki coats with a thistle insignia embroidered on their collars, navy trench hats with tiny ribons streamers hanging down in the back, kilts of a blue, green and yellow mixture, with big pleats in the front and little ones in the back, black shoss, white uppers, and sock garters with red bows on them. There was something rather ridiculous about the ones who had mustaches, for the mustaches and the kilts just didn't go together.

The Royal Foot Guard (infantry to us), in red coats, Buzbees, and raincoats neatly strapped to their backs, were numerous, a continuous line of them extending from the Castle to St. Giles' Cathedral, at least a mile distant.
