FREEDON the Allis-Chalmers way... WITH THE RUBBER-TIRED TRACTOR. In 1932, Allis-Chalmers announced the first rubber-tired farm tractor. Implement men called it a pipe dream. Engineers said a bucket of water would stall the darn thing. Even a tire company employee took two big airplane tires "out the back door" for the original Allis-Chalmers test. Then—it was a challenge to hidebound tradition. Today, practically 100 per cent of Allis-Chalmers wheel tractors are going out on rubber. Then... tractor prices were $1000 and up. Top speeds were 3 miles an hour. Today... prices begin at $495. Speeds are from 2 1/2 on up. The rubber-tired tractor makes you MASTER of your farm. This Allis-Chalmers development has brought prices down where EVERY farm can have the benefits of power farming—better living, better farming, more profit. It sets YOU and YOUR FAMILY free! Week's Sentence Sermon

Se we fall asleep in Jesus. We have played long enough at the games of life, and at last we feel the approach of death. We are tired out and we lay our heads back on the bosom of Christ, and quietly fall asleep. H. W. Beecher

DEATH TAKES TOLL ON HIGHWAY

Without warning the grimmest battle for life in the history of the Bulloch County Hospital suddenly began Monday afternoon around five o'clock when passing motorists and two ambulances brought in ten victims of the county's most horrible traffic crash which occurred six miles out of the city. Doctors and nurses marveled all their training, experience to fight on the side of life. Death, that shapeless, intangible, unseen phantasm moved to the fray sending terrible apprehension into the hearts of the fighters and the families of the victims.

At Tuesday noon the score stood: the fighters for life, five; the grim reaper, five. And the end of the battle is not yet. Doctors, nurses and skill and training are still contesting the lives of one other with death. The advantage seems to sway from one side to the other in this battle with faint but ever brightening hopes that life can hold its own.

The chances are that only once in a lifetime will the resources of our hospital be called upon in such an emergency as arose this week. There can be no limit to the praise that is due the hospital, its superintendent, nurses, doctors, and the people in the community who so freely gave of their services. Despite the apparent confusion caused by a number of idle curiosity seekers the entire hospital staff and doctors operated swiftly and efficiently. The nurse in charge of the operating room had prepared and kept prepared more than eight emergency operating trays including every instrument and need for just such emergencies as came up this week. As soon as the victims of the recent tragedy were admitted and doctors arrived a tray was ready and put to immediate use.

The friends and relatives of the victims were high in their praise of the way the hospital operated.

We have said in the past and now repeat and underscore: Bulloch county and Statesboro should be immensely proud of its hospital. There is not another one like it in the state. It was tested with fire this week and came through with flying colors. Hereafter if one should here a disparaging word about it or its operation one should be quick to come to its defense. It is a credit to our community.

WAR RESTS HEAVILY ON WORLD AGAIN

War, with all its attendant horrors, to use an old theme, is with us again. We say with us as it has involved most of the great nations of Europe from whence the great majority of our ancestors and citizens have come. And anything that affects Europe weighs most heavily upon the American mind, and has had effects on our economics. Unless this configuration is stopped by some miracle before it has really spread to its disastrous heights—which, needless to say, will be the most horrible since civilization began; for as we become more "civilized" the worse our methods of destroying our fellow humans becomes—Europe will become a devastated area and its peoples will have neither the will or the power to work for their rehabilitation. Therein lies the task of those nations fortunate enough to stay out of the conflict; that of reconstruction and rebuilding the morale of a war-frenzied civilization. This alone should be an enormous undertaking and should, if all other arguments fail, convince the American people that they will pay large enough penalties without entering into actual warfare.

War is like that. It affects every single human, directly or indirectly, and brings to the light that every head of a national government should always strive for peace and international good will as part of the sacred duties of his office.

THE POLITICAL POT

The grape vine this week adds new names to those mentioned last week. Mr. Dean Anderson is a prospective candidate for the clerk's office. And it is being talked about that Mr. Linton Banks is looking with fond eye at the clerk's office. We regret that last week we neglected to mention that Sheriff Lowell M. Mallard is a prospective candidate to succeed himself. We named him as the incumbent, but did not list him with those who the grapevine has running. Mr. Mallard is definitely in the running. In including Mr. Crouse's name last week in the list of those prospective candidates for the Ordinary's office we inadvertently referred to him as William Crouse. We should have said "William H. Crouse."

THE ALMANAC SAYS THE WEATHER Today, Thursday, September 7 will be unsettled. Friday, September 8 will be rain. Saturday, September 9 will be windy. Sunday, September 10 will be unsettled. Monday, September 11 will be unsettled. Tuesday, September 12 will still be unsettled. Wednesday, September 13 will be unsettled. (new moon)

But Don't Blame Us If The Almanac Is Wrong.

We won't ever drive a car fast any more. . . . We saw Monday what happens when two cars run together and what happens to people who are in them. It was horrible. We were among the first at the hospital. We were looking for news, but we were drafted and found ourselves carrying emergency trays, lifting injured people from beds to stretchers and from stretchers to beds, and finally a doctor got hold of us and we helped him, if our services could be called help. We held a flash light for a doctor to sew up the face of one of the men in the wreck. When the doctor started it was not a face. It was a mass of butchered flesh hanging on bone, dirty, bloody, and unrecognizable. For about three hours, working from an emergency tray, on an ordinary cot, this doctor worked. In the room where he was working were two others one begging God to let him die, another, a kid only 8 years old, babbling as one of a foreign tongue.

A man had just died in the bed next to where we were working. Screams, pleas, curses, shrieks, filled the emergency operating room next to where we were working. And this doctor kept working. We were sweating like an ox, the hospital superintendent looked at us and got us out of the room—the heat and blood and battered flesh was working on us. We were told that our face was as white as a sheet. The superintendent gave us a huge glass of amonia. We snapped out of it and was back at the side of the man who had had a face. The doctor was now gathering the pieces of flesh and sewing it together. Slowly but surely what had been a gaping mass began to assume shape. I stood there and watched and marveled and said to myself. . . . "I'm seeing a miracle. . . . it can't be possible".

The doctor finished. He had taken about 175 stitches in this man's face and it was a beautiful job, done under conditions as must have existed in the days before we knew the modern hospital with every instrument of science at its command. We then saw other doctors working, performing similar miracles. And we thanked God that we are living in a community where there is such a hospital and where such doctors as we have are living and practicing.

Barbs Of The Briar Patch Philosopher

I see that you printed my letter last week so that must mean that I can be a writing for you when I feel the itch to. Now without getting all mixed up with words I got something on my mind and I's gonna get rid of it quick. It's something that is on the minds of every last one of us. Taxes it is. Not long ago I read in a paper a piece that just hit taxes right on the head and I cut it out. It's kind long so I am going to please give me some extra space this week cause some time I want just so much to spout about but this thing taxes just fills my mouth and I want people to read this piece so I'm sending you the piece I cut out of the paper, so be shore and mail it back to me to keep. By Other Editors—TAXES Charlotte Observer: Our fellow townsmen, W. E. Price, recently in Texas, brought back with him a newspaper clipping on taxes taken from The San Antonio Light, which in his judgement, The Observer would do well to send out through its circulation channels. We are in agreement with Mr. Price that the taxation issue in this country in os such gravity as to warrant constant iteration and reiteration and that the public will never be led into retreat from supporting the present extravagantly high cost of government until it is made intensely and individually tax-minded. We reproduce the impressive statement from the San Antonio newspaper: Taxes are impoverishing the people of America. Taxes are imparing the people's purchasing power. Taxes are closing shops and factors and putting people out of work. Taxes are increasing prices and lowering the American standards of living. Taxes taken from the industrious and thrifty are wasted on the lax and the lazy. Taxes are plundering useful industry. Taxes are robbing production labor. Taxes are supporting politicians' entire families.

WRITES "WHY I LIKE THE READING CLUB" "There are several reasons why I like to attend the Reading Club. "Perhaps the first and most important one is the benefit and value I receive by attending. By this I mean the knowledge I gain, and the interesting things I learn, as well as the enjoyment I get out of the books I check and read each Saturday. By reading these books it also enables me to increase my vocabulary and read much more rapidly and better. Another reason is for the pleasure I get out of attending, not only do I get a great pleasure out of reading the books that I check as I mentioned above, but I enjoy the interesting story, the stories that are told by the story-tellers, the entertainments that are given, such as picnics and shows, together with the fellowship that is shown. I have also had another great pleasure, and that is serving as president of the V. R. C. I have enjoyed this immensely, and at the same time have received some very good training along this line. Lastly I enjoy coming, because of the different people with whom I associate, come in contact with and meet. It is a pleasure to be a member and attend each meeting, for each Saturday brings a new story and a new personality telling that story. I consider it a great privilege and we should be very proud of it.

Something to think about: It requires about 2.4 acres per person to supply us with all domestically produced and consumed agricultural products. . . . About 18 percent of all the farms in the United States are under 20 acres in area, but these include only about one percent of the total farm area. . . . Tenants, including croppers, operated 42 percent of all the farms in 1935, as compared with 25 percent in 1880. . . . Based on the bureau of public roads estimates, the total United States gasoline consumption in 1937 was 21,208,977,000 gallons.

Some 90 percent of the 175,583 Georgia farms that are to be checked for compliance under the 1939 Agricultural Conservation Program have been examined by field reporters, according to Homer S. Durden, state administrative officer. Over 9,000,000 acres have been examined in the field. Durden says the acreage figures obtained at this time will form the basis for benefit payments, and that the work is expected to be completed in most counties, prior to the planting of cotton, so that marketing checks may be issued as soon as possible.

After a successful season with The Professors, Marion Carpenter, director, is organizing a new orchestra made up of W. R. Lovett, Lambert Key, Albert Key, Zack Smith, saxophones; Neal Bunn and Bernard Morris, trumpets; E. B. Rushing and Bill Aldred, trombones; J. Hal Waters, drums.

whites of eggs it is a good practice to put a pinch of salt in the whites before beating them. The salt stiffens the whites, makes them beat up faster, to a slightly greater volume. And it also makes the foam less likely to become watery on standing.

Another way to use salt in cooking eggs is to add a little to the water in which you poach eggs. This added salt makes the eggs slightly less than biscuits. And for cooking cereals such as rice, oatmeal, and cornmeal, the standard amount of salt is about one teaspoon to a quart of water.

Skilful cooks never neglect to add a dash of salt to cooked fruits and fruit drinks. And many find that cocoa, milkshakes, and some other beverages are also improved by a few grains of salt.

Because salt seems to make "sweet things sweeter" it should always be put in candies, cakes, ice cream, and other sweets. If butter is used as the shortening in cake, there may be enough salt in that. But if the shortening is unsalted, from one-fourth to one-half teaspoon of salt is right for the ordinary cake recipe using from one to two cups sugar.

500,000 Drivers Licenses Sold

The last of 500,000 drivers licenses, issued by the Georgia Department of Public Safety, was in the mails today, Commissioner L. E. Sullivan announced.

He said the final batch included licenses for all applications made before the July 31 deadline with the exception of about 2,000 which were mailed but returned to the department "unclaimed," or those which contained errors.

Commissioner Sullivan said he wished to thank in behalf of the entire department drivers who have had to wait, some as long as two months, for their permits.

"We realize the drivers have been caused considerable inconveniences during this delay and every member of the department appreciates the consideration and patience drivers have had during this jam," he said.

When Mr. Sullivan became commissioner on July 1, there were 400,000 unexpired applications piled in the department offices. Since that time, he said, clerks have worked day and night to get licenses mailed "as fast as possible."

"Today the jam is cleared and only those applications held up for corrections or delayed for some other specific reason have not gone in the mails," he said.

Commissioner Sullivan said the system is being simplified so that such a delay will not occur again during renewal period.
