T.C. to Send Delegates to Student Anti-Gene Meeting

The Georgia Tech Student Anti-Gene movement has agreed on a delegation of three to represent the university at the South-wide meeting to be held in Atlanta November 14-15. The delegation will consist of three members of the student body and an advisor, J. M. Langford, who has been a leader of the movement for many years.

The students plan to meet with other groups from the South and to discuss the problems of the anti-Gene movement and to plan a strategy for future activities. The delegation will be responsible for reporting back to the student body on the results of the meeting and to make recommendations for action.

The meeting is expected to be attended by representatives from all the major Southern universities, and the Georgia Tech delegation will have an opportunity to present their views and to learn from other students who are actively involved in the movement.

The Georgia Tech Anti-Gene movement has been active in the state for several years, and the students have been successful in raising awareness of the issue and in persuading many people to support their cause. They hope to continue their efforts and to make a positive impact on the educational system of the state.

P. T. A. Carnival Now

FOR

Red Letter Day Here

There used to be two special days in the year when the school and the community would come together to show their appreciation for a particular group of students. This year, the P. T. A. has decided to honor the C. of C. with a special event that will be held on the last Saturday in November. The day will be filled with games, contests, and other activities designed to bring the community together.

CURTAILMENT OF POWER IS NOW
MANDATORY IN THE SOUTHEAST

A Mandate from the State

In response to the current energy crisis, the state government has mandated curtailment of power in the Southeast area. Residents are being encouraged to conserve energy to help alleviate the strain on the power grid. This includes turning off lights when not in use, using energy-efficient appliances, and limiting the use of major appliances during peak hours.
