The Cotton Outlook.

(Atlanta Constitution)
Southern planters and business men, recovering from the temporary shock of the slump in cotton several days ago, are discovering that the situation is not nearly so discouraging as they were at first tempted to fear. While the market cannot be said to have made a radical advance, steady influence have been perceptibly at work and trading has shown less of that nervous, unsettled tone apparent on the issuance of the government's harvest report.

The current number of The Manufacturer's Record points out one of the causes for this return in confidence, taking very much the same ground as that advanced by The Constitution last week, and saying:

The sudden drop in cotton comes after a larger year than one-half of the crop has passed out of the hands of the farmers, and it is not at all probable that even the balance will be sold at present prices. Practically out of debt, with considerable surplus accumulated during the last three or four years of high prices, the southern cotton grower is in position to withhold much of his cotton for higher prices.

The Record then draws attention to a fact which, in the midst of the despondency over the cotton drop, had been rather overlooked—the significance of which largely offsets the tendency to despair:

Moreover, the south has raised an exceedingly large grain crop. The total value of the diversified products of southern farms is about $1,000,000,000, or nearly twice as much as the $500,000,000 which its cotton brings, the aggregate of cotton and all other farm products in the south being about $1,700,000,000. Under such conditions the southern farmer, notwithstanding the temporary decline in cotton, heavy as it is, will continue more prosperous than ever before.

This billion dollar yield of the diversified southern agricultural product is, in itself, a matter for sincere gratulation. It demonstrates very plainly that the constant efforts of the southern press in the preaching of a diversification doctrine, have been slowly and surely producing substantial results. For many years the Constitution has expressed the opinion that while the main money crop of the south would necessarily be cotton, the part of wisdom was to practice diversification to the largest profitable degree.

In other words, that it is eminently possible for the farmers of the south to be self-supporting in the highest sense; that by utilizing much of their spare land for the cultivation of cereals and investing judiciously in stock and cattle, as in the years disappeared we would need to import less and less from the west and other portions of the country, in the line of foodstuffs, etc., so that in time this section would be not only independent of other sections for its actual living material, but that the tide could be reversed and our imports of the past and present gradually become our exports.

It would seem from the most trustworthy symptoms that this view is gradually gaining ground in the minds of the southern farmers. Such propaganda, one successfully launched, propels itself. Those who are to benefit most largely by its operation see its feasibility by ocular demonstration and the necessity for argument and illustration gradually becomes superfluous.

In view of these facts and the confident manner in which bankers, manufacturers and merchants are making preparations for another year of prosperity similar to the passing one, there appears to be no valid excuse for pessimism. On the contrary, the command trade publications, including those devoted to the barometric iron and steel industries, is one of hopeful confidence. Where there is a hint of discord, it is found to be isolated and due to acute local influence than to general conditions of trade.

The Fall of Port Arthur.

Atlanta News.
The long and sanguinary struggle for the position of Port Arthur has ended at last and the brave defenders of this Gibraltar of the East march out with military honors.

Less than a year has elapsed since the titanic contest began on the sea forces and in the harbor of Port Arthur fearful havoc was wrought among the battleships of the great navies of the world. When the conflict began in earnest, it was toward Port Arthur that all the forces of the belligerents were directed.

Such an illiad of blood and tears has not been written in the record of modern times as that which darkens the history of Port Arthur. Its Muscovite defenders realized that it was the key to their eastern supremacy and that, once lost, upon its brow should be written the name of Lehabod, for its glory would have departed.

Every resource of ingenuity, every device which desperation inspired could contrive, the farthest extent of heroism which courage could suggest have been brought to bear in defending and assaulting Port Arthur. It had been fortified by Russia when she came in possession of it at a cost of many millions of dollars, and she was defending it with a desperation in proportion to its importance.

There was something of the stoic grandeur of old Rome in the patient determination of the besieged to hold out against all the odds of fortune. They have resisted many months after their supplies, as we are reliably informed, had become practically exhausted and fever walked with famine through the pestilential streets. There could be no hope of relief by land or sea, on both of which the sunrise flag was floating triumphantly.

Yet they have maintained their position with a dogged resolution worthy of the iron soldiers trained under Peter the Great and the imperious Catherine.

General Stoessel has not literally carried out the resolution signified at the beginning of the siege that Port Arthur would be his tomb. But certainly he has given death the dare a thousand times and has maintained a stout resistance and it would be nothing short of folly to continue.

He and his followers go out with all the honors of war. The Japanese have been magnanimous fighters from the beginning; they have shown on innumerable occasions that they experienced

"That stern joy which warriors feel in foemen worthy of their steel."

It was to be expected, therefore, that they would be willing for the brave defenders to march out with all the honors of war. They knew better than anyone how valiantly the doomed Russians had maintained the conflict against fearful odds. They were all the readier, therefore, to accord them, in the hour of capitulation, honors which were worthy of a triumph.

The New Year will scarcely struggle an event of greater struggle is now broken. The defenders of the Manchurian peninsula, successively beaten back from every outpost and vantage ground, must needs listen to overtures of permanent peace. Patriotism, even of that fantastic kind which animates the Russian heart, cannot contend indefinitely against the armor of fate and the odds of destiny. It is to be presumed that the powers of the world will see to it that hostilities are suspended until some permanent terms of peace can be proposed. It will be the most important development of the times and one toward which the eyes of the civilized world are directed.

Physical Value of Barnyard Manure.

For a long time our cultivators failed to get sight of the mechanical value of barnyard manure, says the farmers' Review. They found that barnyard manure gave better results in some way than did chemical manures, but could not figure out the cause. Now, however, we have learned that in various ways the structure of the soil is affected by the presence of the barnyard manure than by the chemical manure. On heavy soils the advantage of barnyard manure over some other manures is very apparent.

We have mentioned in a previous article the adding of humus to the soil as one very important way in which the barnyard manure aids the soil. There are others. One of these is to lighten up the soil and let in the air, which will be followed by the growth of rootlets to still further make the soil porous.

The hard clay soil is not easily permeated by the roots of plants, even when it has a good deal of plant food in it. The texture of the soil is so close that the air cannot get in between the particles, and the plants that try to grow on such soil make but a sickly development. Now put on some barnyard manure either green or partly rotted. If it is thoroughly worked into the soil it quickly becomes disintegrated, and a thousand minute paths are made in the soil where the vegetable matter is present, and the air finds a ready admittance. The rootlets of the plants penetrate these layers and find plant food abundant. They send up the supplies to the plants and the leaves of the plant develop greatly and send back material to strengthen the roots. It was not before a matter so much of lack of plant food as texture of the soil permitting the plants to utilize that plant food.

It is a mistake to suppose that the value of barnyard manure can be told by the chemist, or that even when we have added the water holding power of the humus we have found its full value. The mechanical effect is very great, how great will depend on the kind of soil into which the barnyard manure is plowed or barrowed.

On sandy land the effect is not the same, but it is, however, beneficial. If the land is inclined to be leachy, barnyard manure is the best kind of manure to apply, as it does not permit the fertility mixed with it to be washed out and drained off. The manure holds moisture, and this is a help to the soil in dry weather. It also decays slowly, and the fertility is thus released a little at a time. During the time this is going on the crops that have been planted on the soil are growing, and a million little root hairs are permeating the soil ready to take the fertility as fast as it is released by the decaying fibers. It is thus caught before it has time to soak down beyond the reach of plants.

No class of fertilizers will ever be able to take the place of barnyard manure, and the more of it made on the farm, the better for the land.—Ex.

No More Stomach Troubles
All stomach trouble is removed by the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It gives the stomach perfect rest, digests what you eat without the stomach's aid. The food builds up the body and restores the stomach to health. You don't have to diet yourself. That famous Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, J. D. Ezline, of Allegheny, Mich., says, "I suffered heartburn and stomach trouble for some time. My sister-in-law had the same trouble and was not able to eat in six weeks. She lived entirely on warm water. After taking two bottles of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure she was entirely cured. She now eats heartily and is in good health. I am glad to say Kodol gave me instant relief." A WIREGRASS WOOING

Dublin Times.
"The year is waning, Jennie, and the frost is on the vine, the 'possum's up the 'sinner tree, the 'later's on the vine; the meat is in the smokehouse an' the corn is in the barn, an' there's plenty quilts an' kiver, lass, to keep you snug an' warm. My house is new an' 'shinin' an' my horses fat an' roun'—I've the finest brace of milch cows for many miles aroun', an' 'only one thing's needed' to make it all complete, an' that's the little woman that's a smilin' now so sweet. I've been to see a person an' talked it to your pap, who allers seemed to like me an' the bigness of my crop, an' they're willin' for the splicin' if you'll only say your part, an' be my little wifey—jes' the idol of my heart. I thought you kinder fiked me in th' 'happy days gone by jes' a-jedgin' by the twinklin' that was sparkin' in your eyes, when we were kids together an' climbed to yonders hill to watch the water fallin' from the sheetin' at the mill. I'm gettin' kinder lonely in the big house by myself, a-pullin' down the dishes an' the rations from the shelf, an' I need you dearest Jennie, in every other way—to make me allers happy you've but a word to say."

By this time the head of Jennie was nesting on his breast, and the sun was slowly sinking into dimness in the west, the birds their music blending with the rumbling of the mill, and the folks to supper calling from the farmhouse on the hill. So, they walked on off together 'midst the dying of the day, their hearts with fond hopes beating while Love, it led the way, and they looked on to the future as a bright and happy dream, as their shadows slowly faded from the surface of the stream.

In Memoriam.
On the 24th day of October, 1904, God saw fit to remove from our midst one of our members in the person of Miss Ann Eliza Jones, who was just entering into womanhood, and who joined the church at Friendship September 4, 1904. She was a good, kind-hearted, God-fearing young woman, and her death has been a shock to all who knew her.

How suddenly we are sometimes snatched away into eternity! All the loving hands and medical attention could do could not save her. Oh, how she must have suffered; yet she bore it willingly. She never feared death, though she knew her life was short. Amid the intense pain of her sickness a flame of love and faith in God helped her to endure it. She put her whole trust in Him who doeth all things well. She was never heard to murmur. She said it would soon be well with her for she was going home to be with her loved ones. Her death was only a dream. It was only a dream to her, for she was ready to meet her Savior.

Her gentle voice now is hushed:
Thy warm, true heart is still,
And on thy young and innocent brow
Is resting death's cold chill.
Thy hands clasped upon thy breast—
Free from all care and gloom—
Are hidden now from those who loved
Beneath the silent tomb.

She was conscious up to the last, and when the moment came for her passage over, the river, she breathed a last goodbye, smiled sweetly and the soul of our dear sister was born away forever.

How sad it is to give up our loved ones, but let us content ourselves in knowing that it was God's will.—And His shall be done.

Relatives and friends, she is not lost, but as the son at even tide sinks out of sight that His glory may be shown on earth and sea and sky, so she has passed out of sight that the glory of her resting will be seen. Her sweet face, loving words and kind deeds will be missed by her friends and relatives. A place is vacant that cannot be filled.

Where the faded flowers shall bloom,
Blossom never more to fade,
Where the shaded sky shall brighten,
Brighten never more to fade,
Where the child shall meet its mother
And the mother meet her child
And dear families be gathered that were scattered on the tide,
Dear Eliza, may we all meet and rest 'Mid the holy and the blest.

The party gets shall soon unfold
And His dear voice shall bid us come
Where none may weep nor e'er grow old;
When angel hands shall lift the veil
We greet the friends we loved so long.

MILLEN AND WAYNESBORO

AFTERS. S. & N. RAILWAY
These Enterprising Georgia Cities Would Like to Have the Statesboro and Athens Line Tap Them.

A party of gentlemen were in Statesboro one day this week representing the hustling little city of Millen. They were free to say that it was their intention to make a strong pull for the Statesboro, Savannah & Northern railway to tap their town on its line between Statesboro and Athens. They thought that some traffic arrangements could be perfected with the Millen & Southwestern, by which a common terminal could be arranged at Millen. Say that the new line should cross the Millen & Southwestern about Emmalane and back into Millen and pull out again on its way through to Athens. They will make a strong bid for this arrangement. They argue that in tapping Millen the road will go into a town that is already built, Millen handles thousands of bales of cotton every year, besides her immense mercantile and fertilizer market, this the new road would be in a position to bid for.

They stated that Waynesboro, too, intended to make a bid for the line to go by that city, another fine business town.

Cured His Mother of Rheumatism
"My mother has been a sufferer for many years from rheumatism," says W. H. Howard of Husband, Pennsylvania. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at all walking was painful. I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she declared it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried, in fact, she is never without it now and it is times able to walk. An occasional application of Pain Balm keeps away the pain that she was formerly troubled with." For sale by All Druggists.

OBITUARY
On Dec. 23th God sent the death angel to bring home the sainted spirit of our dear grandmother, Patsy Williams who bore marks of ninety years of toil and care.

Me thinks I can see the celestial host as they enter a heavenly gate, touch the strings of their golden harps, sing these are they who came up through many trials and tribulations and have washed their robes in the blood of the lamb.

We cannot wish her back; those old care worn hands are maultering in the dust, yet the spiritual ones are sending forth notes of praise to "Him that sitteth on the great white throne" on harps of gold.

She is wearing the spotless robe of white and the golden crown that Christ said was laid up for the faithful. Dear uncle and aunts weep not as they that hath no hope. It won't be long before God will send her spirit back to wait another one home. She is waiting just over the River on the beautiful banks of the City of God.

It would be a sad thought to me if no one should be at that beautiful River waiting for me. So let us live that when we come to die we can draw it and it down to pleasant dreams.

A grand daughter, Lallah.

Wendel's Lecture a Success

On last night one of the largest audiences that ever filled the college auditorium faced Mr. George R. Wendel the Washington lecturer.

For one and a half hours the crowd was held in close attention to a magnificent description of the wonderful skill and personality of "Stonewall Jackson." General Jackson was pictured as the controlling force in shaping the great battles of the Civil War. A graphic description of the movements of Jackson and his men was given; his long marches and his surprising appearances in the very places where the enemy least expected him was one of his strongest points. The speaker believed that behind Stonewall Jackson was some power divine and when God saw fit to turn the tide of war in favor of the Federal army he laid His hands on Stonewall Jackson. The lecture is considered by those who heard it to be one of the best we have ever had.

His statement seems to meet controversy from a great many sources, however, for the Financial Red Book, a most carefully compiled publication, gives the names of practically all the persons in the United States who are supposed to be worth more than $500,000. And there are only 15,000 names on the list, states the Commoner. No claim is made that the names of every person worth that amount or more is given, but the proportion of those left out is extremely small, for a most exhaustive investigation has been made.

Experiments have been carried out by the British naval authorities with a new method for combating submarine vessels. This device comprises a new type of quick-firing torpedo. This missile is less than six inches in diameter and carries, of course, a smaller explosive charge than the eighteen-inch weapon, while furthermore it is not provided with a gyroscopic. The new torpedo is fired from an above-water tube, and the mechanism is so arranged that the weapon sinks when it has reached its limit of range. It is the object at which it was discharged is missed. The details are being carried out at Portsmouth, and are being followed with great interest, as it is considered a more effective means of fighting the submarine than the system of entangling them in wire nets.

Money from Quarterly Convict Hire. Captain Goodloe Yancey, secretary of the prison commission, has just issued his statement showing the amounts due to the state of Georgia for convict hire for the quarter ending December 31, 1904. The statement shows the total sum due to be $81,015.83.

Georgia Gets $28,544.76 Claims. According to a Washington dispatch, Senator Warren reported the omnibus claims bill from the senate claims committee, the first under the Bowman-Tucker act for three years. It carries appropriations for 1,500 claims, aggregating $2,500,000. For Georgia it carries 25 claims amounting to $28,544.76.

Many Miles of Good Roads. The Ware county commissioners have re-elected Mr. Roberts' overseer of public road work during the year 1905. Since the good road system was adopted in Ware county, about two years ago, about 40 miles of roads have been constructed by the county convict gang, and the system is proving a great success.

Myers Named for Sixth Term. Hon. Herman Myers, mayor of Savannah, has just been re-nominated to that office for the sixth time by the Citizens' Club and will be re-elected without opposition. This is the best record in the office of mayor of the city, no other Savannahian ever having held it more than three terms.

Calvin to Organize Growers. Hon. Martin V. Calvin, who was elected vice president of the National Cotton Growers' Association at the Shreveport, La. convention, is taking steps towards the organization of Georgia along the lines drawn at the meeting. Mr. Calvin will in a few days announce the appointments on the executive committee which will have this state in charge.

Jack Bone Escapes the Noose. Jack Bone, the notorious murderer, sentenced to death for the murder of Farmer Zach Hall, has been pronounced insane by a commission of physicians appointed by the state and ordered to be confined in the state sanitarium at Milledgeville, there to remain until his sanity shall have been restored.

To Observe Lee's Birthday. State School Commissioner W. B. Merritt has prepared a very interesting and valuable booklet to be sent to the different schools in the state to be used as a program for exercises which are to be held on the birthday of General Robert E. Lee. The birthday of the great general comes on January 19th, and in every school in Georgia there will no doubt be some observance made of the occasion.

Rigid Vaccination Ordered. The appearance of smallpox in the DeKalb district, Lowndes county, has made the Valdosta city officials take a determined stand to prevent the disease coming to the city. A strict quarantine has been established against the infected districts and rigid vaccination laws have been adopted. The police officers have been given the names of all the infected houses in the DeKalb district and parties from those who will be arrested and sent to the best house unless they are able to show a good health certificate.

Farmers Will Plant Less. Farmers all over the state are writing letters to Commissioner of Agriculture Stevens at Atlanta, telling him of their intention to cut their cotton crop, and the farmers at Hartsfield have decided to plant a half acre less than last year. It is estimated that the cotton crop in Georgia will be worth more than $500,000,000. And there are only 15,000 names on the list, states the Commoner. No claim is made that the names of every person worth that amount or more is given, but the proportion of those left out is extremely small, for a most exhaustive investigation has been made.

Town is Without a Mayor. The town of Hamilton in Harris county is without a mayor or marshal as the result of personal differences between Mayor Olin Barnes and Marshal Whitehead, which resulted in Whitehead being slightly injured in the hand.

Trolley Company Fails. New Orleans Concern is Placed in the Hands of a Receiver. Elwin C. Foster of New Orleans has been appointed receiver for the New Orleans Railway company by Judge Lanning in the United States circuit court at Trenton, N. J.

Mehaffey Gets a Pardon. W. S. Mehaffey, formerly a member of the Atlanta police force and detective department, and who has been in the penitentiary for the last three years, serving out a sentence for perjury, has been pardoned by Governor Terrell and is again a free man.

The prison commission recommended that he be given his freedom and acting on this recommendation the governor ordered that he be released. Mehaffey was convicted of perjury in Rabun county, where he did some detective work in a case there, and was sent to the penitentiary for five years.

Delegates to Cane Growers' Meet. Some 600 delegates from the cane-growing counties of Georgia to the Interstate Sugar Cane Growers' convention, which will be held in Montgomery, Ala., January 25 to 27, inclusive, were met at the request of Captain D. C. Parise of Savannah, president of the Interstate Cane Growers' Association, and the names of those who have been appointed were suggested by him.

State Will Hold Its Cotton. The state of Georgia, which owns three hundred thousand bales of cotton, will join in the movement of the farmers throughout the South and hold the cotton until the price goes to 10 cents.

Another Legislative Error. Another glaring error, committed by the last legislature, has just been brought to light, and like the judicial salary bill where the salaries of the judges were raised, but no appropriation made for the increase, it is a bill providing that the prison commission shall take charge of all the insane convicts of the state, but with no appropriation for the purpose.

At its annual meeting held in Atlanta last week, the state board of health came out strongly and emphatically in favor of compulsory vaccination, and it was determined that its efforts should be toward securing the passage of a general statute which shall make compulsory vaccination may be enforced wherever and whenever it is necessary for the purpose of preventing and stopping out smallpox.

Toccoa People After New County. Toccoa's annual municipal election took place a day or two ago, and in view of the fact that the community is making a very strong fight for a new county, and that it is said to be generally conceded that one of the new county prizes will come their way, quite a good deal of interest was taken in the election.

The nomination of W. D. Crum, colored, to be collector for the port of Charleston, S. C., was confirmed by the senate in executive session Friday by a vote of 33 to 17. Crum has been nominated by the President three times, and in addition to these nominations has received three recess appointments, and is now serving under the last of these. Confirmation was opposed by Senator Tillman, who objected to the appointment of a negro, but Senator Tillman made a speech devoted almost entirely to the question of the constitutional rights of the President to make a recess appointment when an actual recess had occurred, the senate having adjourned on session and began another at noon of the same day.

He introduced at the last session of congress a resolution on the subject of constructive recesses, which was referred to the committee on the Judiciary. Senator Platt, of Connecticut, chairman of that committee, said the resolution had been referred to a sub-committee, and that he expected a report would be made later. The recess issue played a very important part in the debate, which was participated in by fully a dozen senators. When Crum receives his commission, he will be entitled to receive the salary which has accumulated since his first appointment.

Six-Year Term for President. Senator Bailey Thursday submitted a proposed amendment to the constitution fixing the term of the President at six years and making him ineligible for re-election.

RUSSIANS MARCH OUT.

Pathetic Scenes Witnessed at Evacuation of Port Arthur—Japs Bear Burdens of Prisoners.

Advisers from headquarters of the Third Japanese Army state that five thousand men of the Russian garrison at Port Arthur were marched from the village at Yabutsu, on the shores of Pigeon Bay, for 15 miles to the railway station at Changtingzi at 3 o'clock Monday, and the other detachments followed soon after.

The long procession of the one-gaited Russian garrison was a pathetic sight. The first arrivals at Changtingzi were four drunks drawn by sorry-looking horses. They contained the staff officers who had refused to give their parole.

As the Japanese soldiers crowded about them with evident curiosity the faces of the Russian officers were an interesting study.

The typical counties named in the Williams resolution were suggested by a congressman from each state affected, as follows: Texas, Texas; Georgia, Barlett; Louisiana, Brocaud; Mississippi, Adams; Florida, Lanam; South Carolina, Lever; North Carolina, Paterson; Tennessee, Sims; Indian Territory, Loving; Oregon, Tschametz; Oklahoma, Burson of Tennessee.

Chairman Crumacker of the house committee on the census indicated the report a very interesting letter in regard to the census of the territory of North, which, in part, is as follows:

"In reply to your request, I beg to state that the census of the territory of North, which, in part, is as follows:

"The power to regulate the rights and duties of all persons in corporations within the limits of the state cannot extend so far as to regulate interstate commerce.

Concurs Bureau to Furnish Information Anent Cotton.

HOJSE MAKES THE CALL. Under Resolution Adopted by Representatives, Director, North Will Make a Full Report Within Delay.

The resolution requesting the census bureau to furnish a detailed statement concerning reports made to it by cotton ginners was offered in the House Monday by Minority Leader Williams of Mississippi, and, by unusual consent, was immediately called for and adopted.

Another bill will show the amount gained by each gin in two typical counties in each state up to the four dates on which the four census bureau reports issued so far this season have been based.

MEDICAL EXAMINER

Of the United States Treasury Recommends Pe-ru-na.

Another Prominent Physician Uses and Indorses Pe-ru-na.

Dr. Llewellyn Jordan, Medical Examiner of the United States Treasury, who has served three years of Pe-ru-na, has the following to say:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wonderful remedy. One short month's treatment of my catarrh of the prostate gland has resulted in a complete cure."

A constantly increasing number of physicians prescribe Pe-ru-na in their practice. It has proven its merits so thoroughly that even the doctors have overcome their prejudice against it.

"I am a rocking chair I found another man. The man found there were five snakes in this room, which he used in his business as a showman. I could have sworn I saw five of them. He noticed my nervousness and led the way into his bedroom. There was another snake curled up on his bed, stupefied."

"You, he wanted me to insure his snake. I believe the company made some sort of a deal with him, but I never saw a second time."—New York Press.
