HUBERT

Since our last writing there has been a few changes among the citizens of our little town.

Mrs. J. N. Wood and family have moved to Statesboro, and Mr. E. H. Robertson and wife are now living in the house formerly owned by the Woods. We are pleased to welcome Mr. Mrs. Robertson among our towns people.

The surroundings of Hubert seem to be rather attractive for the hunters, as we have had several parties of sportsmen from a distance with us recently. On last Friday Mr. Jackson of Atlanta, accompanied by several men from Guyton, spent the day in a very successful hunt. They bagged about forty birds. Then Saturday a party of about six from Savannah were hunting around here with Mr. P. H. Cone as "guide." We did not learn their luck, but presume they were successful, as Mr. Cone is one of the "veteran" hunters of this community. The following Monday, Mr. R. M. Williams and a number of other Statesboro men were down on a hunt. If they kill birds in proportion to the gun shots we heard that day, they must have felt amply repaid for the day's sport.

We are sorry to note the continued illness of our friend, Mr. Aaron Cone. He is the father of our postmaster, Mr. P. H. Cone, and a former resident of Bulloch county. His daughter, Mrs. Geo. Brewer of Oliver, is now at his bedside.

Our community has been very much saddened by the death of Mr. Nathan Johnson, more familiarly known to all as "Grandpa Johnson." He was quite an old gentleman, and has been a great sufferer of late years. He leaves a host of relatives and friends to mourn his loss.

Mrs. J. K. Forbes today received the sad intelligence of the death of her sister, Mrs. J. R. Ashley, of Lincoln, county. Mrs. Forbes and family have our deepest sympathy in their sad bereavement.

Mrs. Mingledorf, of Oliver, has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. R. H. Cone at this place. She was accompanied here by her daughter, Miss Maggie.

Mr. J. N. Wood, a former citizen of our town, spent a few days with relatives here last week. Mr. Wood passed through enroute for Macon, near which place he is soon to open a turpentine business. His many friends were glad to see him.

Mrs. J. M. Hiers and her son, Mr. L. O. Hiers were also in Statesboro Monday of this week on business. Mrs. Hiers returned Monday night, but as yet Mr. Hiers has not yet come back.

We regret not to have seen Mrs. J. F. Hagin in our town this week. She usually drives down to see us once or twice a week, and we miss her when she fails to come. Hope to see her in Hubert again soon.

METTER

Miss Maggie Kennedy, of Statesboro, is spending some time visiting her relatives and friends here.

The firm of McLean-Everett Co. is having their store painted, and will soon open up one of the neatest lines of ladies and gents furnishing goods that can be found any where.

Mr. J. Z. Kendrick was on our streets one day this week.

On account of the inclemency of the weather, Elder Morgan Brown did not fill his appointment here last Sunday night.

The Metter high school will open Monday 18th, under the supervision of Prof. Hamlin Ehrhardt as principal and Miss Isabel Hollingsworth as assistant. Both teachers are spoken of as being very fine teachers, and we predict for the coming term to be one of the best, and we earnestly request the trustees and patrons to be present at the opening and to bring all the boys and girls along with you and let them all take on every start, and then give the teachers your best co-operations for the interest of the school and let's make this term a record breaker.

Give Your Stomach A Rest

Your must be properly digested and assimilated to be of any value to you. If your stomach is weak or diseased take Kodol Dyspepsia cure. It digests what you eat and gives the stomach a rest, enabling it to recuperate, take on new life and grow strong again. Kodol cures sour stomach, gas bloating, heart palpitation and all digestive disorders. L. A. Soper, of Little Rock, Ky., writes us: "We feel that Kodol Dyspepsia Cure deserves all the commendation that can be given it, as it saved the life of our little girl when she was three years old. She is now six and we have kept it for her constantly, but of course she only takes it now when anything disagrees with her."

CLITO.

The death angel has visited our community, leaving sorrow and bereavement in its walk.
Mrs. Ben Darsey died on Saturday night last at the home of Mrs. B. F. Porter. She had been sick for some time and her death was not unexpected. She was a member of the Methodist church and will be sadly missed. Truly a mother in Israel has departed this life, and was buried at Macedonia last Tuesday.

Last Monday morning Miss Susie Deal, daughter of Mr. Frank Deal died at her home, from some trouble of the brain. A few days ago she was the picture of health, and her death was a shock to the family and friends. "In the midst of life we are in death."
Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved ones.

Several cases of smallpox reported near Clito. Get vaccinated people, it may be a little rough but it is better than the smallpox.

Our farmers have commenced work such as: ploughing and fixing fence.

They are in the saddle and masters of the situation if they will only, and the big of it is, stiek together and reduce the acreage and fertilizer bill.

Drummers are thick around Clito now.

Fraud Exposed.
A few counterfeiters have lately been making and trying to sell imitations of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and other medicines, thereby defrauding the public. This is to warn you to beware of such people, who seek to profit through stealing the reputation of remedies which have been successfully curing disease, for over 35 years. A sure protection, to our name on the wrapper. Look for it, on all Dr. King's, or Bucklen's remedies, as all others are mere imitations. H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, Ill., and Windsor, Canada. For sale by W. H. Ellis.

We Got There Early and Carry the News

The Statesboro News is now read all over Bulloch county, with few exceptions, by noon the day of publication. We have perfected special arrangements for its delivery to distant parts of the county, at the earliest possible moment. A man below Black creek now has his paper almost as soon as the subscribers in Statesboro has. We are indebted largely to the rural mail routes for this, but we have not stopped where their services left off, but have gone to other arrangements to have the paper carried and delivered.

We have also made applications for a pouch on the up freight on the Central and will probably get it, then by twelve o'clock we will have our paper at Metter and all the stations this side on the line of the B. & P.

There is nothing like getting there quick and carrying something when you go. That's what we propose to do. We propose to give our patrons the best that there is coming. Under our present arrangements the subscribers at the office along the line of the S. & S. railway get their papers before the ink dries on them, and before they are delivered even in Statesboro.

Holloway Again in Gang.

Mitchell Holloway, who escaped from the gang at Shearwood some time last fall is again in the toils. He was located in Pierce county some time ago, and Sheriff Kendrick went down one day last week and got him. He had slipped around in Tattnall county for quite awhile. He was sent up about a year ago on a rather nasty charge.

The authorities will make a close watch over him, and it is probable that he is in safe keeping now until the end of his term.

MILITARY OYSTER SUPPER A SUCCESS.

The oyster supper given by the Statesboro Volunteers on Friday night last proved to be a decided success. There was about $51 in the treasury when the crowd left, and every body had a good time. Several boxes were raffled off, one of which brought $8.00. The military boys were never in better condition than at this time. State Military Inspector Obar will be here tonight to inspect the company, and it is expected that a creditable showing will be made.

The company are making preparations to go down to Savannah on the 22nd to take part in the Washington's birthday exercises to be held there that day.

Wall Street Feels Power Of Farmers.

New York, Feb. 11.—The substantial advance in cotton prices this week might be considered rather strange or not warranted by conditions in few of the knowledge that a bumper crop season, 1904-5, has been grown.

Three days previously prices were approaching the lowest level since 1890, and the bears were predicting a further decline. This week there has occurred an increase of over 1 cent per pound, but the change in quotation does not measure the change in the situation, which was due primarily to the determination of spot holders not to sacrifice their cotton.

It is pretty generally presumed that the rise in prices induced selling on the part of the planters in financial straits, but the cotton liquidated has as yet not figured in the movement.

FARMERS ARE WISE.
In the opinion of the experts, the southern producers are pursuing a wise policy in keeping their cotton from the market, as the strength in futures would indicate.

The price is still below the limit determined upon for selling, which in most cases is 10 cents a pound, but even if this level be reached, it does not follow that a reduced acreage will not be planted.

The doings of the recent convention in New Orleans, when it was decided that there was to be a general hold back of cotton, did not strike the bear element seriously. They did not foresee any beneficial results. Even some of the bulls did not anticipate that the effects of such a procedure would felt so soon. The boot now, apparently, is on the other foot, and shorts have begun to realize, to judge from the advance in the market, that a new and important factor has come into the market.

It is estimated that nearly 5,000,000 bales has been stored in the south until higher prices have been able to purchase only a small amount as this cotton and are reported as being unable to meet their engagements.

Mrs. Jincy Bland Goes To Her Reward.

On yesterday at the home of her son, Mr. Mike Bland near this place Mrs. Jincy Bland one of the oldest women in Bulloch passed peacefully to her reward. She has been in feeble health for some months and her death created no surprise to her family and friends.

The remains were interred at Middleground church cemetery today.

Macon May Have A Fair Anyway.

The wide awake business people of the city of Macon are not discouraged at their defeat in securing the state fair. They have called a meeting, which was held last night, to take steps towards the starting of a movement for a fair to be held in Macon this fall independent of the state fair. They have a good sized surplus already on hand and can use it to no better purpose.

A fair at Macon will bring thousands of people into the city who would not have gone, and the fact that the state fair is to be held in Atlanta will cut no figure as many people will go to Macon who are too far away to go to Atlanta.

In the event that Macon has a fair it is probable that the Bulloch county exhibit will be seen on exhibition there as well as at the great state fair in Atlanta. We have shown at two fairs each year ever since we started and there is no reason why we should not of pull in both Macon and Atlanta this fall.

Atterbury Adjudged Inane.

Andre Atterbury, a middle age white man, was lodged in jail here on Sunday, charged with being insane. His friends have noticed for some time that his mind was weak, and on Saturday had him detained on this charge. He will be taken to the asylum at Milledgeville, where it is hoped that his mind will soon be restored.

Mrs. Davis Entertained.

Mrs. T. L. Davis entertained at her home on West Main street on Thursday in honor of her guests, Misses Ada Still and Opal Woodcock, of Brooklet, a number of young people to a most delightful evening's reception.

Quite a number assembled at the hospitable home at 8 o'clock and partook of the many dainty refreshments which had been prepared in behalf of their evening's enjoyment. The merry throng was much amused by the sweet strains of music and many interesting games.

At 10:30 all dispersed to their respective homes, carrying with them the love and highest esteem of their hostess and declaring to her the pleasures that she had so liberally afforded them during the evening. All were deeply impressed with the manner in which they were entertained, and those happy hours will long be remembered.

Women in Our Hospitals

Appalling Increase in the Number of Operations Performed Each Year—How Women May Avoid Them.

Going through the hospitals in our large cities one is surprised to find such a large proportion of the patients lying in those snow-white beds women and girls, who are either awaiting recovery from serious operations.

Why should this be the case? Simply because they have neglected themselves. Various and wondrous troubles are certainly on the increase among the women of this country; they creep upon them unawares, but every one of those patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warning in that bearing-down feeling, pain at left or right side of the womb, nervous exhaustion, pain in the small of the back, leucorrhoea, headache, faintness, dizziness, all signs of the womb or irregularities. All of these symptoms are indications of an unhealthy condition of the ovaries, and if not heeded the penalty paid by a dangerous operation.

When these symptoms manifest themselves, do not drag along until you are obliged to go to the hospital and submit to an operation. But remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will restore you to health. It is a safe, reliable and handy. Your dealer can show you one. They are sold everywhere.

MISS RUBY MUEHRSH, of East Chicago, Ind., writes: "I have been a sufferer with irregular menstruation and ovarian trouble for about three months ago, after using the Compound as directed, but it did not seem to do me any good. I then bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it did not only save me from an operation, but made me entirely well."

Mrs. Fred Seydel, 412 N. 14th Street, West Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "I have been a sufferer with irregular menstruation and ovarian trouble for about three months ago, after using the Compound as directed, but it did not seem to do me any good. I then bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it did not only save me from an operation, but made me entirely well."

GIGANTIC RAILWAY TERMINAL FACILITIES FOR NEW YORK CITY

Involve the Use of More Than Nineteen City Blocks.

The plans for the new terminal in New York City involve the use of an area of more than nineteen city blocks between Vanderbilt and Lexington avenues. Forty-second and Forty-seventh streets, Madison and Lexington avenues.

The station proper, together with the postoffice and express buildings, will cover the blocks between Vanderbilt and Lexington avenues from Forty-fifth to Forty-third streets inclusive, and the block fronting on Forty-second street between Vanderbilt avenue and Depue place.

The buildings will be set back from Forty-second street a distance of about forty feet, and back from Vanderbilt street a distance of about seventy feet, so as to afford a generous approach to the station and give the effect of 140 feet open space on the Forty-second street frontage and 120 feet open space on the Vanderbilt avenue frontage.

The frontage of these buildings will be 800 feet on Vanderbilt avenue, 625 feet on Forty-second street, 400 feet on Lexington avenue, 375 feet on Forty-fourth street, 200 feet on Depue place, and 300 feet on Forty-second street.

In addition to the public streets there will be connections by ample private roadways and walks to Madison avenue on the west and Lexington avenue on the east; thus giving the traveling public facilities for entering the station not only from Forty-second street on the south, Vanderbilt avenue and

BRITISH QUARANTINE RULE REQUIRES DOGS TO WEAR HARNESS UNDER CERTAIN CONDITIONS FOR SIX MONTHS.

Appeals to the British Board of Agriculture for a limitation in the six months' quarantine of dogs who had to be quarantined by special permission with certified and approved veterinarians, have resulted in a certain mitigation. Now, dogs coming from the Continent, America, Africa or Australia, can be quarantined for three months at an approved veterinarian's or can be retained at a kennel designed by the owner for six months, provided it wears a harness marked "in quarantine for rabies."

WORLD and GARDEN

As a range for poultry the orchard is ideal, particularly if it is in soil, for they will have the benefit of the green food, the insects and the shade, but, as with swine, it should not be expected that the poultry will get any great proportion of their living in the orchard, if it has not a good growth of green, then a grassy run must be provided in addition to the orchard for shade. In an orchard where the soil was kept cultivated young chicks would certainly thrive, for there would be no danger of dampness, as there would be on a sod range, and there would be the loose soil for them to scratch in and get more of less insects. Combine the orchard with a grassy range, with cops for protection in stormy weather, a fair amount of grain food with plenty of good water, and it is an ideal place for poultry from very early spring to late fall.—Indianapolis News.

Applies the Year Around. There is no valid reason why farmers should not have applied the entire year. With ordinary cellar storage we ate our last apples July 3, and if a little extra care had been taken, these same apples might have been kept until August.

HER MISTAKE. Nell—I told him if he dared to kiss me he'd be sorry for it. Belle—And was not? Nell—Yes, I was the only one who was sorry—sorry I told him.—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE CULTURE OF THE BEE IN CHINA. A curious Chinese industry is wax farming, or the cultivation of a wasp-farming insect, the Ericopis peina, an account of which has just been given by Professor Sasaki, of the Agricultural College of the Imperial University of Japan, in a special bulletin.—London Globe.

capacity of the station without in any way interfering with the architectural features or general plan of the station. Both the main entrances and exits there are additional entrances and exits for the suburban passengers, so that the commuter need not enter the station, but can get on or off directly from the street to the train or from the train to the street by an easy incline, avoiding all staircases. There are two exits from the station, one on Madison avenue, and one on Lexington avenue. The latter is a splendid entrance and exit to the station by way of an incline from Madison avenue, enabling the cab or foot passenger to approach or leave the station at the west end of the grand concourse. At the subway level there is provided a subordinate concourse with ample waiting and retiring rooms. At this level there is provided a loop for quickly dispatching the suburban trains and provision has also been made for a possible connection with the rapid transit system.

The baggage room adjoins Depue place, Forty-fifth street and Vanderbilt avenue, with 1200 feet of street frontage and 47,000 square feet of floor space, sufficient to care for baggage in rush seasons without the delay of delivery now experienced at all large stations.

It has been the intention in preparing these plans to sacrifice everything to the convenience of the traveling public and to the proper administration of a terminal railway station.

The architects (Warren & Wetmore associated with Reed & Stem) have admirably accomplished the following results:

They have provided the best possible facilities for getting to and getting away from the station.

The cab stand is situated in the most convenient place for arriving passengers.

The outgoing baggage is convenient to the ticket offices, and the incoming baggage is convenient to the exits.

They have separated the incoming and the outgoing passengers, thus avoiding the usual confusion.

They have provided ample waiting rooms and a grand concourse sufficient in size to accommodate the largest possible excursion or holiday crowd.

The Wealthy Patient was in a Quandary.

"The Fee of the Eminent Surgeon would be $1.00 more than I have in the Bank. If, however, I die, the Eminent Lawyer will take $1.00 more than I leave. Which shall it be?"

While he was still debating, a Plumber repaired a Leak on the Third Floor and received the Whole Estate.

Morn! When between the Devil and the Deep Sea a Third Party may get you.—Harper's Bazar.

THE POWER OF THE MAGNET. The power of the magnet is best shown when a person sits beside it with one side of his face against the point of the magnet. The current is turned on and an attendant places several wire nails and as long as a lead pencil with their heads against the other side of the face. Those nails do not fall to the floor, but remain sticking to the face, just the same as if they had been driven through.

How far the magnetic influence of the current in question has not been defined as yet, but from the way the watches of the physicians and the attendants about the hospital behave, it is thought that it extends throughout the entire hospital, which covers two blocks of ground. Whenever persons go into the room where this magnet is placed, supposed to be turned on for their watches, as they will be thoroughly magnetized if near the magnet when the current is turned on that they will be useless until after they are demagnetized.

This great magnet has been inspected by scientific men and professors from several colleges, and they are of the opinion that it opens up a line of research which has hitherto been practically undeveloped. Upon Dr. Frank M. Wilson's return from Europe he will conduct a line of original research from which striking results are expected.—New York Tribune.

URGENT OPINION. The cutter limped up the front steps and ran the bell.

"Is this the Rev. Dr. Fourchly lives?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the housemaid.

"Well, will you please tell him I'm a good man, but that I think he ought to show his faith by his works? This is the second time I've had effect. It is the best thing I've ever had. I'm a good man, but I'm a little sidekick. Good morning."

Then he turned and limped slowly down the steps.—Chicago Tribune.

BERKSHIRES AT THEIR BEST. It has been my good fortune to visit two large breeding establishments where Berkshire hogs are their best. One gentleman had about seventy-five of various ages and sizes, and it was certainly entertaining and instructive to go about with him among the pens and listen to his talk in regard to them. His enthusiasm is just a little bit contagious, for if one has the least bit of latent liking for hogs he will have it kindled by a general interest in them while listening to a recital of their good points. Another gentleman has 100 of them, and among the lot are some imported from Europe. They are fellows, bearing such titles as Lord Oxford, etc. These old English boars sometimes attain a weight of 750 pounds a size that the American Berkshires are not known to approach.

The Berkshires are pre-eminently easy keepers, quick to mature, and easy breeders, the sows being good mothers and heavy milkers. The hogs are thin and glossy, entirely destitute of wooliness next to the skin, an undesirable feature in the order unless it is also muzzled." While on a highway or thoroughfare, or while being removed by rail, the wear of the new harness is required to be also controlled by a collar and chain.

A HANDY HAMMER. This is a simple labor saving costing nothing beyond the power of placing the hammer head in position, and it will enable one to draw a nail with greater ease and without bending. The illustration shows the idea plainly, which is simply to have the end of the handle project beyond the head for about an inch.

The handle is fastened in the head in the usual manner and a hole bored through the projecting end close to the head of the hammer, through which the nail is driven. The illustration shows the idea plainly, which is simply to have the end of the handle project beyond the head for about an inch.

THE INTRODUCTION OF ENGLISH BLOOD. The introduction of English blood has done much to improve the size of the Berkshires. The purely American bred seldom produced more than eight pigs to a litter, more commonly five or six, but it is not uncommon to see a litter of ten. It was shown a six-year-old sow that had produced nearly one hundred pigs, which at the prices received for breeding stock, would be worth over $100. From one of these litters eight were selected to ship to the Argentine Republic, South America. A rigid examination for disease was instituted before shipping, and the hogs were found to be free from any disease. They would have to be twenty-eight days in transit, but the long journey and the change in climate were without bad effect. It is the opinion of several desirable breed of hogs will become more and more thoroughly disseminated.—Correspondent Michigan Farmer.

GINSENG GROWING IS A PROFITABLE INDUSTRY. The walls of farms visited in summer by city folk are now regarded as perhaps the chief source of typhoid fever.

BIVAL OF THE BEE IN CHINA. A curious Chinese industry is wax farming, or the cultivation of a wasp-farming insect, the Ericopis peina, an account of which has just been given by Professor Sasaki, of the Agricultural College of the Imperial University of Japan, in a special bulletin.—London Globe.

The cotton bears are mad at the recent rise in cotton, and are doing their best to depress the price.

The Dublin Courier Dispatch is now in a big new building, and sending out a live progressive paper.

Atlanta has been snow and ice bound. The wires were all down, and for once Atlanta was the whole show.

Billie West answers Billie Osborne, and says he is running on his record. In our opinion that is what will beat him, is his record.

Now the Honorable Clark Howell threatens to draw Col. Estill's record on him and prove that he too was a mercenary in the days gone by.

Samuel McCue, a lawyer and former mayor of Chancelorville, Virginia, was hung last Friday for the murder of his wife last September.

It looks now as if Murphy Chandler is to be the people's candidate for president of the senate. We believe he will be elected by a big majority.

The poor people have suffered greatly in the large cities during the recent bad weather, and had it not been for the good Samaritans, it would have been ten times worse.

Young man start you a bank account. When you are old the jingle of a few dollars saved up will be good music when you grow old, and the world forgets you.

The Millen News now has as editor Col. W. V. Tyler, formerly of our town. Editor Godbee has resigned, and made his last kick, but he was a first class editor, a scholar and a gentleman; and we are satisfied Col. Tyler will give Millen an up to date paper.

Today is Saint Valentine's day, and the little love letters and funny pictures will flood the mails. We were all young, once, and remember such little poetry, as sure as the grass grows around the stump, you are my sweet darling sugar lump.

A Meat Compliment

It is intended by some parties to establish another paper at Statesboro. The Statesboro News fully covers the field and is an excellent paper, well edited and neatly printed. It will be suicidal to establish another paper at Statesboro. It will mean that neither paper will receive enough patronage to live, and Statesboro will have two poor papers instead of one good one.

The above from the Dublin Courier-Dispatch will be of interest to those who think that two pieces is better than one whole newspaper. The News fully appreciates the neat little compliment paid us by our neighbor, which is one of the best newspapers in the state. The position taken by our neighbor, that two papers here would mean two poor ones in place of one good one, would prove true if it should turn out that the business were to be anything like equally divided. In our case we do not believe this to be the case. If what our friends tell us is true—and we believe it is—The News has given entire satisfaction to the great mass of people and they will continue to give it their undivided patronage, so long as it maintains its present standard, no matter how many little sheets may come and go. We have seen them come and we have seen them go, but the News management have never suffered by their presence. We Harold's conversational powers and choice of words are in their formative stage, and his mother is finding it a rather difficult matter to train them into the straight and narrow path of elegance. He is the son of a well-known violinist of the city and himself something of a musical prodigy, but contrary to all belief, this does not keep Harold from possessing an appetite the like of which belongs only to all other boys of his substantial build.

Few farmers now doubt that scientific farming pays, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Object lessons of the practical value of many innovations once derided as fads have been too numerous and convincing, continues that organ. The latest illustration comes from Iowa, where one man's tireless and intelligent efforts are credited with adding 100,000,000 bushels to the State's corn crop for 1904.

It is estimated that $30,000,000 has been added to the value of this year's crop as compared with previous years, and that far greater gains will be recorded when the newly-introduced system shall have become general. The man who has wrought what is almost a modern miracle is Prof. P. G. Holden, of the Iowa Agricultural college. He turned his attention to the matter of Iowa's falling corn crops, thoroughly investigated conditions and found a remedy. He induced increasing numbers of farmers to follow his directions and the result was a record and preparing the ground for planting. Only the most perfect kernels from the earliest, largest ears of corn are used for seed purposes and scientific methods of dilage follow the planting. In consequence the average yield per acre rose in one year from twenty-seven and one-half to forty bushels.

The Secret of German Success

Marvellous Technical Education Results. Immense Chemical Products Every Year. The Romance of Artificial Indigo.

By Consul-General Frank H. Mason, of Berlin.

GERMANY, being mainly dependent upon foreign markets, requires technical development to maintain her place. In no field is the demonstration more striking than in chemical manufacture, of which the total annual product is valued at about $360,000,000. The organization of chemical study in Germany for industrial purposes was begun by Prof. Justus von Liebig. His great work was to train pupils to explore the secrets of nature and to find what processes could be made to serve the practical needs of mankind.

From the technical schools of Germany universities have come the army of young chemists who have made applied chemistry the most vigorous of German industries. Four-fifths of all the world's annual product of dye stuffs, as well as a large proportion of the medical preparations derived from coal tar, are made in Germany.

The aniline industry began in Great Britain, which is the largest producer of benzene, and spread to France, Switzerland and Germany. In the latter country it was met by a throng of trained chemists.

It is these men, who now number between six and seven thousand, who are willing to work in original research, in laboratories provided by the great chemical companies, and an interest in whatever of value they may discover, who have brought the chemical industry of Germany up to its present leading position.

They have made it possible for Germany to import benzene from Great Britain, Belgium and Austria-Hungary, and to utilize the same, as justly fitted many times in value, to all civilized countries. Not less than 29,330 tons were exported in 1902.

The history of one of these coal-tar products—artificial alizarine or indigo, made synthetically from anthracene—reads like a romance. In 1852 the German Empire imported 2,557,740 pounds of indigo, valued at $4,450,000. In May, 1857, Dr. Bayer, a chemist at Munich, solved the problem of making indigo synthetically, since which time German imports of the natural dyeing have sunk to $83,000 in 1902, while the exports of artificial indigo have risen to 9154 tons in 1902, of which 2743 tons came to the United States.

It is largely due to the work of expert chemists that the saccharine contained in sugar beets has been raised from 5.72 percent in 1840 to 13 percent in recent years, whereby the German sugar industry was saved. Similarly in iron and steel manufacture and in textile production it is only the possession of a vast army of skilled chemists, metallurgists, designers, dyers, weavers and spinners that has enabled Germany to practically monopolize certain special forms of manufacture.

After years of expectation I have at last realized a dream of a modern high-power hunting rifle and dum-dum bullets. I sailed forth to Maine. Far into the woods I wandered. My guide, after several days of hard work, pointed out to my excited gaze a bull moose, standing meek and cowlike. I fired. He was hit, but not mortally. By the blood on the snow we tracked him for hours. Surely this was the scene of sport. At last the poor creature, weakened from loss of blood, was seen in a thicket. In his vicinity was a red web with gore. I first again at the miserable beast with a gasp he died. The disemboweling process of the guide was too sickening for words.

Before me lay a mighty beast of some thousand pounds weight, and harmless as a kitten. His vacant eyes still haunt me. We severed his head and left his carcass to rot. Surely I am the mighty moose hunter. My dream is over and the horrible awakening has come.

If any man can show me the least thing creditable, manly or sportsmanlike in shooting down one of God's mighty forest kings, standing as they do in the barest of their winter coats, I shall be his everlasting debtor. The smell of blood is on me still and instead of recounting my deed, as I anticipated, to my friends, I find myself heavy of heart and disgusted with my cowardly self. If this is sport, thank God, I am no longer a sportsman.—New York Sun.

YOU are careful in the companionship your sons keep, and if it is true that books are more than friends, be quite as careful in throwing them into proper literary company, that is, into the company which will refresh their youth, stimulate their energies, raise their ideals to loftier elevations, develop their faculties, discipline their abilities, and all these things in happiness; for by proper associates we learn helpful ones; they need not be prudish nor "sissies," the mournful nor the cheerless, the over-the-top, nor the under-the-man, but just the helpful, wholesome sort with souls and sympathies. When your boy is restless you may assume that it is because he has nothing to do which he likes to do. Perhaps he does not like to read, but he will like to do some of the interesting things he finds in books; through his search for them he will come to find companionship in letters. It is a regrettable fact that trashy dime novels of the harmful sort are interesting and entertaining. If they weren't boys wouldn't read them. But the world is just as full of good books that are as interesting and entertaining, and never yet has any boy refused the good interesting book for the poor entertaining book.—Good Housekeeping.

Systematic Play For the Child By H. Foster Bain.

THE distinction between play and work is an obscure one which has puzzled the wisest and the best. In the story of Tom Sawyer's famous experience in whitewashing, all rules are out of break down. The same occupation may be play or work according to the conditions under which it is performed and the attitude of the performer. Froebel long since showed that systematic well-directed play was of the highest educational value. All these occupations would be play, and play only, if left solely to the child. Rightly used, however, the cooking affords many simple lessons in physics and chemistry, the textile work introduces history, and the measurements necessary in carpentry open the doorway to mathematics.

"Learn to do by doing" is a good though narrow rule, since the mere doing is not the vital element. It is what the child learns while doing which counts, and it is for this that the teacher should be introduced. To one who might still urge that occupations are not fit matters for a curriculum, it may be pointed out that in post-grade work in physics courses are sometimes given in manipulation, the bending and breaking of glass rods, and similar work. The occupations of the committee stated the same thing in a different way, and physics the method is the same though instruments differ; and there is an increasing use of symbols and departure from concrete to abstract. Less and less time is devoted to mere doing, and more and more to the learning.

LAW FOR THE GROWERS

Comprehensive Constitution for Southern Cotton Association Promulgated.

MOST LIBERAL PLAN Purposes of New Organization Will Sets Forth Extensive Powers.

The sub-committee on constitution of the Southern Cotton Association, in session at Atlanta, Ga., completed its work in connection with constitutions, Wednesday night, and began the consideration of by-laws.

It adopted separate constitutions for the main organization, for state organizations and for county organizations. The reason for this is that the organization in the county and in the state or division, will be different from the main organization and will require different machinery, yet its fundamental law must conform to that of the main association. For this reason the sub-committee adopted constitutions for these sub-organizations.

The fundamental law is a broad and comprehensive one, as may be gathered from the first article and section, which state the purposes for which the association was organized. It is proposed, as will be seen, to deal not only with the cotton situation, but with other features as well, and, in fact, to lead a helping hand in the upbuilding of the whole commerce of the south.

The sub-committee, to which the matter of formulating the constitution was entrusted is composed of John McC. Martin of Port Gibson, Miss., chairman; J. A. Brewster of Chatham, N. C.; B. D. Smith of Magnolia, S. C.; H. Y. Brooke of Luverne, Ala., and R. R. Dancy of Dallas, Texas.

With the committee were President Harvie Jordan and Secretary Richard Cheatham of the association, who are at present making their headquarters at Monticello, Ga.

Chairman Martin is the member of the committee it is understood, who is most responsible for the constitution of the association. Mr. Martin is a prominent and able lawyer of Port Gibson, Miss., and he has given much of his time and attention to the details of this work.

Purposes of Organization. There are twelve articles in the constitution, which is a lengthy document. The first sets forth the purposes of the organization as follows: "Section 1—The purposes of this organization are: 1. Systematic organization to protect and develop the cotton and agricultural interests of the cotton growing states and territories. 2. To regulate, by all legal means, cotton, corn and grain production, distribution of crops, stock breeding, fruit growing and all such matters as pertain to agriculture in said states and territories, or the cotton growing counties and parishes of same. 3. To regulate, by all legal means, cotton supply and cotton financing. 4. To facilitate, enlarge, extend and systematize cotton marketing, using every available means to secure broad and more extensive markets, and to limit production at demand at remunerative prices. 5. To reduce to a minimum all expenses of handling and transporting cotton and its products, from the time it leaves the field until it reaches the consumer. 6. To promote, stimulate and seek more varied uses for raw and manufactured cotton. 7. To encourage, aid and secure building and operation of cotton and other manufactures, throughout the cotton growing states and territories. 8. To bring together and in cooperation all the various cotton interests, cotton manufacturers and agencies, with a view to such regulations as will protect, stimulate and promote all. 9. To use all agencies and means which will improve, protect, enlarge and increase all southern ports and the business done at each. 10. ### The Osborne Crusade

Made Plain.

Atlanta News.

The mystery of the Osborne crusade solved. He has solved it himself. The motive is general, the motive is particular, the success of his effort, its defeat, its present status, and the remaining object which it holds—they are all in and perfectly clear. As to the general motive, We quote Mr. Osborne:

When I die some foolishly fond friend, in perusing these letters, may think they have the ring of high-minded patriotism in them; but I know that as long as I live I can not hope to be more than a common politician. So please judge me neither higher nor lower than I deserve, i. e., a politician acting unselfishly from a sense of gratitude.

This is frank and manly. It is also clear. Even the Indian on the plains could understand it. Friendship, political litigation, and the loyalty of a practical politician to his friend and comrade, ingeniously stated, frankly planned, boldly and ably executed, with consummate audacity, with brilliant dash and with shining success up to and through the first success! Bravo!

Here is the motive in particular: We quote again the authority of the last appeal:

You see, throughout this entire controversy I have been foolishly laboring under the idea that I was bearing West in his contest for the presidency of the senate. Incidentally, I felt the people would profit by the agitation. If my friend could attain his ambition, if south Georgia could receive a tardy recognition, and all without a bitter, exhausting fight, my task was performed.

Here then the motive in particular—West's election for West's sake and for south Georgia's sake. A wise and loyal politician always stands loyally by his friends. Joe Brown set that precedent, and no man has ever violated it to his profit. We shall see how it turns out in the West-OSborne case.

The method comes next. And Mr. Osborne says: I know the mercenary backers could not thrive in the sunlight. They cannot fight in any kind of light. Agitators and agitators are alike hateful in their sight. They thrive in times of profound political rest only. Agitation means dragging existing conditions out into the limelight. It means the exposure of organized corporate interference with the people's legislation.

It arouses the people to a realization of the fact that the same precious liberty, to gain which the streets of St. Petersburg are stained a crimson hue, is being insidiously stolen away. I know if we turned on the light Steed's backers would sneeze away. They really wanted Steed to be president of the senate, but they dared not pay the price of an open fight and consequent exposure to elect him.

Nothing more significant and nothing more hopeful has appeared in a decade than this announcement of a practical politician that the "mercenaries," as he calls them, cannot stand publicity. Here is one who knows saying that agitation and publicity are alike hateful and deadly to the corporation bosses. We must remember that. Thanks, Mr. Osborne.

And here is the triumph: Up to this time the game was one of cold-blooded politics played with mathematical precision. The very instant the rays of the searchlight found Steed his backers scurried to cover. Steed himself returned from the public gaze. The game was played to a successful conclusion exactly as planned. Steed withdraws under the glare and blazon of publicity and West's calling and election are made sure! Red lights. Cheers. And then, alas, the failure—the coup d'etat of the mercenary—the capture of West, the kidnapping of Osborne's candidate, Appomattox. Slow music. Tears! Hear the bereaved I cannot for the life of me understand West's hasty trip to Atlanta concurrently with Steed's withdrawal. How came he to be so suddenly infatuated with Steed? I don't comprehend this sudden Damon and Pythias friendship. His repudiation of me, his ro-

Strange Political Times

(Atlanta Journal)

Strange political times have fallen upon us these later days. A republican president, elected by the largest popular vote ever received by a president in the history of the country, winning by a vote of two and a half million over his opponent, within two months of his election, and more than two months before his inauguration for his new term, finds himself stubbornly opposed by the majority of his party in both houses of congress. And, strange to say, he turns for support to those who opposed him bitterly by vote and by voice during the campaign and at the election.

The dominant north, which elected the president, tolerates his views upon the race question, knowing that those views are to be enforced against the south only while it coolly ignores or insolently opposes the president's strongly expressed views in favor of railroad regulations, tariff revision and publicity for the trusts.

The dominated south, which in its pride stood aloof from the dominant mob and voiced its demand for Caucasian rule and a safeguard home, detests this president's race views and dislikes him heartily for entering such views, but sympathizes with this president keenly in his vigorous declamations that the people want and must have regulations for the railroads, revision for the tariff and governmental supervision of the great corporations.

Senator Aldrich, who is said to be the real ruler of the Republican party if not also of the nation, goes to Europe in search of health that he does not appear to have lost, and the case of the people against the trusts is checked indefinitely because of the absence of the leading counsel for the trusts. And other Republican leaders, in both senate and house, unite with Mr. Aldrich in ignoring and side-tracking the president's pet legislative plans.

But William J. Bryan, speaking of himself and his following among the democrats, praises this republican president repeatedly. John Sharp Williams, democratic leader in the house, cries out that the people are with the president, and that the democrats are great enough to rise above petty party lines and support the chief executive in his demands for regulations and reform.

The dominant party in congress assembled ignores the wishes of the man whom by a plurality of more than two million votes it placed in the president's chair. The dominated party in congress convened declares that it will rise above party lines and follow the president whenever it thinks that the president is right. For this president the party has no affection, and from him it is separated, on one great question, by a gulf that it will never pass, by a gulf that he can only pass by honestly giving up the expressed views of his entire lifetime.

Strange political times have fallen upon us these later days. Strange political times appear to be at hand.

Death of Mr. I. D. Gay
The death of Mr. I. D. Gay, which occurred at his home in the upper part of Bulloch county on Saturday, while not unexpected, was a sad blow to his family and friends, whose hearts are bowed in sorrow.

Mr. Gay was one of the stolid sons of the Old South—honorable, upright and true as steel—vindicative to an enemy, but true unto death to those he called friends.

He was a man of backbone, broad-minded and true to his colors, and he carried his creed upon his great heart, which was: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Such men we admire and reverence, and with love in our hearts, we say, peace to his ashes.—Millen News.

Hubert High School

The first month of our public school closed Friday, Feb. 10, 1905 and with such a record that we think it deserves mention.

There was an enrollment of thirty-seven and an average of thirty, on daily attendance. Some of the pupils did not enter until the latter part of the month, thus causing the per cent. to be smaller than it would otherwise have been. There were twenty pupils who attended every day.

We feel very proud of the efficient work being done by both teacher and pupils, as well as the interest manifested by the patrons. As a sample of our work, we submit below a list of those on the honor roll, and also one of the best compositions handed in this week. It was written by Jesse Zula Brown, age 15. There were several others deserving creditable mention:

ROLL OF HONOR
Ruth Brown, Jessie Brown, Ethel Brown, Mamie Brown, Gertrude Brown, Sarah Wright, Lillie Wright, Bonnie Robertson, Willie Robertson, Edgar Brown, Ned Brown, Herbert Brown.

THE BEAVER.
The ingenious and interesting beaver is found in some parts of Europe and Asia, but most of them are found in North America. The manner in which beavers build their houses in groups, has always been a source of wonder to the observers.

During the summer the beaver lives by himself in a barrow which he digs out near a lake or stream, but when cold weather comes, he leaves this place, and goes with a crowd of beavers to build them a home for the winter.

There are sometimes two or three hundred beavers in one town. When they start to build their town, they start by choosing a good site for their town; sometimes on the bank of a lake or river, sometimes on an island.

They prefer a river, because the running stream helps to carry down the trees, they require for building. They cut down trees with their teeth, and if close enough to the river for the whole tree to fall in the river, they carry it down, but if the trees are a little distance from the bank, they cut them into several pieces, and drag them to the bank with their teeth.

After they get as many trees as they need, then they start to building their houses. The first thing they do is to make a dam across the river to stop the current, and make a deep pond at the river side. The dam is made of logs and branches fixed in the bed of the stream.

The space between these posts are filled with stones, rocks and clay, and the whole is made as firm as possible. The beavers drag trees from place to place as fast as they need them, but the stones and clay are carried between their forepaws and their chin. They smooth the clay with their paws during the night. Lazy beavers that will not help them work are punished and driven away.

They are very careful about keeping their house repaired. Their houses have two rooms, one above the other. The beavers lives in the upper room; the lower one is used for their food. Their food is the bark of the silver birch and poplar trees. It is kept under the water, safe from frost and brought up when they need it.

ACCUSING GIRL WAS SHOT DEAD.

Mother Opened Fire In Court Room Upon the Man Accused of Her Daughter's Ruin.

Jacksville, Fla., Feb. 13.—Seeking to wreak swifter justice upon the man alleged to have wronged her daughter than delay of legal process promised, Mrs. J. H. Freeman lies mortally wounded; in the undertaking rooms is the corpse of May Brown, her daughter, and at his home, 588 Riverside avenue, W. B. Cahoon, a policeman, is in a condition that is considered grave, all the result of a sensational shooting in Justice Farris' court room here today.

Owen E. Loadholtz, a young man of this city, was being given a preliminary hearing on a charge of having illicit relations with May Brown, and being the father of her unborn child. The young woman had testified to the love and wooing of the young man and his importunities and of her yielding to them upon the promise of marriage, and then, of his refusal to keep his promise. A physician testified to the condition of the young woman and the case was continued until Wednesday.

When Judge Farris announced that the case would be continued the women were noticed to "move unseemly." The elder woman wore a long loose coat. When the attorney and Loadholtz approached the judge's stand, Mrs. Freeman arose at the same moment, and advancing two paces drew from the left side of her coat a Colt's revolver, and leveling it at Loadholtz announced in a high, hysterical voice that thrilled all who heard it and one that will ring always in the ears of the assemblage upon which the terrible accents fell, "Owen Loadholtz, this case will be settled now, and I fired."

The woman's aim missed. Her daughter started from her seat and struck her arms downward. The bullet, which was intended for Loadholtz, plowed into the floor.

After the first shot there was a fusillade. Loadholtz retreated to the rear of Judge Farris' desk. At the same time Detective Cahoon, who had been standing outside the hall, ran in between Loadholtz and the woman. As he did Miss Brown drew her revolver and fired, striking Cahoon in the back. From his position back of the judge's desk Loadholtz opened fire, after the first shot. He fired five times, four of the shots striking Mrs. Freeman and one of them striking effect on the younger woman, the ball entering the brain, lodging in the base of her head. Death was almost instantaneous.

As soon after the shooting as the woman was able to talk she stated to her husband that Loadholtz had anticipated trouble at the court room, and that when she arose upon the judge's announcement of continuance Loadholtz began firing at her; that she did not shoot until he fired first, and after she was on the floor she saw Loadholtz shoot May, her daughter. She fell at the last ball struck her.

It was Jan. 10, that May Brown went to the New York Steam Laundry and when inside the door announced to the occupant of the office that she was going to kill herself, and drawing a revolver from her pocket and pointing the muzzle against her left breast. Fred. Owen E. Loadholtz, a collector for the laundry, was in the office at the time, and realizing her intention rushed to the girl's side and wrested the revolver from her hand before a second shot could be fired. The young woman was taken to the hospital and her wound probed and dressed.

As soon as the girl could appear in court she began proceedings against Loadholtz in Justice Willard's court, the charge being bastardy. Later these charges were withdrawn by her upon her statements that an agreement had been reached between her and Loadholtz. It was supposed by the people who had watched the case that all had been adjusted, and that Loadholtz would marry the woman. Subsequent occurrences developed the fact, however, that the agreement alleged to have been reached between the girl and Loadholtz was not kept to her satisfaction, for a few days ago Mrs. Freeman and the daughter again instituted proceedings against Loadholtz in Judge Farris' court upon the same charge as previously.

Good Fertilizers.
I wish to call the attention of the farmers of Bulloch county, to the way the Blackbear Mfg. company makes up their ammoniated fertilizers. Instead of using some inert material, as a filler they substitute cotton seed meal; always using in addition an animal ammoniate. Aside from the fertilizing value of cotton seed meal the humus in it is of very great value as vegetable humus in the soil has a most important bearing on its productiveness.

This method is the most expensive way to make fertilizers, but it is unquestionably the best way. You will find the sack with at least a half bushel more in them than other brands, being a dry mixture and no inert water. You have in a ton five bushels more in a bulk, it will spread much further and give better results.

$1,400.00 STOLEN!

The above amount of money was stolen from a prominent citizen at Abbeville, Ga. He had collected the money and instead of putting the same in a bank he carried it home and put in a trunk. The hinges were taken off of his trunk while he was up town and the money stolen.

So many people living in the country make this fearful mistake. The safest and most reliable place to keep your money is in your home bank, where you can always get it, and when you want it.
