PROCLAMATION

By His Excellency, Joseph M. Terrell
Governor of Ga.
Atlanta, Ga., July 30, 1906

Whereas the general assembly, at its session in 1903, proposed an amendment to the Constitution of this state, as set forth in an Act approved Aug. 22, 1903, to-wit:

An Act to amend the constitution of the state by providing that the legislature shall have authority to add to the number of judges of the superior court, and for other purposes.

Section 1. He is enacted by the general assembly, that the constitution of this state be amended by adding to paragraph 1, section 3, of article 3, the following: "The legislature shall have authority to add one or more additional judges of the superior court, and shall have authority to regulate the manner in which the judges of such circuits shall be chosen, the term thereof, and shall fix the time at which the term or terms of office of such additional judge or judges shall begin, and the manner of his appointment or election, and shall have authority from time to time to add to the number of such judges in any judicial circuit or to reduce the number of judges in any judicial circuit, provided that at all times there shall be at least one judge in every judicial circuit of this state."

Section 2. Be it further enacted, that whenever the above proposed amendment to the constitution shall be agreed to by two-thirds of the members elected to each house of the general assembly, and the same has been entered on their journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon, the governor shall cause such amendment to be published in at least two newspapers in any congressional district in this state, for two months next preceding the time of holding the next general election.

Section 3. Be it further enacted, that the above proposed amendment shall be submitted for ratification or rejection to the voters of this state at the next general election to be held after publication as provided for in the second section of this act, in the several election districts of this state, at which election every person shall be qualified to vote who is entitled to vote for members of the general assembly. All voting at such election in favor of adopting said proposed amendment to the constitution, shall have written or printed on their ballots the words: "For amendment authorizing legislature to provide additional superior court judges," and all persons opposed to the adoption of such amendment shall have written or printed on their ballots the words: "Against amendment authorizing legislature to provide additional superior court judges."

Now, therefore, I, Joseph M. Terrell, governor of said state, do issue this my proclamation hereby declaring that the foregoing proposed amendment to the constitution is submitted for ratification or rejection to the voters of the state, qualified to vote for members of the general assembly at the general election to be held on Wednesday, October 5th, 1906.

J. M. TERRELL, Gov.
Philip Cook, Secretary of State.

Messrs. R. Lee Moore, R. Simmons and S. L. Moore, who have been to Wainboro as delegates, to the congressional convention returned home Wednesday afternoon, their places having been taken by Messrs. A. M. Deal and G. S. Johnston. They were accompanied by Hon. J. A. Brauena who came home for a breathing spell.

$1.00 A YEAR.

STATESBORO, GA., TUESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1906

VOL 6 NO 30

Stop the Small Leaks.

You may not think you are extravagant. You may not waste large sums of money, but don't you spend nickels and dimes thoughtlessly? So small you do not think they count. How much did you spend yesterday? How much could you have saved? Remember that was only one day. Would not ten years of the same saving be worth while? Open an account with us today.

J. A. B. RUSHING, F. N. GRIMES, BROOKS SIMMONS,
F. E. FIELD.

One Dollar ($1.00) will open an account with us. Start and make it grow.

We pay four (4) per cent on time deposits. Interest paid quarterly if you wish.

Cotton Market.

The cotton market remains about the same. The best prices paid for short cotton are from 9 to 10 cents and for Sea Island from 21 to 22. The staple is being put on market as fast as it is gathered and if the sales continue at the present rate the bulk of the crop will have been sold by November first.

Veterans Met.

The Confederate Veterans of Bulloch county met in the court house yesterday and after transacting other business appointed the following delegates to the reunion to be held in Savannah Nov. 13-14: R. W. DeLoach, J. A. Nevills and J. C. Crumley.

Attention Patrons.

While it has not been the custom of the News management to call on the patrons of the paper through its columns for that which is due us, yet in this case we will have to ask those who are due us for subscription, advertising, job work, etc., to call and settle the same. We are carrying on our books nearly $4,000 in these amounts, ranging from one dollar to fifty dollars.

The management has expended nearly $2,500 on the two agricultural displays, the one at Macon and the other in Atlanta. Mr. Miller is away from home looking after this matter. He has gone the limit on the expense incurred in the matter. On his shoulders rests the burden of not only the $4,000 due us on the paper, but that of the $2,500 expended on the fair displays as well. This is a burden that few men in his circumstances could carry. He needs money, the paper needs money, and we ask those who owe us to come up and settle. Your amount may be small but it will help a little.

This agricultural display, which is one of the best displays ever seen in the state, will do the county a vast amount of good. We are not begging, but asking those who owe us to remember us. Mr. J. Doy Jones is with the paper, and he will receipt you, or any member of the office force will do the same.

FARM FOR RENT.

Fifty-acre farm for rent; 5 miles from Statesboro; good houses and good land; convenient to school and churches; on rural mail route; to be rented to white family on share crop plan; renter must have his own stock. Anyone who corresponds with me must furnish stamp for reply. Apply to G. S. Blackburn, Statesboro, Ga.

Homer Lee Laid to Rest.

Mr. Homer Lee who was mingled by a freight train at the oil mill Thursday afternoon died about twelve o'clock that night. His death was due to the loss of blood and the shock caused by the accident. It came as a great surprise for no one thought the wound would prove fatal. The family are prostrated with grief. Miss Gussie Lee, a sister of the deceased, and a member of the junior class of Brenau College, collapsed completely when the sad news was told her after being withheld until she was nearly home. Physicians had to administer later drugs to revive her. The death has cast a gloom over the entire community.

The funeral exercises were held at the Methodist church Saturday morning at ten o'clock, being conducted by the pastor, Rev. G. N. MacDonnell assisted by Rev. Mr. Adams of Brooklet.

All the business houses were closed as a mark of respect. The funeral procession was one of the largest ever seen here. The floral tributes were numerous and handsome. Mr. Charles Homer Lee the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lee, was at the time of his death in his twenty first year. He is survived by his parents both of whom are yet living, by Mrs. W. B. Johnston, Miss Sadie Lee, Miss Gussie Lee and Mr. Dowse Lee.

The deceased was a member of the Methodist church. He had been elected to the initiatory degree of the Knights of Pythias and would have taken that degree in a few days. At the time of his death he was bookkeeper for the Bulloch Oil Mill and it was while performing his duty in that capacity that he was knocked

Convention Nominates Adams

After nearly seven hundred fruitless ballots the congressional convention of the First district has broken the deadlock by the nomination of Judge Samuel B. Adams, of Savannah.

That this was a surprise to both Judge Adams and the people of the district goes without saying. He had never asked for the nomination nor has his name been connected with it in any way. The events immediately preceding the nomination are of some interest.

It appeared to the Brannen forces that Mr. Brannen could never be nominated. He had gone to the people twice for this office and was opposed to being placed in the position of a chronic office-seeker by running the third time. Twice he had been endorsed by a majority of the white voters of the district; twice he had lost out. It was the duty of the convention to name a standard bearer for the democratic party in November. Mr. Brannen and his delegation were anxious that he should win; in fact, they felt like he was the man for the place, yet they took the position that he was not the only pebble on the beach, and were willing to take any one of a large number of able and deserving men of the first district. Feeling that once in twenty-four years the country counties should be recognized, they went ahead and offered the convention the names of nineteen as good men as the state of Georgia affords living in the different country counties of the district. They were defeated as fast as they were put up by the tie vote of 18 to 18—the same that Brannen had been getting. Each and every time that a name was submitted Jake Collins made it known that not a single man living above the Ogeechee canal would be received. He seemed to have the country delegates representing the Sheppard counties tied hand and foot.

Then it was that in their desperation to make a nomination the name of a Savannah man was put up and given the entire 18 Brannen votes. We had been told that the Savannah crowd would take him if he was placed in nomination by the Brannen forces, but they turned him down as they did the others. This name was that of Hon. J. Randolph Anderson. It seemed that Anderson had been too close to the country counties lately and was too much in touch with them to be acceptable to Collins and his delegation; he had voted for Brannen and was building a railroad through the heart of the district. After Anderson was turned down, to the utter surprise of Collins the Brannen forces put it up to him by placing in nomination the names of Messrs. W. W. Osborne and P. A. Stovall. Collins put his refusal of these on the ground that they belonged to the old Citizens Club faction along with Anderson, and the knife was still whetted for their scalps, and they were turned down.

Then the last play came. The name of Judge Samuel B. Adams was placed in nomination. Then it was that Collins was thunderstruck. He acknowledged that it was up to him. There was a Savannah man and a member of his faction with 18 votes and only one vote lacking to land him. Collins would have given that vote himself, but he knew that Judge Adams would accept the nomination in no other way than for it come unanimously, even if he does it that way. Collins called his delegation to a caucus and landed them for Judge Adams unanimously.

From the Tattall county delegation, that had refused to take one of their own citizens when one Tattall county vote would have sent him to congress, followed the crack of Jake Collins' whip and a Savannah man. They had turned a deaf ear to the call from eighteen Brannen votes to make it either W. G. Warnell, W. C. Perkins or W. T. Burkhalter, either one of whom would have made a splendid representative and an honor to Tattall county. Each of them needed only one Tattall county vote, but that vote was withheld to be bestowed later upon a Savannah man who did not ask for it and does not want it. Just what kind of a face the Tattall county delegation can go home and meet their constituents with we are unable to say. Their own was brought square up to them and they received it not, but at the crack of Jake Collins' whip they landed a Savannah man.

We noticed a news item in the Savannah News yesterday that Judge Adams will in all probability refuse to accept the nomination. Then it is probable that both Messrs. Brannen and Sheppard will be put back in nomination and just who will win and what will happen no one can tell.

Bulloch county has made a desperate effort to honor one of her sons. She had to her back many loyal sons from neighboring counties; the votes of five of the best counties of the district stood loyally by Bulloch. It was the last light of the country counties for recognition. Savannah has whipped the fight and no man from above Yamacraw need aspire to this place for twenty years to come. Regrettable as it is that the county has been deprived of this honor, yet the one humiliating fact remains that at our own doors a Jude was found to plant the kiss that betrayed us. By this we mean no reflection on the six hundred men who voted for Sheppard here; they had a right to do this. Mr. Brannen got twice as many votes in Sheppard's home county as Sheppard got in Brannen's home county, but on both sides they did it openly and on legitimate motives.

The man who wrote the article to start this controversy was not a friend of Bulloch county; he has never contributed a single item to make the county better which gives him bread; he is the running sore in the community in which he lives; a blood-sucker who absorbs all that his carcass will hold and betrays those whom he professes to befriend. He walks out wearing a lion's skin that he may deceive someone, but when the robe is jerked from him the -ars of a jackass are revealed.

The editor of the News will give his attention for the next few weeks to the matter of his agricultural displays in the two cities referred to above. He has neither time nor inclination to continue this row any further and herewith dismisses it unless it becomes necessary for us to handle it further.

As to the thing 'hat made a lame attempt to answer us last week on account of we having denounced him for his treachery to Mr. Brannen, we will say this: We would have paid no attention to you at all had you not planted yourself squarely in our path, there to stink, because you were too mean to allow your stench to rise elsewhere. We have no row to raise with you for voting against Mr. Brannen—over six hundred Bulloch county citizens did this, but you are the first and only one who has stood up as his political adviser after having done what there was in your little power to defeat him. I advise him in a manner that you knew would be a comfort to his enemies; place the kiss of a Jude upon his forehead, when his assailants were gathered about him to crucify him. No other Bulloch county citizen who voted against him was mean enough to stoop to this as you have done.

When you were called upon to specify you could not give an answer until you could run down to Savannah on Sunday and ask to Jake Collins' house and ask him what he wanted you to say against your neighbor. It is a provable fact that you ran down to his house the very Sunday that intervened between the demand and your answer to the same. What you went to Old Jake's house for no one but you and Jake probably know, but your action in this matter shows that "the ass knows his master's crib".

You say your friends are not ashamed of your action. We would like to see a list of those printed who are not ashamed of you, it would make interesting reading matter right at this juncture.

The Farm

Sheep Farm.
It is almost next to impossible for a farrier to be either too large or too small for sheep. No matter what the size of your farm it is adapted to a certain number of sheep, and when you can hit upon just what that number is the quality of your wool will be the better. Sheep will pay on any farm if they receive the proper care and attention and if handled in a business-like way.—New York Tribune.

Some Cream Don'ts.
Don't fail to keep the cream can in cold water summer and winter. Don't fail to wash the cream separator each time it is used with a brush and washing powder. Don't overlook the necessity for rinsing the can clean, hot water, and don't forget that it is an impossibility to make good butter from old, stale cream.

Don't put the cream in a cellar that is not absolutely free of vegetable or other bad odors. Cream will absorb all odors any substance that is near it.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Convenient Location of Silo.
In the construction of a silo the location of having it near to the cows is important. Silage is heavy stuff, as it has in it all of the original juice. It has to be carried far, and the early days of silage in this country, many silos were built away from the barns, the builders not realizing clating the amount of work that would be required to carry the silage to the cows.

After that some went to the other extreme and constructed their silos inside of their barns and within a few feet of the rows of cows to be fed. This was a convenient arrangement, but it filled the barn with the odor of silage, and this odor not only the milk. In most cases now the silo is being built in connection with the barn, but not inside it. Our illustration shows such an arrangement, that is very good where it is not desired to store hay in the dairy barn. The silo is connected with the barn by means of a short extension from the barn. The opening in the silo is on the inside, and in cold weather the doors can be shut, and this will in most instances be enough to keep the silage from freezing. Through the open door in this extension is seen the truck used in conveying the silage from the silo to the cows. When the silage would be likely to affect the milk the door to the barn can be closed to keep the odor out.

Keep the Garden Busy.

Your chief aim should be to keep your garden busy the whole year. You will always find in the plantings tables some cool crops that will not be harvested until late in the season. Toward the end of the season—say the middle of August—you have more empty space than you need for successful growing. It will pay to fork over the ground, and sow white mustard, or any green crop that grows quickly, to be turned under for manure. Remember this: An empty garden is always a weedy one. It is terrible to sow such a crop that is in too the weeds, and there are no bad effects. Also to plant in each plot as nearly as possible such crops as can be harvested about the same time, so that the garden will be busy, and looks better. Imagine mowing and forking over three feet, a mowing, or fifteen feet, and forking three feet more. More time is wasted than would be necessary to cultivate a whole plot.—J. T. Scott, in Garden Magazine.

When Pigs Get Fat.

One of the very necessary things to provide for the pigs during the hot weather is a good shade where they can keep cool during the heat of the day. It is well known that a pig cannot stand much heat for a long time, and that he cannot perspire like most animals, and therefore, a cool place must be provided for him. Natural shade is, of course, the best if dense enough; the darker the place for them during the heat of the day the better, but there should be a good circulation of air. Hogs seldom leave the cool shade until toward evening, at which time they will find them out grazing like a drove of cattle. After the evening feed of grain they will remain out till well into the evening, and the very first thing in the

PERUNA PRAISED.

Dear Sir:

I was a terrible sufferer from politic weakness and bad headache continuously. I was not able to do my housework for myself and husband. I wrote you and described my condition as nearly as possible. You recommended a bottle of Peruna and I was completely cured. I thank Peruna for a valuable medicine, and have recommended it to my friends, with the very best of results.

Dr. S. J. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

Very few of the great multitude of women who have been relieved of some peevish disease or weakness by Peruna ever come to give a testimonial to be read by the public.

There are, however, a few courageous, self-sacrificing women who have been cured by their suffering sisters allow their cures to be published.

For Fumigating Plants.

At the present time the scientific study of the propagator of flowers is receiving the attention of the foremost citizens of the world. One of the greatest problems to be solved is the extermination of the many insect pests which infest plants, retarding their growth or killing them outright. Many systems have been tried for the purpose, but a more efficient method is being developed.

There is a good deal of discussion among house-holders as to the desirability of painting houses, of burning the old paint off, or of using a process consisting in exposing a vaporizable liquid insecticide in a finely subdivided condition to the action of a stream of superheated steam from a boiler or other vessel.

This method is being developed, and is being used in the treatment of plants. It is a very efficient method, and is being used in the treatment of plants.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

Burning Off Paint Makes Insurance.

It seems that considerable damage to property exists in the practice of burning off old paint before repainting. The question has long been a subject of debate in the technical journals, and now house-holders and the newspapers have begun to discuss it. Those of us who, with trembling, have watched the painters blow a fiery blast from their lamps against our houses, and have looked sadly at the size of our painting bill because of the time wasted on this needless work, are interested in the investigation by the Greenfield (Mass.) Gazette and Courier, which gives considerable space to the reasons for the practice, questions its necessity and suggests ways to prevent the risk of burning down one's house in order to get the old paint off.

There is a good deal of discussion among house-holders as to the desirability of painting houses, of burning the old paint off, or of using a process consisting in exposing a vaporizable liquid insecticide in a finely subdivided condition to the action of a stream of superheated steam from a boiler or other vessel.
