A "Slave" Sale in 1909

According to the New York American, the advertisement of a "man for sale" placed in that newspaper has brought so many letters from would-be slaves that the advertiser, a Brooklyn man, has announced that he will be compelled to resort to an auction "in order to find masters for every body."

The American thus quotes the advertising dealer: "As all these poor people have come to me in confidence, asking that their names be kept secret, the auction will be conducted in a way to protect all who offer themselves for sale. Several say they are willing to go on the block and be knocked down to the highest bidder. It so, they will wear a mask or a domino over their features to prevent their being recognized. No name will be used during the sale. The applicants will be of people of like this: Lot 1, a mechanic, etc.; Lot 2, a farm laborer, with details as to his age, experience, etc."

How the dealer, the purchaser and the proposed "human chattels" expect to get around the thirteenth amendment to the Constitution, or evade the interfering of local authorities, the American does not say.

The story has a "fishy" appearance, but it is possible to understand the desire of some hungry and broken-spirited creatures in great city slums to put upon another the responsibility of their keep—to transfer to a "master" a burden daily growing weightier and which they think they can no longer bear. Slavery under a kind master may indeed be more welcome to them than suicide, the bread line, street beggary, or the poorhouse. According to the account before us, no less than 300 "applicants for servitude" have sent in their names.

The one ray of humor in this tragical story is furnished by a widow at Fort Worth, Texas, who is said to have written: "Have seen your sale of men in New York. If you have still a good, healthy white slave who is not afraid of a little work, I would like to enter into negotiations for his purchase. You may give me the ha-ha, but I am in deadly earnest. I have a big house here, which I own, and plenty of land surrounding it. There is only one thing lacking—a man. I am 25 years old, and considered good looking. I will trust you to pick out the right man, and I will pay the freight." The history of past ages shows that the Fort Worth widow is not the first of her sex to consider good looks in the purchase of men slaves—Macon Telegraph.

SOLDIER BALKS DEATH PLOT

It seemed to J. A. Stone, a civil war veteran, of Kemp, Tex., that a plot existed between a desperate lung trouble and the grave to cause his death. "I contracted a stubborn cold," he writes, "that developed a cough that stuck to me, in spite of all remedies for years. My weight ran down to 120 pounds. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, which restored my health completely. I now weigh 170 pounds." For severe Colds, obstinate Coughs, Hemorrhages, Asthma, and to prevent Pneumonia it is unrivaled. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by W. H. Ellis & Co.

My mission to this country can be summed up in the one wish that this friendship may continue and always deepen."

Most of the prominent German-Americans of this city and many from other places were at the dinner, given in honor of the diplomat by the New York State-Zeitung. ### Anti-Jap Bills Worry to Roosevelt.

Washington, Feb. 3.—No single question, nor, indeed, any group of questions, is absorbing the interest and concern of the administration at this moment to the same extent as certain of the phases of the anti-Japanese agitation in California. It has been stated to the administration that the real main spring of the agitation was to be found in some of the great corporations that had found their profitable business of coolie transportation threatened with destruction by the success attending the efforts of the administration to stop this class of immigration.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS SHUT TO JAPS.

ROOSEVELT MADE AT CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE FOR THEIR ATTITUDE TOWARDS JAPS.

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 5.—With the defeat in the lower house yesterday of the anti-Japanese measures, followed by the unexpected passage of a third bill segregating Japanese school children in separate schools along with Chinese, Koreans and other Asiatics, regarded as the most offensive measure of all, President Roosevelt has again taken a hand in the anti-Japanese legislation that for the last week has drawn international attention to California.

Hardly had the bill been passed by the assembly before Governor Gillett received the following message from the president:

"Washington, February 4, 1909.—I, N. Gillett, Governor of California: Your kind letter just received. What is the rumor that the California legislature has passed a bill excluding the Japanese children from the public schools? All this is the most offensive bill of all, and in my judgment is clearly unconstitutional. We should at once have to test it in the courts. Can it be stopped in the legislature or by veto?"

Two Farms May 'Be Bought By State.

Is the prison commission going to buy two farms instead of one? It seems probable, from the official announcement that was given out by the prison commission Saturday morning, and from the rumors that were going the rounds of the capitol.

Following is the official statement: "The prison commission is considering whether it will be best to buy two farms instead of one farm. People who have 2,500 acres or more land, should address the commission at once through the mails and submit propositions with complete description of land. Proposition of this nature will be received until Saturday evening, February 13."

Commenting on this statement, Commissioner Evans says: "It is by no means determined that we will have two farms. By this statement, we don't want to create that impression at all. We are simply preparing for any event that may come, to get the best proposition that we can for the state."

General Evans further says that the state will have to purchase land for a reformatory sooner or later, and that the commission may decide to buy two farms at once and kill two birds with one stone.

Commissioner Wiley Williams openly favors the purchase of two farms for purely convict purposes, but in his admission of that attitude he emphatically states that it is an individual opinion and cannot be construed to in any way commit the prison board.

It is authoritatively rumored that Governor Smith also favors two farms instead of one. The governor has been following the matter very closely since the prison commission first started upon its search for a prison farm to meet the provisions of the new convict law, and it is said has formed an opinion very clearly in favor of two farms in place of one. He could not be seen for substantiation of this statement.

The announcement just published by the prison commission is open to much surmise, in that in itself it is non-committal and further inasmuch as the commissioners declined to assume the responsibility of stating what their board will do.

The reason in support of a double purchase might be arbitrarily selected from among many logical ones. For instance, by the purchase of two farms in different sections of the state, the prison department would be prepared to meet a bad season on one farm with a good season on the other. They would offset each other in that respect.

Moreover, the number of convicts could be split and thereby admit of much more convenient handling. Thirdly, a large tract of land under cultivation would necessarily mean two departments or stockades, as much time would be consumed in carrying the men to work and bringing them back to quarters. Fourth, a prisoner from the higher altitudes of north Georgia could be committed to a farm in its own home climate, and from south Georgia could remain in the warmth of that section.

Strange Makes Hit

In Augusta. Mayor H. B. Strange made a big hit in Augusta last week. He went up to defend a Statesboro young woman on a serious charge. Clearing her and convicting Dr. A. E. Salby the physician who performed the operation. While there he was appointed to defend a white man charged with murder and secured his acquittal at the conclusion of the argument in the case the presiding judge together with leading members of the bar crowded around Col. Strange and told him he had made strongest presentation of a defense in a criminal case ever heard in the Richmond county court house. This is a high compliment when it is remembered that Richmond county has some of the strongest legal talent in the state.

First District Demonstrators Meet

Well Attended Convention of Uncle Sam's Farmers Convene in Statesboro.

A well attended convention of the Farmers Demonstrations and Co-operations of the First Congressional District have been in session in Statesboro during the past two days.

The committee was called to order in the parlors of the Jackson Hotel on Tuesday morning, with Mr. J. P. Campbell of Washington D. C. in the chair. Mr. E. Gentry of the Department of Agriculture acting as secretary. Upon the roll call it was found that every Farm Demonstration Superintendent of the First Congressional District was present with the exception of one. The day on Tuesday was devoted to the discussion of farm problems, seed cultivation etc. Many interesting talks were made by the demonstrators from the various counties.

A large variety of seed corn was brought in and the different varieties taken up and discussed thoroughly, this was also true of cotton seed and cultivation. On Tuesday morning Prof. Hendricks sent in the school teams and took the members of the convention out to the Agricultural School for inspection.

The delegates were shown over the farm, the result of an experiment on sowing oats in the open furrows as against the old style of broadcast was an interesting feature of the trip to the school. The oats which were planted in rows below the surface of the soil had stood the freeze well and were now a good stand while a neighboring field sown broadcast were all killed.

The cow stalls also proved interesting as well as the shop work where the boys were at work. The delegation were taken in to the agricultural laboratory where the question of scientific agriculture is taught and shown through. A class of boys and girls were drilled before them, next they were taken to the domestic science department presided over by Miss Bosman, a class of girls were taking off a lesson in pastry. This was perhaps the crowning feature of the entire trip and seemed to impress the visitors more than anything else here a girl is taught how to conduct the home in all its features. Prof. Gentry of the agricultural department became so much interested that he insisted on taking hold and assist in preparing a cake that was in course of preparation.

Mr. Gentry travels all through the state, he goes to all the schools of its character and in answer to a question impounded by a News reporter who was along that the school at this place seemed to be doing the best work of them all, in point of equipment it exceeds all the others and he has great hopes for the success of this school.

The following program was discussed during the convention. 1. Preparation of the Soil. 2. Fertilizer and Compost Heap. 3. Improved Seed and Seed Testing. 4. Cultivation of Crop. 5. Forage Crops. 6. Cover Crop. 7. Crop Rotation. 8. Pasture.

Mr. L. L. Parker of Daisy was in town during the week attending the Farm Demonstration.

We expect to close down our mill soon—bring in your cotton seed and get $20.00 per ton for them. Bulloch Oil Mill.
