Congressional Fights That are Taking Shape.

That Commissioner of Agriculture T. G. Hudson has determined to make the fight for congress in the Third district, there is no longer any question.

Mr. Hudson has informed many of his friends that he will be a candidate, and present indications are that the race in the Third will be between him and Congressman Dudley M. Hughes, of Twiggs county.

From letters that have been written, it is apparent that the fight in this district is already on, and there is every indication that it will be one of the congressional storm centers next year.

It will be recalled that Congressman Hughes beat former Congressman E. B. Lewis last year, though Mr. Lewis had served several terms, and had a strong following throughout the district.

Thus Congressman Hughes finds a hot contest upon his hands almost before he enters upon his congressional service. He has participated only in the extra session now in progress.

Mr. Hudson is known as a splendid politician, and with these two in the race there is no doubt that it will be a battle royal.

The question has arisen as to whether Mr. Hudson will resign the office of commissioner of agriculture because of his congressional race, before the expiration of his term. There is no reason why he should do so, unless he should find it necessary to give all of his time to the congressional fight.

Still, there are some candidates for the position of commissioner of agriculture who are speculating upon the idea that he may resign, and are already at work endeavoring to bring influences to bear in favor of their appointment.

It looks as if there will be equally hot running in the Sixth district, where some four candidates are grooming for the fight.

Hon. O. H. P. Bloodworth, of Monroe, made the race against Congressman Charles L. Bartlett last year, but Mr. Bartlett was reelected. Mr. Bloodworth, however, is still nourishing congressional aspirations, and it is generally understood that he will be in it again.

But, in addition to Mr. Bloodworth it now appears there will be others. Hon. J. J. Flynt, of Spalding, former president of the senate and now judge of the city court Griffin, would like a congressional career, as would also Hon. Joe Pottle at Baldwin, former solicitor general of his circuit, and a lawyer of distinction and ability.

Both Mr. Flynt and Mr. Pottle are popular men, not only in their home counties, but elsewhere in the district, and if these four get into the running it's two to one they will make it exceedingly lively in the Sixth.

All indications point to the fact that such is their purpose, and that the Sixth will soon have a four cornered fight on its hands.

There is, likewise, a splendid crop of candidates up in the Seventh. Four of these are already squarely in the race, and there is prospect of a fifth.

Congressman Gordon Lee will not run again. In accordance with his announcement two years ago he is out of it.

Judge Moses Wright, of the Rome circuit; Hon. S. P. Maddox, former solicitor general of the Cherokee circuit; Hon. M. L. Johnson, of Bartow, a well known farmer, former legislator and formerly at the head of the Georgia division of the Southern Cotton association, and Hon. G. R. Hutchens, of Polk, are the four known and avowed candidates, and they are already at work some fifteen months at least in advance of the primary.

The possible fifth candidate is Judge A. W. Fite, of the Cherokee circuit, who has long aspired to a congressional seat, and once made the race. Whether he will be in the race or not is yet to be determined.

At all events, the four candidates named are busy now in a quiet way, getting fences in shape, having their announcements printed and canvassing the country whenever there is an opportunity. It will be a hard fight up in the Seventh, possibly with doubt as to the outcome right up to the day of the primary.

Congressman T. W. Hardwick is practically sure to have opposition in the Tenth from at least one candidate, and there are several others who are thinking about it.

But it is a pretty well settled fact that Hon. C. E. Dunbar, of Augusta, who has served several terms in the house of representatives, is going to ask the voters of the Tenth to elect him as Congressman Hardwick's successor. Mr. Dunbar is well known throughout the district, and has given evidence of no small political ability.

Dr. W. W. Pilcher, of Warrenton, and Hon. Willis Evans, of Sandersville, a lawyer and former member of the legislature, likewise have the congressional bee, and are doing some hard thinking. It is possible, therefore, that the Tenth district fight may be three and even four cornered.

Very probably there will be other congressional contests, as, for instance, in the First, where there has already been some quiet talk of opposition to Hon. Charles G. Edwards, though it has not openly developed.

But the congressional storm centers in the fights preceding the primary of 1910 will very likely be the four districts referred to.

There is plenty of time, however, for the development of a congressional contest almost anywhere. The more important question is whether favorable conditions for it will present themselves.

It is itself a hard matter to beat a congressman. There were six races in Georgia last year, and only one new member chosen. But the new crop of candidates think they see better chances now. At any rate they are going into it for all they are worth.—Atlanta Constitution.

THOUGH BADLY HURT, DEPUTY MADRAY MAY RECOVER.

Dogs Trail Jesup Jail Escapes—One Negro Fugitive Wounded.

Jesup, Ga., May 10.—Five dogs are on the trail of the three negro prisoners who, after viciously assaulting Deputy Frank Madray, escaped last night from the Wayne county jail. One of the negroes, it is believed, carries with him in his flight tonight several shot from a gun fired by a member of one of the posses that are seeking the fugitives. Blood was found where the negro was glimpsed in the darkness, and it is thought he was badly wounded.

It is believed that the men early tonight were within a half dozen miles of Jesup. They are supposed to have separated at first and then again to have joined each other, and that they are together late tonight.

More cheering news came from the bedside of Deputy Madray and it is believed that he may get well, though the wounds he received at the negroes' hands were terrible.

The posses who are trailing his assailants have stated that only the capture of the negroes will end the hunt, and since it is known in a general way where the fugitives are it is expected that a capture will be made soon.

Madray was first found by Mrs. Willie Crumme, who had gone to the home of Mrs. Madray and they were both sitting on the front porch when Madray came by with one of the negroes carrying a bucket of water.

Scarcely ten minutes had elapsed before the little children of Mrs. Crumme cried: "Mama! Mama! The negroes are all out and running." Mrs. Crumme went to the jail door, saw Madray lying in a pool of blood in the jail yard at the farthest corner of the jail. She called to Mrs. Madray that "They have killed Frank," and then ran for assistance.

The almost frantic wife ran into the jail and found her husband's hat lying near the cell door, but still could not find her husband. After searching through the jail she ran out into the yard and there found him. She called him and he did not answer. She then attempted to raise him up. Aid soon reached her and the almost lifeless man was carried to the front porch, where his wounds were dressed by physicians. He had received several blows on his head. Fully a dozen lacerated places were seen up, requiring forty stitches. A blow broke his nose, and he received several blows on his face, inflicting severe wounds.

This afternoon Madray rallied and said that the negroes attacked him in the jail, but did not finally overpower him until they reached the yard, where one of them grabbed the old scrubbing brush and hit him knocking him senseless. He did not remember anything after that.

During last night one of the physicians asked him if he could tell how he was hurt. He replied, "No! Am I hurt?" The doctor told him "Yes," and when he was told that the negroes in the jail hit him he immediately asked if they were out. He was told, "Yes, they are out," and Madray insisted that they must be locked up again.
